Ted Riordan Named Attorney Of The Year By Mass. Lawyer's Weekly

By JOE REARDON

He didn't know he was on the radar, but Ted Riordan isn't complaining after being named a 2009 Attorney of the Year by Massachusetts Lawyer's Weekly.

"They didn't tell me I was being considered," Riordan said with a laugh. "I found out after the fact. I was very surprised."

Massachusetts Lawyer's Weekly (MLW) is the primary legal publication for Massachusetts lawyers. Designed by the Supreme Judicial Court, the publication is an authorized source for the publication of all court rules and other notices.

The 44-year-old attorney

graduated from Stonehill College in 1987 and went on to earn his law degree at Suffolk University Law School. Riordan worked for the Rhode Island Supreme Court for a year before an eight-year stint at Latronico & Whitestone, formerly the Law Offices of James D. Casey. He's been a partner at Bates & Riordan since 1999.

Riordan said on the Lawyer's Weekly website that debating the law is a rewarding aspect of his job.

"I find it very rewarding to issue-spot intriguing, complicated legal ideas, to follow that through and to be able to convince a panel of very smart judges to see my way on a case," Riordan said.

He will be presented with the award at a banquet at the Weston Hotel in Waltham on April 1.

Fundraiser Sunday Benefits Animal Shelter

The Quincy Animal Shelter is taking an aggressive effort in garnering funds to improve conditions for the animals with a luncheon Sunday at Siros at Marina Bay.

The luncheon is $50 per ticket and will be held from 1-4pm. The restaurant is located at 307 Victory Rd., North Quincy.

Tickets must be purchased in advance; they will not be available at the door.

For more information, call the shelter at (617) 376-1349.

The shelter's board of directors has isolated three main areas where improvements need to be made. An air exchange system is necessary for a long-term facility, which is more than 14 days.

The current system takes time to heat up in the winter months, and in the summer months doesn't blow cool air right away. "That needs to be updated or repaired," said Lynda Southerland, a member of the shelter's board of directors.

Sound baffling is needed as well. This would reduce the noise of the dogs' barking. Constant exposure to barking places stress on dogs and cats alike. The third necessity is an increase in cage size for the cats. Many of the shelter's cages are below standard for long term care of felines. The cats should be in a cage large enough for them to move around and get up on a shelf in the cage.

"We want to work with what we have to make the shelter more comfortable," said Southerland.

The Humane Society of the U.S. (HSUS) has a shelter review program that the board would like to take advantage of to ensure raised funds are put to the best possible use. The program involves reviewing the policies and procedures of shelters, their bylaws, volunteer handbook and training procedures and in-house operations.

The "efficiency study" evaluates 12 key components of the shelter and comes back with recommendations.

An on-site visit is needed to evaluate the setup and offer suggestions regarding how the shelter can best utilize the available space and what may be needed in improvements.

The owner of Siros, Kristie Henriksen, donated the large dining room in addition to the food for the event. All the proceeds from the fundraiser will go towards the maintenance fund.

'Night At The Races' To Benefit Irish Dancers Saturday At Granite Rail

Forbes School of Irish Dance will host "A Night At The Races" event to benefit Forbes dancers attending the North American Irish Dance Championships this coming July in Orlando, Fla.

The dancers have been training all year long for this annual event, which brings competitors from all over the world.

Guests can wager to win on actual videotaped simulcast horse races. Raffle tickets will also be available.

The event will take place Saturday, March 6 from 7 to 11 p.m. at the Granite Rail Tavern, 16 Cottage Ave., Quincy. Tickets are $10 per person.

For more information, or to purchase tickets, call Jackie McDonald, 857-991-5350 or Susan O'Connor, 617-512-6544.

McNamee Reception March 11

Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee will hold a reception Thursday, March 11 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Irish Pub, 51 Billings Rd., North Quincy.

Suggested contribution is $20.

All are welcome and encouraged to attend, regardless of financial contribution.

Coughlin Fundraiser To Benefit National Guard Families March 11

The Coughlin Committee will host a reception for City Council President Kevin Coughlin and a fundraiser to benefit the men and women of the National Guard and their families Thursday, March 11 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the Best Western Adams Inn, 29 Hancock St., North Quincy.

There will be a cash bar, hors d'oeuvres and music.

Suggested contribution is $25 patron, $50 sponsor and $100 benefactor.

A portion of the proceeds raised will be donated to benefit the 164th Transportation Battalion and 186 G Company Family Readiness Groups.

Mayor To Speak At NQHS PAC Meeting Tonight

Mayor Tom Koch will address the North Quincy High School PAC tonight (Thursday) at 6:20 p.m. in the Trophy Room.

The regularly scheduled PAC meeting will start at 7 p.m. A member of the guidance department will attend. Principal Earl Metzler and Vice Principal Rob Shaw will give monthly reports. All are welcome.

Want Committee, Consultant To Develop Master Plan

Councillors Charge Flaws In Pact With Thayer Academy

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Several city councillors charged Monday that the Park Department's "Share The Pier" agreements with Thayer Academy will short-change the city in the long run, and that the agreements fail to pass legal muster under the state's Chapter 30B.

The agreements focus on a waterfront portion of the 2.5-acre city-owned parcel off Southern Artery located between CVS and a Quirk car dealership.

The entire parcel, also, includes the Souther Tide Mill and docks for lobster fishermen. The property previously housed Quincy Lumber Co.

The land, currently assigned to the Park Department, was repeatedly described as a potential jewel but, currently, derelict, desolate and dangerous with no other takers to date.

After their review, councillors voted 8-1 to ask Mayor Thomas Koch to hire a professional consultant to work with a committee representing stakeholders, advocates and community representatives in developing a master plan for the entire 2.5 acre parcel.

Councillors Daniel Raymond, Ward 2 and Margaret Laforest, Ward 1, sponsored the resolution.

Councillors have no authority over the property unless the Park Department chooses to sell or enter into a lease agreement of more than three years.

However, the status of the agreements that Koch, Park Department Director Kristen Powers, and City Solicitor James Timmins and other city officials signed raised legal questions for councillors.

Thayer's Assistant Treasurer Bill Stephenson signed both agreements for the school.

Agreements

Under the controversial pacts, Thayer Academy would invest $250,000 in major improvements to portions of the city's 2.5 acre riverside property.

These improvements would include clearing and cleaning the site, building a six-car parking lot, a gravel access for the fishermen, a pier and installing two trailers with electricity and water access behind a wooded buffer on the site.

In addition, the agreement stipulates that Thayer Academy will aid the public schools in initiating a crew team and share two mobile home type trailers to be permanently based on the tract.

None of that work would affect or improve the historic Souther Tide Mill at the edge of the property and now enclosed by barbed wire fencing.

In return for its investment, Thayer would have perpetual access to Town River, permanent storage space, priority access via city property to the water during the school's crew season and exclusive rights to use the water during Thayer's crew meets.

Timmins defended the agreements formalized on April 15, 2009 as a Memo of Understanding between the City of Quincy and Thayer Academy and, the second, labeled a Facility Use and Access Agreement executed on Sept. 14, 2009.

"It's just win-win," said Barry Welch, Director of Recreation, who believes that Thayer's improvements would allow the city to expand its booming kayaking and canoeing program from Blacks' Creek lagoon.

"This is an ideal site," said Welch noting that the project would be completed before or in tandem with the $7 million federal upgrade to the Broad Meadow marshlands across the river.

Under the plan, Welch said the Park Department would cover long-term maintenance costs, which could include lease payments for the two trailers described in the agreements.

Bob Daylor, Vice President of Tetra Tech Rizzo and a member of Thayer's Board of Directors, said efforts are being made to obtain the trailers through a gift.

Laforest feared two trailers could shatter the beauty of the parkland when viewed from Broad Meadows.

"Would the project income cover the upkeep and lease liability of the City of Quincy?" Raymond asked.

Welch said he could not guarantee that additional fees and interest from the city's programs would neutralize the maintenance costs for the property.

"I'm not sure I want to make that projection. There will be some costs. We do expect to bring in money from the city's expanded program," replied Welch.

The agreement does include termination "for cause," which specifies Thayer's failure to perform requirements of the agreement or "gross neglect or misuse of the parcel."

"I'm not certain under what scenarios (the city) would want to evict Thayer," responded City Solicitor

James Timmins who cited "the enormous good will on their part."

Eternity is a long time and some councillors feared that others, less cooperative, could be overseeing Thayer Academy in the future.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci warned, "No one wants to walk down the aisle thinking about divorce."

Challenges

Councillor Joseph Finn cited legal restrictions regarding the disposition of public land under the state Chapter 40b but City Solicitor James Timmins said the statute does not apply to these agreements.

Timmins called the agreements a public-private partnership, a "collaboration between Thayer and the city" that will benefit the city by upgrading the property.

Finn asked if an appraisal had ever been undertaken as required for public property under M.G.L. Chapter 40B.

Timmins said the process was not necessary because the agreement was a collaboration or public private partnership.

The state's Chapter 40B requires an appraisal and the public solicitation of proposals when a property is rented, conveyed or otherwise disposed of.

Under the law, the city must follow the process of appraisal and advertisements when "disposing of, by sale or rental to any person, real property or any interest therein....to exceed twenty-five thousand dollars in value."

"I can't fathom for the life of me why this is not considered a lease," commented Ward 5 Councillor

Tide Mill Sparks Worldwide Interest

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Souther Tide Mill, with its boarded-up windows and flapping rooftop, is about as sad and shabby as a building can be and still stand.

Despite its appearance, supporters, locally, nationally and even internationally, are rooting for its resurrection and preservation.

Some 50 friends braved pelting rain and punishing winds last week to attend a strategy and information session sponsored by Friends of Souther Tide Mill and held at Quincy Point Congregational Church.

"Everyone is watching because it's one of the few (tide mills) left," said Earl Taylor, Director of the Tide Mill Institute, an international organization, and president of Dorchester Historical Society. The Institute represents members from such countries as Portugal, Spain, Ireland and England.

Taylor said he gets queries from all over the world checking on the Souther Tide Mill because it is one of only five remaining in the world.

"We'd like to be able to help," said Taylor who envisions exhibits in a restored Souther Tide Mill in the future. Taylor oversaw the preservation of the Blake House and other historic buildings in Dorchester.

Supporters hope the Souther Tide Mill can be restored before it falls down and have been working for decades to protect and revive the structure.

Many believe the mill's preservation should be included in all plans affecting its location in the 2.5 acre parkland on Southern Artery. They have questioned the wisdom of allowing the abutting property to be upgraded by Thayer Academy before addressing the needs of the mill which cannot be replaced.

At the meeting, Chris Walker, Chief of Staff for Mayor Thomas Koch, announced that community preservation grants totaling $130,000 will be used to stabilize the old mill, but those improvements will only address structural problems.

At the meeting, many of the dozen speakers described decades of fruitless efforts to protect, preserve and rehabilitate the structure, but they suggested this might be the time the mill gets the proper attention.

There is no money or plans for complete rehabilitation at this time, but that could change if more people became active, according to Carolyn Marks, President of the Friends of Souther Tide Mill. Marks invited all interested persons to attend the Friends' monthly meetings at the Quincy Historical Society and Steve Perdios, Chairman of the CPA, urged Quincy Point residents to unite to fight the blight staining their neighborhood. Perdios said the city is responsible for the blight at Souther Tide Mill.

Douglas Gutro during the discussion.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci cited legal issues, but, also, asked how the city could agree to such a pact, in perpetuity, for just $250,000 in upgrades.

"Quincy can never walk away from this agreement," said Palmucci, as the agreements are silent on a time limit or review period.

"Our responsibility is to the taxpayers. Thayer is not going to pay anything beyond their initial investment," said Finn who said the contract was based on faith.

The agreement does include termination "for cause," which specifies

Thayer's failure to perform requirements of the agreement or "gross neglect or misuse of the parcel."

"I'm not certain under what scenarios (the city) would want to evict Thayer," responded City Solicitor James Timmins who cited "the enormous good will on their part."

Gutro questioned when Thayer's initial investment of $250,000 would pay off for the school and the city would bear the brunt of the costs in perpetuity.

"Where's the break-even point?" Gutro asked.

Supporters

Proponents of the agreement, Councillors John Keenan and Brian McNamee, warned that no other entity has come forward to improve the area and the city cannot afford to improve the parcel.

"It's a no brainer," said McNamee of the benefits for the city while Keenan described the wretched conditions currently at the site.

Keenan recalled the sound of breaking bottles as vagrants used the area for shelter and the dangerous attractions for visitors.

MORE FOR YOU HERE AT HOME

Christian Science Reading Room

As a foundation stone of the Wollaston business community since 1963, (and a proud member of Quincy 2000 Collaborative for several years), the Reading Room is a place where anyone in the community can come to step out of the daily wind and grind of the day, and take a few peaceful moments to regroup, and even spend some quiet time in prayer with God.

The Reading Room is a bookstore and resource center for spiritual discovery that's open to the entire community. You'll find information and material about Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, including her primary work Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures, which in tandem with the Holy Bible, teach and illustrate the healing power demonstrated by Christ Jesus.

We're located at 18 Beale Street in Wollaston, a couple doors up from the Wollaston Theater. After completing renovations not long ago, you can now find comfortable chairs and furniture to use while you browse books and magazines on Christian Science in various languages; you'll also find a variety of Bible research materials, audio-video products, and world news from The Christian Science Monitor, both in print and on-line.

In addition to the Monitor, there's also access to web sites such as spirituality.com, where you can read articles on topical subjects such as "No earthquake can loosen Love's embrace," and "The healing power of grace." You can also check out mbelibrary.org, which will give you access to programs and what's going on at the Mary Baker Eddy Library in Boston, and there's tmcyouth.com for young people.

Some of the comments we've heard from people that have stopped by the Reading Room include, "What a great place!" "This is one of the best kept secrets in the community, why don't more people know about it?" "It feels so peaceful in here." Don't take their word for it, stop in and see for yourself!

VARIOUS REPRESENTATIVES from the Christian Science Reading Room, include Doug Gutro, Ward 5 Councillor, and Mary Bing, Reading Room Librarian. The Reading Room is located at 18 Beale Street, Wollaston

FIRE SAFETY

by Captain Tom Lyons
Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

Smoking Related Fires

I've been reading a U.S. Fire Administration advisory on smoking related fires. They associate the fatalities resulting from smoking related residential fires as the number one cause of preventable fire deaths. Their spokesman says, "Every year, about 1,000 people are killed in smoking-related home fires... It just takes a few seconds to light up – and a few seconds to make sure the cigarette is really out."

Consequently here's what they recommend: If you feel you must smoke, it's better to smoke outside. Inside the home, use big ashtrays with a stable base. Really put the cigarette out, don't just tap it into the ashtray. It's not a good idea to smoke if you are drowsy, and never smoke in bed. If people smoke at your home, check for cigarette butts near the furniture and under sofa cushions before you call it a night. Douse butts and ashtrays with water, leaving them in the sink, before they're discarded into the trash.

USFA data shows that one-in-four people killed in home fires is not the smoker whose cigarette caused the fire. In fact, 34% were children of the smokers and 25% were neighbors or friends of the smokers. Most smoking related residential fires occur on beds, furniture, or in the trash when cigarettes are carelessly disposed of, or still lit as individuals fall asleep.

Incidents from our own Massachusetts Fire Incident Reporting System in 2006 indicate that 84% of all smoking related building fires occur in residences. While it has been suggested that with the new statutes prohibiting smoking within public places, individuals' homes have become sanctuaries for the practice. Statistics from this same system, hilted the fact that rubbish, trash and waste ignited, accounted for 14% of these fires, while upholstered furniture and bedding combined accounted for 18%.

Statistics can speak loudly of trends, and pinpoint areas needing attention. Smoking, smoking related fires and smoking related deaths have historically drawn awareness toward the continuous need for further education. While alcohol use can be a contributing factor, lying on a couch or bedding is obviously the primary behavioral combination leading toward disaster. Carelessly disposing of cigarettes within trash barrels prior to full extinguishment is the second most common method of ignition.

If you smoke, kindly adhere to the hazards hilted by these studies. Efforts toward safer behavioral habits can far outweigh the consequences of regrettable outcomes. Be mindful of your smoking practices, and if you must smoke, please do it safely and responsibly. Your life, and those of your loved ones may depend upon it. Thank you for doing so.

Stuffed Baked Scallops With Asparagus

Recently at a luncheon for my friend Barbara and her daughters Susan and Cindy, plus a couple of family members, I didn't know what the menu would be. I asked Susan what their favorite food for lunch was and she said they "like everything."

And so I decided to make a family favorite of baked stuffed scallops. I placed them in large shells, so each one had their own.

Even though scallops are delicious alone, this time I made a creamed asparagus as the bed for the scallops, and the results were twice as delicious.

STUFFED BAKED SCALLOPS WITH ASPARAGUS

1-pound scallops (I used large, and cut them in halves)

1 strip of Ritz crackers (crushed)

2 tablespoons butter (for the stuffing)

A smidgen of sherry wine (optional)

Juice of a half lemon

1 can of asparagus tips and pieces (I used organic)

2 tablespoons flour (for the sauce)

2 tablespoons butter (for the sauce)

1-cup milk

Salt and pepper to taste

If you have shells, butter each one. Cut the scallops in pieces if using the large ones. Set aside. If using a baking pan, butter that also.

For the stuffing: Melt the butter, add the crushed crackers, the sherry and the lemon.

For the cream sauce: melt the butter and then add the flour whisking making a rue and then add the milk and cook until thickened. Add the asparagus and mix until well blended.

Place the creamed asparagus on the bottom of the shell or baking dish.

Mix the scallops together with the stuffing, blending them so they are all coated. Place on top of the asparagus. Add some lemon juice to each one. And a small drop of butter as well.

Place the shells on cookie sheet and bake in a 350-degree oven for about 20 minutes. Serve with additional lemon wedges. If using a baking dish, they will take a little longer, about 30 minutes.

Morrissey, Energy Committee Target Water Use Deceit

State Sen. Michael W. Morrissey (D-Quincy), state Rep. Bruce Ayers (D-Quincy), and the Joint Committee on Telecommunications, Utilities and Energy recently voted to increase the penalties for water meter tampering.

Presently, the penalty for anyone found to have tampered with their home or local business' water meter is $100 or not more than one year in jail. The bill that was approved by the Committee would increase the monetary fine to triple the amount of damages sustained or $1,000 whichever is greater.

"It is time that we update this law for the times," Morrissey said. "These increased penalties are more consistent with what other utilities can charge for tampering."

The Energy Committee, which Senator Morrissey serves as Senate Chairman of, took testimony from local water company employees who described going into homes where residents had put magnets on meters in an attempt to slow down the registration, cut transponder wires, or removed the meter altogether.

"The rest of the town pays when these people go to such lengths to buck the system," Morrissey said.

Ayers, a member of the Joint Committee, joined Chairman Morrissey in supporting the bill. "It is important that we put the proper penalties in place to go after these water thieves and deter others from future conduct," said Representative Ayers.

The matter now goes before the full Senate for their review and debate. "I will be talking to my colleagues about this important issue in the coming days, and I look forward to the Senate taking up this bill and sending it to the House," Morrissey added.

Keenan Fears Bleak Finances

Monday.

For the short term, Keenan's resolve recommends such items as further employee wage deferrals, staffing cutbacks and reductions in the city's share of health insurance premiums for employees.

The resolution must be reviewed and approved by the Finance Committee and the council before being forwarded to Mayor Thomas Koch and Nick Puleo, Director of Municipal Finance.

In detailing the city's savings on health insurance, Keenan said, "On this issue, perhaps the City should look at a sliding scale.... The more an employee earns, the more that employee contributes to the overall health insurance premium."

Keenan introduced a similar resolve last year and he plans to follow last year's process of meeting with representatives of every department, seeking specific details on their spending and considering their recommendations for cost cutting.

Recent legislation proposed by the governor would allow the city to extend its payment schedule on pension obligations, beginning with the next fiscal year. Keenan said that should, also, be analyzed.

"Given the enormous financial pressures facing the City, consolidation of all services should be examined," said Keenan who suggest the city consider a consolidated fire, police and ambulance dispatch service.

Keenan also suggested that the city examine all property it owns as a result of tax takings and look to see which properties could be sold.

"The sale of such properties would generate one time revenue and also result in the property being put back on the tax rolls," Keenan said.

For the longer term, Keenan proposed that the City consider selling the land and building that houses the present Central Middle School and plan for the use of the existing Quincy High School building.

"The revenue generated by the sale of the Central Middle School building and the tax revenue generated by private development of that land will help us finance the construction of a new Central Middle School," said Keenan.

While Keenan's resolution details possible cuts, he also suggest considering new fees for trash collection excessive private police and fire alarm calls, and school transportation, club and athletic fees.

Keenan also suggested that revenue sources could include advertising in public buildings, athletic fields and on public vehicles or an "Adoption" programs for public vehicle.

The Finance Committee will begin budget reviews of city departments in March and continue through April.

Saturday At Quincy Elks Tirrell Room

Quincy Kiwanis To Honor Junior Heroes At Breakfast

The Quincy Kiwanis Club will recognize several acknowledged young leaders with "Junior Heroes Awards" at a breakfast Saturday, March 6 at 9 a.m. at the Quincy Elks Tirrell Room.

The Junior Heroes who will receive rewards include Taylor Baker (Sterling Middle School), Liam Batson (Broad Meadows Middle School), Griffin Batson (Atherton Hough Elementary), Michael Cronin (Point Webster Middle School), Elio Daci (Sterling Middle School), Xylena Desquitado (Sterling Middle School), Lauren DiBona (Archbishop Williams High School), Dana Djerf (NQHS), Owen Doherty (Wollaston Elementary School), Katie Flaherty (NQHS), Jackie Kelley (NQHS), Ryan Manning (Squantum Elementary School), Joshua Quinlan (Broad Meadows Middle School), Jimmy Scribi (NQHS), Korien Sorenson (Quincy High School) and Gredi Zyba (Lincoln Hancock Elementary School).

Each year the club gives these awards, named in memory of Patrick Toland White of Quincy, to young people, who amongst their colleagues are judged to be in a class by themselves when it comes to community service.

Again this year a very top quality group was announced and selected because they stood out amongst their peers. Their special civic efforts and contributions helped identify each one as a "leader" within their individual student body. In addition, these contributions give a whole new perspective on just how local youngsters selflessly contribute to those less fortunate amongst them, these young people have learned early in life the skill of giving back.

Joining the recipients at Saturday's breakfast will be community leaders, parents and teachers who have shaped and encouraged those qualities that have moved them in the right direction. This year again students were nominated from several elementary, middle and high school throughout Quincy.

The slogan of all Kiwanis Clubs worldwide is "serving the Children of the World." This international organization has clubs in 75 nations and more than 300,000 members.

Quincy Chamber: No Phone Survey

The Quincy Chamber of Commerce is not doing a survey among local businesses to see if they are moving from the city, Dean Rizzo from the Chamber announced Tuesday.

"If you receive a phone call from a company representative identifying himself as a representative from the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, please be aware that this is not a representative of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce," Rizzo said.

"If you receive such a phone call, call us or email us to let us know," he added.

TV Production, Digital Photography Classes This Month At QATV

Quincy Access Television (QATV) will offer several new courses in both television production and digital photography during the month of March for Quincy residents.

On Monday, March 8, documentary award-winner Mark Crosby will discuss "Documentary Making." The class will include themes such as idea development, scripting, shooting, editing and post production review. Crosby will also present an advanced "Lighting and Set Design" class on Monday, March 22, general lighting as well as special effects.

QATV will also sponsor a "Digital Photography" class taught by Carol Themmen, who has been a member of the South Shore Camera Club, many online clubs, where people share information and meet to shoot pictures.

The first class will be held Tuesday, March 16 and will cover basic camera operation, shutter speed, aperture and exposure. On Tuesday, March 23, she will move into composition, rules of photography, and avenues available to get out there and improve your own photography.

All classes are held at the QATV studio at 88 Washington St., and begin a 6:30 p.m. Space is limited. Call 617-376-1440.

Insurance STRATEGIES

by Jim Sullivan

ARE YOU PAYING TOO MUCH FOR AUTO INSURANCE?

Collecting furniture, paintings, or jewelry requires specialized tastes and a budget. If you are a collector, be sure to protect your investment by getting an appraiser's report and by having the right type and level of insurance. Please call JAMES J. SULLIVAN INSURANCE AGENCY at 617-328-8600 to schedule an insurance consultation. We offer a complete range of insurance to protect all your possessions. Most importantly, we can periodically review your coverage to keep up with your changing insurance needs. Our office is located at 151 Hancock Street.

In order to avoid potential disputes with insurance companies that might arise over a disagreement in the value of a lost, stolen, or destroyed piece of valuable personal property, it is strongly advised that collectors, hobbyists, and others avail themselves of a professional appraisal. Recommendations from insurance agents, friends, and family can lead to finding an appraiser who specializes in the particular category in question. Otherwise, it may help to work with a professional association like the American Society of Appraisers. Once an appraiser is contacted, consumers should inquire about fees for services rendered. The report itself should describe the age and condition of the item in question, as well as the procedure used to estimate its value.

NOTE Homeowners policyholders with coin collections, cameras, and jewelry in excess of the stated amount of coverage for these categories can add a "rider" to the insurance policy to cover the additional value of these items

The Tips To Help Women Take Care of Their Health And Health Of Their Families

Health & Beauty

Healthy Living At Any Age

By Roba Whiteley
(NAPS)-For a majority of American families, women are the key decision makers when it comes to family health care. According to the U.S. Department of Labor, women are responsible for approximately 80 percent of all decisions on family health care and are more likely to be the caregivers when someone in the family becomes ill. Therefore, it's important for women to stay informed and knowledgeable about ways to take better care of their health and the health of their families. Here are tips to help:

Manage Stress

Find ways to distress, such as exercising or simply spending time relaxing.

Make sure you get seven to nine hours of sleep each night, as recommended by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. Children need even more. Not getting enough sleep is associated with a number of chronic conditions, such as diabetes, cardiovascular disease, obesity and depression.

Eat Healthfully

Prepare healthy meals and snacks.

Limit alcohol intake.

Focus on fresh and grown-close-to-home foods when possible.

Get Regular Exams

Schedule physical exams

for yourself and your family.

Make sure you and your family are up to date on preventative checkups and test such as mammography, Pap smear, prostate cancer test and cholesterol or diabetes screenings.

Check Your Medicines

Organize your medicine chest and check expiration dates.

Plan ahead for prescription refills.

Determine if you and your family are eligible for free prescription assistance resources, such as the Together Rx Access Card, which helps eligible uninsured Americans save on the medicines they need to stay healthy and to manage chronic conditions. Individuals who enroll receive a free-to-get and free-to-use card that can help them save on brand-name and generic medicines right at the pharmacy counter.

Learn More

For more information and a list of medicines and participating pharmacies, visit TogetherRxAccess.com or call (800) 966-0407.

* Ms. Whiteley is executive director of Together RX Access, a free prescription savings program that helps eligible Americans without prescription coverage gain access to immediate and meaningful savings on their medicines.

Expert Tips On Keeping Mentally Fit

your mind alive - whatever your age.

Nutrition: Dr. Thomas Shea, University of Massachusetts Lowell, said that in addition to eating a healthy, well-balanced diet, supplements may be needed to complement healthy eating patterns and to ensure adequate nutrition. Dr. Ruth Remington, University of Massachusetts Lowell, reported that research suggests that certain nutrients - such as folate, vitamin B12 and vitamin E - and antioxidants may help protect and support healthy brain function and memory.

Physical Activity: Dr.

Erin Snook, University of Massachusetts Amherst, said that keeping the body active often results in a more active mind. Adults should strive to be physically active for 30 minutes, three or more days a week.

Sleep: Experts agree that striving for an average of seven to eight hours of quality sleep daily is important for maintaining a sharp mind. According to Dr. Jeffrey Ellen Bogen, Harvard Medical School, putting your brain and body to sleep is not like putting your computer to sleep. Sleep is an active, rich and complex biological process that works feel her best:

Shorten showers - "Following a workout, a long, hot shower feels great on tired muscles," says Hamill. "But it is actually one of the worst things you can do for your skin." Hot water strips your skin of its natural oils, leaving it looking and feeling dry. So keep showers and baths short - 10 minutes or less is best.

Using lotion daily - "I have definitely seen some signs of my skin getting drier - it's rougher and itchier," she notes. The most effective thing you can do to keep your skin healthy at any age is to moisturize your body daily with an ultramoisturizing lotion. She recommends Vaseline Clinical Therapy body lotion, which provides prescription-strength moisturization without the need of a prescription. "I use it every day to help heal my dry skin."

Eat breakfast - No matter how busy your schedule gets, always make sure to eat breakfast. It gets your metabolism going, gives you more energy and helps regulate food cravings all day. A good "go-to" breakfast is parfait with yogurt, fruit and whole grain granola - plus some eggs for protein.

Include fats in your diet - Another easy way to stay healthy is to include at least one quality fat in your diet each day. Hamill suggests a little almond butter on rice cakes - one of her favorites. Walnuts are also a great source of omega-3 fatty acids, which are great for skin and hair and reduce the risk of chronic heart disease.

Exercise daily - To combat stiffness, Hamill exercises every day. "Everyone should try to get it in at least 20 minutes," she says. Try leg squats while holding on to a chair, taking stairs instead of the elevator, or using cans from your pantry as weights.

Exercise to sleep - It may seem counterintuitive, but when you start feeling like you are not getting enough sleep, hit the gym. Getting the right amount of exercise can help you get to sleep faster, get better-quality sleep, and stay asleep through the night. Bottom line: Being well rested means better overall health.

American Legion Sponsoring 'Locks For Love' March 9-13

By JOE REARDON
For years, Robin Veneto-Smith has held a soft spot in her heart for the young girls who come into her Esthetica Beauty Salon to donate their hair to Locks Of Love. Veneto-Smith gets about 10-15 people a year, but she is hoping for a lot more starting next week.

The generosity of people who have their hair cut for Locks Of Love never ceases to impress her.

"When you see a young girl come in and donate a ponytail you see that they get it," Veneto-Smith said. "It's wonderful. It's just fantastic. We all know how important hair is to little girls. When a young girl donates her hair, it's pretty neat."

"I love to see those little faces. They're so happy because they know they're doing something special."

The American Legion is sponsoring a special Locks Of Love project from March 9-13. Hair must be a minimum of 10 inches long to be cut and used to make a hairpiece for children suffering long-term medical hair loss through their treatment.

Locks Of Love is a public, non-profit organization for disadvantaged children in the United States and Canada under the age of 21. The medical condition is called alopecia areata, which has no known cause or cure. Through the help of Locks Of Love, the hairpieces help restore the person's self-esteem and confidence, making it easier to face their peers.

Veneto-Smith became associated with Locks Of Love eight years ago and continued when she moved her beauty salon into a new building at 126 Franklin St.

While cutting one of her client's hair, she told Veneto-Smith that her daughter was donating hair for the cause. Veneto-Smith looked into the Locks Of Love foundation, which is in Florida.

"People come in who want to donate their hair and we send it right down to Florida," she said.

Veneto-Smith got involved with the American Legion project when her friend and client, Karen Ames, approached her about taking part. For Veneto-Smith, the decision was a no-brainer and she is anticipating a big turnout next week.

"I work with a great group of hair dressers who are looking forward to cutting some ponytails," she said.

The process, Veneto-

Smith said, is an elaborate one. Each wig requires 140,000 hairs, which entails 6-10, 10-inch ponytails. The wigs are made by hand and take four months to complete. "Each wig is specifically made for that child," she said.

Some people hear about Locks Of Love in Veneto-Smith's salon when they are getting their hair done and decide right then to donate a ponytail. "They'll be sitting in the chair and decide to do it," she said with a laugh.

Veneto-Smith has had a few people come in for donations over the past couple of weeks and is hoping the American Legion-sponsored project will bring even more out. "Even if we get a handful we'll be happy," she said.

"It's nice the Legion is doing this to help make people aware."

Pointers For Parents

(NAPS) - Getting children to eat their veggies can seem more like child's play if you heed these do's and don'ts.

Don't try to hide vegetables in your kid's dinner. Do let the child decide how much to eat at any meal.

Don't pressure your children. Than can cause them to rebel, making vegetables the enemy.

Do introduce new vegetables to your children regularly to give them an opportunity to try veggies without a battle.

For example, one delicious new vegetable you can present to your kids is the sweet potato. Sweet potatoes (yams) are naturally sweet yet very nutritious.

Mashed sweet potatoes can be made at any time of the year, with canned or fresh sweet potatoes.

4 (15/16-ounce) cans sweet potatoes, drained and mashed

2 Tbsp. brown sugar
2 Tbsp. margarine, melted
¼ cup evaporated skim milk

In mixing bowl, beat together sweet potatoes, brown sugar, margarine and milk until creamy. Transfer to baking dish and bake for 15 minutes or until thoroughly heated.

For a variety of free sweet potato recipes, visit the Louisiana Sweet Potato Commission's Web site. www.sweetpotato.org.

Bernazzani Elementary School 'Whips Up' A Good Time

BERNAZZANI ELEMENTARY SCHOOL first grader Michael Allen gives Principal Peter Dionne a whipped cream pie in the face at a recent school assembly. The first graders won the school incentive contest – and the opportunity to toss the pies at the principal – for bringing back their school surveys the quickest. The students loved this special event and the enthusiasm of the principal.

GOTCHA! Danielle Dentremon, a first grader at the Bernazzani Elementary School, makes sure her whipped cream pie finds its intended target: the top of School Principal Peter Dionne's head.

BOBBY JAEHNIG, a first-grader at the Bernazzani Elementary School, takes delight in tossing a whipped cream pie in the face of Principal Peter Dionne. The first graders won an incentive contest by returning their school surveys the quickest. Their prize? The chance to throw whipped cream pies at their principal.

Contest Shines Positive Light On QPS Students, City Beaches

Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission needs help for Quincy Public Schools' third, fourth and fifth grade students.

The Commission is having a contest to design the cover for the 2010 Quincy Beach Guide. Students eligible to participate will receive a flyer with details of the contest.

The flyer is also posted on the City of Quincy website: <http://www.quincy.ma.gov/>

This is the second year the Quincy Public Schools and the Beaches and Coastal Commission have collaborated on the cover contest. Entrants should draw or paint a picture and describe their favorite thing about the beaches in Quincy.

"We had a lot of enthusiasm last year and it's a wonderful way to inspire the students to take good care of our environment," said Organizer Laura Innis.

Prizes will be awarded to a winner from each of the 12 schools and the students, families and the public are invited to vote for a city-wide winner.

"Any of the 12 winning designs last year would have made a beautiful cover." Innis said.

"The creativity and talent of the students was amazing and I was grateful the voters would decide."

The winning cover design will be chosen at the Quincy Environmental Network's Earth Day 2010 event, April 10, from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. at St. Ann's School.

There will be fun and educational activities for families.

The public is invited to attend and vote to help select a winner.

Brandon Finn Completes Marines Corps Basic Training

Marine Corps Pvt. Brandon N. Finn, son of Susan and Joseph Finn of Quincy, recently completed 12 weeks of basic training at Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S.C., designed to challenge new Marines both physically and mentally.

Finn and fellow recruits began their training at 5 a.m. by running three miles and performing calisthenics. In addition to the physical conditioning program, Finn spent numerous hours in classroom and field assignments which included learning first aid, uniform regulations, combat water survival, marksmanship, hand-to-hand combat and assorted weapons training.

They performed close order drill and operated as a small infantry during field training.

Finn also received instruction on the Marine Corps' core values – honor, courage and commitment – and what the core values mean in guiding personal and professional conduct.

Finn and fellow recruits ended the training phase with The Crucible, a 54-hour, team evolution culminating in an emotional ceremony in which recruits are presented the Marine Corps Emblem, and addressed as "Marines" for the first time.

A Job Well Done

On Saturday, Feb. 20, at approximately 12:40 p.m., Detective O'Brien of the Quincy Police Drug Control Unit was conducting surveillance of the parking lot at the strip mall located at 100-126 Granite St., which is known as an area used to distribute illegal drugs.

Detective O'Brien observed a known substance abuser/dealer (suspect #1) appear in front of the T.J. Maxx store with his girlfriend (suspect #2) and a small child in a stroller. Suspect #1 paced back and forth as he spoke on his cell phone, looking up and down the travel lane of the strip mall.

A few minutes later, a black Kia with two males in it pulled into the lot and parked near the Detective, so he ran the plate and found that the registration was revoked. The two males walked toward suspect #1 and once they arrived at the store's entrance, all parties entered the store. About a minute later, the males exited the store and briskly walked back towards the Kia.

Detective O'Brien knew from training and experience that drug transactions often take place inside of businesses to help conceal the illegal activity from the Police, so he walked over towards the Kia to stop the vehicle from driving away with the revoked registration. After announcing "Quincy Police" with police badge displayed, he told the driver to shut the car off, then contacted Quincy Communications for back-up.

Officer Mike Brandolini arrived shortly thereafter. Detective O'Brien questioned the passenger, who gave inconsistent statements and appeared nervous as his hand was shaking. He first stated that he "just happened to see" suspect #1, then admitted to speaking with him on the cell phone. He also stated that he went into the store to purchase hair clippers.

When asked about his criminal record, the passenger admitted that he had been arrested for drugs in the past. The passenger consented to a search and although no contraband was found, there was no money to purchase hair clippers either. Detective O'Brien advised the driver that his vehicle registration was revoked and he responded that he was just giving the passenger a ride. The driver admitted that he was a heroin addict but had been clean for four months.

Detective O'Brien saw suspect #1 and his girlfriend, with stroller, exit the store so he asked Officer Brandolini to escort them over to his location. At this time, Officer M.J. O'Brien and Detective Coen also arrived to assist. Suspect #1 was interviewed and he said he met with the passenger about getting a job, yet the passenger did not mention this. Suspect #1 consented to a search of his person and took off his puffy outer jacket. Detective O'Brien then located a small plastic bag containing a brown powder believed to be heroin in suspect #1's front pant pocket. The suspect confessed that the bag contained heroin.

The Detective then questioned suspect #1's girlfriend/suspect #2, who also consented to a search. In her pocketbook, Detective O'Brien located a folded one dollar bill containing a brown powder believed to be heroin along with 9 unknown white capsules. She was placed under arrest, but was allowed phone calls to her parents so that they could pick up her daughter. Suspect #2 spoke on the phone, saying suspect #1 "got arrested for selling heroin, you need to come pick up" her daughter. Suspect #2's parents arrived and took custody of the child.

Detective Coen filed a 51A report with the Child and Family Services. Detective Coen spoke with the driver of the Kia, who consented to a search of his cell phone. The Detective found text messages between the driver and the passenger showing that they were going to meet a person in Quincy to get "3" for "100" (meaning 3 bags of drugs for $100).

The license plates were removed from the Kia and the driver/owner was charged with revoked registration. Prior to getting into a cruiser, suspect #1 confessed that he had more bags of heroin on him, located in the flap of his underwear.

In addition to the bags, he also had $300.00 dollars on him and a cell phone, which were seized pending civil forfeiture. Suspect #1's cell phone rang incessantly and Detective Coen answered one of these calls from a male asking, "Can I get 2 white?" This was a reference to cocaine. Suspect #1, a 25 year old Quincy resident, was charged with "Possession of a Class A (heroin) Substance With Intent to Distribute" (Subsequent Offense) and suspect #2, a 22 year old Quincy resident, was charged with "Possession of a Class A Substance (heroin)."

Once in the station, records showed that suspect #2 had a restraining order issued against suspect #1 two days earlier, but it hadn't been served and suspect #2 never told suspect #1 about it. Suspect #2 said she initiated contact with suspect #1 earlier in the day. Suspect #1 was served the restraining order while in jail. Nice Work!

Seek Safety When Purchasing Energy-Efficient Home Appliances

By Samantha Mazzotta

Thermostat Wars

Q: My parents often complain that their house is too cold, and often when I go to see them I notice that the thermostat – one of the round “dial” types – is set to a different temperature each time. How can I lock in the temperature so they’re comfortable? – Rick W.

A: The older dial- or lever-type, low-voltage thermostat is pretty easy to check. Simply turn off power to the thermostat at the circuit panel (or turn off power to the entire house) and pop the front cover off.

Inspect the wire connection terminals around the base of the thermostat. They should be securely coiled around the terminal screws and free of dust.

While the power is off, check the connections on the transformer that powers the thermostat. What is that? It’s a small, square unit located near the heating system, sometimes within a furnace access panel. Make sure the power is off before opening the cover – this is the unit that makes sure high-voltage current does not reach your low-voltage thermostat. Once open, make sure the wires are coiled securely around the transformer’s terminal screws.

Clean the thermostat: Make sure the power is off and move the dial to its lowest temperature setting. Use a small, soft brush (even a watercolor or makeup brush) to clear away dust. Then move the dial to its highest temperature setting and brush the newly revealed parts. Return the dial to its normal setting and replace the cover. Turn the power back on.

If your parents still can’t get a comfortable temperature setting, have a professional check the entire heating system for problems. I’d also recommend installing a low-voltage electronic thermostat, which can be programmed to more than one setting depending on the season or time of day.

HOME TIP: Change furnace air filters monthly during periods of heavy use. It’s an inexpensive maintenance task that can add up to decent savings on energy costs.

Remember, when in doubt as to whether you can safely or effectively complete a project, consult a professional contractor.

(ARA) - Have government or manufacturer rebate programs enticed you to purchase a new home appliance, like a clothes washer or refrigerator? Or are you simply in the market to upgrade? Before purchasing any major appliance, it’s important to consider all your options before you make a final decision.

According to an October 2009 survey commissioned by Underwriters Laboratories (UL), a leading independent safety testing organization, one in five homeowners who are involved in purchasing decisions independently reported they are likely to buy a large household appliance in the new year. That number increased to one in four upon hearing that states may offer cash back for purchasing an energy-efficient appliance during 2010.

“As today’s appliance technology continues to advance, it is now, more than ever, critical to consider safety when purchasing these items,” says Ms. Simin Zhou, vice president and general manager, UL’s Appliances, HVAC/R and Components business unit. “Energy efficiency is an important attribute, but family safety also needs to be part of the decision-making process.”

A 2009 report by Quincy-based National Fire Protection

Association states that in 2006, U.S. consumers reported approximately 17,700 home fires involving clothes dryers or washing machines, resulting in 15 deaths, 360 injuries and $194 million in property damage.

Five tips can be used to help assess whether your current appliances are safe for continued use and help you to make smart decisions when purchasing new appliances:

1. Read the owners’ manual or users’ guide: These resources provide essential information to keep you safe.

2. Only use as intended: Using appliances for activities other than what they are designed for can pose serious risks. The clothes dryer should only be used for fabrics and an oven should not be used to heat the home.

3. Trust your instincts: If an appliance smells, sounds or functions strangely – be suspicious. This is a likely indicator to replace the problem appliance or at least have it inspected by a licensed technician.

4. Follow preventative maintenance measures: Lack of preventative maintenance is a contributing factor to some appliance malfunctions and fires. Simple ways to keep your appliances in peak performance include never overloading the clothes washer; periodically removing debris from the dishwasher filter; and immediately unplugging the vacuum cleaner and dislodging items that should not have been picked up.

5. Look for safety certification: Safety certifications, such as the UL Mark, confirm a product has been tested and certified to meet the highest standard in safety.

If you’re ready to buy a new home appliance, you should start by researching available government and manufacturer rebate programs in your area. Programs usually vary by state so qualified appliances and rebate amounts will differ.

To learn more about 2010 state rebate programs, and to find more tips on appliance safety, visit www.UL.com/appliancesafety.

First-Time Homebuyers Tax Credit Expires April 30

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William O’Donnell reminds first-time homebuyers that the federal tax credit that was extended in the fall will expire next month.

The Registry’s website www.norfolkdeeds.org provides resources for information regarding the First-Time Homebuyer Tax Credit.

“To take advantage of the tax credit the purchase and sale agreement must be signed by April 30.”

O’Donnell said.

The tax credit legislation also requires the sale be completed by June 30.

People with higher incomes qualify for the credit under the extension legislation.

For individual tax filers the phase out income minimum is $150,000 and for joint filers $225,000.

The credit is only available on homes that sell for $800,000 or less.

License Board Action From Feb. 23 Meeting

The Board of License Commissioners of the City of Quincy took the following action at its meeting Feb. 23 in the Council Chambers of City Hall.

Chairman Joseph P. Shea presided. Also present, Police Chief Paul Keenan, Inspection Services Director Jay Duca, Health Commissioner Andrew Scheele, Fire Chief Joseph Barron, Captain Tom Lyons, QFD, Liquor Inspector Lt. Peter Turowski & Det. Leo Coppens.

- Hearing regarding the request of Councillor Joe Finn for a One-day Wine & Malt License at the Church of Presidents, Hancock St., March 5, 6 to 8 p.m. Councillor Finn explained he is hosting a reception for 20 people in the rear of the church hall. Motion to grant the request made by Commissioner Scheele, second Director Duca. All in favor.

- Hearing regarding the request of the Manet Community Health Center, 110 West Squantum St. for a One-day Wine & Malt License for a Donor Appreciation event on Wednesday, March 24, 5:30 to 8 p.m. at the Quincy Historical Society. Ms. Cynthia Sierra present. Motion to grant the request made by Commissioner Scheele, second Chief Keenan. All in favor.

- Hearing regarding the request of Sterling Middle School for a permit to hold the annual Spring Fair, Saturday May 15 from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. PTO Member Mike Puzille present.

This is the 2nd Annual Spring Fair. Commissioner Scheele provided safe-food instructional information and Chief Barron provided safe grilling instructions. Motion to grant the request made by Commissioner Scheele, second Chief Keenan. All in favor.

- Hearing regarding the request of Mr. Paul Curley, for a One-Day permit for the Annual Best Buddies Challenge Bicycle Ride, Saturday June 5. Mr. Curley, manager of the 11-year annual event was present.

The race covers 5 miles in Quincy starting at 7:45 a.m. traveling at 10-12 MPH. Restroom facilities at Caddy Park will be installed by Best Buddies. They will not be racing at Marina Bay.

The route provided to the Board involves Quincy Shore Drive where approximately 600 riders will travel through Quincy for 45 minutes. There will be a State Police escort and Quincy Police have been notified. Motion to grant the request made by Commissioner Scheele, second Chief Keenan. All in favor.

- Hearing regarding the request of Mr. James J. Cucinatta, for a Common Victualer License, d/b/a Granite Mart, 304-308 Willard St. Mr. Cucinatta and Mr. Ralph DiPari present.

Plans are to take over the former Front Side Market and reopen a variety store offering ice cream, lottery and a small menu. All cooking material has been removed. Hours 5 a.m. to 8 p.m., Monday-Sunday.

With all inspections completed the expected opening May 1, hours, 5AM-8PM, Monday-Sunday. Chairman Shea asked the applicants to urge customers to park in the rear. Motion to grant the request made by Commissioner Scheele, second Director Duca. All in favor.

- Hearing regarding the request of Burke's Seafood, Inc. d/b/a Burke's Seafood, 61 Billings Road, Richard J. Burke, Manager, for a CV/Wine & Malt License. Mr. Jon D. Aieta, Esq., and Richard Burke present. Mr. Burke plans to extend hours to 10 p.m. on Thursday, Friday & Saturday. With all paperwork and inspections complete Commissioner Scheele motioned to grant the request, second Director Duca. All in favor.

- Hearing regarding the request of the Quincy Chinese Culture & Art Club, for a Club License @ 1458 Hancock St., room 241. Nelson Chan, Manager. Mr. Chan and Rob Cucchio present.

The 18x20 space will be used basically for an office and small meetings for 5-10 people. Mr. Chan has been storing files at his home and needs office space. Chairman Shea advised him to register with the Commonwealth as a Non-Profit Organization (501c-3). Motion to grant the request made by Commissioner Scheele, second Chief Keenan. All in favor.

- Discussion of Runs/Walks. Chairman Shea noted the numerous requests are saturating the City and are becoming a drain on our Police and Fire Departments.

Commissioner Scheele suggested if the applicant is not a Quincy based organization we could look at a fee. Chief Keenan stated the police bend over backwards for local charities to provide whatever they can, but we should look at a fee schedule for the for profit applicants.

Commissioner Scheele suggested adding a fee schedule for one-day wine & malt applicants also. The item was taking under advisement and will be discussed again at the next License Board hearing.

The Board accepted the minutes of the previous hearing and waived the reading.

Connaughton To Address Quincy Republican City Committee

Mary Z. Connaughton, a candidate for state auditor, will be the guest speaker at the Quincy Republican City Committee meeting Tuesday, March 9 at 7 p.m. in the second floor community room at Roche Brothers Supermarket, 101 Falls Blvd., Quincy.

All are welcome to attend.

A certified public accountant and a professional auditor, Connaughton is a former member of the Mass. Turnpike Authority board of directors, where she was an outspoken advocate for greater efficiency, transparency and accountability.

She also served on the Massachusetts Commission on Judicial Conduct, which investigates complaints of judicial misconduct and recommends disciplinary action if warranted.

The meeting will also focus on the upcoming GOP state convention and efforts to recruit and support local Republicans to run for statewide office. Registered Republicans considering or interested in learning more about running for office are encouraged to attend.

Young & Improving Team On The Rise Presidents Eliminated By Brookline HS, 75-64

By SEAN BRENNAN

This year's Quincy High School girls' basketball team made great strides this season, improving its overall record from 4-16 last year to 11-10 this winter based heavily on the solid play of a seasoned senior class and a talented group of underclassmen. Quincy also advanced to the Division I South Sectional tournament for the first time since 2007.

But a deep run through the state playoffs will have to wait another year. The Presidents were eliminated on their (temporary) home court at NQHS on Feb. 23 in a preliminary round game, 75-64, by Brookline High School. Quincy had been seeded 16th overall in the field of 22 while Brookline was seeded 17th; both schools entered the game with identical 11-9 records.

"Despite the loss to Brookline last week I am very happy about the way my team preformed this season," said QHS head coach Jeff Bretsch on Monday. "As a whole we had a good year, improving our record from 4-16 to 11-10. We also made some big strides as a team and a lot of that improvement is because of the level of play as the season went along. This team always came ready to play, be "The future of the program also looks to be a good shape. Our crop of tenth graders and our other underclassmen really lifted their level of play as the season went along. This team always came ready to play, be it at practice or for games. Just look at how we ended the regular season, winning four out of five games and really starting to play as a strong team."

Quincy finished the backend of its regular season with victories over Pembroke, Randolph, Rockland and Middleboro High Schools. The team's lone loss came by two points (50-48) against Hanover HS. As a result, the Presidents advanced to the DI South Sectionals and earned a much-coveted home playoff game.

In the preliminary round, Quincy just ran into a hot-shooting Brookline team. The visitors, behind the play of Tasha Bernardez (22 points), Mariah Cawthore (10 points) and Amber Dillon (12 points), jumped out to a commanding 20-9 first quarter advantage and Quincy could never catch up. The closest the Presidents came to catching Brookline was when they cut the score to 59-53 late in the fourth quarter. But it was not enough and their hope for a magical postseason run was ended before it had a chance to start.

"(Brookline) played well," said Bretsch. "I mean, we scored 64 points, which I believe matched our second highest point total for the year, but they just could not miss with their jump shots. They had a couple of high-scoring players and they just beat us with their lights out shooting, which is not something that happens that much in a girls' basketball game. Brookline plays in the competitive Bay State League so we knew that they would be a tough team to beat.

"I am proud of the way we played. We didn't back down and we played a pretty good game. It just didn't end in our favor."

SOPHOMORES JULI TOMER (#23) and Kylie McDonald (#34) will be two key pieces for the Quincy High School girls' basketball program moving forward. On the court this winter, Quincy's underclassmen received plenty of varsity game experience, something that should translate to continued improvement and an exciting season next year.

Leading Quincy against Brookline were seniors Colleen Tobin (12 points, ten rebounds) and Leslie Campbell (eight points), junior Kori Sorensen (21 points) and sophomore Caitlyn Lowry (seven points).

"I thought that Colleen played one of her best games of the season," added Bretsch about his senior co-captain. "Even though Brookline scored 75 points, the defense of Lowry and senior Julia Yee was outstanding. The team played hard and it was a good game."

The loss for most of Quincy's young roster can be used next season as motivation, but for the team's five graduating seniors, it was the last time that any of them will put on a high school jersey. Colleen Tobin, Leslie Campbell, Olivia Berry, Julia Yee and Dora Tyson have left the program in good standing and their contributions cannot and should not be overlooked.

"These seniors should be proud of their accomplishments this season," Bretsch said. "They all helped us achieve our team goal of making it back into the postseason. This group was remarkable. They are all great athletes and they were always open to being coached and brought positive attitudes to practice and games. I am going to miss coaching all of them."

With the loss of these five seniors, Bretsch, next season, will hand the reins over to his junior and sophomore classes.

"We have some real talent that will be back next year," he added. "They all gained some great game experience this year. It was important that they got to see what it takes to play varsity basketball and how to make adjustments on the court and having now been through that, we should be a more balanced team next season.

"The future is bright for girls' basketball at Quincy."

Returning next season for the Presidents will be juniors Kori Sorensen and Christina Cahill and sophomores Juli Tomer, Caitlyn Lowry, Nicole Lamie, Kylie McDonald and Maria Berberan.

Notes: Brookline HS lost to top-seeded Wellesley HS, 66-45, in the first-round... Wellesley defeated #8 Newton South, 61-54, in the quarterfinals... Wellesley played #12 Mansfield HS on Tuesday in the semifinals for the right to play in the South DI final later this week.

SENIOR CAPTAINS Leslie Campbell (left) and Colleen Tobin, along with fellow seniors Julia Yee, Olivia Berry and Dora Tyson, concluded their QHS basketball careers last week following a 75-64 defeat in a DI South Sectional preliminary round game against Brookline HS. Campbell, Tobin and the rest of the senior class were instrumental in this year's 11-10 season, a big improvement from last year's 4-16 record.

DII South First-Round Contest

Quincy Presidents Bow to Whitman-Hanson, 74-49

After slipping by Pembroke High School, 52-40, on Feb. 22 in the preliminary round of the Division II South Sectional boys' basketball tournament, the Quincy Presidents hit the road to play against top-seeded Whitman-Hanson High School on Feb. 23.

Quincy lost to the Panthers, 74-49, officially ending its season at 11-11 overall.

Whitman-Hanson, the Patriot League's regular season champion, jumped out to a commanding 18-2 advantage on Quincy behind 14 points in five minutes from star player TJ Champignie (game-high 25 points). The Presidents could never recover and were eliminated from postseason play.

Junior forward Lukas McDonough led all Quincy scores with 10 points. Seniors Kenny Nguyen (seven points), Cedric Dybaud (seven points) and Adusei Kusi (six points) contributed as well playing in their final varsity games for QHS.

Whitman-Hanson (20-2 overall) defeated #8 Hopkinton HS, 85-82, in the DII semifinals and were scheduled to play against #5 seeded Falmouth HS on Monday (W-H lost 87-50) in the semifinals with the winner advancing to play the winner of the Milton/Scituate semifinal game later this week.

QHS seniors playing their final game for the Presidents included Kusi, Nguyen, Dybaud, Chris Clayton, Kevin Rhodes, Robbie Bina, Danny Andrade and Jed Leger.

ELKS "HOOP SHOOT" STATE CHAMPIONS: Kayleen Lenihan and Colin Evans, pictured here at the awards banquet after winning the Massachusetts championship of the Elks National "Hoop Shoot" Free Throw Event, will be representing both Quincy and the Commonwealth the weekend of March 26-27 in the "Hoop Shoot" New England Championships to be held in Portland, Maine. Evans is a seventh grader at Central MS and Lenihan is a sixth grader at Sacred Heart School.

COLIN EVANS HOLDS the trophy he received for being the highest scorer in the boys' division at the MA state championships. Evans connected on 22-of-25 free throws to win the boys' 12-13-year old division title. The trophy will be on display at the Quincy Lodge of Elks on Quarry Street for a year. Pictured holding the trophy with Evans is Grand Lodge Public Relations Committeeman William Hopkins. Bill Ferrick, the MA State Director of the Elks "Hoop Shoot" event, is pictured in the back left.

Colin Evans & Kayleen Lenihan State Champions; NE Finals to Be Held in Portland, ME March 26-27

Local Duo Looking to Bring Titles Back Home

By SEAN BRENNAN

Two Quincy youngsters have changed the City of Presidents into our own version of the City of Champions.

Colin Evans, a seventh grader at Central Middle School, and Kayleen Lenihan, a sixth grader at Sacred Heart School, along with their families, will be taking the 2 1/2 hour drive north up to Portland, Maine the weekend of March 26-27 to compete as Massachusetts state champions in the New England Championships of the annual Elks National "Hoop Shoot" Free Throw Event.

Evans, who will be representing the Bay State in the 12-13-year old boys division, and Lenihan, representing Massachusetts in the 10-11-year old girls division, advanced to the New England finals following first-place finishes at their local Quincy championships, followed by first-place finishes at the District Regional Championships held in Marshfield and finally by capturing their respective Massachusetts state titles in Maynard back in early February.

For Evans, a trip to the New England finals was overdue. He is a six-time Quincy city champion and has advanced out of the District Regional and into the state finals three times previous, with this year being his fourth time competing for state bragging rights.

Four times is the charm.

Evans, a quiet and humble kid, connected on 22-out-of-25 free throws (participants take 25 free throws at each level of the national competition) at the state finals, earning himself a tie for first place in his division. Evans finally grabbed the championship following four tiebreakers.

"I won because I made the most shots," said Evans matter-of-factly. "I practice my free throws whenever I can and I am excited about going to Maine to compete in the next event."

A guard on the court, Evans plays for Sacred Heart in their in-house league and also for their travel team. He is the middle child of Bob and Mary Evans of Quincy. Evans has an older brother, Ryan, and a younger brother, Quinlan, and, surprisingly enough, basketball is not his favorite sport. That honor goes to baseball.

"My favorite sport is baseball, but I also like basketball," he said. "I don't know why I do so well. You just need to make the free throws and that is what I did."

Lenihan, like Evans, is no stranger to advancing out of the Quincy portion of the Elks National "Hoop Shoot" Free Throw Event. She has, including this winter, now won four straight city titles, and has made it through the District Regional and into the state finals three times. This time around, Lenihan, at states, made 19-of-25 free throws to punch her ticket to Portland, Maine.

"I play for the Lady Presidents basketball program and for Sacred Heart's in-house league," said Lenihan a shooting guard on the hardwood; she also plays for the Quincy Queens. "I practice free throws and have been playing basketball for a long time. I guess it happened to be my year."

Lenihan, who according to her father, Edward, her mother is Joan, learned to shoot while attending the Sarah Behn Basketball Camp, and according to her, shooting a free throw isn't something to think about too much. Just set yourself and shoot.

"I don't really do much when I am ready to shoot," Lenihan said in an interview at The Quincy Sun office. "I guess I dribble twice before shooting, but there isn't any pressure. Basketball is just fun to play."

The New England finals, the fourth level of the Elks National "Hoop Shoot" Free Throw Event, is the second-to-last step for Evans and Lenihan in their quest to bring a national title home to Quincy. If the ice water that, so far, has run through their veins at the city, regional, and state levels continues to stay cold, Evans and Lenihan's final destination would be the national finals to be held in Springfield, Massachusetts in April.

Quincy's local "Hoop Shoot" competition is sponsored by the Quincy Lodge of Elks Lodge #943 under the supervision of the Quincy Recreation Department; nationally it is considered the largest non-commercial, co-educational sports program in the United States with more than three million children, ages eight through thirteen years of age participating each winter.

For Colin Evans and Kayleen Lenihan, these upcoming "Hoop Shoot" New England Championships, will be, win, lose or draw, just one of many accomplishments they have on the basketball court. You will be hearing their names again, and soon.

Good luck!

Final Game For Coach Bob Sylvia

Quincy Eliminated By Coyle-Cassidy, 7-1

The Quincy Presidents sneaked into the Division II South Sectional hockey tournament following a 5-4 victory over Pembroke High School on the last day of the regular season, but their trip to the postseason was brief.

Quincy, in its first round game, skated into a buzz saw in Coyle-Cassidy High School and lost the game, 7-1. Not only did the loss end the 2009-2010 season, it marked the final chapter in the 45-year coaching career of legendary QHS head coach Bob Sylvia.

Coyle-Cassidy took advantage of several Quincy penalties during the course of the game, and finished with three power play goals. The Warriors also scored a shorthanded tally. Scoring for C-C on special teams were Frank Cambria, Alex Travers, Jay Sylvia and Connor Matthews.

Quincy senior captain, Kevin Keith, scored the Presidents lone goal. Co-captain Jim Finn and assistant captain Derek Murphy assisted Keith on the goal.

The Presidents cut the C-C advantage to 2-1 at the end of the first period, but by the end of the second period, the Warriors upped their lead to 4-1.

Quincy (10-11-1) entered the Division II South Sectionals as the #9 seed (out of ten teams), while Coyle-Cassidy was seeded #8. Coyle-Cassidy lost to #1 Nauset HS, 5-4, in the quarterfinals late last week.

On Wednesday (March 3) night, Nauset played #4 Hanover HS in a semifinal game and #2 Franklin HS played #3 Canton HS in the other semifinal game.

The Pan-Massachusetts Challenge (PMC), a two-day bike-a-thon that spans 190 miles across the state, is currently in need of volunteers to help with set-up, luggage transportation, registration, medical support, bike mechanics, security, food service and clean-up. The PMC is set for August 7-8.

In its 31st year, the PMC has already raised $270 million for adult and pediatric cancer research and treatment at the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute through its Jimmy Fund. Nearly 3,000 volunteers help the PMC keep its operating expenses low each year, enabling the organization to contribute 100% of every rider-raised dollar directly to the Jimmy Fund.

Volunteers may choose to help one day and ride the next or volunteer both days. The Red Sox Foundation and New Balance present the PMC.

Basic Boating Course March 13, 20 & 27

The Massachusetts Environmental Police, in sponsorship with the Quincy Police Department's Marine Unit, will be holding "Boat Massachusetts," a three-class basic boating course, to be held March 13, 20 and 27 at the Houghs Neck Maritime Center, 137 Bayview Avenue, Quincy.

On each of the three Saturdays, the course will be held from 8:30 a.m. until 12:30 p.m., and participants must attend all three days of class.

"Boat Massachusetts" is offered to the public at no charge. The primary purpose of the course is to foster safe boat operation through increased awareness of required safety equipment, safe boating practices and legal responsibilities. Students attending the course must be at least 12 years of age.

Participants between the ages of 12-15, who successfully complete the course, will be issued a Safety Certificate allowing them to operate a motorboat without adult supervision, as required by state law. This course will also satisfy the state requirements for personal watercraft users who are 16 or 17 years of age. All graduates will be issued a course diploma and a Safety Certificate.

Taking the class as a family is encouraged and has proven to be highly rewarding.

Pre-registration is required with the MA Environmental Police. You can contact this agency at 508-759-0002.

American Cancer Society Encourages Everyone 50 and Older to Get Tested for Colon Cancer

Don't Be Semi-Interested In Your Colon

This March, the American Cancer Society is encouraging men and women 50 and older to make getting tested for colorectal cancer a priority.

Colorectal cancer (commonly referred to as colon cancer) is one of only two cancers that can actually be prevented through screening, which allows doctors to find polyps in the colon and remove them before they turn cancerous. Regularly scheduled colorectal cancer screening can help save lives and help achieve the American Cancer Society's goal of creating a world with less cancer and more birthdays.

Screening for colon cancer has been proven to reduce deaths from the disease both by decreasing the number of people who are diagnosed with it and by finding a higher proportion of cancers at early, more treatable stages.

Overall, colon cancer rates have declined rapidly in both men and women in the past two decades, due in part to early detection and removal of precancerous polyps. However, only half of the U.S. population aged 50 and older have been tested.

"We have an opportunity to significantly reduce death rates from colon cancer through regular screening," said Janet McGrail, vice president for Health Initiatives, American Cancer Society, New England Division.

"However, there may be barriers to screening such as a lack of health insurance. We hope that people will use this month - National Colorectal Cancer Awareness Month - as an opportunity to make screening a priority and talk to their doctors, family members and friends about getting tested. By doing so, they are taking a key step toward staying well."

In Massachusetts, the American Cancer Society is focused on passing legislation requiring all health insurers in the state to cover colorectal cancer screenings according to Society guidelines.

Currently 26 states have this requirement, in part for its cost effectiveness and also the law's ability to save lives.

A recent study conducted for the Society pegs the cost of adding this coverage between .51 and .71 cents per member per month as opposed to the $300,000 - $500,000 annual cost to treat a late stage colorectal cancer diagnosis.

Colorectal Cancer Awareness Month will see a continued push for passage of the two bills (House Bill 2185 and Senate Bill 451) by Society staff and volunteers.

The American Cancer Society recommends the following tests to find colon cancer early:

Tests That Detect Adenomatous Polyps and Cancer

- Flexible sigmoidoscopy every 5 years, or
- Colonoscopy every 10 years, or
- Double contrast barium enema (DCBE) every 5 years, or
- CT colonography (CTC) every 5 years

Tests That

Primarily Detect Cancer

- Annual guaiac-based fecal occult blood test (gFOBT) with high test sensitivity for cancer, or

- Annual fecal immunochemical test (FIT) with high test sensitivity for cancer, or

- Stool DNA test (sDNA), with high sensitivity for cancer, interval uncertain.

Because of their greater potential to prevent cancer, the tests that have a higher likelihood of finding both polyps and cancer are preferred if patients are willing to use them and have access to them.

In addition to screening, there are healthy lifestyle behaviors individuals can adopt to reduce risk of colon cancer. Studies show that being overweight or obese increases risk of colon cancer, and people whose diets include a high amount of red and processed meats are at increased risk.

The American Cancer Society recommends that adults engage in at least 30 minutes of moderate to vigorous physical activity on five or more days of the week; and consume a healthy diet that includes five or more servings of vegetables and fruits each day, whole grains (instead of processed grains and sugars), limited alcohol and processed and red meats, and controlled portion sizes (visit cancer.org/GreatAmericans for tips and ideas on how to eat healthy and exercise regularly).

Smoking also increases risk of colon cancer. A 2009 study from the American Cancer Society found that long-term smoking (smoking for 40 or more years) increases colon cancer risk by 30 to 50 percent.

Smokers who want to quit can call the American Cancer Society Quit For Life® Program operated and managed by Free &

Clear® at 1-800-227-2345 for tobacco cessation and coaching services that can help increase their chances of quitting for good; or visit cancer.org/GreatAmericans for customized tips that can help with quitting smoking for good.

An estimated 146,970 cases of colorectal cancer were expected to occur in 2009, and 49,920 deaths were expected. Colorectal cancer is the third most common cancer in both men and women. Risk factors for colon cancer include a personal family history of the disease.

Diet, Pain and Diverticulitis

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I need information on how to avoid flare-ups of diverticulitis. I am a 53-year-old female. I was diagnosed with diverticulitis in 2008 after suffering for months from discomfort that finally became unbearable. The doctor gave me an antibiotic that cleared the problem up. What I need to know is this: How long after eating a problem food does discomfort ensue? I've tried to tie discomfort to a particular food. I just can't figure out which one causes the problem. For instance, if I have a problem on Tuesday afternoon, would that be from food I ate Tuesday morning, or the day before, or the day before that? - D.F.

ANSWER: You need a clearer picture of what causes diverticular pain. You're barking up the wrong tree. Diverticula are small bulges on the colon's outer wall. The bulges are the lining of the colon that has been pushed through the muscular colon wall and has popped out on its outer surface. They are pea-size to marble-size. When the necks of diverticula become obstructed, bacteria within the diverticula causes swelling and pain. Prevention of diverticula formation and diverticula obstruction centers on a high-fiber diet. A particular food isn't usually the culprit. A lack of fiber is the troublemaker.

Fiber holds on to water and keeps the food residue soft. If the residue hardens, the colon has to generate great force to move it along, and that force is responsible for diverticula formation. You need to get 25 grams to 30 grams of fiber daily. Fruits, vegetables and whole grains are fiber sources. Whole grains are grains that haven't been refined. They retain their outer coat - bran. Bran is excellent fiber.

Diverticulitis - inflamed diverticula - produces pain, most often felt in the lower left side of the abdomen. Sometimes it leads to rectal bleeding. An attack of diverticulitis calls for a change in diet, either to a liquid one or one with soft foods.

If you still want to track a particular food as the cause of a diverticulitis attack, I'll give you the rough time sequences of food passage. It takes one to two days for food to pass from mouth to the end of the colon. At most, it takes three days. Anything beyond that time is abnormal.

The booklet on diverticulosis explains this common malady in detail. To order a copy, write: Dr. Donohue - No. 502W, Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. Enclose a check or money order (no cash) for $4.75 U.S./$6 Canada with the recipient's printed name and address. Please allow four weeks for delivery.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Several months ago, I fell. X-rays indicate that I have arthritis in my left hip. When I resumed my exercise program, I had pain on raising my left leg about 12 inches off the ground. Do I increase or decrease my exercise? Is there a painkiller or vitamin I should take? - B.W.

ANSWER: Pain is a signal to stop doing whatever it is that causes it. Perhaps arthritis is the cause. A cause has to be found before continuing any exercise that brings it on. Don't blunt the pain with medicines until you find the cause. Vitamins will not help.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him or request an order form of available health newsletters at P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

'Inside-Out-Fitness' For Women Classes

Joi De Vive featuring "Inside-Out-Fitness" classes for women are held Monday through Friday, 5 to 6:30 p.m. at the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, corner of Harvard and West Squantum Streets, Quincy.

The fitness class was developed by Kim Bersani, a vetran instructor and fitness trainer of over 20 years.

"I have found that in these most stressful times that we not only need to deal with our fitness goals but also address our emotional fitness as well," Bersani said. "There are no mirrors in this class. And in this class which I have termed "Inside-Out-Fitness" we will dance freestyle for our warm-up and for some fun."

The class also features stretching and working muscles "from head to toe" for muscle strength and stability.

"After that will we stretch out and discuss issues that we can use some help with dealing with daily. And to round this at the very end we will enjoy some meditation for calming and contemplating. Through this practice we should learn to love who we've grown up to be and start loving the Joi De Vive (joy of living)."

GETTING BACK IN LINE

The vertebrae in a healthy spine are linked together by a complex network of ligaments that maintain them in relatively fixed positions with respect to one another. When these ligaments become stretched due to traumatic injury to the back, it creates an unstable situation for the vertebrae. Now misaligned, they are free to shift backward and forward on adjacent vertebrae, causing severe back pain. Most commonly, vertebral instability occurs in the lower (lumbar) spine, but it can also strike the cervical (neck) and thoracic (middle-back) regions. Chiropractic care for this condition involves spinal manipulation. By moving the vertebrae back into their normal positions, the chiropractor can relieve much of the discomfort that comes from having them out of alignment.

The benefits of chiropractic go far beyond relieving back and neck pain. It can help people of all ages from infants to the elderly. At the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we draw upon a wealth of knowledge and experience with treating and preventing back pain and back injuries. Soothing and pain-reducing spinal adjustments have been developed over the last century, during which chiropractors have practiced, improved, and refined their techniques. Please call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy. No matter where you live in Eastern Mass., we can offer you exceptional chiropractic service.

P.S. Vertebral misalignment may lead to nerve impingement that causes muscle weakness, pain, and other potential problems.

Lenten Retreat At St. Joseph's Parish

Saint Joseph Parish, 556 Washington St., Quincy, will offer a three-night retreat entitled "A Change of Heart: The Gift of Encountering Christ," under the auspices of the Archdiocesan Office of Worship and Spiritual Life this month.

The retreat will be held Sunday, March 14; Monday, March 15 and Tuesday, March 16 at 7 p.m.

The retreat is intended to help participants to grow a deeper appreciation of what it means to encounter Christ in daily life, to allow their hearts to be changed and to respond to Christ's call to be witnesses of his presence in the world.

During the retreat there will be common prayer, preaching, quiet reflection and time for fellowship.

The retreat will conclude with the celebration of the Eucharist.

All are invited to attend the retreat. For more information, contact the Parish at 617-472-6321.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

SCOTT DEWARE

We at the Deware Funeral Home have sensed the desire among many people for a better understanding of what a modern family should know about funeral pre-arrangements. We have found from experience that the informed family is much better equipped mentally to protect their own interests and do not make hasty decisions which could be regretted for many years thereafter.

The advantages or disadvantages of pre-arranging a funeral depend solely upon the individual circumstances and cannot be generalized. What may be in the best interest for some could, in turn, be impractical for others. The important thing to consider is that proper counseling is necessary so that all facets of making such arrangements are thoroughly understood. This could avoid serious misunderstanding and concern at the time that death does occur.

At the Deware Funeral Home we have many booklets which are free that explains what every family member should know about pre-need planning. Please stop by or call us about these booklets. We will gladly answer any questions you might have.

A Mass of the Angels for Patrick Lydon McHugh, beloved infant son of Brendan J. McHugh and Sheila B. Lydon of Quincy, was celebrated Tuesday in St. Ann's Church, 757 Hancock St., Quincy.

Patrick died Feb. 23 at Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston.

Much loved brother of Katie C. Lydon-McHugh, Fiona S. Lydon-McHugh and his twin brother Brendan Lydon-McHugh, all of Quincy. Grandson of Patrick and Kathleen (Collins) McHugh of Ireland, Michael Lydon and the late Sheila (Folan) Lydon also of Ireland.

Also survived by several aunts, uncles and cousins in Boston, Ireland, Canada, Italy and England.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Lydon Chapel for Funerals, 644 Hancock St., Quincy.

Interment was in St. Mary's Cemetery, Randolph.

In Loving Memory of

Beverly J. Ayers

March 5, 1934 - September 24, 2009

As time goes by,
we miss you more.
Your loving smile,
your gentle face,
No one can take your vacant place.

In loving memory of your birthday
Family and Friends

Grandpa loved gardening, baseball, and playing the harmonica.

Your memories are precious. That's why, at Keohane Funeral Service, we take the time to find out what made your loved one special.

Whether it's gathering some of the flowers he so tenderly cultivated or finding a musician to play "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" on the harmonica, you can count on us to help you plan a service that will be just as unique as the person you love.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)
Change is still dominant for Rams and Ewes, both in the workplace and their private lives. This is also a good time to look at a possible relocation if that has been one of your goals.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)
Doing things for others is what you do well. But don't forget that Bovines thrive on the arts, so make some time for yourself to indulge your passion for music and artistic expressions.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20)
While the Romantic Twin considers where to go for his or her upcoming vacation, the Practical Twin will start making travel plans now to take advantage of some great bargains.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22)
Your sensitive nature helps you deal with a difficult emotional situation. Be patient and continue to show your sincere support wherever (and for whom) it is needed.

LEO (July 23 to August 22)
You're making progress as you move through some unfamiliar territory. And while there might be a misstep or two along the way, overall you're heading in the right direction. Good luck.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22)
Some good news arrives -- and just in time to remind you that you're making progress. Perhaps things aren't moving as quickly as you'd prefer, but they're moving nevertheless.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22)
This is a good week to step back and assess the facts that have recently emerged to see where they can be used to your advantage. Also, don't hesitate to make changes where necessary.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21)
You should begin to experience some support from those who now agree with your point of view. This should help counter the remaining objections from die-hard skeptics.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21)
Don't let your aim be deflected by trivial matters as you try to resolve a confusing situation. Take time to find and thoroughly assess the facts before making any decision.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19)
The possibility of moving to another location has come up. But before you dismiss it as unworkable, it's worth checking out just in case it does have some merit after all.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18)
New relationships -- personal or work-related -- show mixed signals. Best to assume nothing. Let things play themselves out until you have something substantive to work with.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20)
Your ability to make needed changes without causing too much, if any, negative ripple effect comes in handy when dealing with a sensitive matter either on the job or in the family.

BORN THIS WEEK: Although you like things to go smoothly, you're not shy about making waves when you believe the situation calls for it.

To the named Respondent and all other interested persons, you are hereby notified pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. Rule 72 that the 1st and final account(s) of Julie McGoldrick of Hingham, MA as Conservator of the property of said Respondent has or have been presented to the Court for allowance.

You have the right to object to the account(s). If you wish to do so, you or your attorney must file a written appearance at this court on or before 10:00 A.M. on the return date of 03/29/10. This day is NOT a hearing date, but a deadline date by which you have to file the written appearance if you object to the account(s). If you fail to file the written appearance by the return date, action may be taken in this matter without further notice to you, including the allowance of the account(s).

Additionally, within thirty days after said return day (or within such other time as the Court upon motion may order), you must file a written affidavit of objections stating the specific facts and grounds upon which each objection is based and a copy shall be served upon the Conservator pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. 5.

You have the right to send to the Conservator, by registered or certified mail, a written request to receive a copy of the account(s) at no cost to you.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

The outcome of this proceeding may limit or completely take away the above-named person's right to make decisions about personal affairs or financial affairs or both. The above-named person has the right to ask for a lawyer. Anyone may make this request on behalf of the above-named person. If the above-named person cannot afford a lawyer, one may be appointed at State expense.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On March 11, 1818, "Frankenstein; or, The Modern Prometheus" is published. The book, by 21-year-old Mary Wollstonecraft Shelley, is frequently called the world's first science-fiction novel. In Shelley's tale, a scientist animates a creature constructed from dismembered corpses.

• On March 10, 1876, the first discernible speech is transmitted over a telephone system when inventor Alexander Graham Bell summons his assistant in another room by saying, "Mr. Watson, come here; I want you." Bell had received a telephone patent three days before, just hours ahead of another inventor, Elisha Gray.

• On March 12, 1903, the New York Highlanders are given the go-ahead by team owners to join baseball's American League. The Highlanders had recently moved from Baltimore, where they were called the Orioles. The team officially changed its name to the New York Yankees in 1913.

• On March 14, 1935, 6-year-old actress Shirley Temple presses her hands in cement outside Grauman's Chinese Theater in Los Angeles. She first won attention with a song and dance in the 1934 movie "Get Up and Cheer."

• On March 13, 1942, the Quartermaster Corps of the U.S. Army begins training dogs for the newly established War Dog Program, or "K-9 Corps." The top canine hero of World War II was Chips, who attacked an enemy machine gun nest in Italy, forcing the entire crew to surrender. The wounded Chips was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star and the Purple Heart -- all of which were later revoked due to an Army policy preventing official commendation of animals.

• On March 9, 1959, the first Barbie doll goes on display at the American Toy Fair in New York City. Barbie was the first mass-produced toy doll in the United States with adult features. Barbie's appearance was modeled on a doll named Lilli, based on a German comic-strip character.

• On March 8, 1969, the Pontiac Firebird Trans Am is introduced. The Trans Am was one in a series of muscle cars released by Pontiac in the 1960s, including the Grand Prix and the GTO designed by a young John DeLorean.

The work under this contract consists of the construction of manhole rehabilitations to eliminate infiltration and inflow into the sewer system. The work includes the cleaning of 20 sewer manholes, heavy cleaning of 14 sewer manholes, monolithic lining of 1,077 vertical feet of sewer manhole, complete replacement of 19 manholes, rebuilding of 3 manhole inverts, sealing of 5 manhole benches and inverts, replacement of 8 manhole frames and covers (F&C) with watertight F&C, sealing of 6 manhole F&C, and uncover/raise 10 manhole F&C. In addition, a new sewer manhole shall be installed on Dysart Street. Temporary bypass pumping, plugging of flows, appurtenances, excavation, trench support, backfilling, restoration, paving, environmental protection, and all related work to complete the project. A non mandatory pre-bid conference will be held on Tuesday, March 9, 2010 at 11:00 a.m. in the Foy Conference Room, 2nd Floor, Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock Street, Quincy, Massachusetts, 02169.

The contract time shall be 120 consecutive days from start date fixed in the Notice to Proceed.

A refundable deposit of $50,000 in cash or check payable to the City of Quincy shall be required for each set of contract documents. Bidders requesting contract documents by mail may call with their "Federal Express" or "UPS" account number. The contract documents may be obtained during the business hours of 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the office of the Purchasing Agent, Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock St. Quincy, MA 02169. Specifications will be available Wednesday, March 3, 2010.

Each bid shall be accompanied by a bid security in the amount of five percent (5%) of the total value of the bid in the form of a bid bond or certified/treasurer's check.

The bidding and award of this contract shall be in full compliance with Massachusetts General Laws, Chapter 30, Section 39M, as last revised. All Federal, State and City of Quincy regulations in relation to Equal Employment Opportunity, OSHA, Employment of Quincy Residents and subject to the minimum wage rates set under the Massachusetts Prevailing Wage Law Chapter 149, §26. The City reserves the right to waive any informality in or to reject any or all bids when such an action is deemed in the best interests of the City.

Non-responsive and/or unbalanced bids may be rejected.

Bidding Farewell Where It All Began

CONG. WILLIAM DELAHUNT (right) announced he would not seek an eighth term at a meeting with supporters March 5 at City Hall. Delahunt, who began his political career nearly 40 years as a Quincy city councillor, was introduced by Mayor Thomas Koch. Delahunt credited Koch's father, the late Richard Koch, Sr., with helping him wage his first successful run for public office when he was elected Ward 5 councillor in 1971.

And Other School Department Unions Koch Gets Nod To Negotiate With Teachers

Mayor Thomas Koch has been granted approval from the School Committee to open negotiations with the City's teachers and other School Department unions in a critical first step toward "working together to find solutions" to the economic crisis facing the city, Koch said.

"We are all in this together, and I am looking forward to an honest, open and most importantly, respectful dialogue with our teachers and school workers regarding the city's future and the future of the Quincy Public Schools," Koch said. "Our teachers care deeply about this city and its children, and I think everyone understands the magnitude of the situation we are in. We need to work together."

Koch has previously stated that the budget now being prepared for the upcoming fiscal year will be the most difficult of any amid the historic economic crisis of the

Questions On Permanent Easement Remain Mayor Will Appoint Committee To Study Entire Tide Mill Site

Mayor Thomas Koch will appoint a committee to study the park department's 2.5-acre parcel off Southern Artery, according to Chris Walker, Director of Policy.

Walker said last week that both he and Kristen Powers, Director of Parks and Recreation, announced the mayor's plans on Feb. 25 at a meeting of the Friends of Southern Tide Mill.

Walker's description of the committee coincides with a resolution approved 8-1 by City Council on March 1. However, there are major differences.

Councillors Daniel Ray-

mondi, Ward 2, and Margaret Laforest, Ward 1, submitted the March 1 resolve which, also, includes a request that mayor hire a professional consultant to study the area.

After the meeting, Raymond, also, said he expects

Concourse Bid Awarded

The bid for the final construction phase of the Quincy Center Concourse has been awarded to a Brockton contractor, setting the stage for spring ground-breaking of the vital parkway crossing Quincy Center, Mayor Thomas Koch said Tuesday.

J. Derenzo Company submitted the low bid of just more than $5 million for the key section of the project that will cut a new road through Hancock Street in downtown where the Quincy Fair Mall currently stands and ultimately connect Burgin Parkway to Southern Artery.

The contractor is the same firm currently working on the McGrath Highway reconstruction portion of the combination state, federal, and local project.

The latest phase of the project will be funded through the federal stimulus program, prompting Mayor Koch to credit Congressman William Delahunt and the state's Beacon Hill delegation for a years-long lobbying effort to keep the project a priority.

"This parkway is absolutely vital to attracting the $1 billion in private investment in coming years that

Delahunt: 'Time For Me To Chart A New Course'

Cong. William Delahunt — who began his historic political career as a Ward 5 councillor nearly 40 years ago — announced March 5 he would not seek an eighth term before supporters in the Council Chamber of City Hall.

Delahunt is the only Quincy native to serve at all four levels of government: city, state, county and federal.

Besides his two-year term as city councillor from 1972 to 1973, Delahunt served as a state representative (1973-75) and Norfolk County district attorney (1975-1996) before being elected to Congress in 1996.

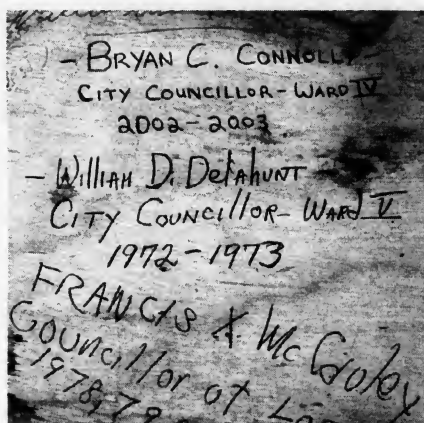

The following is the prepared text of Delahunt's decision to retire from Congress.

I first took the oath of office as an elected official on Jan. 3, 1972 and served in this very Chamber as a Ward 5 councillor.

And I have held elected office ever since — as a state representative from Quincy. As the (Norfolk County) district attorney. And now as the U.S. Representative to the United States Congress from the 10th Congressional District.

At the end of this current term I will have concluded 39 years in elected office. It has truly been a remarkable journey.

I have been a witness to history — from impeachment to war.

THE NAME OF William Delahunt, along with his years of service as Ward 5 councillor, are etched inside the drawer of the horse-shoe (curved) table in the Council Chamber of City Hall. Other names noticeable: former Ward 4 councillor Bryan Connolly and former councillor-at-large Francis McCauley (1978 - 1981).

Departure Sets Off Political Scramble - See Son Beams Page 4 -

And during these times, our voice has been heard. Not always agreed with, but, it has been heard.

And, there have been significant accomplishments.

- Streamlining International Adoptions,
- Bringing the Criminal Justice System into the Modern Era,
- Promoting International Travel and Tourism to the United States

To name a few.

Now there will be time and other venues to review the full record; to share memories; and to say thank you to so many ... who have enriched my life.

And of course, there have been setback and frustrations. But that is to be expected. It is inherent in the nature of our democracy.

But I am here today for another reason.

This is where my journey began almost 40 years ago. And it has been noted that each and every journey begins and ends at home.

And I am coming home.

I will not be a candidate for re-election this November.

My decision is, at its core personal, not political. It has nothing to do with the current political climate.

CLOSE FRIENDS — Sen. Ted Kennedy (left) and then Norfolk County District Attorney William Delahunt exchange greetings at the Quincy Democratic City Committee brunch held at the George F. Bryan Post in October, 1994. Delahunt, in announcing his decision not to seek re-election to Congress this fall, said Kennedy's death last August "underscored the reality that time is a finite commodity."

rent political climate.

Undoubtedly the political landscape will continue to change over the course of the next 8 months.

It is simply time for me to chart a new course. To explore opportunities, both public and private, that will still allow me to focus on those issues that have been a priority during my public life.

And I am committed to staying engaged in public discourse. And to advocate for them with all the resources at my disposal. And all the energy I can muster.

This past year I lost a dear friend, with the passing of Ted Kennedy. His death underscored the reality that time is a finite commodity. And there are only so many hours and so many days given to us.

His loss indeed had a profound effect on me. And caused me to reflect on my own mortality. And it became clear that I wanted to spend my remaining time with you. My family. My friends. And loved ones.

And enjoy in full measure that friendship and affection without being consumed by the frantic schedule that every member of Congress signs up for.

As the Bible observes — everything has a season.

In a political context, Chris Dodd said it best when he observed: "that, in the long sweep of American history there are moments for elected public servant to step aside and let someone else step up."

This is my season to step aside. ... and encourage others to step up.

As I leave, I am not going to join those who bemoan the rancor and divisive partisanship in our nation's capital and across the country. Much of it is fueled by the economic climate and the uncertainty it has generated. This anxiety understandably provokes cynicism.

But persistent cynicism is not in the DNA of the American people. It is not a permanent condition. We are innately an optimistic people that have consistently risen to the challenges of the moment.

I cannot overemphasize that there are good and decent people on both sides of the aisle whose sole agenda is to do what they perceive to be in the best interest of the Nation and the people whom they serve.

I do have a concern that this current cynicism will temporarily deter many talented people from public service.

We should remind ourselves that this phenomenon is not unknown in our political history. In fact it's quite common. Directly across from here at the Church of the Presidents lie John Adams and John Quincy Adams.

Read their biographies.

They are both replete with anecdotes where they suffered from criticism and a cynical public. John Adams was the first victim of a negative campaign ... by Thomas Jefferson.

But these giants of American history persevered.

And as Teddy Roosevelt would say ...

BY JEFFREY M. BERTMAN
GRADUATE GEMOLOGIST

SKETCHY COMPOSITE
Experts are currently calling consumers' attention to so-called "composite rubies," which are composed of pieces of low-quality corundum (the red variety of which is known as ruby) bonded with tinted glass. While these composite "gemstones" may look quite acceptable, closer scrutiny with a jeweler's loupe reveals that they are not true rubies, which come out of the ground as single stones. Federal Trade Commission guidelines require that customers be told that composite gemstones are just that, composites. The problem arises when unscrupulous sources try to pass off composites as the real thing. The best way for consumers to get the rubies, or any natural gemstone, they want is to deal with a reputable jeweler, who will stand behind the gemstone. It's not too difficult to find the best today. You'll always discover the integrity and honesty and the fairness and quality you expect and deserve in a jeweler when you shop with us. We've been serving Quincy's jewelry needs since 1944, and we know these qualities are as important to you as they are to us. You'll find a magnificent array of fine jewelry at 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center, including watches and a constantly changing assortment of estate and preowned jewelry. 'Circuit Breaker' Credit For Homeowners, Renters Morrissey, Raymondi Tout Tax Break For Seniors

Eligible senior citizens could pocket a hefty chunk of change if they learn a bit about the state's "Circuit Breaker," according to State Sen. Michael Morrissey and Ward 2 City Councillor Dan Raymondi.

Morrissey and Raymondi have undertaken a campaign to educate senior citizens about the "Circuit Breaker," which applies to eligible senior citizens who own or rent residential property, other than public housing, in Massachusetts.

This year's credit totals $960 and, for some, that's just the first layer of the windfall as eligible senior citizens can apply for credits for the years they've missed.

That retroactive stash could add up to several thousand dollars.

To date, the average bonanza has been about $750 a year, according to Morrissey who estimates that only 1500 of the city's estimated 17,000 senior citizens have applied for the "Circuit Breaker"

Homeowners are eligible for this tax break when their property tax and 50% of their water and sewer fees exceed 10% of their total income. The tax break is capped at this year's maximum of $960.

Renters are, also, eligible for the tax credit when 25% of their annual rent exceeds 10% of their total income

That money goes "right back into the pocketbook of someone over 65," said Morrissey who said some seniors are eligible even if they file state income tax.

The "Circuit Breaker" is designed to help senior citizens who are "house rich" and cash poor, according to Morrissey.

"You can actually file three years back," said Morrissey of the legislation's clause allowing retroactive applications.

Morrissey addressed City Council's Feb. 22 Senior Citizen Committee meeting after he and Raymondi televised plugs for the tax break on QATV.

"We need to get the word out," said Councillor Mike McFarland, a member of the committee. McFarland suggested most senior residents "don't even know this is available."

Raymondi estimated that most senior homeowners or renters of private apartments are eligible if their income is under $40,000.

Brian Lynch of the state's Department of Revenue provided charts outlining the maximum income for eligibility which, currently, is $51,000 for senior citizens, $64,000 for Head of Household and $77,000 for Married filing jointly.

That has increased incrementally each year from since the 2006 lows of $46,000, $58,000 and $70,000 respectively.

Full Day Of Classes March 23 For Quincy Elementary School Students

Tuesday, March 23 will be a full day of classes for all Quincy Public School students at the elementary level, except those in pre-school, announces Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro.

The full day of classes, DeCristofaro said, will ensure that all students in Grade 4 have sufficient time to complete the Long Composition portion of the Massachusetts Comprehensive Assessment System (MCAS).

Pre-school sessions will not be held on Tuesday,

March 23 or any other Tuesday.

School lunches will be served on that day and full day bus schedules will be in place.

Middle and high schools will be in session all day, as originally scheduled, the superintendent noted.

Norfolk County Republican Club Candidates' Forum, Straw Poll March 18

The Norfolk County Republican Club will host a candidates' forum and straw poll fundraiser Thursday, March 18 at 7 p.m. at the American Legion Post 18, 155 Eastern Ave., Dedham. Admission is $20 and all registered Republican and unenrolled voters are invited to attend.

Gubernatorial candidates Charlie Baker and Christy Mihos will address the crowd and answer questions from the audience. Three Republican candidates for state auditor – Mary Connaughton, Earle Strole and Kamal Jain – will also speak at the event. Following their remarks, a non-binding "straw poll" will be held for the state offices for which there are primaries.

While the straw poll results are being tabulated, Norfolk County Republican Club Chairman Richard Pilla said other Republican candidates running for state office and U.S. Congress will also address the crowd.

A Lot Of Buzz For This Political Scramble

Perhaps Quincy's Election Department should hang a sign in a first-floor window at City Hall reading "Nomination Papers for Federal, County and State Office Unavailable Here – Please Visit Boston, Fall River or Springfield."

It could save the hallway carpet from being worn out by announced and potential candidates.

That's how busy the 2010 election cycle could be.

William Delahunt's decision not to seek an eighth term in the 10th Congressional District last Friday has set off a political scramble not seen here in decades. Not only is Delahunt's seat open, but so too are Norfolk County district attorney, state senator and at least one state representative seat.

There's a lot of political buzz in the air about who's running for what. Time is certainly of the essence in terms of collecting signatures, rallying volunteers and of course, fundraising.

For starters, nomination papers from major party candidates for Norfolk County district attorney, state senate and state representative must be returned to local election officials by Tuesday, April 27. That's less than seven weeks away. Papers for Congress are due May 4. (And while you can't them here, nomination papers can be returned to City Hall so maybe that carpet will need replacing after all.)

Candidates for Congress need at least 2,000 certified signatures; district attorney 1,000; state senate 300 and state representative 150.

In terms of dollars, fundraising activities should be brisk, especially for current county, state or local office holders who want to enter the congressional race. Why? State campaign funds cannot be spent in a federal campaign. But, the money can be given back to those who contributed and then re-donated and deposited into a federal campaign committee account. One political observer thinks it will take at least $1.5 million to be competitive in the Congressional race.

Delahunt's departure is attracting a myriad of Congressional candidates – Democrats, Republicans and at least one Independent. And that line-up of candidates is creating a domino effect here.

For starters, Norfolk County District Attorney William Keating will formally announce – perhaps as soon as early next week – his candidacy for the 10th Congressional district which spans Quincy and the South Shore to Cape Cod and the Islands. He has already filed the paperwork setting up his federal election campaign committee. He's also scheduled some coffee hours with supporters on the Cape.

Keating, a Sharon Democrat, almost ran for Congress after Joseph Moakley's death in 2001. Keating opted against it because his children – then ages 11 and 14 – were too young and he didn't want the commuting life of a U.S. representative.

There is no law stipulating a Congressional candidate live in the district he or she wants to represent. However, if elected, that new Congressman must take up primary residence in the district.

Keating – whose Sharon residence is not in the 10th District – has a home in Bourne which is in the District. He said he's also planning to lease property in Quincy during his Congressional campaign to show his commitment to the people of the district as well as to his responsibilities as the Norfolk County district attorney.

Keating's candidacy means state Sen. Michael Morrissey of Quincy will run for Norfolk County district attorney. It is interesting to note that Keating and Morrissey were both elected to the House of Representatives the same year: 1976. Both went on to serve as state senators and now Morrissey will be trying to succeed Keating as district attorney.

Morrissey's open Senate seat may attract quite a few candidates. One candidate for certain is Rep. Steve Tobin who confirmed Tuesday that he will run for Morrissey's open Senate seat. He has been meeting with municipal leaders and Democratic party activists in the Senate district that includes part of Braintree and the towns of Holbrook, Abington and Rockland.

Another candidate who confirmed he will be a candidate for state Senate is Councillor John Keenan. Keenan, who works as the executive director of the Norfolk County Retirement System, will make an official announcement soon.

One candidate rumored to be interested in the Senate seat is School Committee Vice Chairwoman Anne Mahoney. Mahoney, if she doesn't campaign for Senate, is seen as a mayoral contender in the near future.

Also considering a run for state Senate is Rep. Bruce Ayers. His seat – if it opens up – would attract its own group of candidates. But at this time it appears Ayers would not try to make a lateral move at the State House.

Tobin's seat – which represents the 2nd Norfolk District (and includes all of Ward 1, Precincts 1, 2, 5 in Ward 3, Precincts 2 and 4 in Ward 4 and Precincts 1, 3, 4 in Ward 5) has attracted its own crop of potential candidates.

Among them: School Committeewoman Elaine Dwyer, Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest, recently retired Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly, and former Ward 1 council candidates Joe Keegan and Marty Aikens.

Another candidate seriously looking at running for Tobin's open state representative seat is political activist Tackey Chan. Chan – who worked for Morrissey for nearly 12 years and is a member of the Ward 5 Democratic City Committee for 10 years – has been an assistant attorney general for Martha Coakley for about three years.

This is shaping up to be one heck of an election year locally.

But will it include a Quincy candidate for Congress?

State Rep. Ronald Mariano, who is the House assistant majority leader, is staying put.

"I'm not going to (run for Congress). The fire's not there and it's a little too late in my life to make a major change," said the 62-year-old former Quincy school teacher and school committeeman. He's represented the 3rd Norfolk District on Beacon Hill since 1992.

Mariano was seen as a major candidate if he got in the race for Congress. His district includes parts of Quincy and Weymouth – the first and third largest municipalities in the district by population (with Plymouth second).

How about Mayor Tom Koch? Would he be interested in running for Delahunt's seat?

Koch is the sitting mayor in the largest city in the district and has built relationships over time throughout the district. "Even folks who may not agree with the mayor at times, or even all the time, I don't think even they would dispute how much he loves this city, and this would be another way for him to serve," said one City Hall insider. "So are there people planting the bug in his ear? Yes. Is he listening? I don't know."

Koch also has ties to the Cape – another significant portion of the district. His brother, Richard Koch, Jr., was a popular Quincy city councillor before moving to Brewster and serving on the School Committee. Today he's the town's police chief.

Ward 3 Councillor Kevin Coughlin – who was elected council president in January – is reportedly considering a run for Congress but not state representative.

If there's no Quincy candidate for Congress, then out-of-town candidates will court local voters like the prom queen. One political observer thinks the city's turnout for the final state election Nov. 2 may approach 80 percent, in part because local resident Tim Cahill is an independent candidate for governor. Without a Quincy candidate, the city will be "in play" for the other Congressional candidates who will campaign hard for those local votes.

One Democrat who has reportedly taken himself out of the race is Joseph Kennedy III, son of former Cong. Joseph Kennedy II and grandson of the late Senator and Presidential candidate Robert F. Kennedy.

It will also be interesting to see what kind of candidates the Republican Party can muster for any open legislative seats. Local GOP party leaders, after Scott Brown's surprising victory in the special U.S. Senate race in January, pledged to put up candidates in local races. If ever the GOP wanted to make some inroads in terms of seizing some long-time held Democratic legislative seats, this is the year to do it.

In announcing his decision not to seek re-election, Delahunt said, "This is my season to step aside ... and encourage others to step up."

Could be a lot of stepping up this election year. Just watch the carpet.

NATIONAL SAILORS' HOME, WOLLASTON, MASS.

E. E. HOXIE PHOTO.

THIS IS A 1920's postcard view of the old National Sailors Home that was located near the junction of Haviland and Dickens Streets and Andrew Road in Wollaston. The rest home was opened at the end of the Civil War in 1865 exclusively for indigent sailors who had served in the U.S. Navy. The home remained here for over 60 years until 1930 when it moved to Duxbury into the old Powder Point Schoolhouse on Powder Point overlooking the harbor. In 1950 the trustees of the Sailors Snug Harbor in Germantown merged with the National Sailors Home in Duxbury and also moved their residents there. Eventually, the Snug Harbor trustees took over the Duxbury operations; closed it when there were only nine residents remaining and then sold the property in 1974. Today, the trustees of Sailors Snug Harbor are based in Boston and have a substantial endowment from which they distribute grants every year to qualifying applicants. The National Sailors Home property in Wollaston was purchased by the Model Homes Company of Boston in 1931 and developed into the 40-acre Beechwood Knoll subdivision. Light Turnout Seen For Super Tuesday

By FRANK McCAULEY

Approximately 33% of Quincy's registered voters are expected to turn out in the Massachusetts Presidential Primary, Tuesday, March 10, estimates City Clerk John Gillis.

The state primary is part of Super Tuesday, the day thousands of voters go to the polls and cast ballots for an array of presidential hopefuls in 11 states.

In Massachusetts there are 106 Democratic delegates and 38 Republican delegates at stake.

Gillis said that he doubts turnout will be higher than 33% because he perceives a lack of local interest in the Democratic and Republican nomination races. (Editor's Note: Voter turnout in Quincy was 37.2%.)

RECYCLING CENTER RUNS INTO STRONG OPPOSITION

A proposal by Browning-Ferris Industries (BFI) to begin operations of a recycling center at 88-102 and 106 Penn St., received strong opposition at a public hearing from residents who are concerned by potential traffic and safety problems.

The overwhelming majority of residents at the meeting were against BFI's proposal. Nine residents spoke against the center with an additional 39 signing in opposition. Only three residents spoke and ten others recorded in favor.

As proposed, the center would be limited to the processing of curbside materials such as newspapers, plastics and glass. It would be open Mondays through Fridays from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. as well as half-day on Saturday and would process 200-250 tons of materials a day.

Asperger's Syndrome, Autism Teen Social Group Starts Friday

QPAC, the Quincy Parent Advisory Council to Special Education, in association with the South Shore YMCA, announces the formation of a new program: The Teen Center Social Group.

The new group is a social and pragmatic language skills development program for adolescents with Asperger's/High Functioning Autism disorders.

Adolescents with this disorder often struggle significantly with learning appropriate social behavior and reading proper social cues of others. Social skills need to be taught explicitly and directly to these youths in order to provide them with better understanding of the expectations of the social world.

Funded by the Community Development Block

Grant Program, this program is facilitated by two instructors who provide instruction and strategies for building social skills in a place where young adults can recognize, practice, and feel at ease with everyday social encounters while building confidence, developing friendships, and having fun in a comfortable, relaxed atmosphere.

Young adults ages 13 and older and invited to join.

The Teen Center Social Group meets Friday nights at the South Shore YMCA, Coddington St., Quincy, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. beginning March 12.

For more information, contact Kathryn Saunders at the YMCA, 617-479-8500 ext. 115, or visit the Quincy Parent Advisory Council to Special Education website at www.quincypac.org.

Fallon Ambulance Scholarship Applications Available

Fallon Ambulance Service, an independent ambulance service provider, announces its Scholarship Program for students attending Quincy and North Quincy High Schools.

Applications are available at the designated school's Guidance Departments of individual schools by April 23.

Selected recipients will receive full scholarships of EMT training at an Accredited EMT training institution that is designated by Fallon Ambulance Service. (FAS) Recipients will also have an opportunity for employment with FAS, upon completion of the sponsored EMT course, state examination and receipt of the Massachusetts EMT Certification.

Interested candidates are asked to submit all documentation along with the application for the Fallon Ambulance Scholarship to the appropriated Guidance Department of School Representative no later than April 23.

Final decisions will be released by May 14. Award certificates will be presented directly to the recipient, with notification going to the High School's Guidance Department of School Representatives.

"We are happy to once again offer our scholarship program," said Peter Racicot, senior vice president of Business Development at Fallon Ambulance Service. "EMT training can lead to several career paths as well as provide a great foundation for a college career."

'The Prioress's Tale' At Cambridge Church Quincy Composer's Opera To Be Performed Sunday

"The Prioress's Tale," a chamber opera by a local composer, will be performed Sunday, March 14 at 3 p.m. at the First Church in Cambridge, Congregational, 11 Garden St., Cambridge. Suggested donation is $10.

Written by Quincy composer and Longy School of Music faculty member Delvyn Case, the 75-minute opera takes its inspiration from a rather unlikely source: one of Chaucer's famed Canterbury Tales that features decidedly anti-semitic overtones.

"As a Christian, I'm saddened by the long history of intolerance that has been manifested by some Christians, and the deep rifts between Christians and Jews that still exist due to this deplorable past," Case said. "I felt that, as a composer, I could contribute positively to our public dialogue about these issues."

Working with librettist Christopher Hood, Case recast Chaucer's original story of violence perpetrated against Christians by a Jewish man into a one-act opera focused on forgiveness, redemption and reconciliation. The opera is performed by a cast of six with piano accompaniment.

"Our story is a tragic parable in which the reality of violence serves as an overall message about the power of forgiveness and peace," Case said. "We hope our opera communicates a deep respect for the victims of religious violence while also dramatically illustrating the terrible consequences of bigotry and hatred."

Women's Prayer Breakfast Saturday To Benefit Interfaith Social Services

On Saturday, March 13, hundreds of women of different faiths will come together to support a local non-profit, Interfaith Social Service's (ISS) 12th Annual Women's Prayer Breakfast at 8:30 a.m. at St. Ann's School Hall.

The Women's Prayer Breakfast has become a spring tradition for women across the South Shore. For over a decade women of different faiths have come together each year in a spirit of camaraderie and diversity to support a good cause.

This year's program features contributors from eight different South Shore houses of worship.

The guest speaker is Linda Erickson, Norwell resident and former Regional Presidents of the Relief Society of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, one of the largest women's organizations in the world.

Mrs. Erickson's presentation is entitled, "Women Making a Difference through Faith, Hope and Charity."

by D.J. Mark McGillicuddy. Donation at the door is a minimum $15 per person.

This is a 21-year-old and older event.

There will also be prize drawings with a grand prize 5-night stay in Jamaica.

For more information, call Rick Murray, 781-858-2617.

"We are very excited for this year's event," said Interfaith's Executive Director Rick Doane. "We have a wonderful program planned, with some delicious food, but more importantly the Annual Prayer Breakfast is an illustration of spirit that helped to establish our organization."

"ISS was founded by a compassionate group of religious leader here on the South Shore. Sixty years later, we are still looking to their example. The support we receive from countless houses of worship across the South Shore allows us to fulfill our mission to serve our neighbors in need."

Registration opens at 8:30 a.m. Breakfast will include eggs, home fries, sausages, ham, danishes, croissants, and beverages.

For tickets, call 617-773-6203. Tickets are $12 each. Seating is limited.

Wollaston Garden Club To Host 'Urban Forestry' Program March 18

The Wollaston Garden Club will have a program entitled "Urban Forestry" Thursday, March 18 at 12:30 p.m. at the Wollaston Congregational Church, 48 Winthrop Ave.

Melissa Levangie, a certified arborist and owner of Trees New England will speak on the art of tree planting and management.

Pam Artis, president of the club noted that the importance of trees and the quality of life in Quincy's urban environment, and said, "The timing of this program coincides with daily evidence that spring has begun to unfold all around us."

Jo Costello, who is chairperson of the Parks and Recreation Department and the club's Civic Beautification Committee, will discuss their collaboration on public plantings throughout the city.

Jan Clifford, the club's vice president, said that the "Club's collaboration with the city on intersection planters has resulted in well-designed, attractive planters that have four-season interest."

The Wollaston Garden Club is a member of the National Garden Club, Inc., and the Garden Club Federation of Massachusetts, Inc.

Congressional Candidate Jeff Perry Addresses Quincy Republicans

Quincy Republicans recently had an opportunity recently to hear from state Rep. Jeffrey Perry (R-Sandwich), a candidate for U.S. Congress in the 10th congressional district that includes Quincy.

Perry shared his campaign platform with members of the Quincy Republican City Committee.

"My campaign is based on my belief that the people of the 10th congressional district need a fresh, dynamic and effective voice in Washington," Perry said.

"We need someone who will stand up for the values we all believe in, and fight for action on issues like real health care reform without mandates, better job opportunities, checks on illegal immigration, lower taxes and less national debt, and an end to the insider and special-interest dealing that permeates Capitol Hill."

A U.S. Army National Guard veteran and former Wareham police officer, Perry is partner in the law firm of Flannigan and Perry, P.C.

"Being a steward of the law, I strongly believe in taking a stand against illegal immigration," Perry said. "I've proposed legislation which would deny state benefits for illegal immigrants that cost Massachusetts legal residents millions of dollars each and every year."

A fiscal conservative with a record of opposing new taxes, Perry noted that he was one of just two state legislators who opposed the proposal for a mandated health insurance system in Massachusetts out of concern for the financial impact the plan would have on the state's financial health.

"As those rising costs have become even more apparent in the state budget, I've worked with other legislators to push for proposals that would lower health care costs and improve the delivery of health care services for Massachusetts residents."

That experience in reaching across the aisle and working with lawmakers from both major parties would be invaluable in Washington, as Congress grapples with the issue of health care, Perry said.

"Most Americans are generally happy with the quality of their health care services - it's the cost that's the problem," he said. "We need to focus on reforming the cost side of health care by promoting tort reform, increasing competition - like allowing companies to sell health insurance across state lines - and improving medical record reporting to drive down administrative costs."

Morrissey Opposes 'Primary Enforcement' Law Senate OKs Ban On Texting While Driving, Testing Drivers

By TOM HENSHAW

Texting while driving and its companion, testing for aging drivers, took another step forward in the legislature last week amid rising doubts that portions of the new law may be unenforceable.

The State Senate voted 24 to 10, with Sen. Michael Morrissey of Quincy opposed, making texting a "primary enforcement" law, meaning that police can stop and ticket a driver for texting alone.

"You should be able to conduct business with a cell phone from a car," said Morrissey. "I'm the biggest abuser myself. If it's primary enforcement, how do you tell the difference between texting and dialing? How do you tell the difference between texting and answering the phone?"

"Primary enforcement gives the police another reason to stop people."

Capt. John Dougan said Quincy police are waiting for the bill to pass in its final form before commenting or devising a plan for enforcement.

The House of Representatives has passed a similar texting bill and it remains for an ad hoc committee of six senators and reps to iron out the differences and pass it on to Gov. Deval Patrick for his signature.

Both bills ban texting while driving and cell phone use by drivers under 18 years of age.

The House bill bans the use of hand-held cell phones while driving but okays use of a hands-free cell phone with voice activation dialing. The Senate rejected a similar amendment by a 16 to 18 vote with Morrissey again with the minority.

The House bill requires drivers 75 years of age and older to pass vision and road tests every five years. The Senate bill trims the testing time to every three years and passed by a vote of 33 to 2 with Morrissey on the winning side.

Morrissey said he reserves the right to change his vote on final passage when the house-senate committee reaches a compromise.

In the meantime, he suggested, insurance companies could deny coverage to those who break the law.

"It would be a wakeup call," he said. "It would be to me."

Three Residents On Fitchburg Dean's List

Three residents are on the Dean's List at Fitchburg State College for the fall semester.

They are: Joseph P. Flanagan, Julie A. Hanson and Lisa H. McKeon.

'This Is It' Documentary Screening At Library

The 2009 documentary movie Michael Jackson's "This Is It" will be screened Thursday, March 18 at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

The documentary offers a rare, behind-the-scenes look at Michael Jackson as he developed, created and rehearsed for his sold-out concerts that would have taken place last summer in London's O2 Arena. Chronically the months from April through June 2009, the film draws from more than 100 hours of behind-the-scenes footage, featuring Jackson rehearsing a number of his songs for the show.

Directed by Kenny Ortega, the 112-minute film is rated PG for some suggestive choreography and scary images.

Concourse Bid Awarded

will make Quincy Center the economic engine for our entire region," Koch said. "It's been talked about for 30 years, but we're getting it done today thanks to the persistence and teamwork of the city's teams, Congressman Delahunt, Senator Mike Morrissey and our entire state team."

Added Delahunt:

"This is a great example of the jump start federal stimulus funds can have on the local economy," he said. "Linking Burgin Parkway to McGrath Highway and Route 3A will connect downtown Quincy from a transportation perspective, and will result in added business growth and many new jobs for the City."

A separate bid on remaining demolition work, including the Quincy Fair Mall-is expected to be awarded in coming weeks. An original $6 million federal earmark set aside for the road construction was trumped by the stimulus money, but is still available for the City and can be used for other downtown-related transportation projection.

Construction on the project's final phase will begin, as a $4.3 million phase rebuilding McGrath Highway is finishing up this year. That part of the project, between Washington Street and Southern Artery (Route 3A) includes wider sidewalks, new traffic signals, bike lanes, new trees and plantings, and a medium strip. The most complex part of that phase, relocating utilities underground, took place last year and residents should begin to see the progress on the street level this year.

"This road is central to the revitalization of Quincy Center, and we are going to continue to work at the state level to ensure that Quincy remains a priority and that this historic redevelopment of Quincy Center becomes a reality," said Morrissey.

The goal of the full project, which also includes the existing Paul Harold Bridge connecting downtown's parking areas to Burgin Parkway, is two-fold: To end the downtown traffic bottleneck by creating easier access to and from the Southeast Expressway and create a new environment downtown to attract private investment.

Construction of the road comes as the city continues to negotiate with master developer, Street-Works, LLC on a full redevelopment plan for Quincy Center.

Koch Gets Nod

To Negotiate With Teachers

last several years. The City faces between $12 and $15 million in increased costs while revenues are expected to continue to lag.

Koch declined to say what he may ask of teachers, saying those issues will be addressed "in good faith at the table." Last year, the city saved several millions of dollars and dozens of jobs when most unions accepted a one-year wage deferral.

Teachers did not accept the deferral, but officials noted that without the support of teachers, the dramatic $10 million in cost-savings from joining the state Group Insurance Commission (GIC) would not have been possible.

This year raises for teachers will total nearly $5 million and contracts for other city unions' call for another $2 million in raises.

Koch has met together with union leaders to lay out the city's financial position, and made it clear to the City Department heads that substantial spending cuts are on the horizon. Those cuts will come on top of $5 million in spending reductions included in this year's budget and the likelihood of further state aid reductions.

"We have made serious cuts, and we have more serious cuts to make," Koch said. "We are committed to doing whatever possible to maintain public safety and education services, but there will be a number of difficult choices, make no mistake."

One other School Committee member will join Koch in the negotiating process, and any agreement with teachers and other school unions will need the approval of the full committee. The mayor said he expects to hold similar talks with other city unions, but stressed that opening the door with teachers is a "vital first step."

Mayoral Committee

To Study Entire Tide Mill Site

that Thayer Academy will be represented at the table.

However, Walker said last week he does not expect any change or any review of the Park Department's agreement with Thayer Academy regarding a portion of the property.

That agreement allows Thayer Academy to have a permanent easement over the city's access route to Town River during certain months and times.

In addition, Thayer Academy will have permanent storage rights and access to trailers on a portion of the property. There are no time limits.

The partnership agreement allows the access in return for Thayer Academy's investment of $250,000 in upgrades and clean-up of the parcel. The city will maintain the property.

None of that work would affect the Souther Tide Mill which is currently protected by fencing topped with barbed wire.

Several councillors challenged the legality of the Park Department's agreement on March 1.

However, Walker said the property is under the authority of the Park Department and the City Council has no authority over the agreement.

Koch will select the members of the committee to study the entire area which is now neglected. The property includes Souther Tide Mill, the Town River access area and a location for fishermen.

Recently ranked #18 in the Boston Business Journal Book of Lists as the Area's Largest Residential Real Estate Firms!

Since Realty Direct Boston's inception in 2005, Tom Truong and his partners took an unknown franchise located at Marina Bay and developed their Real Estate Firm into an innovative company and still growing with 70 agents to service their diverse Greater Boston and South Shore client base. Realty Direct is conveniently headquartered at 133 Hancock Street, Quincy with office locations in Stoughton and Westborough.

Tom is an experienced entrepreneur whose background includes Area Chief Financial Officer for a National Insurance Brokerage Firm, a chain of environmentally friendly dry cleaners, Laundromat, bagel shop, country club/restaurant. In his travels he was fortunate to meet Patrick O'Donnell, formally of Landmark Residential Specialists of Quincy. They merged their real estate operations in 2009. This merger resulted in continued growth for Realty Direct. Tom and Patrick continue to seek out new opportunities. They say, "We are always looking for experienced agents and brokerages to join our team!"

To stay innovative, we invite experienced agents to give us their honest feedback in focus groups in order to continue their expansion plans. Several will be held on March 18th at local restaurants. The agents receive a nice lunch and a $50 check for one hour of their time. There is no obligation other than their honest feedback. If you are an agent and would like to be part of the focus group, please contact the Realty Direct Office at 617-328-1255.

Problems In Other Areas Remain

FEMA Grant Will Aid Woodbine Flood Control

By early summer, the shovels should be in the ground and construction underway on the $352,000 Woodbine flood control project, according to City Engineer Sean Hardy.

Hardy told the Public Works Committee meeting that bids will be open for the project by the end of March.

FEMA, (Federal Emergency Management Agency) will provide $272,000 in funding and the city will provide the balance through in-house work, according to Hardy who spoke on Feb. 22.

Hardy, also, noted the public works department is currently seeking additional FEMA grants to solve water problems in other areas of the city and has resolved numerous drainage problems in the city.

"FEMA has opened the application process," said Hardy, explaining the delay in new FEMA awards.

New grants for similar work can't come soon enough for Councilors Doug Gutro, Ward 5 or Daniel Raymond, Ward 2, who presented lists of more than two dozen sites subject to "chronic flood" or drainage problems.

Raymond suggested that the $900,000 currently in the Sewer Rehabilitation Fund be directed toward solving more flood and drainage problems.

The Sixth Avenue Drainage Improvement project has been resolved but the Bigelow Street Flood Relief project and problems on Martenson St. and Quincy Ave. remain, according to Raymond's list.

Gutro listed problems in Ward 5, such as locations near Butler Pond, Hancock Street townhouses, and parcels on St. Ann's Road and Copley Street.

However, none matched the severity of the Sachem Street problems where basements must be pumped out after severe rains and high tides.

"This is a big deal in this neighborhood," said Gutro who suggested the city should buy the properties if engineers conclude there are no other option than to be "perpetually" subjected to floods.

Just a week later, Gutro provided vivid descriptions of such problems to the full City Council.

Gutro read communications from several residents who describing conditions resulting from the rains and high tides of the last week in February.

One resident said the water was rising up through the basement of her house even as she was writing but any hope of stopping the flooding was futile.

She wrote that the residents of 'Sachem Lake' don't even call the DPW anymore because it can't be solved.

Hardy said that studies of the Sachem Street area suggest 'some pretty staggering costs' for a rather large pumping station.

However, Hardy said the DPW will seek a new study of the Sachem Street area. The hope is that "someone with a different set of eyes (could find) real world cost estimates."

DPW Commissioner Larry Prendeville who was contacted after the late February storms said his department had about 15 calls that weekend and the crews handled problem areas swiftly and, in most cases, headed off trouble.

"The high tide plus a storm surge" offered a threatening combination but the DPW is familiar with specific areas, according to Prendeville, who said an 11.8 foot tide and torrential rainfall created the hazards. The average tide is nine feet.

Prendeville said the crews tackled the critical areas of Quincy Point, Wollaston, North Quincy and West Quincy and residents didn't have to call.

"When there's a lot of rain and the tide is out, the flooding is minimized," said Prendeville.

Quincy's Meaghan Healy Begins Kindergarten Internship

Fontbonne Academy junior Meaghan Healy of Quincy has begun an internship at Glover Elementary School in Milton.

She is in a kindergarten class as part of her spring "Kindergarten Apprenticeship" Virtual High School (VHS) course for five weeks. She will be delivering lessons based on the VHS kindergarten curriculum and assisting kindergarten teacher, Kim Comer, in the class with students.

"I am really excited to be able to learn first-hand like this. VHS was a great choice for me, and Glover Elementary School couldn't be more welcoming," Meaghan said.

The Kindergarten Apprenticeship is a unique VHS high school level course, as most course-related internships exist only at the college level. Fontbonne Academy is one of the area schools that offers this option to its students.

Meaghan will have a lot of support as she embarks on this endeavor. She will be working with Ms. Comer and her VHS teacher online. Fontbonne Academy VHS Coordinator Dianne Pappafotopoulos will assist her with any VHS technical issues.

"VHS offers a wide range of classes for students who want to expand their curriculum beyond the walls of their high school. We've had students take courses in a variety of interesting subjects," she said.

Fontbonne Academy is a Catholic, college-preparatory high school for young women sponsored by the Sisters of St. Joseph of Boston.

Quincy Schools, Tech Ed Business Educators To Host 'Credit For Life' March 26

Quincy Public Schools Career and Technical Education Educators will host the second annual "Credit for Life" fair Friday, March 26 from 9 a.m. to noon at the Boston Marriott Quincy.

The fair's goal is to provide high school seniors with the ability to be independent adult consumers and have the knowledge of personal finance to survived in today's global economy.

Approximately 250 students from Quincy and North Quincy High School will participate in the fair. Fifteen booths will be displayed throughout the Marriott Ballroom and students will have to spend from a budget based on the future jobs they foresee themselves in.

Students will make decisions on how much money they want to spend on transportation, housing, food, clothing, savings, and several other areas.

The "Credit for Life" Fair is being implemented with the assistance of numerous Quincy School - Community Partners and local business volunteers from across the South Shore. Among them: Quincy Credit Union, South Shore Savings Bank, Eastern Bank, Quincy College, Quirk Auto Dealerships, ING, Quincy Chamber of Commerce, South Coastal Workforce Investment Board, S Bank, Century 21-Abigail Adams, Quincy Rotary Club, South Shore YMCA, Donahue Insurance, Harvard Pilgrim Health Care, Stop & Shop Companies, The Tax Doctor, Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Company, HarborOne Credit Union, State Street Corporation, Met Life Insurance, AXA Equitable, and others.

Guests planning to attend the event include Mayor Thomas Koch, Supt. Richard DeCristofaro and Kevin Meskill, vice president of Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Company. Other community leaders are expected to help support students who will learn more about budgeting their money after high school.

For more information, contact Keith Segalla, director of Career and Technical Education, at 617-984-8731.

Insurance STRATEGIES
by Jim Sullivan

ARE YOU PAYING TOO MUCH FOR AUTO INSURANCE?

Technology has changed how we communicate. If you own a cell phone, be sure to leave it in its case while you are driving because talking or texting while driving increases your chances of getting into an accident. Please call JAMES J. SULLIVAN INSURANCE AGENCY at 617-328-8600 if we can assist you with auto insurance. We offer insurance coverage for cars, trucks, SUVs, and motorcycles. As an independent insurance agency, we have 9 carefully selected auto insurance carriers and can therefore offer you the best coverage at the most competitive price. Our office is located at 151 Hancock Street.

The latest study concerning the effects of mobile phone use on drivers shows that talking on the phone is more distracting than even the most talkative passenger. Whether a driver uses a hand-held phone or a hands-free device, talking on a phone can make driving dangerous, causing drivers to follow too closely and miss exits. The study, which involved drivers between the ages of 18 and 49 years, showed that talking on a cell phone can slow the reaction time of young adult drivers to levels associated with senior citizens. The study went on to say that passengers do not pose as much of a distraction to drivers because they are often silent or act as another set of eyes.

NOTE: The study mentioned above also showed that drivers who talked on the phone were as impaired as legally intoxicated drivers.

Sheriff Bellotti Unveils New Reverse 911 System

A new reverse 911 system operated by Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti and designed to notify citizens about urgent public safety issues has passed its first two tests with flying colors.

The system, obtained and operated by the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office with funding from a Homeland Security grant, worked effectively recently in Milton and Braintree.

Using a database of residential telephone numbers, the system allows local authorities to send a recorded voice message directly into homes.

In Milton last month, the police notified every resident listed in the database about a pair of weekend H1N1 flu vaccine clinics.

The Braintree Police used the system earlier this month to warn its citizens about a rash of thefts carried out by people who gained access to residents' homes by posing as water department employees.

"This reverse 911 system is so effective at reaching out directly to citizens to notify them about extremely important public safety issues," Bellotti said. "It also is a tool that works perfectly on a regional level without regard to town boundaries."

The town of Avon and numerous other Norfolk County communities are looking into becoming involved in the reverse 911 system.

The computerized system utilizes map software to allow the user to tailor the geographic area he wants to target with his message. If there is any type of public safety emergency – for example, a situation involving a hazardous chemical fumes leak or tainted water – households can be reached quickly and directly.

As currently configured, the computerized system can call 72 homes simultaneously and can reach more than 2,000 homes in less than half-an-hour. It has the capability of being expanded to call 500 homes simultaneously.

"We envision the reverse 911 system as a great tool to keep everyone in Norfolk County as safe and secure as they can be. It is another way of using advanced computer technology to enhance one of our most basic needs: public safety in our homes and neighborhoods," Bellotti said.

Hobin Promoted To Purchasing Agent

Mayor Thomas Koch announced Tuesday that Assistant City Solicitor Kathryn Hobin has been promoted to City Purchasing Agent.

Hobin, a life-long Quincy resident and city lawyer focusing on contract-related issues since the Koch administration took office in 2008, will be in charge of the volumes of purchase orders, contracts, and bidding documents that flow through the City on a daily basis.

Mayor Touring School Buildings

Mayor Thomas Koch has begun a tour of all 19 City school buildings to see firsthand the "great works of teachers and students" and to gather information on the needs of individual schools.

"I've already met some of the most dedicated and creative employees in our City," Koch said of his first few tours that began last week. "We truly have one of the best School systems in the entire Commonwealth, and that's obvious just by walking through these buildings, meeting teachers, students, principals and staff."

During the tours, Koch is visiting classrooms and taking questions from students, meeting with administrators and reviewing physical and maintenance needs of buildings.

At his most recent tour of the Lincoln-Hancock School, the Mayor read to more than 300 students as part of the annual birthday celebration for Dr. Seuss and then visited individual classrooms.

"A city our size faces unique challenges, especially in these difficult times,"

She will take over for Rhonda Merrill, who recently asked the Mayor for a transfer to a different position because of family responsibilities. Merrill will be transferred to a position in the City's Water and Sewer Department.

"I'm disappointed that we're losing someone of Rhonda's caliber in the Purchasing Department, but at the same time thrilled that we have someone as capable as Kathryn to step up,"

Koch said. "But it's clear to me we are meeting those challenges, and we will continue to meet them in the coming years."

Koch said. "She's a talented lawyer, a proven hard-worker and is fluent in the complicated language of procurement law. Rhonda will continue to do great work for the City, and I have high expectations of Kathryn."

A Merrymount resident who grew up in Wollaston, Hobin graduated from Boston College in 1992 and Cum Laude from the New England School of Law in 1997. Prior to joining the Koch administration, she worked as a lawyer in private practice and at Quincy Community Action Programs.

She is married with two children, Donald, 8, and Fallon, 6.

Clifford Marshall School Students Help Haiti

CLIFFORD MARSHALL ELEMENTARY School students and faculty members recently held a coin drive to raise funds for the Save the Children Foundation in Haiti. Students raised over $700 by encouraging their classmates and their families to donate their loose change to help the children in Haiti affected by last month's devastating earthquake. With the assistance of Quincy Credit Union, the students reached their goal of a $1,000 donation and enjoyed a visit to have the funds counted through the Credit Union's coin machine. From left are: Vice Principal Bill Bloomer, Clifford Marshall School third grader Hannah Robinson; fourth grader Taysha Abeland; and Colleen Jackson, Marshall School guidance counselor.

Lynch recommended that residents seek additional data by researching the issue through AARP, their tax preparer of Council on Aging.

Residents can seek help on tax questions through the Council on Aging, according to Tom Clasby, Executive Director. Clasby was contacted regarding COA efforts prior to the committee meeting.

Clasby said residents should call the COA for an appointment with the volunteer tax specialists. "They prepare taxes at no cost for seniors."

In addition, Clasby said

The COA will recommend local organizations and agencies which provide information sessions for senior residents on all available tax information.

"They'll certainly talk about the circuit breakers and all the write-offs," said Clasby.

Looking Good, Feeling Good

Stay Healthy With Brown Rice

(NAPS)-The next time you're looking for a healthy and affordable ingredient, think rice. Brown rice, more specifically, is a versatile and inexpensive anchor for any meal and provides numerous health advantages to go along with its more flavorful qualities.

In general, all kinds of rice are complex carbohydrates free of trans-fat, sodium and gluten. In addition, brown rice is a 100 percent whole-grain product. Research has shown diets rich in whole grains reduce the risk of heart disease, certain cancers and type 2 diabetes. Brown rice also contains plenty of fiber, an important nutritional source and good tool for dieters. Foods rich with fiber are more filling and may decrease the likelihood of overeating.

Health benefits aside, brown rice boasts a variety that is convenient and tastes great. With its nutty flavor and satisfying texture, natural brown rice provides whole-grain goodness any time of the day. Products such as Success Brown Rice let you get the nutritional value of brown rice in 10 minutes, one-fourth the time of the long-cooking variety. It is the original no-measure, no-mess boil-in-bag rice. That feature also eliminates any potential cooking mistakes and it can even stay in the water up to 30 minutes after it cooks and still be excellent.

For those who want to make even more of brown rice, here are a few "stir-in" suggestions:

Citrus Rice - To hot, cooked brown rice, added grated orange, lemon or lime zest for a fresh lively taste.

Coconut Rice - While cooking brown rice, substitute light coconut milk for one cup of water. After the rice is done, stir in fresh lime juice and chopped cilantro.

Slightly Mexican - To hot, cooked brown rice, add diced tomatoes, green onions, Monterey Jack cheese and cilantro. Alternatively, instead of tomatoes, try your favorite salsa.

Portobello Mushroom Rice - To hot, cooked brown rice, add sautéed chopped Portobello mushrooms and toasted chopped pecans. Top with crumbled feta cheese.

You can find more tips, nutritional information and brown rice recipes at www.successrice.com or (800) 226-9522.

Health Awareness

In Your Face About Skin Health

(NAPS) - For many, warmer weather means a more active lifestyle with more time spent in the sun. Along with wearing tighter clothing, sleeveless shirts and shorts, it can also be a good time to take notice of your skin because it is no longer hidden under winter sweaters.

Sun Exposure And AKs

One condition many people are not aware of is actinic keratoses, or AKs. An AK is a small crusty or scaly bump or horn that arises on or beneath the skin surface. The base may be light or dark, tan, pink, red or a combination of these or the same color as the skin.

People 40 and over who have had chronic sun exposure, burn rather than tan in the sun, or spend large amounts of time in the sun without sunscreen are at higher risk for AKs.

Dr. Jeffrey M. Weinberg, dermatologist and director of the Clinical Research Center at St. Lukes-Roosevelt Hospital in New York City, says, "If left untreated, AKs may progress to more serious conditions such as squamous cell carcinoma, a type of skin cancer. About 20 percent of all squamous cell carcinomas begin as AKs. The good news is AKs can be treated with a topical cream such as Carac (fluorouracil cream 0.5%)." Having your doctor examine your skin can increase the chance of finding AKs. Most AKs can be seen by the naked eye or identified by touch.

Sunlight And Risk Factors

Sunlight exposure is usually most intense during the summer and between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. Outdoor activities can increase the chances of getting sunburned.

This is significant, since sunburn is an important risk factor for skin cancer: basal cell and squamous cell carcinoma and melanoma.

To help, the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) recommends following sun-protection behaviors: wearing a wide-brimmed hat, covering up while in the sun, wearing wraparound Need A Helping Hand?

Massage Benefits Reach Beyond Relaxation

(NU) – How often do you come home from work saying, "I need a massage?" Chances are, it is quite often – and the reason is probably due to stress.

But did you know that the touch of a massage professional can do more than relieve the stresses of your day?

Timeless and universal, massage therapy offers numerous health and therapeutic benefits that are proven to help relieve pain from conditions such as arthritis, migraines, back pain and even fibromyalgia.

"Indeed, given today's stressful environment, more Americans are turning to therapeutic massage treatment for good health maintenance and relief from the aches, pains and stress of everyday life," says GC Funk, vice president of industry relations and product development at Massage Envy. "Many people use massage as part of their wellness plan with much success."

Massage therapy helps you relax, re-align and rejuvenate. There are many positive aspects to receiving massage therapy on an ongoing basis, and with the busy lives we lead, we all can benefit from a little stress management.

Massage Envy, the nation's largest massage therapy provider, offers these eye-opening facts about this age-old wellness treatment:

- A study conducted by the Touch Research Institute at the University of Miami School of Medicine showed that ongoing massage could lower anxiety, reduce pain, and improve grip strength for those who suffer from arthritis.

- Research indicates that massage therapy can boost immunity and reduce hypertension.

- Any kind of touch stimulates the release of endorphins (the body's natural pain killers) and can reduce heart rate and lower blood pressure. Imagine how good you would feel after a one-hour massage.

- A recent study cited by the American Massage Therapy Association showed that in adults with migraine headaches, massage therapy decreased the occurrence of headaches, sleep disturbances and distress symptoms. It also increased serotonin levels, believed to play an important role in the regulation of mood, sleep and appetite.

- National Center for Health Statistics found that adults age 45-64 years were the most likely to report pain lasting more than 24 hours. Research indicates that massage therapy can reduce chronic pain and stress in people with lower back and neck problems and stiff joints.

Hair Trends: Tricks For Sleek Summer Hair

(NAPS) – Humidity can be hair's worst nightmare. Moisture in the air creates limp locks and adds frizz. To get a smooth, sophisticated style that lasts throughout the day, it is essential to use the right products during the hot summer months.

"Hair becomes dry from being out in the heat, so protecting your locks with effective products is key," says celebrity stylist Mara Roszak. With years of hands-on experience styling the hottest celebrities seen on the red carpet, she understands the importance of keeping hairstyles sleek and frizz-free during any occasion.

Roszak recommends products specifically designed to leave hairstyles fresh and fly-away-free. She offers her insider tips on how to get sleek looks this summer:

- Lay the foundation: Use a shampoo that calms frizz and tames unruly hair. After shampooing, use a silicone-rich conditioner, such as TRESemme' Smooth & Silky Conditioner, to moisturize rebellious hair and tame flyaways.

- Get the right brush: Invest in a boar-bristle brush with a rubber base to smooth and straighten hair. These brushes are denser and more firmly packed than nylon ones. If your hair starts to frizz during the day, rub a little styling cream between your palms, and apply to the surface.

- Create the style: Apply a lightweight gel, such as TRESemme' Simply No Frizz Spray Gel, which is formulated with the revolutionary Frizz Defense Complex. This memory lock technology keeps a smooth, frizz-free look even after washings.

- Set the look: After blow drying, use a fast drying hairspray, such as TRESemme' Frizz Shield Finishing Spray. This product contains purcellin oil, which creates a protective barrier to block frizz and fight humidity.

By following these tips, you will be on your way to a sleeker, frizz-free style, even in the hottest days of summer.

Healthy Living Is All In The Family

(NU) – Warm weather means barbecues and social gatherings focused on food, but it also provides more opportunities to get outside with your family and make good on your goal to lead healthy, active lives.

Getting outdoors together for a regular activity or sport increases both fitness and your bonds as a family. The following simple tips may help you think about other ways your family can get active and work together on healthy eating.

- Exercise without realizing it. Physical activity is something you can incorporate into your family's daily life. When going to the mall, park in the farthest spot in the lot and walk to the entrance. Use stairs instead of escalators.

- Fool your eyes and your belly. Trick yourself and your family into eating less by using smaller plates. The larger the plate, the more food you're likely to put on it – and the more you're likely to eat.

- Be a role model. Learn about portion control, read labels and look for smaller packages of your favorite foods. "No one ever said you need to give up the foods and drinks you love to be healthy, but you just need to enjoy them in moderation," said Alisa Winters, a registered dietitian. Many companies offer portion-controlled options to help manage calorie in-take. For example, Coca-Cola now offers a 90-calorie Mini can for quenching smaller thirsts.

- Put down your fork. Slow down and enjoy your meal. Take time to concentrate on what you eat and really taste the flavors and feel the textures of the meal.

- Bond together. Make dinner about enjoying time together. Encourage everyone to help in preparing healthy meals, and don't use the dishwasher after dinner – wash, dry and put away the dishes as a family. It will give you a few more minutes together.

"Living a healthy lifestyle as a family can still be fun. The key is to balance calories you consume with regular exercise," Winters notes.

And last, but not least, don't plod down in front of the television after dinner. Get out and take a walk – and bring the family!

Quincy Robotics Team HYPER Hosts Annual Mini-Meet

The Quincy Public Schools Robotics Team HYPER recently hosted its annual Mini Meet.

The event was a huge success, evident by the teams in attendance that spanned from the surrounding Boston area to Rhode Island. Teams were able to test their robots abilities on HYPER's regulation size playing field, and fine tune their robots performance.

This year's robot, "HYPERDRIVE," is designed to climb over 12-inch 'bumps' on the playing field and is extremely compact in order to fit through an 18-inch tunnel. This year's challenge is based on soccer so HYPER-

The front has a suction cup and a kicker designed for lofting the ball into the air while the rear has a pair of rollers and kicks the ball flat on the ground into the goals. The team also plans to unveil a top secret design allowing the robot to hook onto a 7-foot tower and lift itself off the ground earning bonus points to end the match "on top."

Quincy High School junior Julie Chernicki said "I had a blast driving our robot, and checking out the other teams!"

Team HYPER is comprised of approximately 60 students from both North Quincy and Quincy High School and is excited for regional competitions in Boston and Orlando, Florida. Once in

Governor Signs Military Tax Relief Bill At City Hall Ceremony

GOV. DEVAL PATRICK (seated) signs legislation offering tax breaks to the military serving in Iraq and Afghanistan during a recent ceremony in the Council Chamber of City Hall. In signing the bill – which was created by a home-rule petition by City Council President Kevin Coughlin – Patrick said the new law complements a state program that supports “our citizen soldiers and eases the financial burden their service places on their families.” Looking on are local veterans and state and city elected officials. Sen. Michael Morrissey was the lead sponsor on Beacon Hill with support from Reps. Bruce Ayers, Stephen Tobin and Ron Mariano.

MEMBERS OF QUINCY'S veterans posts including two members of the U.S. Army attended the recent City Hall ceremony with Gov. Deval Patrick who signed legislation offering tax breaks to the military serving in Iraq and Afghanistan. The legislation permits the city to grant real estate tax abatements to qualifying members of the Massachusetts National Guard and reservists for the periods they are on active duty outside the United States.

Call Us If You Detect An Odor Or Smoke

I heard of an incident that compels me to sit here and write prior to bed on this Saturday evening. It's proof that educational efforts must continue; that subject matter must be reinforced. There are occasional reminders that there is little time for rest while what's related here is a perfect example of why our efforts at education should continue.

The other day a fire officer came into my office to convey the details of an incident. When his engine company responded to an address, they could detect the odor of smoke from the exterior of the building. There are distinguishable odors that are telltale for certain types of fire. They new at that point that there was a potential serious issue at this location without a visible indication of smoke.

The fire department received the call via a transmitted box auxilized to the alarm system within this building. The smoke activated a smoke detector within the building, transmitting a signal to the fire alarm panel within the building; the activated panel transmitted a signal to our telegraph system notifying our fire alarm dispatch of an issue at this address.

Within the building they found a light smoke condition. On the second floor, they found a fan placed within a window. They searched for the source of the smoke condition, which can typically make for anxious moments. The hunt was on, while the men found the source, a ceiling light fixture. The officer told me if it had gone undetected, it would have certainly extended into the floor joists above, extending further into the wooden structure of the building. It could have become a much serious matter if gone undetected or ignored.

But here's the issue. The building housed a unique residential occupancy. There was a house manager. The manager detected the smoke and odor prior to the smoke detector activating, and saw the smoke as a symptom that had to be addressed.

Rather than seeing it as an indication of a much serious problem, she saw it as a nuisance to the household environment that had to be dealt with at that moment, she did not embrace the adage where, "there's smoke, there's fire".

She placed a fan within the second floor window, to rid the area of smoke. This is the response of someone with an "optimistic wish". Studies have indicated that there are those instances where an occupant will detect an odor of smoke, and disregard it wanting to believe that the symptom, the condition is not an indication of a serious impending problem. Instead, a "business as usual" mindset is chosen and the problem, or potential problem is ignored for a more normal routine. Fortunately in this instance, the alarm system notified us directly.

This manager was spoken to about her decision or lack there of. Fire loves combustible concealed spaces and a fire within a concealed space can smolder for hours and days without breaking out into a room indicating its presence. Unfortunately at that point it can be too late. It can violently breakout, at the most vulnerable time for occupants, those sleeping during early hours.

If you detect an odor of smoke within your building, call us. If a smoke or CO detector activates, call us. If you've had to use a fire extinguisher within your home to extinguish an insipient fire, call us. If in doubt of a potential emergency condition, call us. Experience has led firefighters away from the pitfalls of an optimistic wish; rather, they focus on discovering and eliminating potential unforeseen hazards.

Please recognize when you need us, and call us without hesitation. Thank you for doing so.

Mary I. Timmins Legal Secretary

A Mass of Christian Burial for Mary I. (Howley) Timmins, of North Quincy, formerly of Dorchester, will be celebrated Friday at 12 Noon in St. Agatha's Church, Milton.

Visiting hours will be held today (Thursday) from 4-8 p.m. at the Dolan Funeral Home, Milton.

Mrs. Timmins died March 8 at Caritas Carney Hospital in Dorchester.

A resident of Quincy for 51 years, she was born in Galway, Ireland. She moved to the United States as a child and graduated from Jeremiah Burke High School in Roxbury. Following graduation from high school, she worked at Sears Roebuck for several years.

After meeting her husband, Donald, she became a fulltime homemaker, raising six children. She later went to work as a legal secretary for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. She eventually retired and went to work as a legal secretary for her son, Jim.

Wife of the late Donald J. Timmins; mother of Donald J. Timmins and James S. Timmins, both of Quincy, John R. Timmins of Milton, William J. Timmins of Scituate, Dr. Mary Ellen Fennell of Milton and the late Thomas Coleman Timmins; sister of John Robert Howley and Patricia Kerwin, both of Quincy, Johanna Murphy of Raynham and the late Thomas, Patrick and James Howley and Maggie Walsh.

She is also survived by 11 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. She was predeceased by three grandchildren.

Interment will be in St. Mary's Cemetery, Canton.

NEUROMAS

Neuromas are commonly called "pinched nerves." In the foot, a thickening of nerve tissue commonly occurs at the base of the third and fourth toes in the ball of the foot. It is typically the result of compression and irritation of the nerve, which creates swelling and can eventually lead to permanent nerve damage.
Anything that causes compres-sion or irritation of the nerve can lead to the development of a neuroma. Symptoms may go away temporarily by massaging the foot, but over time they progressively worse and may persist for several days or weeks.
If the neuroma enlarges, it may require surgery, which involves removing the inflamed tissues surrounding the painful nerve.

If you suffer from sharp pain, numbness, or a burning feeling in your feet, a nerve condition may be the cause. These can result from wearing tight shoes, being on your feet too long at a time, or general medical conditions. Nerve condition like neuromas can be tricky to diagnose, but as podiatrists, we're trained to identify them, relieve any pain they cause, and correct them whenever possible.

There's no need to suffer... we can help at QUINCY MEDICAL CENTER. Call 781-986-3668 for an appointment. Office hours are also available at 999
North Main St., in the Randolph
Medical Office Building, and Milton Medical Building in Suite
221. I am affiliated with the Brookline and Good Samaritan Hospitals.

HINT: Potential causes of neuromas are activities that involve repetitive irritation to the ball of the foot, such as running or participation in racket sports.

A Job Well Done

On Feb. 28, at approximately 4:45 p.m., Officers M.J. O'Brien, Declan Breslin and William O'Neil were dispatched to the area of Hancock Street and Furnace Brook Parkway on a report of a possible road rage incident.

While en route, Quincy Communications updated responding units that the victim was on the telephone and reporting that the incident originated in Wollaston and that he was in his car following the suspect vehicle south on Hancock Street. The victim stated that he was assaulted by the four males in the suspect vehicle. Officers' Breslin and O'Brien stopped the suspect vehicle at the intersection of Hancock and Granite Streets.

LT. DAN MINTON

After obtaining identifications of the four suspects, Officer O'Brien interviewed the victim, who was now standing by the police cruisers and bleeding profusely from a deep laceration above his left eye. As Fallon Ambulance EMTs' treated the victim, Officer O'Brien questioned the female passenger in the victim's car.

She stated they went to Seven Eleven Convenience store located at 721 Hancock Street and she waited in the vehicle while the victim entered the store to purchase cigarettes. She then observed the same four males enter the store and "surround" the victim, who was now at the counter. She watched as the victim attempted to leave the store, but was blocked by the males, who "made it tough for him to leave the store." She said that the victim was able to leave the store, but the suspects followed him to his car, arguing with him. She added that she could not hear what the problem was, but when the victim tried to open his car door, one of the suspects slammed the door shut and they all began punching him.

She said that the assault lasted "a couple of seconds" and then the (4) suspects fled the area in a black Chevy Cobalt with a specific registration. They followed the suspect vehicle as they called "911."

Officer O'Brien then interviewed the victim in the ambulance. The victim said he was at the counter in the store when he was surrounded by four males. He recognized these males as the same individuals he just had an incident with minutes earlier in the crosswalk of Beale and Hancock Streets. He said that they were crossing the street and he didn't see them until the last second so he didn't have time to stop and allow them to cross. He said that as he passed by, they yelled something at him. He stated that they immediately became combative and challenged him to a fight.

The victim left the store and tried to get into his car when suspect #1 "got up in my face and began demanding my money." He was the one wearing the Champion Sweatshirt and kept saying Give me some money. Give me a dollar so I can get a blunt."

Upon opening the car door, the victim was punched by three of the four suspects, who then drove off in the suspect car. He said he followed the suspect vehicle and called the Police, who stopped the vehicle. Officer O'Brien then went to the suspect vehicle and located the suspect wearing the sweatshirt, demanding money from the victim. This suspect said that he and his friends were almost struck by the victim's car. He said they got into their car and stopped at Seven Eleven, where they recognized the victim as the operator of the car that nearly struck them.

Suspect #1 said they exchanged words about the victim's driving and this continued outside the store, where the suspect admitted punching the victim in the face. Officer O'Brien then asked, "Why were you asking for his money then if you were just mad about his driving?" Suspect #1 responded, "Dude - I didn't ask him for a dollar. Why would I need a dollar from him?" This statement was made in the presence of Officers' Breslin and Tom Ford.

Officer O'Brien then told the suspect, a 20 year old Brockton resident, that he was under arrest for "Unarmed Robbery with Intent to Rob," telling suspect #1 that he (the Officer) never mentioned the word "dollar," referring it to as "money." This meant that suspect #1's own statement confirmed the reliability of the victim's story.

One of the other suspects, a 19 year old Milford resident, was also charged with "Unarmed Assault with Intent to Rob." The other, a 15 year old Brockton resident, was charged with "Delinquent to Wit - Unarmed Assault with Intent to Rob."

Basement Waterproofing Protects Homes

Multimeter Diagnoses Electrical Problems

Q: Every so often you talk about using a multimeter to check for electrical problems. How does one properly use a multimeter? — Haley in Huntsville, Ala.

A: A multimeter — a rectangular handheld device featuring testing probes, a switch and an indicator needle or digital readout — can diagnose problems with electrical devices by measuring whether current is flowing properly through the device, and if so, how much current is flowing.

Do-it-yourselfers with little or no electrical training should limit their diagnostics to the first type of test — measuring whether current is flowing properly (known as measuring resistance).

They should not attempt the second type of test (known as measuring voltage), which requires power to be on during the test. Only a trained electrician should conduct voltage tests. Untrained DIYers should avoid testing live current, because there's a high risk of having a "hold my beer and watch this" moment.

To test for resistance, make sure NO electrical current is present in the device you're measuring. Unplug it or switch off power at the circuit panel.

Set the multimeter to the Ω (ohm) setting. If there is more than one ohm setting on the switch, choose X1. You'll see the indicator needle move to the infinity level. If you touch the probe needles together at this point, you should see the indicator or readout move to zero. This means the multimeter has continuity.

Testing for resistance means the multimeter sends a very small amount of current through the circuit you're testing. If the circuit works properly, the multimeter returns a reading of zero. A circuit that is not properly closed will not allow that current to flow through it, and your multimeter will return a reading other than zero, a clear indicator that "Hey, the current is resisting — feeding back — and not moving around the circuit." Again, remember that absolutely no power should be getting to the device you're testing; besides the risk of electric shock, your resistance test will be incorrect.

Being able to test for resistance gives the DIYer a new and powerful tool in the home-repair arsenal. Thermostat not working? Shut off the power at the circuit, take off the cover and test the terminal connections for resistance. Not sure a light switch or outlet is grounded properly? Switch off the power and test for a ground fault by placing one probe against a terminal connection and the second probe against the metal switch casing.

Appliances also can be tested for resistance if they stop working. (Again, unplug them or switch off the circuit to them before testing.) Note that electric appliances often have "resistance ratings," levels of resistance necessary to generate heat (such as hair dryers or heating coils), and your multimeter will return a resistance reading. In this case, find out what the correct resistance rating is for the appliance you're measuring.

Home repair and improvement often require tasks that are inherently dangerous. If ever in doubt about your ability to make a repair safely, hire a professional contractor.

HOME TIP: The Electrical Safety Foundation International has a list of safety measures to follow when working with or around electricity. Visit <http://esfi.org/node/154> for details.

Remember, when in doubt as to whether you can safely or effectively complete a project, consult a professional contractor.

(ARA) — A damp, leaky basement can be a homeowner's worst nightmare. Active water leaks and excessive moisture in basement or foundation walls can rob a home of extra storage or living space. And, if left unchecked, more serious problems can result, including costly structural damage and high humidity levels throughout the home. That's why it is important to take care of water problems before they start.

Fortunately, there are state-of-the-art technologies that make basement waterproofing easier than ever before — even for inexperienced do-it-yourselfers. New waterproofing paints are low odor and are easy to apply, eliminating the expense associated with hiring a contractor.

"Some homeowners delay basement waterproofing because they don't have the money to hire a contractor and don't think they have the skills to do it themselves. Nothing could be further from the truth," says Watertite brand manager Beth Froncek. "Thanks to easy-to-use waterproofing technologies, basement waterproofing is almost as easy as painting a room. Plus a clean, dry basement can equal extra living space and increased home value, making it a great project to put on the 'to do' list."

Getting started: prepare the surface.

Before you get started, make sure basement walls are thoroughly cleaned to get rid of dirt, grease and other contaminants. Kill any existing mold and mildew by washing with a solution of household bleach and water, consisting of no more than one cup of bleach in one gallon of water. Next, remove any efflorescence, a powdery white deposit found on many concrete surfaces, with a concrete etching solution to ensure the waterproofing paint sticks to the basement walls. Patch any holes and cracks — especially those that show signs of active water leaks or those around windows, doors and joints. Products like Zinsser Watertite Etch, Watertite Hydraulic Cement and Watertite Polyurethane Sealant are specifically formulated for basement waterproofing prep.

Apply two coats of waterproofing paint.

Waterproofing paints like Watertite Mold and Mildew-Proof Waterproofing Paint are guaranteed to stop water and offer a five-year mold- and mildew-proof paint film guarantee. Low odor and easy to use, Watertite is available in an oil-base formula, which is great for waterproofing wet walls, or a convenient latex formula for routine waterproofing.

To apply, use a thick synthetic brush or large nap roller to apply the first coat to a small section of the masonry. Use a brush to work the coating into the pores of the concrete to produce a continuous pinhole-free film. Apply the second coat with a brush or roller. It's that easy.

Enjoy your basement. Waterproofing paints can be tinted to a wide range of off-white, pastel and medium-tone colors to help you transform a damp, leaky basement into a beautiful living space.

Spring Activities For Healthier Living

It's been a long and stormy winter and snow has found its way to almost all of the 50 states.

But, finally, spring is on its way.

Daylight lasts longer, temperatures are getting warmer, and there's more energy in the air. The start of a new season is a great time to renew weight-loss and fitness resolutions. TOPS Club, Inc. (Take Off Pounds Sensibly), the nonprofit weight-loss support organization, shares the following tips for springing into a healthier, active, better-for-you lifestyle.

Springtime chores and activities are great ways to burn calories and jumpstart activity. Housework, especially if done to fast music, gets the body moving and the home ship-shape, too.

Undertake an old-fashioned spring cleaning from top to bottom, and do it with intensity. Stretch high and bend low, extend your arms, and move as much and as fast as possible. Wash the windows, scour the grout, clean the oven, declutter the closets, sweep out the garage, and more.

You'll not only feel a sense of accomplishment, but you'll have burned some calories, stretched and toned muscles, as well as brightened up your indoor environment.

From the inside, move outside. Springtime is a great time to get fit through a walking program. Even gym regulars find that engaging in a walk through the neighborhood or park in fresh air is invigorating.

For those who have been sedentary, start slow and walk only as far as it feels comfortable. Build up walking time gradually. Don't forget to warm up before and cool down after to reduce stress on muscles.

Wear walking shoes and dress in loose-fitting, comfortable clothing, appropriate for the weather. When walking after dark, wear bright colors or use reflective tape for motorists to see.

As winter winds down, plan for a home-grown vegetable garden. Order seed catalogs and visit the local garden center to get inspired. Nothing tastes as good, or is better for you, as when it is fresh from the garden.

Large parcels of land aren't needed. Utilize small containers to grow almost any vegetable or herb on a balcony or patio. Even a windowsill can accommodate a vegetable that is frequently harvested, such as herbs and lettuce, and tomatoes can be grown from the bottom of a hanging planter.

If natural sunlight is at a minimum, use grow lights, available from a garden center, which also is a great place to get advice on starting a garden.

If flowers are your thing, plan out new beds or recultivate old ones. You'll be getting exercise and enhancing the aesthetics of your yard at the same time.

Here are common springtime activities and the amount of calories each burns if done for 30 minutes:

- Watering lawn or garden - 63 calories
- Fertilizing yard - 104 calories
- Mopping - 146 calories
- Scrubbing floors - 159 calories
- Sweeping - 167 calories
- Weeding - 167 calories
- Planting seedlings - 188 calories
- Trimming shrubs by hand - 188 calories
- Laying sod - 209 calories
- Cleaning gutters - 209 calories
- Painting - 209 calories
- Mowing lawn (walk behind power mower) - 230 calories
- Gardening - 134 calories

Getting a fresh start with these springtime activities, coupled with a healthy eating plan, is a positive way to move weight-loss goals forward in 2010.

TOPS Club Inc. (Take Off Pounds Sensibly), the original, nonprofit weight-loss education and support organization, was established more than 62 years ago to champion weight-loss support and success. e

Visitors are welcome to attend their first TOPS meeting free of charge. To find a local chapter, call (800) 932-8677.

AdCare Outpatient Services Quincy Open House March 24

AdCare Outpatient Services - Quincy will host an open house Wednesday, March 24 from 1 to 4 p.m. at 1419 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The event will mark the expansion of office space and alcohol and drug abuse treatment offered at the Quincy clinic.

"Since opening in 2003, AdCare has grown significantly," said Vice President of Outpatient Operations, David Hillis, Jr., MS, LMHC, CADAC-II, LADC-I. "The acquisition of additional office space within the Greenleaf Building will help AdCare - Quincy to keep pace with area demand for treatment."

AdCare - Quincy's continuum of flexible treatment includes Intensive Outpatient Programs in the day and evening, Early Recovery Groups and Specialty Services. Under the auspices of Director Nicole H. Kasimatis, MSW, LICSW, AdCare - Quincy has augmented its Intensive Outpatient Programs to include IOP morning groups in addition to IOP afternoon and evening groups.

The Quincy clinic has also added specialty groups for dually-diagnosed individuals and adolescents with substance abuse issues.

choking from something caught in the throat, this person cannot perform the Heimlich maneuver on himself. Would it be good for that person to insert a finger into the back of the throat to provoke regurgitations and clear the airway? - C.

ANSWER: If food or anything else gets caught in the windpipe (the trachea), a solo person can dislodge it by bending over a sturdy chair so the abdomen, just above the navel (bellybutton), rests on the top of the chair. A kitchen chair with a wooden back is a good choice. Then the person pushes the abdomen with an inward and slightly upward thrust against the top of the chair. It should generate a burst of air through the windpipe to dislodge whatever is stuck there. Repeat the thrust as many times as necessary.

If a chair is unavailable, then make a fist with one hand and cover it with the other hand. Put the fist in the same location, above the navel, and make a forceful inward and upward thrust. Repeat as needed.

The forced vomiting idea isn't a good one. Vomited material leaves the stomach and enters the mouth through the esophagus. It doesn't unblock the trachea.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Do you lose more nutrients from vegetables when you cook them in a microwave than when you cook them on a stove? - A.T.

ANSWER: You lose fewer vitamins and minerals when you microwave vegetables than when you cook them on top of a stove. Little water is needed when microwaving, so nutrients don't pass out of the vegetables and into the water.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him or request an order form of available health newsletters at P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

Thomas Crane Reading Series Continues April 5

The Friends of the Thomas Crane Library are sponsoring a reading and discussion series themed "Happily Ever After," a series that explores the ups and downs of marriage, and aging with those we love, through the lens of classic and contemporary fiction. The series began on Monday.

The four-part reading and discussion series is led by Professor Kate McCann, a teacher of poetry and American literature at Eastern Nazarene College, and published author.

Additional books will be discussed the first Monday of each month through June; these books include Wallace Stegner's "The Spectator Bird" on April 5, Alice Munro's collection of short stories "Hateship, Friendship, Courtship, Loveship, Marriage" on May 3, and Anne Tyler's "Breathing Lessons" on June 7.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

by Steven A. Brustlin, D.M.D.

ROOT CAUSE

The reason that so many patients regard root canal (endodontic) treatment as painful is that they confuse the condition that makes treatment necessary with the treatment itself. If dental decay is not dealt with promptly, bacteria may infect tooth pulp. This inflammation or infection can, in turn, lead to an abscess if left untreated. Symptoms include aching or throbbing pain in the tooth. At this point, endodontic treatment is indicated. This procedure, which relieves painful symptoms, involves removal of the nerve and vascular tissue (pulp) from the root and pulp chamber, as well as any associated decayed tooth structure. After the inside of the tooth is carefully shaped and cleaned, it is filled, sealed, and ready for a crown.

VOICE FOR HEALTH

CHILDHOOD OBESITY AND BACK PAIN

It was once thought that disc herniation ("slipped disc") and spinal disease primarily affected older adults. However, health professionals are becoming aware that severe back pain and spine abnormalities are developing more commonly among overweight and obese adolescents. In one study, when researchers reviewed spinal images of 188 adolescents between ages 12 and 20 who complained of back pain, they found that more than half had some abnormality of the lower (lumbar) spine. Overweight and obese patients were more apt to experience disc trouble than their leaner counterparts. These findings suggest that being overweight can lead to early spine degeneration among children. Not only does chiropractic treat the back, it is a holistic treatment that encourages good nutrition.

Childhood obesity is a major player in robbing our kids of the lives they deserve and the true potential they were born with. If you've never tried chiropractic care, now may be the time. At the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we work with the nervous, muscular, and skeletal systems to correct faults and relieve pain. Chiropractic is based on the fact that the nervous system controls the function of every cell, tissue and organ in the body. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy, where we offer the most innovative chiropractic techniques and technologies to give the best possible outcome to all of our patients. Please call 617-472-4220 to schedule an appointment. No matter where you live in Eastern Mass., we can offer you exceptional chiropractic service.

P.S. Back pain in children is often ascribed to muscle spasm or sprain, but the study mentioned above suggests other potential causes.

Michael Stanton & Johnathan Coates Leave Their Mark at North Quincy High School

Big Void To Fill With Loss Of Dynamic Duo

By SEAN BRENNAN

The conclusion of the North Quincy Red Raiders basketball season closed the book on the high school athletic careers of two not-soon-to-be forgotten student athletes.

Seniors Michael Stanton and Johnathan Coates, about as dynamic a duo on the hardwood this winter on the South Shore, have played their final games for the Red Raiders. And for the basketball program at North Quincy their absence next year will be a void that will not be easily replaced.

This season, despite North Quincy finishing with an 8-11 record and, as a result, just missing out on a berth in the Division I playoffs, Stanton and Coates, team co-captains, were beasts. Stanton, an inside force at forward, and Coates, an outside scoring machine on the perimeter, did everything within their abilities to take North Quincy to the promise land. It didn't quite work out for the team, but Stanton and Coates have every reason to hold their heads up high knowing that what they did together this season was extraordinary.

Stanton averaged a double-double this season; he scored a tick under 17 points a game while averaging 12 rebounds per contest, and Coates finished with an 18.0 points per game average, ranking him as the fourth highest scorer in the Patriot League's Keenan Division.

"They were my two captains. The reason being is that they just led by example for the four years they were in the program," said NQHS head coach Kevin Barrett. "This last season, the (younger) kids followed their lead and the example that they set.

"Not only on the court, but in the classroom and in the school community. They are great citizens of North Quincy High School."

Stanton, as anyone that follows high school sports in the city will know, was also the starting quarterback for the NQHS Red Raider football team. His accomplishments on the gridiron, which included leading NQHS, this past fall, to its first Thanksgiving Day victory over rival Quincy High School in a decade, finished his basketball career in the top-15 all-time in scoring.

His 34-point, 29-rebound game against Scituate High School on Feb. 11 helped lead the Red Raiders to their biggest win of the season. But, according to Barrett, it was the leadership he brought to the locker room that made him stand out amongst his peers.

"Mike was a steady presence all year," added Barrett. "In the paint he brought it to the table every night. You could pretty much count on 15 points minimum and 12 rebounds. As a coach if you know you have that presence inside that is a pretty good starting point."

If Stanton was the man down low, Johnathan Coates was the answer outside. Coates' game was predicated on the three-point shot. There were games in which he seemed to never miss. If this season were made into a video game, he would be that player who was always on fire. Pass him the ball and watch it rain.

Against Scituate, the marquee win for NQHS this winter, he went off for 20 first-half points and finished with 27 points and eight rebounds. But his best game may have been on NQHS Senior Night against Duxbury High School when he scored eight first-half points and an amazing 27 second-half points. He finished as the eleventh all-time scorer in North Quincy basketball history.

"Jon in a lot of cases opened that inside game up by knocking down those threes and in most cases early in the game," said Barrett about his senior sniper. "They complimented each other the entire season. It was tough to take Mike away and sag in on him if you had Jon shooting the three-ball and vice versa."

Entering the season, what Barrett asked from Stanton and Coates was that they grab hold of a leadership role. Both did that and more.

"There is no question that what separated them as players is the dedication and commitment that they made in the off-season," said Barrett. "And they did that not only this off-season but in their four years as NQHS. This was evident with the production they boasted this season; that is the difference between these guys getting it done at the level they got it done and some other kids who may not improve at the level these guys did.

"For the younger kids in the program, especially my freshmen, these two gave them something to work towards; watching the time, and the commitment both gave on and off the court."

1-2 Punch

The best basketball player always needs a wingman to bring out the best in his game, someone who is the ying to his yang. You had Jordan-Pippen, Kobe-Shaq, and even Pierce-Garnett. For the Red Raiders it was Stanton-Coates. And both recognized that their individual game this winter was dependent on the other.

"I basically just let him (Coates) shoot and I rebounded what he missed, which wasn't very often," said Stanton a two-year varsity player. "My role was to get everyone in the game and get them pumped up. If you have a team that is joking around and laughing on the bench you can't win like that as a team.

INSIDE THREAT: North Quincy senior Michael Stanton complimented teammate Jon Coates' outside game with a dynamic season down in the paint for the Red Raiders. Stanton, a team captain, averaged 16.5 points per game for North Quincy to go along with a double-digit rebounding average. Stanton, in the fall, played quarterback for the North Quincy Red Raiders. Next year he will attend Mass Maritime Academy where he will play football for the Buccaneers.

Added Coates:

"My time playing for NQHS helped me become a leader. My only regret is that I didn't start earlier. I wish I had been prepared to make varsity as a freshman. I had such a great time playing hoops for NQHS."

The Final Buzzer Sounds

Come early June, after graduation, Stanton and Coates will be heading off on different paths, leaving behind high school and blazing their own trails. The stamp each has left at NQHS may take a while to be fully appreciated, but, for the moment, both should be proud of what they have accomplished.

"When they came to me as freshmen, Mike was a point guard, playing on the perimeter, always with the ball in his hand, while Jon was more of a forward," Barrett remembered. "Then Mike grew this way (pointing up) and Jon grew this way (pointing out and laughing) until we reeled him in and got him off the cheeseburgers. It was great, as a coach, to see them excel in opposite positions from where they started.

"I am not only going to miss their stats and numbers, that is obvious. I am going to miss the character and leadership that they brought to the program. Not only this season but all four years I had them. There will be a big void to fill trying to replace Mike Stanton and Jon Coates. As a coach, you couldn't ask for two better kids."

OUTSIDE THREAT: North Quincy senior Johnathan Coates wrecked havoc on opposing defenses this season in the Patriot League. Coates, a team captain, averaged 18.0 points per game for the Red Raiders. He finished his high school career in eleventh place on the program's scoring list. Coates was a varsity player for two and a half seasons.

Quincy High School Alumni Jessica Page and Meagan Tobin Major Contributors This Season For Pride

Quincy Tandem Fuels Regis College Resurgence

By JOE REARDON

Meagan Tobin isn't afraid to admit she was a little irked and irritated that the college women's basketball prognosticators penciled in Regis as finishing a lowly sixth in The Commonwealth Coast Conference (TCCC) in their pre-season predictions.

Tobin and the rest of the Regis squad had their own idea.

The 5-foot-7-sophomore guard was more than certain the Pride's roster would wind up surprising its competition with its tenacity and overall talent. Sixth place was far to low a finish with the talent Regis put on the court.

"We knew we were capable of so much more," said Tobin, who graduated from Quincy High School in 2008. "I believe our coach and the team knew we could go as far as we did."

Regis was the talk of the league after winding up in the finals against the University of New England in TCCC tournament. The Pride pushed the Gulls throughout the entire contest, but wound up on the short end of a tight 73-66 game.

Regis, though, wasn't finished making noise in the postseason. In the ECAC Tourney the team put any questions of its toughness to rest, advancing all the way to the final four, giving No. 1 seed Keene State a big scare in a close 72-65 loss.

Tobin scored nine points in the heartbreaking defeat. The loss, though, didn't leave a cloud on the team, not with its sparkling 20-10 record on the season.

"We had a great season," Tobin said. "It was better than what people thought we'd have."

The Regis team had a Quincy flavor to it with Tobin and another Quincy President alumnus, Jessica Page, on the roster. Tobin landed a starting job alongside the 5-9 senior at guard this season and flourished.

The biggest game of her college career to date came in early January against Colby-Sawyer when she reached career highs in points (16) and rebounds (six).

Playing alongside her high school teammate made the season all the more enjoyable for Tobin. "It was awesome," Tobin said. "The way she played the game, I learned a lot. She's a great leader on and off the court."

Page had a monster season in her final year on the court for Regis, after averaging 14.2 points a game as a junior. She struck for 24 points against Mount Ida and was perfect from beyond the 3-point line against both Mitchell and Tufts. Page led the Pride with her 14.8-points per game and became Regis' all-time leading scorer. She was named to the All-TCCC Team with Stephanie Crawford of Rockland.

and Tobin have had at the collegiate level after their scintillating Presidents careers.

"I couldn't be happier for those two," said Bretsch. "They worked hard to make it to the next level. For me, to have both players starting and being successful at the college level is a thrill."

Both girls made their mark at Quincy before moving on. Page averaged a gaudy 28.9 points and wasn't afraid to mix it up in the paint, finishing with a school-record 474 rebounds in just three seasons.

Tobin is the school's second-leading all-time scorer (977 points) and 3-point shooter (116). "That's what she's doing now," Bretsch said of Tobin. "She's burying a lot of 3s."

The two anchored Quincy's backcourt during Page's senior year and it turned out to be one of the school's best ever. The Presidents upset No. 3 seed Burke in the Div. 2 South quarterfinals in 2006 before falling in a back-and-forth tilt against No. 2 Hopkinton in the semifinals. Page had a monster season with her 20.5 average.

"She was fearless as a scorer," said Bretsch. "She had all the weapons. What set Jessica apart was that she was a ferocious competitor. She raised the entire level of the program here. Her intensity and focus had a lasting impact on her teammates."

Tobin had the same intensity, and when the game was on the line she wanted the ball. "Her outside shot has always been her deadliest weapon," said Bretsch. "She had an amazing attitude. She embodied the joy of the game. Meagan was having a ball out there. She did a lot of scoring and she did it with a smile on her face."

JESSICA PAGE, a senior at Regis College in Weston, became the school's all-time leading scorer this season in women's basketball. Page helped the Pride to the Final Four of the ECAC Basketball Tournament. Page graduated in 2006 from Quincy High School where she was a two-time All-Scholastic and finished third all-time in scoring. She averaged 28.9 points for her high school career.

Tobin's breakthrough season at Regis was one of the major components of the Pride's big season. Covering the opposing team's leading scorer was commonplace and head coach Julie Plant was impressed with her poise, especially for such a young player.

"Meagan was probably the most improved player on the team," Plant said. "She really stepped up and it on both ends of the floor. She'll be one of our main scorers (next year) and will be looked upon as a leader."

Page was a blue chipper from the start and only became better with time. "She's been an impact player since her freshman year," said Plant. "Jessica's a winner. She always worked very hard and knew how to win."

With the 2009-2010 season in the archives, Tobin is eager to get back to work to continue improving her game. Regis graduates Page, who will be nearly impossible to replace, but Tobin is confident that head coach Julie Plant has her mind set on bringing in plenty of young talent.

"Jesse is a huge loss," said Tobin. "We still have a lot of great players coming back. I think we can have another strong season. We don't know who's coming in but our coach is recruiting very hard."

The 2010-2011 season doesn't officially begin until October, but Tobin will begin preparing months before. The nursing major will be playing pickup games with her teammates until the end of the school year and then attend camp over the summer. Add in the running Tobin will do to increase her cardiovascular strength and she's expecting an even more productive campaign next season. She's also isolated areas of her game that she needs to improve upon.

"My strength was my shooting and defense," Tobin said. "I need to work on dribbling and rebounding."

MEAGAN TOBIN, a sophomore guard for the Regis College Pride, scored a career high 16 points and six rebounds against Colby-Sawyer earlier this season. Tobin, along with fellow QHS alumni Jessica Page, helped to lead the Pride to a 20-10 record this season, the best record in school history.

Bottary, Schwartz & Bennett Show Mettle in Postseason Events

Quincy/North Quincy Track Teams Cross Finish Line

The Quincy/North Quincy track teams ended their winter seasons with some personal best performances at the MIAA Divisional Class Meet tournament and at the MSTCA Pentathlon.

At the Division I Class Meet, senior Jimmy Bottary and senior Mary Schwartz competed. Bottary qualified for this event in the 55-meters by running a 6.93 earlier this winter; he went on to run at time of 7.09 at the Division I Class Meet. He was seeded 43rd in this event and finished in 41st place.

In the girls' 1000-meters, Mary Schwartz was seeded 30th, but finished in 16th place with a personal best time of 3:17.85.

At the MSTCA Pentathlon, freshman Rose Bennett competed in the five-event meet, which included the 55-meter hurdles, high jump, shot put, long jump and the 800-meters. She finished with a total score of 2049 points, finishing 54th out of 109 competitors; she was the third best freshman at the entire meet.

Her performances were 11.13 seconds in the 55-meter hurdles, 4'8" in the high jump, 24'6" in the shot put, 13'4" in the long jump and 2:51 in the 800-meters.

Quincy/North Quincy head coach Geoff Hennessy gave credit to coaches John Green (sprinters), Kim Delaney (distance) and Casey Deaguero (hurdles), who, according to him, were all instrumental in preparing these athletes for postseason competition.

Bottary, Schwartz and Bennett will be participating in spring track.

Register Now For Annual Walk for Hunger

With the demand for emergency food services never being greater, Project Bread's annual fundraiser, The Walk for Hunger, has never been timelier.

On May 2, thousands of people will come to Boston for the 20-mile pledge walk to raise money during the 42nd Walk for Hunger. Every dollar, every mile, and every volunteer hour counts for people in need. Registration is now open to all who would like to participate.

"Times are still tough and a lot of people are suffering in silence," said Ellen Parker, executive director of Project Bread. "The funds raised by The Walk for Hunger go directly to purchase emergency food for hungry people in our neighborhoods and hometowns, and our 40,000 walkers send a strong message that we are all in this together."

Project Bread estimates there are 554,000 hungry people in Massachusetts; hunger exists in nearly every community throughout the state and affects the most vulnerable citizens—children, the elderly, the disabled, the unemployed, and, increasingly, those who have jobs but just cannot make ends meet.

With the help of the 40,000 walkers and 2,000 volunteers, The Walk for Hunger funds emergency food programs in 135 Massachusetts cities and towns. Last year, these funded agencies served 57.3 million meals to those in need. In Southern Massachusetts, Project Bread funds 75 emergency food programs like Father Bill's Place, the Salvation Army/Brockton Corps, and the Coyle-Cassidy High School Food Pantry.

To register as a walker or volunteer for The Walk for Hunger, the oldest continual pledge walk in the country, visit www.projectbread.org/ walk or call 617-723-5000.

Basic Boating Course March 13, 20 & 27

The Massachusetts Environmental Police, in sponsorship with the Quincy Police Department's Marine Unit, will be holding "Boat Massachusetts," a three-class basic boating course, to be held March 13, 20 and 27 at the Houghs Neck Maritime Center, 137 Bayview Avenue, Quincy.

On each of the three Saturdays, the course will be held from 8:30 a.m. until 12:30 p.m., and participants must attend all three days of class.

"Boat Massachusetts" is offered to the public at no charge. The primary purpose of the course is to foster safe boat operation through increased awareness of required safety equipment, safe boating practices and legal responsibilities. Students attending the course must be at least 12 years of age.

Participants between the ages of 12-15, who successfully complete the course, will be issued a Safety Certificate allowing them to operate a motorboat without adult supervision, as required by state law. This course will also satisfy the state requirements for personal watercraft users who are 16 or 17 years of age. All graduates will be issued a course diploma and a Safety Certificate.

Taking the class as a family is encouraged and has proven to be highly rewarding.

Pre-registration is required with the MA Environmental Police. You can contact this agency at 508-759-0002.

Online Registration Begins March 16

Volunteer for PMC

The Pan-Massachusetts Challenge (PMC), a two-day bike-a-thon that spans 190 miles across the state, is currently in need of volunteers to help with set-up, luggage transportation, registration, medical support, bike mechanics, security, food service and clean-up. The PMC is set for August 7-8.

In its 31st year, the PMC

has already raised $270 million for adult and pediatric cancer research and treatment at the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute through its Jimmy Fund. Nearly 3,000 volunteers help the PMC keep its operating expenses low each year, enabling the organization to contribute 100% of every rider-raised dollar directly to the Jimmy Fund.

Volunteers many choose to help one day and ride the next or volunteer both days. The Red Sox Foundation and New Balance present the PMC.

Bill Dunn Jr. Memorial Road Race June 26

The Bill Dunn Jr. Memorial Road Race will be held Saturday, June 26 in Houghs Neck. The event is a great time for friends and family of Bill Dunn Jr. to gather in honor of his life and share memories with each other. This is the 4th year the Road Race is being held and each year the support and participation is remarkable.

Registration for the annual event will begin at 7am at the St. Thomas Aquinas Hall on Darrow Street in Quincy. Those interested can participate in a 5 mile run or 2 mile walk beginning at 9am.

Prizes will be awarded for 1st Place Male/Female Runner and 1st Houghs Neck Resident Male/Female Runner. The first 600 people to register will receive a free race T-shirt.

Following this year's race, a barbecue will be held courtesy of local donations. There will be a disc jockey and a 50/50 raffle. We also will be giving away a scholarship the day of the race.

Proceeds from the event benefit the Bill Dunn Jr. Memorial Scholarship which has provided scholarships to Quincy High School students and donations to other local organizations.

The registration fee is $20 however for those that sign up before June 15th, the registration fee is $15. Registration forms are available on line at www.RememberB.com and can be mailed to: Bill Dunn Jr. Memorial Road Race, 105 Edgewater Dr., Quincy, MA 02169.

OBITUARIES

Margaret Crosby Daniels, 100
Registered Nurse

A funeral service for Margaret Crosby Daniels, 100, of Quincy and Orleans, was conducted Tuesday in the Keohane Funeral Home, Quincy.

Mrs. Daniels died March 5.

She attended Vesper George School of Art and had worked as a registered nurse after graduating from the School of Nursing at Melrose-Wakefield Hospital.

An avid gardener, she found peace and solitude in her beautiful gardens surrounding the Cape Cod home she and her husband, George, built in the 1950s overlooking Little Pleasant Bay. Together, the cultivated hybrid rhododendron varieties form seed. Her favorite rights of spring included attending the annual flower show in Boston. She also loved to cook and entertain guests.

MARGARET CROSBY DANIELS

Wife of the late George R. Daniels; mother of George W. Daniels of NY and Robert E. Daniels of Harvard; sister of the late William Crosby; grandmother of Scott Daniels, Esq. of NH, Ethan Daniels of CA, Chad Daniels, Drew Daniels and Brett Daniels, all of Harvard; great-grandmother of Jasmine Daniels of CA, and Benjamin and Natalie Daniels, both of NH.

Interment was in Riverside Cemetery, Saugus.

Memorial donations may be made to the Old Colony Hospice, One Credit Way, Randolph, MA 02368.

Irene G. Keefe-Berry, 70
Nurse's Aide

A funeral service for Irene G. (Kolson) Keefe-Berry, 70, of Quincy, was conducted Wednesday in the Dennis Sweeney Funeral Home, Quincy.

Mrs. Keefe-Berry died March 5.

Born in Quincy where she was raised and educated, she had lived in Concord, New Hampshire for 20 years before returning to Quincy seven years ago. She had worked as a nurse's aide at Concord State Hospital, Quincy Hospital and Crestview Nursing Home.

Wife of the late Robert P. Berry; mother of Karen Keefe, John Keefe, NCSO and his wife Tina, Deborah Keefe and Jean Kirschner, all of Quincy; sister of Peter Kolson of Hull, and Robert Kolson and Kris Diack, both of Braintree.

She is also survived by seven grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Memorial donations may be made to the Norwell VNA, 95 Longwater Circle, Norwell, MA 02061.

Helen Bailey, 105
Bookkeeper

A funeral service for Helen (Fisher) Bailey, 105, of Bourne, formerly of Wollaston, was conducted March 5 in the Quincy Community United Methodist Church.

Mrs. Bailey died March 1 at the Cape Cod Nursing & Rehabilitation Center in Bourne.

Born in Falmouth, she was a 1921 graduate of Bourne High School and later moved to Somerville where she met her husband and was married in 1934. They later moved to Wollaston where they lived until she moved back to Cape Cod in 2008.

Faith, Spirituality Book Club Discussion March 15

Left to Tell: Discovering God Amidst the Rwandan Holocaust will be the focus of the next meeting of the Faith and Spirituality Book Club Monday, March 15 at 7:30 p.m. at the main branch of the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Center.

Written by Immaculee Ilibagiza, Left to Tell recounts devout Catholic Ilibagiza's experience during the 1994 Rwandan genocide, when nearly one million ethnic Rwandan Tutsis were murdered in three months in a state-sponsored slaughter. In her book, Ilibagiza recounts how she returned home from college for Easter break shortly before the death of Rwanda's Hutu president in a plane crash sparked the slaughter.

Left to Tell describes how she spent the next 91 days hiding in the cramped bathroom of a pastor along with seven other starving women, and how her faith has helped her to forgive the murderers who killed members of her family and ravaged her country.

The club is sponsored by Houghs Neck Congregational Church. For more information, call 617-479-8778.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Disappointed about something that didn't go your way? Cheer up. Look at the reasons it happened, and you could find a valuable lesson about what to do (or not do!) the next time.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) It's a good time to do some re-assessing of plans and goals—even how you considered redoing your bathroom. The point is to be open to change if change can improve things.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Take some time to learn who is the right person (or persons) to approach and discuss your ideas with for your new project. Also, reserve time to prepare for an upcoming family event.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Dealing with a demanding situation, as you recently did, could drain much of your own emotional reserves. Take time to relax and indulge yourself in some well-earned pampering.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) The regal Lion might feel that she or he is above emotional displays. But showing your feelings can be liberating for you, and reassuring for someone who has been waiting for you to do so.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) An emotionally needy person might make more demands than you can cope with. Best to ask for some breathing space NOW, before resentment sets in and makes communication difficult.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) An unexpected spate of mixed signals could cause serious schedule setbacks. Best to focus on straightening everything out as soon as possible and get everyone back on track.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Be aware that someone in the workplace could try to use a disagreement with a colleague against you. If so, be prepared to offer your side of the story with the facts to back you up.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) An unexpected challenge to a previous decision can be unsettling. But your reservoir of self-confidence—plus your loyal supporters—should help carry the day for you. Good luck.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) While the idea of making some sort of major move in the near future continues to interest you, don't overlook a new possibility that could be emerging closer to home.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Be careful not to base an upcoming decision on gossip or anything you might hear if it can't meet provable standards. That's true regardless of whom the source might be.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You might still need to do some solid reassessing early in the week before you can close that sensitive situation. A new job-related opportunity could present itself later in the week.

BORN THIS WEEK: You are extraordinarily sensitive to people's feelings, and you're always ready to offer comfort if necessary.

INVITATION TO BID

CITY OF QUINCY, MASSACHUSETTS

PURCHASING DEPARTMENT

1305 HANCOCK STREET, QUINCY, MA 02169

INVITATION TO BID

The City of Quincy invites sealed bids/proposals for furnishing and delivering to the City of Quincy: PUBLIC WORKS TREE GRINDING SERVICES MARCH 26, 2010 @ 11:00 A.M.

Detailed specifications are on file at the office of the Purchasing Agent, Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock Street, Quincy, Massachusetts, 02169, between the hours of 8:30 AM and 4:30 PM.

Bids must state exceptions, if any, the delivery date and any allowable discounts. Bids/Proposals must be in a sealed envelope. The outside of the sealed envelope is to be clearly marked "BID ENCLOSED" with time/date of bid call.

Firm bid prices will be given first consideration. Bids/Proposals will be received at the office of the Purchasing Agent until the time and date stated above, at which time and date they will be publicly opened and read. Late Bids/Proposals, delivered by mail or in person, will be rejected.

If applicable, bids shall be in accordance with M.G.L. Chapter 30B, Chapter 149 as amended, and Chapter 30, Sections 39A, 39B and 39F-R.

The successful bidder will be required to conform to the payment of Prevailing Wage Rates, as determined by the Commissioner of Labor & Industries under the provision of M.G.L. Chapter 149, Section 26 to 27D as amended.

The right is reserved to reject any or all bids or to accept any part of a bid or the one deemed best for the City and waive any informalities in the bidding if it is in the best interest of the City to do so.

IT WAS A happy day for relatives of William Delahunt after the congressman announced he would not be seeking re-election to an eighth term this fall during a meeting with supporters at City Hall last week. They strove to do the deeds, they knew the great enthusiasms and spent themselves in worthy causes and at the end, knew the triumph of high achievement.

We cannot allow cynicism to infect the body politic, and we can not surrender to it. It too, will pass.

While it's rarely noted these days, the reality is...

bipartisanship does exist.

Significant legislation that I authored would have never become law without bipartisan support.

Consensus on important issues can be reached... by people of good will... it we treat each other with honesty. And dignity. And respect.

So, I have no doubt that we can get past the cynicism of the moment... because we have done it before.

And we will do it again... because we are Americans.

Respect and civility will return to our discourse both in Congress and in the public square.

Now let me conclude... My service to the people of the 10th District has not ended.

We still have 10 months left to work. I intend to make that time productive.

And I would be remiss not to acknowledge the remarkable band of people that make up my staff. I could not name a single accomplishment over the years that would have been achieved without the professionalism, creativity and their passion for the public good.

They are devoted public servants who spend inhuman number of hours working for you... and making me look good.

They are not simply "staff." They are colleagues. And more importantly they are friends. It has been a privilege to work with them.

To all the people we represent please know that your friendship, your support and loyalty have meant everything to me and for that I will always be grateful.

Thank you. May God bless the people of the South Shore, the Cape and Islands and may God bless America.

'Every Available Resource' To Assist In Aftermath Of Worst Flooding In 20 Years

City Prepared To Bail Out Flood Victims

"Every available resource of the city" will be directed toward the aftermath of a storm that caused the worst flooding in more than 20 years in several neighborhoods across Quincy, Mayor Thomas Koch said Tuesday.

Department of Public Works crews, Koch said, will be working around the clock to pump water from neighborhoods and homes: City inspectors will have increased availability to sign-off on utility repairs to help people get back into their homes: Officials are working with trash contractors to expand pick-up for clean-up efforts, and

'At Home In Quincy' Program Seen Boosting First-Time Homebuyers

By JOE REARDON

First-time homebuyers could be getting a helping hand to get started through the "At Home In Quincy" program that was presented at Monday night's City Council meeting.

Funded by the city's Affordable Housing Trust Company (AHTC) and supported by Mayor Thomas Koch, the program provides up to 2 percent assistance with the down payment and/or closing costs for homebuyers who meet the requirements.

Mortgage insurance premium is paid in full by the AHTC using MassHousing's Mortgage program or 30 year fixed rate mortgage when available through the approved lenders.

"This truly is for working families who need that little boost up," said Thomas Fabrizio, executive director of the AHTC. "This is a program that pays itself back."

The program serves incomes up to $105,720 and homes purchased must be in Quincy. It is limited to applicants who work or have lived in the city two of the past five years. Applicants must never have owned a home or not owned one in the past three years, and must have 3 percent of the purchase price of the home. The property must also be safe and sanitary before moving in.

Public Meeting March 24 On Neponset River Bridge Project

The Massachusetts Department of Transportation (MassDOT) will hold a public hearing Wednesday, March 24 from 6:30 to 8 p.m. at North Quincy High School to discuss the construction plans and anticipated traffic impacts for the rehabilitation of the Neponset River Bridge.

The bridge serves as a major traffic artery between Quincy and Boston.

Following a presentation, Mass-

DOT staff will lead a discussion to answer questions.

J.F. White of Framingham has been awarded a contract for the full rehabilitation of the Neponset River Bridge.

During Phase II of the project, the concrete deck, expansion joints, sidewalks and lighting system will be replaced. Site preparation and set-up is ongoing and full construction is expected to begin by the end of the month.

Water, Sewer Stabilization Funds Sought

The City Council is looking to establish water and sewer stabilization funds and have fiscal year 2010 free cash transferred into them.

Motions were passed at Monday night's city council meeting to refer to the department of public works and finance committee establishing the two funds. Motions were also passed to refer to the two entities the appropriation of $1,211,342 from the FY 10 Water Enterprise Free Cash and $583,857 from the FY 10 Sewer Enterprise Free Cash.

$100,000 of the water free cash would go to Water Contractual, $1,086,342 to Water Stabilization Fund and $25,000 to Water Claims. $458,857 of the sewer cash would be transferred to the Sewer Stabilization Fund and $125,000 to Sewer Claims Account.

The free cash became available when projected payment to the MWRA was lower than expected and debt service payments were over-estimate. "I think it makes good sense," said Councilor John Keenan. "It's a very logical and thought out plan to use these funds."

loans usually close within 40 days of application.

Fabrizio said there are currently five pending applications and up to 35 could be done in a calendar year. The money loaned to people is reused with the goal of helping as many people as possible. When the buyer sells, takes out a home equity loan or refinances the home, he/she must repay the same percentage of the sales price that the AHTC provides at the time of the initial purchase.

"We're hoping to expand to more banks and more realtors," Fabrizio said.

Councillor Joe Finn lauded the program.

"This has been a priority of this administration; to come up with something that works," he said.

Heroin, Cocaine, Marijuana, Pharmaceuticals Seized In Drug Arrests

Investigations by the Quincy Police Drug Control Unit, assisted by drug detection K-9 dogs, produced a significant seizure of narcotics and cash that police said will disrupt the illegal sale of narcotics throughout the city.

Detectives with the drug control unit were successful in disbanding three residential locations responsible for the illegal sale of pharmaceuticals (percocets), heroin, crack-cocaine and marijuana.

The investigations led to two locations in Houghs Neck and one in Quincy Point. Police said the arrests will reduce the availability of narcotics in these neighborhoods.

DeFranco, 25, was arrested

In addition, customer lists consisting of names and addresses were seized. The documents are being reviewed and additional arrests are anticipated, police said.

On March 6, the drug unit served a search warrant at 55 Curtis Ave., Quincy Point. Marco Rose, 26, was arrested and charged with possession with intent to distribute class B crack cocaine and possession with intent to distribute class D marijuana. Police also seized $6,933.

On March 9, the drug unit served a search warrant at 1186 Sea St., apartment #2, Houghs Neck. John DeFranco, 25, was arrested and charged with possession with intent to distribute class A heroin.

On March 11, the drug unit served a search warrant at 21 Ratchford Cir., Houghs Neck. John Wittekind, 55, was arrested and charged with trafficking class A and class B substance (pharmaceuticals) Percocets, Viagra and Oxycodone.

Information forward to the drug unit from the community assisted in the investigations, police said.

City Council Meeting Briefs

In other City Council Committee business Monday night:

• DPW Business Manager Mike Coffey reported to the committee that crews had been out since Friday pumping flooded roads in the city due to the 7-plus inches of rain.

Fifty pumps were used and there was substantial flooding in West Quincy. Parts of Furnace Brook Parkway were closed, and the Adams Inn and Quincy Senior Center were being used as emergency shelters.

"I don't think people have seen it this bad in decades," said City Council President Kevin Coughlin.

Coffey said none of the workers or residents were injured in the flooding. He said it was important for people to stay away from "percolating water" from manhole covers because water pressure could cause them to blow off. More than 50 blew off at the height of the rainfall on Sunday night.

• A motion was unanimously passed to build an MBTA bus stop shelter on Quincy Ave., near Walmart. Three members of Cub Scout Pack 42, Andrew Zemotel, Akshay Kalathil and Jason Wray went before the committee to request the shelter.

• Unanimously approved a resolution to execute a statement of support for the troops in Afghanistan and Iraq.

Dave St. Germain of the Employer Supporting Guard And Reserve (E.S.G.R.) told the committee that 150,000 organizations across the country have signed the statement.

"It's an eye-opening experience to see these troops as they mobilize before going," said Coughlin.

LIVING FOR THE MOMENT

Modern, independent women who know what they like and know how to get it need not necessarily wait for a man to give them a diamond ring. The fact is that many women have both the motivation and wherewithal to select a diamond that makes them happy. If they were to subsequently receive a diamond engagement ring, well, a woman cannot have too many diamonds. With all this in mind, a popular slogan has surfaced in the world of diamond jewelry: "Your left hand lives for love while your right hand lives for the moment." Carefree, single, independent women know that there is no better way to celebrate their status than by wearing a diamond ring on their right hands.

Before you select your special diamond jewelry, it is important to find a jeweler who can explain how the differences in gemstone and the precious metals in which they reside can greatly affect value and price. If you are the kind of person who demands quality in every aspect of your life, you'll appreciate the fine craftsmanship of our fine jewelry. Our diamond collection contains virtually any shape and size imaginable. Our pieces will add beauty and excitement, not to mention value, to your jewelry collection. Detectors Sense A Pedestrian In Sidewalk Curb Area

Councillors Seek Solar-Powered Pedestrian Crossing Signs On Sea St.

By JOE REARDON

Solar powered pedestrian crossing signs would vastly improve long-time traffic safety concerns on Sea Street, members of the Public Works Committee told the City Council at Monday night's meeting.

The committee will be submitting an outline of a plan to set up testing of the signs to Mayor Thomas Koch. Cost for the solar signs would be covered by the Sea Street mitigation funds.

Traffic & Parking Director Jack Gillon wrote in his findings to Councillors Joe Finn and Margaret LaForest, who requested the feasibility of having the low-maintenance panels installed, that the solar powered technology "is not new to the city of Quincy." A solar sign was installed on Granite Street at the Sterling Middle School last year.

When the sun is up, the solar panel located on the top of the sign charges the batteries through a solar charger. Sunlight strikes the solar array panel on top of the traffic signal post. Light passes through photovoltaic modules with silicon solar cells creating an electric charge, resulting in a current of electricity. The method requires approximately 90 percent less energy than incandescent light bulbs.

There are two types of solar powered pedestrian warning signs. TAPCO Traffic Control Co., Inc. manufactures a Light Emitting Diode (LED) solar powered Blinker sign. Carmanah Corporation manufactures the same pedestrian sign with standard solar powered flashing yellow beacons.

Both signs would be activated with detectors that sense a pedestrian in the sidewalk curb area adjacent to a crosswalk to initiate the flashing, calling attention to the motorists who are traveling on the high volume street.

The state has stimulus funds for crosswalk painting and signage but Sea Street does not fall into an eligible area.

Finn said he has talked to a family with a disabled child who lives on in the area and was told of the difficulties crossing Sea Street with the current lights. Marty Aikens of IBEW Local 103 pointed out that the solar lights are capable of functioning up to 30 days without sunlight. The light, while still bright, is shadowed as not to blind the drivers

"This is very low maintenance," Aikens said. "If you can put something like this in and save one life it's worth it."

Gillon said in his report that he plans to collect speed data of blinker signs installed at Logan International Airport in about three weeks, which would give time to allow the "novelty of the device to wear off."

Both types of signs installed in two traffic directions, along with software and detectors can be purchased for approximately $9,500, per location.

The Public Works Department can install the equipment. It would require breaking up part of the sidewalk to set the sign and pole foundation. Once in, however, the poles are easy to remove and relocate Gillon said.

SOLAR-POWERED pedestrian crossing signs – like this one on Granite Street in front of the Sterling Middle School – would vastly improve long-time traffic safety concerns on Sea Street, city councillors said Monday night.

The case for consolidating your mortgage and equity line into one loan right now

You had a great rate on your mortgage and didn't want to touch that. But there was something you needed or wanted money for. And adjustable home equity line rates were low-low-low. So you took one out. Now that line keeps adjusting up-up-up. You're feeling the squeeze and suffering with the squeeze. You are not alone. If you're worrying about where rates are going next and simply want to have the same mortgage payment every single month, consider consolidating your original mortgage and that home equity line into one new, locked-in fixed-rate 30-year loan while those rates are still near historic lows. Come see us and we'll help you figure out if consolidating is right for you. Or call Richard Coleman or Angela Blanchard at 617-471-0750.

- On March 28, 1814, the funeral of Guillotin, the inventor and namesake of the infamous execution device, takes place outside of Paris. Guillotin had built the guillotine to show the intellectual and social progress of the Revolution; by killing aristocrats and journeymen the same way, equality in death was ensured.
- On March 23, 1839, the initials "O.K." are first published, in The Boston Morning Post. Meant as an abbreviation for "oll correct," a popular slang misspelling of "all correct" at the time, OK steadily made its way into the everyday speech of Americans.
- On March 27, 1912, in Washington, D.C., Helen Taft, wife of President William Taft, and the Viscountess Chinda, wife of the Japanese ambassador, plant two Yoshina cherry trees on the northern bank of the Potomac River, near the Jefferson Memorial. The event was held in celebration of a gift by the Japanese government of 3,020 cherry trees to the United States.

The Race For Campaign Dollars

Politics and money.

They're like peanut butter and jelly; Romeo and Juliet; Harley and Davidson.

One without the other just doesn't seem right.

In politics, money is the life-line for sustaining campaigns at any level – federal, state and local. A deep "war chest" can make – or break – a candidate who is trying to get his or her message out with political advertising, campaign literature and signage.

With an array of contested – and likely crowded – races this year – campaign cash will be a precious commodity. But it will be plentiful?

One candidate, looking ahead to his own campaign, said: "Money is going to be tight."

But how tight?

Well, the shaky economy doesn't help. Unemployment still too high and job security – for many of those fortunate to have a steady paycheck – not all that secure.

But there may be another reason.

The city just experienced one of its most expensive mayoral elections ever. Is the well tapped – or at least a little dry?

Consider a whopping $508,831 was spent between incumbent Tom Koch and challenger William Phelan last November, according to campaign finance reports for each of the mayoral contenders. Koch out spent Phelan more than two-to-one. In winning a second term, Koch spent $346,984 while Phelan spent $161,847.

As for political fundraising, Koch and Phelan raised a combined $488,254 in campaign contributions. Koch raised the lion's share with $325,805 while Phelan, who sought to win back the mayor's office in a rematch of the 2007 city election, raised $162,449.

The reports cover the 2009 calendar year. (Koch entered the 2009 political season with a balance of $33,321. Phelan dissolved his old committee in January and started from scratch when he kicked off his campaign last June.)

And those dollar figures don't include money raised by other city candidates in contested races. There was an open seat for Ward 1 councillor, challenges to incumbent councillors in Wards 4 and 6 and a six-candidate field for School Committee (after the preliminary election eliminated two other candidates). Sure, those candidates raised less money than the mayoral contenders but local supporters still dipped into their own budgets to help them finance campaign expenses.

What are some of the dollar figures being bandied about to be competitive in contested state races involving Quincy?

Candidates running for the open Norfolk County district attorney seat may need at least $500,000. Current D.A. William Keating, who is running for Congress in the 10th Congressional District, spent $400,000 in the Democratic primary 12 years ago enroute to winning that election.

Candidates seeking the open Norfolk-Plymouth Senate Seat being vacated by Michael Morrissey – who is running for Norfolk County D.A. – may need between $100,000 and $200,000.

And the open 2nd Norfolk District state representative seat – being vacated by Stephen Tobin (who is running for state Senate) – may need between $50,000 to $100,000.

That's a far cry from 1976 when Morrissey defeated incumbent Joseph Brett for state representative. The then 22-year-old college graduate spent between $8,000 and $10,000 to upset the veteran legislator who had sought a 10th term.

The race for campaign dollars could be as competitive as the races themselves this fall. Besides Norfolk County district attorney, state senate and state representative in the 2nd Norfolk District, there's also a wide-open race for Congress since William Delahunt announced he will not seek re-election.

There's also the governor's race with four well-known candidates: Democrat incumbent Deval Patrick, Republicans Charlie Baker and Christy Mihos, and Independent Tim Cahill, a former Quincy city councillor and two-term state treasurer.

And don't forget: there are open seats for state treasurer and state auditor so don't be surprised to receive campaign solicitations from those candidates, either.

"Money is important because it gives you flexibility in getting your message out," one political observer noted. "But you can make it up with hard work and people."

The maximum campaign contribution an individual can make to one candidate is $500 in one year.

Political activists who want to support their candidates with their wallets may need to do a little more budgeting.

IT'S OFFICIAL – State Rep. Stephen Tobin will formally announce his campaign for state Senate tonight (Thursday) at the 21st annual Salute to St. Patrick hosted by Stephen and the Tobin family from 5:30 to 10 p.m. at the Commonwealth Restaurant, 79 Parkway, Quincy.

TOBIN

Tobin, who has represented the 2nd Norfolk District since 1988, is seeking the state Senate seat being vacated by Sen. Michael Morrissey who is a candidate for Norfolk County district attorney.

Tobin's time will feature a buffet, band and step dancing. Cost is $25 per person; make checks payable to The Tobin Committee.

KEEGAN

THE RACE for Tobin's open state representative seat is attracting plenty of attention, especially in Ward 1 which is entirely within the 2nd Norfolk District. (The district also includes Precincts 1, 2, and 5 in Ward 3; Precincts 2 and 4 in Ward 4 and Precincts 1, 3 and 4 in Ward 5.)

One potential candidate who told The Sun he is definitely running: Joseph Keegan of Merrymount, a local attorney and former city council candidate. Keegan, who is also a former Quincy police officer, ran for Ward 1 councillor in 2003 but bowed to Leo Kelly in the final election by 268 votes.

Kelly, by the way, told The Sun that he is seriously considering running for state representative, too. "I'm pretty sure I'm going to run if there's an open seat," Kelly said. "I want to continue to be a public servant. I'm retired from the city council and I won't run for city councillor again."

Kelly, of Houghs Neck, served nine terms as Ward 1 city councillor, including two years as council president, before stepping down in January. He did not seek re-election last fall.

SPEAKING OF KELLY, the recently completed Winter Olympic games in Vancouver brought back fond memories of the U.S. men's hockey team that won the gold medal 30 years ago in what's become known as the "Miracle on Ice."

Shortly after that fairy-tale ending to the greatest sports moment in U.S. history, one of the members of the gold-medal team visited Quincy. Captain Mike Eruzione, who scored the game-winning goal to defeat the Soviets and propel Team USA into the gold medal game against Finland, stopped at the Quincy Youth Arena during a tour of public rinks. Kelly presented Eruzione with a City Council commendation recognizing the historic achievement at the arena.

CELEBRITY LOOK-A-LIKES: Norfolk County District Attorney William Keating and singer-songwriter James Taylor?

KEATING

TAYLOR

Asked if anyone has ever told him he looks like Taylor, Keating said "all the time."

He shared a funny story when he attended a holiday function down on the Cape. Keating said he walked into a room and everyone just stared at him.

"It was pretty uncomfortable," Keating said with a laugh. He soon realized the gathering thought he was James Taylor, who has a residence on Martha's Vineyard.

AND HOW about this one? Former Ward 6 councillor Joseph Newton and Hollywood film and TV director Quentin Tarantino?

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1926 real photo postcard view of Beale Street in Wollaston looking east from the railroad bridge towards Hancock Street. On the left was Depot Square where Howard Johnson opened his first store. The large building on the right was the Wollaston Co-operative Bank and is now the site of an MBTA power station. Further down the Victorian building is pretty much the same today as is the small building, now home to the U-Rent-It tool shop. In the distance the large building was the Wollaston Masonic Temple, later the Wollaston Legion Post, and now the site of a Sovereign Bank branch. Everything visible on the left is now the Red Line parking lot. A few years after this picture was taken, the bridge was rebuilt and the road was widened from here to Hancock Street. READERS FORUM

Voice Of The People, By The People And For The People

The call from President Obama, Speaker Pelosi and Senator Harry Reid was loud and clear, "We want an up or down vote on healthcare before Congress takes its Easter Recess." But why should leaders of the Democrat party fear members going back home to hear the voices of the American people. Is this not a government of the people, by the people and for the people? Are not the folks back home those who pay the taxes, fight the wars, build the communities, suffer most from recessions and high unemployment, and yes, elect those who are in the White House and Congress. Have Americans not earned the right to be heard.

To the democrats in Congress it is no longer the voice of the people, but the voice of their party elite, steeped in the socialization of everything from healthcare, and education to the environment. The new elite that rule our country must be heard and must be obeyed. What has it Nancy Pelosi said to her Congress, "Vote the party line even if it means turning against the people; even if it means the losing your seat in Congress." Congress leaders believe that folks back home are too ignorant or dumb to know how to solve America's problems.

Yet, if we are so dumb and ignorant why do they fear us? They fear us because deep down inside they understand that Americans know what is best for their country, their children and grandchildren and all who live in this free land. They know socialism did not build this great nation. They know you cannot run up 13 trillion dollars in national debt without mortgaging the future of all Americans. They know you cannot run up 13 trillion dollars in national debt without mortgaging the future of all the Americans. They know that government has mismanaged all the great entitlement programs such as Medicare and Social Security. Oh how I wish those "Whiz Kids" in Congress could just listen in on the moms and dads of America as they sit quietly at their "Kitchen Table" sweating through their weekly budgets trying, to figure out how to make ends meet. Those moms and dads don't have the luxury of printing money or borrowing from the China. For them it is pay as you go, not the Congressional version of "PayGo," the law just passed ordering that Congress must show they have the money before they can spend it. Moms and dads know that law is meaningless because it is already being ignored and violated by Congress.

The leadership has reason to fear the voices of the American people. Can you imagine telling America's seniors, the most vulnerable among us that they are going to cut 500 billion dollars out of their Medicare to create new healthcare entitlement programs that will benefit others and not them? Then they expect the seniors to believe these cuts will not reduce their medical services and not create long waiting lines to see doctors. They are throwing all us seniors under the bus and telling us "Oh, it won't hurt."

To our President and all our Congressmen, I would say the American people are pretty smart people. Don't think you are smarter and wiser than we are. Americans live by a pretty sensitive compass, and this compass tells us we are going in the wrong direction: Mr. President you have botched healthcare. Start over and fix it right. Stop the deals with certain groups to buy votes to pass it. Stop selling America's soul to give the American people a program they don't want. Treat all Americans as truly being equal. Stop spending money you don't have. Listen to the moms and dads as they struggle with their "Kitchen Table" budget problems. You might learn something.

America has a great future. Every American can live in hope because the people, whose voices the President and Congressional leaders don't want heard, are going to be heard. Once again we will have a government of the people, by the people and for the people and this government will last through the generations.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Ross Trial Ends

By FRANK McCAULEY

Final arguments in the case of Mayor Charles A. Ross were made on Monday, March 18, 1935.

The three special justices of the Superior Court, who sat on the trial, began their deliberations at ten o'clock, Tuesday, March 19, 1935. The justices took the entire morning in a conference room with constant references to pertinent statutes in the law. All doors were closely guarded by the same court officers who were on duty during the trial in order that there would be no possibility of eavesdropping.

MAYOR ROSS OUSTED - NO APPEAL POSSIBLE

Charles A. Ross is no longer mayor of Quincy. The tribunal of three justices found in favor of the petitioners who charged that Ross violated the Corrupt Practices Act in the 1934 election campaign.

While finding Mayor Ross innocent of a number of charges, they found the Mayor:

Guilty of spending more than allowed by law and guilty of filing a false return.

The justices decreed that:

The election of Charles A. Ross to the office of the Mayor of Quincy in December of 1934 is declared void.

That Charles A. Ross is hereby ousted and excluded from such office.

That said office is declared vacant.

The justices also stripped Ross of his right to vote for a period of three years and ordered his name removed from the list of qualified voters of the city of Quincy. Ironically, a review of the campaign report of former Mayor Thomas J. McGrath who was defeated by Mayor Ross in the election showed that he also spent more money than the law allowed!

Upon receiving formal notification, City Clerk Emery L. Crane swore in Council President Leo E. Mullen as acting mayor pending a special election.

THE AFTERMATH

The Ross ouster would lead to the election on June 11, 1935 of former councillor and state representative Thomas S. Burgin as mayor. Burgin would, after beating Acting Mayor Mullen, serve until his retirement in 1942 when he accepted a commission as a lieutenant in the United States Navy.

However, Quincy and its citizens had not heard the last of Charles A. Ross. After his name was restored to the voting list in March 1938 he ran for mayor once again in 1938. This election would be his fifth in a 12-year period. He would lose this contest to Mayor Burgin who received 62.5% of the vote.

Ross finally returned to the office of mayor when he defeated former councillor and council president and future district attorney Myron N. Lane in the November 1942 election, polling 52.9% of the total vote. He also made the record books in the 1942 election, it being the only three-year election in the city's history.

Ross would be reelected in 1945, defeating Council President Joseph Kendrick with 62.1% of the vote. In 1947 he was opposed by his old adversary, the man who initiated the charges in 1935 that had led to Ross' downfall, now Councillor at-Large Russell T. Bates. Mayor Ross was reelected to his final term as mayor, defeating Bates by a landslide margin, receiving 55.2% of the vote. Mayor Ross retired in January 1950 upon the advent of the Plan E form of government.

All in all, in the period from 1926 to 1947, he ran for mayor eight times, winning five of those elections while losing three times. His time in the mayor's office amounted to nine years, two months and 20 days, good for second place behind Mayor James Sheets (12 years), as mayor under the Plan A "strong mayor" form of government.

Charles A. Ross would die in Quincy on Dec. 6, 1956, at the age of 74.

'SEUSSICAL THE MUSICAL' featuring a cast of over 120 Quincy Public School students will be presented by the Quincy High School Drama Club Friday, March 19, Saturday, March 20 and Sunday, March 21 in the QHS Lloyd Hill Auditorium. Photos Courtesy Amy Kelly

Camp Fire Open House At Quincy Office

Quincy Fire USA will open its Quincy offices, located at 1419 Hancock St., Suite 201, to the public today (Thursday) as part of "Absolutely Incredible Kid Day."

The public is invited to come to the office, meet Camp Fire's staff and take a few minutes to write a short letter to a child or children that have made a particular impact in one's life.

Visitation hours are from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. and from 4 to 7 p.m.

Light refreshments will be offered.

"If you don't think there's power in a letter, sit down now and write a personal letter to someone you care for - and if that someone's a child, the experience will be even deeper," said Suzanne Leary, board chairperson, Camp Fire USA-Eastern Massachusetts Council.

"There is a special bond between the letter writer and the person who receives that letter - and important bond that more people need to know."

Friday Through Sunday In School Auditorium

QHS Drama Club To Present 'Seussical The Musical'

The Quincy High School Drama Club will present "Seussical the Musical" based on the stories of Dr. Seuss the weekend of March 19-21 at the Quincy High School Lloyd Hill Auditorium, 52 Coddington St., Quincy.

Performances are scheduled for Friday, March 19 at 8 p.m.; Saturday, March 20 at 3 and 8 p.m.; and Sunday, March 21 at 3 p.m.

The cast includes over 120 Quincy Public School students ranging in ages from 6 to 18.

The musical, co-conceived by Eric Idle, is directed by Margaret Spencer with musical direction by Richard Kenneally and technical direction by Thomas Doucette.

Book, music and lyrics by Lynn Ahrens and Stephen Flaherty.

The show's plot mirrors that of Horton Hears a Who!, centering on Horton the elephant's endeavors to protect the people of Who-ville, who live on a tiny speck of dust. It also features characters and scenarios from many other Seuss books, including Butter Side Uppers/Downers from The Butter Battle Book, Gertrude McFuzz, and some characters that never made an appearance in any of Dr. Seuss's books.

The show is narrated by The Cat in the Hat, an outside observer.

Call 617-376-3354 for tickets and information. Admission is $10. Seating is assigned so those planning to attend are encouraged to get their tickets early.

"Seussical the Musical" is presented through special arrangement with Music Theatre International, 421 West 54th Street, New York, NY 10019.

ENC To Host 460 High School Students

At 'Festival Of Life' March 18-20

Hundreds of high school students from throughout the Eastern seaboard are expected to attend Eastern Nazarene College's annual "Festival of Life" celebration today (Thursday) through Saturday, March 20 at the Christian liberal art college's Wollaston campus.

Founded some 30 years ago, Festival of Life brings students in grades 9-12 from the Eastern Region of Nazarene Youth International to ENC for three days of athletic competitions, arts and music activities as well as opportunities for local ministry.

"Festival of Life has several goals," said Beverly Keuther, ENC's Festival of Life director. "Students focus on developing their talents and skills through competition in athletics, music, drama, arts and academics.

"Students also have an opportunity to participate in worship services and ministry projects while becoming familiar with the ENC campus.

Students receive a schedule of activities including a number of ministry options, Keuther said. Students are also encouraged to bring canned goods with them for donation to the Quincy Crisis Center. Other planned activities include an ice cream social, concerts and closing ceremonies featuring the presentation of awards and scholarships.

Kylie Kozlowski Wins Essay Contest

Kylie Kozlowski, a senior in the Personal Finance course at Quincy High School, recently won the Saving for Your Future Essay Contest.

The contest was sponsored by State Treasurer Timothy P. Cahill's Financial Education Department, Liberty Credit Union, and WBZ FM 98.5, to highlight the importance of saving money for higher education.

The essay contest is open to all students throughout the state.

Kylie's essay won the first round of the competition and she received a signed Boston Bruins' Tim Thomas picture. Her essay is now entered into a final drawing where she is competing for a $7,500 scholarship to be used towards her higher education and a visit to Quincy High School by Tim Thomas.

KYLIE KOZLOWSKI

This is the second essay contest that Kylie has won this year. This fall she won the Four Downs for a signed Patriots picture.

Wollaston Beach Free Walking Tour March 27

The Quincy Park Department's Environmental Treasures program and the Friends of Wollaston Beach invite the public to a free walking tour of Wollaston Beach to celebrate the beginning of spring Saturday, March 27 at 3 p.m.

Peter Fifield and Richard Joyce will discuss the area's history, marine life, tides and currents.

Participants should wear shoes for walking on mud flats and meet at the Caddy Park lot on the south end of the beach, Quincy Shore Drive.

For more information, call 617-472-0799.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Artichoke, Spinach Stuffed Red Peppers

I'm not a fan of hors d'oeuvres per se and certainly not many dips. But one of my favorites is an artichoke, spinach dip.

And so it was recently when I purchased some red peppers and was preparing to stuff them. I am always trying out new kinds of stuffing and then I thought of the artichoke and spinach combination and – voila – made a stuffing with both those ingredients plus a couple of enhancers.

The first time I baked them, I just added ingredients until they felt right. But the second time, I measured so today's recipe would be correct. But, anytime you follow a recipe (other than baking a dessert) you can always improvise.

ARTICHOKE, SPINACH STUFFED PEPPERS

6 red peppers (they are more tender than green, but green can be used)

1 small package baby spinach

1 can artichoke hearts (cut in small pieces)

1/4 cup light cream cheese

1/4 cup Parmesan grated cheese

1/2 cup seasoned bread crumbs (I used salt free)

1/2 cup tomato sauce

1/4 of a small onion (about two table-spoons) chopped

2 tablespoons olive oil

Preheat oven to 350 degrees

Prepare the peppers by taking out the core. I cut them and saved the tops for the peppers to place atop of the stuffing. Cook the spinach any way you want. I sautéed it in a little olive oil, salt and pepper and a smidgen of garlic powder. Set aside.

In a frying pan, heat the oil and sauté the onions. Add the artichokes and cook for a minute of two and then add the spinach. Blend them well and then add the rest of the ingredients one at a time cooking until done. The mixture should be moist enough for the filling. You can always add a bit more bread crumbs if needed. Stuff each pepper to the top, and then add the pepper tops. (optional). At times, you can use the pepper tops cut in small pieces and added to the stuffing. But I topped them and they looked nice that way.

Place them in a baking pan with a little olive oil and water on the bottom. Try to place the peppers close together so they don't fall over. Bake them covered for one hour or until fork tender.

CELTIC MUSIC ENSEMBLE "Tri" will perform a free concert in the Cape Breton tradition, including tunes from Scotland, Ireland and Cape Breton, Sunday, March 21 at 3 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy. The three featured musicians – bagpiper Matthew Phelps, fiddler Doug Lamey and guitarist Cliff McGann – have performed throughout Boston as well as festivals across North America. The performance – sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library – is for all ages.

Children's Choir Festival Saturday

Sacred Heart Parish, 386 Hancock St., North Quincy, will host the third annual Children's Choir Festival of the Southeastern New England Chapter of Choristers Guild Saturday, March 20 from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Over 140 children are registered to participate and represent 17 Christian communities from three states.

Andrea Baxter, the guest clinician for the day, serves as associate director of Music at Trinity Lutheran Church in Lansdale, PA, where she directs two children's choirs and the youth choir, oversees the hand bell program, and teaches preschool music.

All are invited to join in the festival prayer service Saturday, March 20 at 6 p.m. in Sacred Heart Church. Children will sing several anthems, with accompaniment provided by organ, piano, two trumpets, flute, choir chimes, drum and assorted rhythm instruments.

The Choristers Guild is a national ecumenical organization of children's choirs that has served for over 60 years. The local chapter of Choristers Guild encompasses eastern Massachusetts, all of Rhode Island, and eastern Connecticut.

Koch: 'It's Time' To Build A New Central Middle School

By JOE REARDON

Emphasizing the need for a new Central High School to replace the antiquated current building, city officials, last Thursday night, outlined the timeline to build on three parcels of land further up Hancock Street.

The current school, which was built in 1894 and has gone through numerous renovations over the years, is on a two-acre plot, half the size of the future location. The new middle school will be built on the lot where the Presidents City Inn, The Egg & I, and Hancock Street Car Wash are situated. There had been talk as early as 1970 about the need for a new middle school.

"This asset has been maintained for 115 years," Mayor Thomas Koch told the 100 people who attended the meeting at Central. "It's time."

The overall cost of project is expected to run from $40-50 million for acquisition and construction. The state will cover 68-percent of the cost with the city taking on the remaining 32 percent to be financed over 30 years. No funds would have been available from the state if city officials opted to renovate the current building.

Securing an architect and having the design drawn up for the undertaking will take 12-18 months. The tentative date for completion is December of 2013. The school will be able to handle an enrollment amount of 620 students.

School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro said the meeting was the first of many that would be held during the next few years to update the community on the status of the project. "Everyone is going to be part of this project," he said.

ect," he said.

Ward 5 City Councilor Doug Gutro, an alumnus of Central, emphasized that the entire community would be involved in the process. "It's the opportunity for us as a city to see where things stand and see where things are going," Gutro said.

Current Central Principal Jennifer Fay-Beers told those in attendance that the current building is limited in space with some classes being held in the gymnasium. The building has been assessed at $1 million.

The auditorium's maximum capacity is 250 and assemblies are done in shifts. Fay-Beers took a tour of the new high school and is excited about the prospects of a state-of-the-art building. "We want to bring the flavor of central to the new building along with the new innovations," Fay-Beers said.

The new site will be in closer proximity to Merry-mount Park and Veteran's Stadium, and a crossing light has already been installed on Hancock St., near the site of the future school.

Gutro said city officials would be exploring possible uses for the current middle school by the city or public, or whether to lease the building or sell it. He didn't foresee any further development beyond the existing footprint of the structure.

"It's a tough site to develop in any capacity other than the current footprint," he said.

"Before we make a decision about what we do with this property we need to really evaluate the options."

Joy Lestor, whose three children attended Central, was involved in the site search for the new high school back in 1997 and voiced her concerns about the contaminants in the new parcel. "We're looking to buy land that has contamination and we don't know how much," she said. "I don't have enough information yet."

tion yet."

Koch said any contamination in the area would be cleaned up and used the work done to eliminate oil seepage found during the high school project as an example.

Lestor questioned whether the city officials would hire an expert in the field. "If they're going to do it, they have to do it right," she said.

QPAC To Host Resource Fair March 27

The Quincy Parent Advisory Council to Special Education (QPAC) will host a Resource Fair Saturday, March 27 from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Clifford Marshall Elementary School, 200 Moody St., Quincy.

The purpose of the Resource Fair is to provide information about agencies, organizations, programs, and services available for children with disabilities and their families in the Quincy area. This walk-through event for parents, caregivers, educators, and professionals will feature more than 40 exhibitors, including state agencies, camps, hospital programs, therapists, advocacy organizations, recreational venues, and others.

The event is free and open to the public.

Door prizes will be given away and light refreshments will be served.

Children are welcome; balloons, games, face painting, and other kids activities will be available.

The Resource Fair is the second for QPAC, a volunteer organization affiliated with the Quincy Public Schools whose mission is to promote quality education for all students. It is part of an ongoing initiative by QPAC to provide support and information for parents, school personnel, and the community regarding disabilities and the special education process.

Other QPAC efforts in this area include a parent-to-parent information and support group, an ongoing speaker series, and an extensive web-based resource collection.

For more information, visit the QPAC website at www.quincypac.org.

In some ERs, this is the only face you'll see for hours.

The wait. It's something that many patients have gotten accustomed to when they visit an emergency room. But not our patients. At Milton Hospital, we've shortened wait times and improved emergency care processes. And that's why our patients have rated us in the top 2% nationwide in patient satisfaction* for the year 2009. An impressive number. And we've done a number of things to earn it. We handle minor emergencies more efficiently. Patients have been impressed with our bedside manner. And we're staffed with Harvard Medical Faculty Physicians through our Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center affiliation.

With our commitment to patient satisfaction, we're changing the face of ER care. Milton Hospital. Our quality shows. And shines.

Jackie Rosenberg Keeps In Touch With Friends And Family Via Computer

Allerton House Residents Embrace Information Highway

Ask Jackie Rosenberg what the best age is to learn how to use a computer and she will be quick to say, "You are never too old or too young."

This 79-year-old resident of Allerton House at Hancock Park is a perfect example. She says, "I have a computer-oriented family and I guess a little of it rubbed off on me. About five years ago, I finally said, 'Okay, I want one.'"

Admittedly a bit timid at first, Rosenberg now surfs the Internet with the best of them, citing Google as her favorite search engine.

"I've looked up my medications and researched doctors when I needed to choose a new one. I Google everything now," Rosenberg says. With safety and security always in mind, Rosenberg even worked with Allerton House staff to create her own Facebook account.

With the recent acquisition of two new computers for community-wide use, other residents of Allerton House at Hancock Park are riding on the information highway now, too.

Tara Whooley, coordinator of computer activities at Allerton House, says, "We are pleased that a number of residents are participating in our computer classes, learning about email, the Internet, search engines and safety and security." The computer classes at Allerton House have been met with enthusiasm. Whooley says, "Our residents are always looking for ways to stay current and keep their minds active."

JACKIE ROSENBERG, a resident of Allerton House at Hancock Park in Quincy, likes to keep in touch with friends and family via the computer.

"Computer literacy brings the added benefit of one more way to keep in close contact with loved ones. Since the classes began, several residents have created email addresses."

"There is no doubt that connecting to the Internet makes it easier to connect with loved ones, whether they live down the street or across the country," Whooley adds.

Allerton House at Hancock Park is a 42-apartment assisted living community owned and managed by Welch Healthcare & Retirement Group.

ment Group.

The community provides a continuum of care through Hancock Park Rehabilitation & Skilled Nursing Center, located in the same building.

Preserving The Mission San Jose Sculptures Topic At Quincy Historical Society March 24

Ivan Myjer, one of the nation's leading authorities on conserving historic stone structures and a consultant on the recent preservation work at the Adams Academy, will speak about his current major project at the next Quincy Historical Society meeting, Wednesday, March 24, at 7:30 p.m. at the Adams Academy in Quincy Center.

It's never too late! I want to think it can be just as beneficial to emphasize, restate, reiterate, reinforce and remind readers of a subject rather than focus on new fire prevention subjects in these articles every time.

By doing so, I believe we can modify potential hazardous behaviors into fire safe habits when we acknowledge the reinforcement of sound fire prevention practices within our homes.

Here's a reminder for today.

We just changed our clocks, we sprung ahead. It took place on the 13TH, more accurately on the morning of the 14th. Historically, this has been used as an opportune time for residents to change their batteries within their household smoke detectors. It's a good sound suggestion while I'll take this opportunity to remind you once again. Consider changing the batteries in your smoke detectors now, if you didn't do so when you reset your clocks.

Smoke detectors are essential for early notification of fire within a home. Early notification is essential for safe evacuation. It has been suggested that in many cases, one can have just one minute to leave a home after detection is made. That's assuming there is notification. Without a working smoke detector, detection can be delayed, negating a chance at safe evacuation. It happens frequently, too frequently.

To awaken to a moderate or heavy smoke condition within your bedroom in the middle of the night, and to then make life saving decision under stress, heat conditions, visual obscuration while having difficulty breathing, is avoidable. It's better to respond than to react. Let working, properly located smoke detectors within your home give you the notification to avoid reacting, having to make life or death decisions within seconds.

I can recall an incident where working detectors weren't present and two occupants succumbed to the heat and smoke of a house fire. The fact that working detectors weren't present was a major contributing factor in their demise. When the fire was extinguished and overhaul operations were conducted, I can remember thinking how the outcome would have been different had smoke detectors been maintained.

Having a battery less smoke detector, hanging from a ceiling, suggests that a sound effort in life safety was made at some moment in the past when it was first installed, but that admirable effort is functionally negated when it is not properly maintained.

By pressing the button on the surface plate of the detector you can test the detector which we suggest you do monthly. The battery should be changed yearly and consider doing so when you reset your clocks, or now if you neglected to do so on the 13TH. Thank you, and be safe!

The public is welcome to attend. Admission is free.

Insurance STRATEGIES
by Jim Sullivan
ARE YOU PAYING TOO MUCH FOR AUTO INSURANCE?
Selecting an insurance agency is a long-term decision. You want one that you can work with and trust for many years. At JAMES J. We offer a wide range of commercial policies, including key-personal insurance, business interruption insurance, and liability insurance. Please call us at 617-328-8600. Our office is located at 151 Hancock Street. Smarter Choice! Smarter Move!
While it is often said that no one is irreplaceable, there are individuals who are key to a business' success. If so, businesses will want to do everything possible to make sure the loss of a key person does not adversely affect the company. With this in mind, key employee life insurance is available to cover losses caused by the death of a key employee. This type of policy compensates a business against significant losses that result from that person's death or disability. The amount and cost of insurance needed depends on the situation and the age, health, and role of the key employee. Key employee life insurance pays a death benefit to the company when the key employee dies.
NOTE: A key employee policy is normally owned by the business, which pays the premiums and is the beneficiary.

Looking Good, Feeling Good

Younger-Looking Skin, Without Breaking The Bank

(NAPSA)-It may be possible to postpone those inevitable wrinkles without spending much money. Dermatologists say that you can keep your skin looking young with high-quality drugstore products.

Many anti-aging products are now fortified with ingredients that can diminish fine lines and wrinkles, treat acne, even out skin tone and improve skin texture. Here are some skin care regimens to help keep looking healthy and glowing:

Dry Skin:

- Avoid caffeine, smoking and alcohol.
- Make sure you get at least eight glasses of pure water a day to keep your skin hydrated.

- Protect your skin from wind, sun, heat, cold and indoor air. Apply a moisturizer before exposing yourself to any of these moisture-sapping conditions.

Sensitive Skin:

- Consume a healthy diet containing fresh fruit and FACE IT: Beautiful skin may take some forethought but it needn't cost a lot of money.

vegetables to help skin look healthy; avoid hot and spicy foods, which are particularly likely to cause a negative effect.

- Read the labels of skin care products. Look for "for sensitive skin" and check the ingredients.

- Try herbal remedies that are free from harsh chemicals.

Acne:

- Whether you have actual acne or just occasional breakouts, avoid heavy oil-based products and try a foam-based cleanser.

- Introduce acne products gradually. Start with a cleanser.

- Shampoo regularly, shower after exercising and wash your face and remove any makeup before going to bed.

Anti-Aging:

- Look for products that contain hyaluronic acid. It helps smooth wrinkles by adding volume under the skin. One anti-aging facial option is called Perlabella Hyaluronic Acid, an injection-free wrinkle filler that gives elasticity to the skin. It uses PureDose Pearls that are airtight, preservative-free and deliver single doses of anti-wrinkle serum for the skin to help reduce lines.

Follow a daily regime that works for your skin. Stay out of the sun and use an adequate amount of sunscreen to help reduce your risk of wrinkles and keep your skin feeling soft and smooth.

Tips From Fitness, Diet Expert Bob Greene

Win The Battle Of Mind Over Munchies

(NAPSA)-In times of stress-whether due to the economy or issues at work or in the home-Americans tend to make unhealthy food choices that satisfy mental cravings, even though they may not be physically hungry.

In fact, a recent survey commissioned by Wasa Crispbread found that 64 percent of Americans who eat while stressed typically reach for junk foods-likely the saltiest, sweetest or highest-calorie options.

According to fitness and diet expert Bob Greene, while giving in to these cravings may provide a short-term fix, it may lead to guilty feelings and added pounds down the road.

"When people get depressed, sad or frustrated, they tend to crave foods they think will provide emotional comfort," said Greene. "To feel better in the long run, mentally and physically, they should adopt a healthier lifestyle and incorporate a variety of nutritious foods and exercise."

So what can people do to break this emotional eating cycle and win the battle of mind over munchies? Greene has some suggestions:

- Choose nutritious, filling foods that crunch. Crunchy, high-fiber, whole grain foods can provide great mental and physical satisfaction and crunching can help relieve stress. Studies have also shown that the action of chewing longer, which is required by most crunchy foods, can aid in satiety. Greene recommends almonds, carrots, a few tablespoons of granola, and Wasa Crispbread-the whole grain crackers that can be enjoyed as a snack or bread replacement at mealtime with any variety of topping. The whole grain and fiber in Wasa Crispbread, combined with its crunchy texture, help you feel full and keep you satisfied longer.

- Add variety to your meal and snack options. The survey showed that 40 percent of Americans would consider improving their diets if there were a larger variety of healthy foods to get on track. Delicious food combinations that provide fiber, whole grains, crunch and variety will help keep you motivated and satisfied.

- Stock "stress areas" with healthy snacks. Don't succumb to unhealthy cravings when the pressure starts to get to you. If the office is where you feel the most stress, then keep a healthy snack at your desk and skip the trip to the vending machine. Smart options include fruit, such as grapes and oranges, or 2 to 3 tablespoons of nuts.

- Exercise more. Daily exercise can help to alleviate stress, curb cravings and leave you feeling and looking better. Stash a pair of sneakers in a desk drawer at the office so you can squeeze in some exercise whenever you have a free 10 minutes.

For more information, recipe ideas and healthful eating tips, visit www.wasa-usa.com.

Bob Greene recommends:

Margherita Pizza On Wasa Sourdough Crispbread

Prep time: 5 minutes
Ingredients:

1 slice Wasa Sourdough Crispbread (the crunchy, whole grain, fiber-filled cracker perfect for snack or mealtime)

2 small slices (1/2 ounce total) part-skim mozzarella
2 slices of a small tomato

1 teaspoon extra virgin olive oil

1-2 basil leaves, roughly torn into pieces
Pepper to taste

Preparation:

Place slices of mozzarella and tomato on Wasa crispbread, slightly overlapping each other.

Optional:

Microwave for about 20 seconds or place under the broiler for about one minute.

Drizzle with oil, sprinkle with pepper and garnish with basil. Serve immediately.

Ayers Votes To Prohibit The Devocalization Of Dogs And Cats

State Rep. Bruce Ayers of Quincy joined his colleagues in the Massachusetts House of Representatives in passing legislation to prohibit the debarking or silencing of a dog or cat unless a licensed veterinarian deems it medically necessary to treat the animal.

Devocalization procedures, which are surgically invasive and run a high risk of infection, are typically performed to muffle or eliminate dog barking or cat meowing.

"This bill will ban the inhumane practice of devocalizing dogs and cats for convenience or cosmetic purposes," said Rep. Ayers. "The legislation will help to improve the health and treatment of animals in the

"With the vote of the House, the Commonwealth is on its way to enacting legislation that will protect pets from devocalization unless it's deemed necessary by a licensed veterinarian," stated Ayers. "This will enhance the animal protection statutes we already have in place through the work of the House."

Devocalization procedures pose health risks following the procedure, including breathing difficulty and an increased risk of aspiration pneumonia. The procedure can also cause behavioral issues in dogs and cats such as a decreased ability to communicate with humans and other animals. Such problems could threaten the health of the animal or those around it.

If it is determined that a devocalization procedure is medically necessary, the veterinarian must file a written certification with the city or town stating that the surgery is necessary to relieve an illness, disease, injury or congenital abnormality that is causing or will cause the dog or cat medical harm or pain.

Under this legislation, only a veterinarian licensed in Massachusetts would be allowed to debark or silence a dog or cat if it is declared medically necessary. Failure to comply with this provision of the bill could result in imprisonment for up to five years."

Senate Passes Safe School Package To Ban Bullying, Promote Health Foods

State Sen. Michael Morrissey of Quincy announces the Senate has advanced measures to ban bullying and update nutritional standards in schools with a pair of bills aimed at promoting a safe, healthy and productive learning environment for all students.

Senate anti-bullying legislation prohibits physical, verbal and written acts that threaten or cause harm to another student, including Internet "cyber-bullying," while a separate school nutrition bill establishes new standards for fresh food options in school cafeterias and vending machines.

Morrissey, who serves as chairman of the Senate Joint Committee on Telecommunications, Utilities and Energy, co-sponsored an amendment adopted by the Senate that closes an existing loophole to now allow for certain electronic communications to be including in our existing stalking, harassment, and annoying phone call statutes.

The amendment co-sponsored by Morrissey also establishes a special commission comprised of education and public safety officials to examine how bullying and cyber-bullying can be incorporated into our criminal statutes.

"Text and picture phone messaging, and e-mail on phones and home computers can make bullying a 24-7 ordeal for our children," Morrissey said. "These forms of bullying are in many cases just as traumatic."

The anti-bullying bill requires all school districts, charter schools and non-public schools to develop prevention and intervention plans by Dec. 31, 2010 that include procedures for investigating bullying incidents, notifying parents and determining appropriate disciplinary actions.

The bill requires school principals to notify local law enforcement of bullying incidents if there is reason to believe criminal charges may be pursued. It also allows Individualized Education Programs for children with special needs to include provisions that will help them handle and respond to incidents of bullying. The bullying ban extends to all school facilities, school-sponsored functions, school buses and bus stops.

The Senate also passed a bill establishing new nutritional standards in schools to address the problem of childhood obesity in the Commonwealth. Food and beverages in school cafeterias, vending machines and other locations in public schools separate from federal meal programs must be in compliance.

IRS Approves Tax-Exempt Status For Quarry, Granite Workers Museum

The Quincy Quarry and Granite Workers Museum received official notification Feb. 15 from the Internal Revenue Service that their tax-exempt status has been approved.

The Quincy Quarry and Granite Workers Museum is now a 501(c)(3) organization. This status now exempts the museum from federal income taxes under section 501(c)(3) and contributions to the museum are tax deductible under section 170 of the code. They are also qualified to receive tax-deductible bequest, devises, transfers and gifts, which include artifacts related to the granite industry.

The site chosen is the historic Lyons Turning Mill on Quarry Hills Drive in West Quincy. The museum welcomes new members to join this effort to save the history of the granite industry in Quincy and surrounding communities. A museum featuring the granite industry would enhance Quincy's ability to attract tourism to our many historical sites throughout the city.

The museum can be contacted at Quincy Quarry Museum, P.O. Box 690724, Quincy, MA 02269 or e-mail at quincyquarrymuseum@verizon.net.

Councillor Visits Troops At Fort Sill Oklahoma Army Base As They Prepare For Deployment Coughlin Joins The Army National Guard - Temporarily

By KEVIN COUGHLIN

I have often heard the words, "when you hear you forget, when you see you remember, when you do you understand."

Recently I had the chance to hear, to see and to do when I travelled to the Fort Sill Oklahoma Army Base and joined our local Army National Guard troops who are mobilized there preparing for their deployment overseas.

Fort Sill is near Lawton Oklahoma 90 miles southwest of Oklahoma City. Staked out in 1869 by Major General Philip Sheridan and designated as a National Historic Landmark in 1960 it is the last active Army installation of all the forts on the South Plains built during the Indian Wars. It has a storied history that includes the names of Buffalo Bill Cody, Wild Bill Hickok, Ben Clark, Jack Stilwell and Geronimo.

Today, Fort Sill's 94,000 acres of land supports one of the premier training and force projection posts in the Army. It is home to the world renowned U.S. Army Field Artillery School training soldiers day and night to put "steel on target."

In addition to being the largest field artillery complex in the free world Fort Sill is also the home of basic combat and advanced individual training. For over 10 weeks it has been home to some of our citizen soldiers from Massachusetts.

Whether a middle school music teacher with a wife and two children, a long haul truck driver with a wife and four children from toddler to twenty something, or a business development consultant with a wife and two children, when they put on their ACUs (Army Combat Uniform) they are citizen soldiers. Although their MOS (Military Occupational Specialty) are all different the focused mission for these particular soldiers is the same; the safe, effective and efficient drawdown in Iraq.

For a year they prepared through pre-mobilization training at varied and diverse locations including the Regiment Regional Training Institute in Smyrna Tennessee and Camp Edwards on the Cape. Amidst cold February mid-winter days I had the once in a lifetime opportunity and the great honor to fly from Westover ARB aboard a KC 130 Military tanker plane on a scheduled mid-flight refueling mission of F-15 fighters. Destination: Fort Sill to observe and participate and learn just a few of the many fundamentals of today's soldier in the United States Army.

Their days are infinitely long and creature comforts are few. Their camaraderie is evidence of a bonding that only happens in the military where your survival is based not simply on your own training and skill but also on that of the soldier next to you.

My days there included educational briefings and hands on training in a variety of areas including IED (Improvised Explosive Device) detection, EST (Engagement Skills Training) with an M-16 and M-4 rifles, maintenance and operation of HETS (Heavy Equipment Transports) vehicles. The HETS will be employed to withdraw Abrams and M-1 tanks and Bradley Fighting Vehicles. This training included the donning of full personal body armor, helmet, goggles and gloves.

Gratefully absent from the full breadth of my experience was the lack of requirement to consume MREs (Meals Ready to Eat) or as some have described them "materials resembling edibles" or "meals rejected by everyone." Being a soldier is not for the faint of heart and surely not for a slightly balding, somewhat out of shape, middle aged desk jockey. With body armor including a Kevlar vest lined with ceramic plates that weigh 45 pounds and a backpack/gear that can weigh between 70 and 90 pounds, daily PT (physical training) is a prerequisite. I'm beyond an age waiver anyway and I'd need a dictionary to remember all the acronyms.

Fort Sill, at least during this writer's mid February visit, seemed a somewhat desolate and forbidding place. An ice storm the prior week had bent and broken most trees giving the appearance of a barren wasteland. But a military installation is not meant to be a mecca of aesthetic beauty for idle tourists.

There is nothing here to distract you from your intended purpose. The men and women here are highly trained professionals who happen to be our family members, friends, neighbors and co-workers. They come from our midst with very particular skill sets and return to us from active duty with experience and training surpassed nowhere.

Since the commencement of the WOT (War on Terror) approximately 7,500 Massachusetts National Guard Troops have served in Iraq, Afghanistan, Kuwait and other places. This year alone 3,700 of them will be deployed in support of operations in Iraq and Afghanistan, the largest call-up in history for the MARNG, the oldest standing army in the United States, older the country itself.

Most of us may never don the uniform of our military service, but like our troops we each have a mission as well; to support our men and women serving in harm's way and their families here at home in every possible way.

The First Call Came Saturday; Then The Floodgates Opened

By TOM HENSHAW

The first call came to Ward 4 City Councillor Brian Palmucci early Saturday morning.

There was water in a basement on Unity Street. For the next two days there were more and more phone calls as the mother of all March rain storms hit Quincy, particularly flood-prone West Quincy.

"A resident told me that he has lived in the area for 40 years and he never saw worse flooding," said Palmucci.

Before the storm ended Monday, the Department of Public Works had 50 pumps going around the clock, about 100 people were evacuated from their flooded homes, some by boats, and storm water overwhelmed the MWRA facilities and untreated sewage had to be released into the bay.

The nearly 8 inches of rain that fell in the two and a half days surpassed the record for a three-day rainfall of 7.45 inches set in 1968 and a wind gust of 67 miles an hour on Sunday morning also beat out the 65 mph record in 1968, according to the Blue Hills Observatory.

"What streets were closed during the storm?" Palmucci was asked.

"It would be easier to tell you what streets weren't closed," he said.

Police Capt. John Dougan listed the streets as Furnace Brook Parkway and Quarry, Robertson, Ballou, Joyce, Alrick, Stedman and others.

Evacuated residents moved in with relatives or friends or checked into hotels while the water rose in their homes. In homes on Alrick and Sheldon streets, water flooded the basements to a height that filled the basement and lapped at the first floor.

"Sheldon, Unity and Ballou Streets are disaster areas," said Palmucci. "The pumps are not fast enough. The storm is over but the water levels are still rising. The state pumped a lot of water off the highway (Route 3) and it wound up in our streets. They were solving their problems at our expense."

In one house on Miller Street, the pilot light went out and that building filled with gas. The residents were evacuated by boat by the Fire Department. A woman drove her car into the flooded parking garage at 40 Willard St. and had to be rescued.

"It's a tragic situation in West Quincy," said Palmucci.

Frederick Laskey, executive director of the MWRA, said between five and ten million gallons of untreated sewage, 90 per cent storm water, was released in to Massachusetts Bay to prevent a disastrous overflow from the Nut Island facility.

"It was the lesser of two evils," he said.

The controlled release dumped the sewage from three outfall pipes, two of them 5,000 feet out in the bay and one 1,500 feet out. The release is diluted by the sea water in a matter of minutes, said Laskey. He called it "the storm from hell."

The DPW turned its pumps on at 7 a.m. Saturday and discovered it wasn't enough. Private contractors had to be called to help out. Eventually, there were 50 pumps, six and four inches in diameter were in action.

City officials are expecting to host a community meeting for affected residents within the next several days to provide as much information as possible on recovery steps.

"This is truly a devastating situation for the families affected, and we will continue to do everything within our power to get people back into their homes and help any way we can in the clean-up and recovery process," Koch said.

The Quincy Fire Department evacuated more than two dozen people from deluged homes over the course of the storm and dozens more left their homes on their own, primarily in the areas of Ballou Street, Alrick Road, Sheldon Street, Connell Street, Robertson Street and Furnace Avenue. No residents nor firefighters were injured in the evacuations.

Gov. Deval Patrick declared a state of emergency, and officials are hopeful that will mean state and federal assistance for Quincy.

The City opened the Kennedy Center as an emergency shelter, although only a handful of displaced used the facility. The City also received assistance from several local businesses, who asked to keep their participation quiet, Koch said.

Because of flooding from the Furnace Brook onto surrounding roadways, the Bernazzani Elementary School was closed on Tuesday, as was Atlantic Middle School, where the boiler room was flooded.

The Department of Public Works is manning more than 50 pumps and enlisted private contractors with machines capable pumping 2,400 gallons of water per minute. The operation is expected to continue for the rest of the week, residents are asked to call to call the 24-hour DPW hotline at 617-376-1910 for assistance.

"The worst-hit areas are the priority right now - we have families with 8 to 10 feet of water in the homes, but we will get everywhere," said Department of Public Works Commissioner Larry Prendeville.

Areas across the City were affected by flooding, and officials will continue to monitor high tides throughout the week. As the water recedes, a major clean-up operation will begin, officials said.

The Department of Inspectional Services advised residents that most work on electrical and gas systems will require a permit - especially if systems have been submerged. Residents can call the building department directly at 617-376-1450 for more information.

A Job Well Done

On Saturday, March 6, at approximately 2:35 a.m., Officer Michael Eddy was parked at the North Quincy Fire Station monitoring the flow of traffic when his attention was drawn to a black BMW traveling southbound on Hancock Street with no headlights on. The Officer caught up to the vehicle on Hancock Street at Glover Avenue and activated his blue lights.

The BMW continued southbound on Hancock Street and turned left onto Billings Road, where it accelerated quickly and fled. Officer Eddy notified communications that the BMW was failing to stop, estimated at a speed of 45 m.p.h. There were two other Quincy Police cruisers on Billings Road just clearing from a different call.

Both cruisers pulled to the curbside on Billings Road at the Parker School and waited for the BMW, with their blue lights on. As the BMW approached, Officers Ken Wood and Sean Kelley both signaled the driver to stop, but the vehicle turned onto Faxon Road for about 200 feet, then stopped. Due to the driver's actions and the heavy tinting of the windows, the officers conducted a felony stop for their safety, ordering the driver and passenger to show their hands out the windows. The occupants did not comply, even after the orders were repeated numerous times.

At increased risk, the officers approached the vehicle and observed both occupants moving around in the vehicle. They were leaning from side to side, looking down and shuffling about the interior of the vehicle. Officer Kelley opened the passenger door and removed the male passenger. Officer Eddy opened the driver's door and removed the female driver from the vehicle.

When asked why she did not stop when signaled to, the driver said that she did not know that the Officer was behind her. She denied seeing the blue lights or hearing the siren. The occupants were separated and Officer Melanie Reeves arrived on scene to search the driver. The male passenger yelled to the driver, "Allison, Allison." The driver did not have her license with her and said her name was "Leanne (last name withheld)." Officer Eddy asked her who Allison was and she replied, "I don't know."

Officer Eddy then questioned the male passenger as to who the driver was and he stated, "Allison (same last name withheld)." Officer Eddy then asked the driver to state her name and again she said it was Leanne (last name withheld). When asked why the male passenger was calling her Allison, the driver stated that Allison is her sister. Officer Eddy then gave the male passenger his Miranda rights, which he said he understood and wanted to know if he was under arrest. He was told that he was not at that time.

When asked again who the driver was, he said, "Allison (last name withheld). I have two kids with her sister Leanne, my girlfriend." Officer Eddy placed the driver under arrest for failing to stop for the Police and then learned from communications that "Leanne" had a suspended license, but "Allison's" license was active.

Officer Reeves transported her to the station, where she gave a name of Leanne during the booking process. Upon hearing that the driver was identified as Leanne, the male passenger was placed under arrest for misleading a Police Officer in the course of an investigation. The male passenger then stated that he was not sure who the driver was because the sisters are twins and it is difficult to tell them apart. Earlier in the investigation, the male passenger stated that he has two children with Leanne and knows the difference between Leanne and Allison. Officer Eddy believed that the passenger knew that Leanne's license was suspended and he was trying to mislead the Officers into thinking the driver was Allison so that she would not get arrested. Leanne gave the Officers a date of birth that was 14 months apart, so much for being twins.

As Officer Eddy transported the male passenger to the station, the male passenger kept asking why he was under arrest. When told he was being charged with Misleading a Police Officer during an investigation, the male passenger said, "not a drug investigation?" Officer Eddy said it was not for drugs and then the male passenger said, "So if I said that was Leanne, I wouldn't have been arrested? That's %$&@%." The female driver, a 22 year old Dorchester resident, was charged with "Failure to display headlights at night, Failure to stop or obey a Police Officer and Operating after suspension of license." The male passenger, a 24 year old Quincy resident, was charged with "Misleading a Police Officer."

The suspect vehicle was towed to the station, where trained Police K-9 searched the vehicle for drugs. The interior of the vehicle had many loose panels, with factory screws removed from the dash. Additional information soon came in that the male passenger may be in possession of an illegal firearm and the loose panels in the vehicle may have been a hiding spot for the gun, with easy access. A small trace of drugs was found on a razor blade. Nice Work!

Home Inspections Help You Sell

(ARA) - When you're ready to sell your home in the current market, you need to take every step you can to ensure a timely sale at the price you want. A surplus of homes for sale means that yours needs to stand out in style, amenities and quality to make an impression on potential buyers. The more steps you take to make your house sale-ready, the better results you'll get.

Currently, home sales are at a historic low -- so what do you need to do to buck that trend? Updated decor and proper staging certainly help present your home well, but don't think that cosmetic fixes are all you need. Buyers want to know the home they're considering is safe and sound, and the best way to establish that is to hire a home inspector.

Twenty years ago, it seemed extravagant to hire a home inspector, but today it's standard practice. Buyers will often bring their own inspectors to the table, so you need to start by hiring one yourself. Hiring a professional will give you a realistic perspective on what's going on in the bones of your home.

"In a down market, a pre-sale inspection can make a home stand out," says David Tamny, president of the American Society of Home Inspectors. "More and more, sellers are obtaining pre-sale inspections to help uncover and address potential issues before the first prospective buyer walks through the door. This simple step allows for better planning and lowers repair costs, adds value to the home, and it could increase the likelihood of an offer."

Even if someone in your family is handy, a professional home inspector will be able to point out issues that might go unnoticed by someone who doesn't know the ins and outs of inspecting. Today's buyers are quick to point out flaws uncovered by the home inspectors they bring with them, particularly if the flaws could compromise health or safety.

Buyers can use problems as bargaining chips, causing previously agreed upon prices to be lowered or even the cancellation of a deal. Inspections help uncover imperfections that often can be fixed easily and inexpensively, so it's worth it to get your home inspected before you list it.

In addition, a good inspection can raise the likelihood of an offer being placed on your home. Buyers are looking for security. If you can show them your home has been inspected, they'll feel more comfortable with it. That confidence often equates to more dollars in your pocket when you agree to the sale.

The areas covered in home inspections are: the major systems and components such as the foundation, exterior siding, flashing and trim, the roof, plumbing, electrical and heating and cooling units. In addition, some home inspectors offer additional services including radon testing, energy assessments and pool and spa inspections.

The current housing market requires a proactive approach to selling, and to get the result you want, you have to think about every aspect of your home. Having a home inspection can add value to the property, speed up the negotiation process, increase the likelihood of an offer and, most importantly, help sell your home.

Easy Improvements Attract Buyers

(ARA) - Real estate pros often coach their clients on the value of making "curb appeal" improvements to help sell their homes. Outside painting and minor repairs signal that the house has been well cared for.

That's a great marketing tactic, but an even better advantage is offering multiple bathrooms. So if you're planning to put your house on the market and want to make it stand out, consider going a step further and adding a new bathroom.

A spare bath is a great investment. Second only to kitchen remodels for recouping resale value, bathroom additions boast a 63.5 percent rate of return, according to Remodeling Magazine's 2008-2009 "Cost vs. Value" report. And when an up-flushing, macerating toilet - or "up toilet" - is used for the project, its comparatively low installed-cost makes a bathroom addition very affordable.

An up toilet can be installed virtually anywhere in the home. That's because this type of plumbing system operates above the floor, using small-diameter piping to pump waste and water up, not down, and into sewer or septic lines. As a consequence, there is no need for the mess and heavy expense of digging through flooring, especially the concrete variety in the basement.

Macerating technology is ideal for adding a bath in tight spots, such as under a stairway or inside a closet. The simple installation process drives the cost savings.

Best of all, this type of home renovation reaps instant rewards, improving the quality of life now and paying dividends later.

In addition to readying your home with a bathroom addition, here is a checklist of other ways you can easily increase the curb appeal of your home:

- * Remove broken toys and tools that may have collected in the yard.
- * Pick up debris and store trash cans out of view.
- * Install new bulbs in porch and security lighting.
- * Check bricks and pavers for cracks: Replace them and reset any that are loose.
- * Patch worn or cracked asphalt or cement in the driveway.
- * Edge grass and remove weeds that may have grown over walkways.
- * Repaint the front door and freshen up chipped and peeling paint trim.
- * Clean and polish the brass on doorknobs and lock housings, or replace them if severely tarnished.
- * Replace any broken glass panes.
- * Clean out gutters and downspouts.
- * If you have a post mailbox, make sure it is upright and sturdy.

Spring Ahead With Improved Sleep Habits

Free Health Screenings March 24

Project Health MOVES Coming To Quincy

An hour of sleep was lost to daylight saving time (DST) this past Sunday, but an opportunity to adopt better sleep habits presented itself, too.

Atul Malhotra, MD, medical director of the Sleep Disorders Research Program in the Division of Sleep Medicine at Brigham and Women's Hospital (BWH) has suggestions for managing the DST change, and tips on how to get a better overall night's sleep.

To prepare for and cope with one less hour of sleep next Sunday, Dr. Malhotra offers these tips:

- Try adopting an earlier bedtime for a few days before daylight saving time begins to introduce a gradual change, such as going to bed 15 to 30 minutes earlier each night. Also avoid caffeine after lunch on these days.

- Expose your bedroom to the daylight in the morning since light helps signal the brain into an earlier sleep-wake cycle. Avoid bright light in the evening and make the bedroom as dark as possible.

- If possible, take public transportation into work for a few days after the change, rather than driving. Studies have shown that although overall, fewer motor vehicle crashes occur during daylight savings time than during standard time, the rate of fatal crashes goes up for a few days immediately after the spring clock change, due to driver fatigue from the lost hour of sleep. If you must drive, make sure to get a full night's sleep each night and remain vigilant when driving.

The spring clock change also increases the rate of heart attacks for a few days after the change, recent research shows. Avoid stress, plan for a relaxing weekend, and take regular medications.

For an ideal night's rest, aim for eight straight quality hours of sleep, says Dr. Malhotra, and consider these additional suggestions:

- Maintain a consistent sleep schedule to help regulate the body's sleep cycle. Go to sleep and wake up at the same time daily, even on weekends.

- Foods and drinks with caffeine, like hot chocolate, tea, coffee, soda, and chocolate can interfere with sleep and should be avoided after lunch.

- Start a bedtime routine that includes at least 15 to 30 minutes of calm, quiet, soothing activities such as reading. Try and make the light as dim as you can during this time.

- Talk or write about any thoughts, stresses, or concerns. By discussing the issue with someone, or getting it down on paper, the mind is alleviated, making it easier to fall asleep.

- A dark, quiet, cool room is typically the best sleeping environment. Extreme temperatures, noise, and lights-even nightlights- can make getting to sleep and staying asleep difficult. Use an eye mask and ear plugs if you need to.

- Limit time spent in front of the TV or computer or in bright light close to bedtime and do not have a TV or computer in the bedroom.

- Avoid any work right before bedtime. Studying or doing written work does not allow the mind to relax before falling asleep.

- Avoid strenuous exercise right before bedtime. While exercise earlier in the day is good, exercising close to bedtime may make it more difficult to go to sleep.

New Facility Aims To Diagnose And Treat Sleep Disorders Milton Hospital Opens Sleep Research Center

Milton Hospital, a clinical affiliate of Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center providing community-based health care, has entered into a partnership with Sleep HealthCenters to develop and manage a sleep medicine center, including diagnostic, clinical and CPAP (continuous positive airway pressure) therapy.

Sleep HealthCenters' programs provide coordinated diagnosis, medical, pharmacological and behavioral treatments and follow-up services to those suffering from sleep disorders. These integrated services offer physicians and patients greater convenience, valuable information and better outcomes.

"We are pleased to bring sleep medicine to Milton Hospital's patients and referring provider network," said Paul Valentine, CEO of Sleep HealthCenters. "We look forward to providing the highest level of sleep medicine care."

The Milton co-sponsored center will provide the services needed to diagnose, treat, and support patients with sleep disorders. At a single site, patients receive specialized physician evaluation and consultation, state-of-the-art, in-laboratory diagnostic testing, initiation of treatment including CPAP devices, and receive long-term follow-up and case management.

"Sleep disorders are often-overlooked conditions that can greatly impair a person's wellbeing," said Joseph Morrissey, president of Milton Hospital.

"We have completely renovated two rooms to create warm, comfortable 'sleep suites' for patients undergoing sleep studies. With these new rooms and a state-of-the-art control center, we can now provide expert clinical diagnoses and customized treatments that will help our patients get the most of their sleep."

Pulmonologist Hesameddin K. Karimeddin, M.D., oversees Milton Hospital's sleep center as Medical Director. An Assistant Clinical Professor at Tufts University School of Medicine and board certified in Sleep Medicine, Dr. Karimeddin earned a medical degree from Teheran University and served an internship, residency and fellowship in the Boston area, in affiliation with Tufts Medical School, Lemuel Shattuck, Faulker and St. Elizabeth's Hospitals.

"Chronic sleep deprivation may contribute to increased risk for obesity, cardiovascular disease, diabetes and stroke. In the short term, it can lead to excessive daytime sleepiness, fatigue, lack of energy and motivation, memory or learning difficulties, moodiness, difficulty making decisions or clumsiness," Dr. Karimeddin said.

Milton Hospital provides community-based health care to people of all ages in Milton, Quincy, Braintree, Randolph, Canton, Hyde Park, Dorchester and other local communities.

NPH, an Unfamiliar Cause of Dementia

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My wife, 78, has had headaches, some memory problems and confusion. A brain scan showed hydrocephalus. We were referred to a neurosurgeon, and he ordered an infusion study. We have waited six weeks for that appointment. At an earlier appointment, we met someone who had had the infusion study and then had a shunt placed. He said he got his life back. Someone else told us that 10 percent of people diagnosed with Alzheimer's disease really have normal pressure hydrocephalus, which is fixable. What is your reaction to this? -J.R.

ANSWER: Dementia is a fog that descends on the brain, erasing memory and impairing many other mental functions. Alzheimer's disease is the major cause of dementia. However, there are other causes, and one of them is normal pressure hydrocephalus. I can't vouch for the statement that 10 percent of Alzheimer's patients have NPH, but I am sure there are a few who do. I don't want to raise false hopes for Alzheimer's patients.

In NPH, the balance between the production and absorption of cerebrospinal fluid is lost. The volume of fluid within the brain increases and compresses it. That leads to the signs and symptoms of NPH.

The three major indicators of NPH are an abnormal walk, a diminution of memory and other mental functions (dementia) and an urgency to empty the bladder with frequent loss of bladder control. The NPH gait is one where steps are taken slowly, in short strides and with the legs wide apart. People look as though their feet are glued to the ground and they have difficulty turning themselves. A person doesn't need all three criteria to merit the diagnosis.

If signs, symptoms and tests, including a brain scan and the infusion test your wife is going to have, point to normal pressure hydrocephalus, then drainage of the excess brain fluid often can restore a person's life, as the man you met in the doctor's office said. A thin, plastic tube (a shunt) drains the fluid to other body sites where it is absorbed.

Alzheimer's disease is far and away the leading cause of dementia. The booklet on Alzheimer's disease describes it and its treatments in detail. To order a copy, write to: Dr. Donohue - No. 903W, Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. Enclose a check or money order (no cash) for $4.75 U.S./$6 Canada with the recipient's printed name and address. Please allow four weeks for delivery.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: When my son was 10, the doctor gave him a nasal spray to stop his bedwetting. It worked well. He told us to use it only when the boy was going to be away for the night. My son is now an adult and is 6 feet 8 inches tall. Did that inhaler make him grow so tall, a height that is uncomfortable for him? -B.P.

ANSWER: The medicine in the inhaler was a synthetic version of a pituitary gland hormone called antidiuretic hormone, a hormone that slows urine production. It has nothing to do with growth. I guess the world can be inhospitable to the very tall, but many of us wouldn't mind trading places with them.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him or request an order form of available health newsletters at P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

CARRYING AROUND TOO MUCH BAGGAGE

TV and movie actors seem to be able to carry around several pieces of baggage at airports, from taxis, and in their homes without too much of a problem. Obviously, there is nothing in these bags; however, in real life, any medium to large piece of baggage is likely to weigh several tens of pounds. And just because there are convenient handles and straps on suitcases and bags does not mean you should pick them up without a moment's hesitation. You should approach lifting luggage with the same caution that you apply to lifting weights in a gym. Hold the suitcase as close to your body as possible, bend your knees, and use your leg muscles to lift.

At Lincoln Hancock Elementary Pool On April 10 Middle School Swim Meet Expected To Draw Big Crowd

The annual Quincy Middle School Swimming Championships will be held this year on April 10 at the Lincoln Hancock Elementary School (300 Granite Street, Quincy).

This event will begin with a warm-up session starting at 8 a.m. with an actually meet start time of 9 a.m.

The ever-popular swim meet gives local middle school students the opportunity to swim in a competitive atmosphere in front of their families, friends and classmates. Last year's event was held in front of a packed crowd and this year's event should be no different.

The following is important information pertaining to this year swimming championships:

Admission is free and heat sheets will cost $2. Heat sheets will include: records since 1998, parent's squares and swimming/diving information. The extramural swim coaches will also run a 50/50 raffle during the meet and all proceeds will go toward middle school athletics.

Parent's squares: Parents can design a square to acknowledge a swimmer for $5 (all squares should be 8.5" by 11") and all squares must be submitted to your school's swim coach by March 27.

All of the swimming events are timed finals and the top-12 swimmers in each event will receive ribbons and the top-12 finishes will be used in team scoring; ribbons will be sent within three days to each school's swim coach to distribute to the swimmers, along with results.

Parking for the event is limited, and athletes will have the option of riding a school bus to and from their respective schools (except Sterling MS swimmers who will walk.)

Additional information: Two volunteers from each school are needed to help with timing and recording times.

For further information, call your school's swim coach or Bob McGillicuddy at Sterling MS at 617-984-8729 or Chris Murtaugh at Broad Meadows MS at 617-984-8723.

Event to Be Held March 27 at Quincy Armory America FC Under-8 Foundations Open House

The America Football Club (AFC) currently has open enrollment in their Under-8 Foundations Soccer Spring Skills Program. The spring program is open to first- and second-grade boys and girls (ages 6-7).

The U8 program provides extensive soccer skills development for young players and it is AFC's preparation program for parents interested in having their children get a head start in organized league play.

Families interested in sampling a U8 training session or asking questions about AFC's programs can attend a U8 Foundations Open House at the Quincy Armory on Saturday, March 27 from 1-2:30 p.m.

Parents are asked to bring their young soccer players dressed to play: t-shirt, shin guards, socks, and tennis shoes. Working with the players will be AFC Foundations trainers Bethany Kinsley, Robbie O'Brien, Jim Sheridan (U10 girls coach), and James Abundis (U14 girls coach), as well as other AFC staff.

When the first training session starts later this month, enrolled players will train for an hour-and-a-half, three times a week over a nine-week period. The structured program places emphasis on individual ball work and possession skill development. During each of the three days, players work directly with their soccer ball for about half a session and learn feigns and other change of direction moves.

"Our training emphasis in the early ages is not on passing the ball but on keeping possession of it," said AFC Academy Director James Abundis. "Passing skills are developed later, players at this age need to develop motor skills, basic coordination, and ball control skills."

Abundis and the AFC training crew try to maximize the number of touches the players have on the ball while they are training. In most training exercises, each player is drilling with their ball or paired up with another player.

The U8 players receive a heavy dose of "foundation" skills training during the entire program. The goal is to start developing a core skill set with the enrollees before they enter the U10 ranks and start competing against other players from different communities. On Friday, the third training day, Foundations players participate in an in-house U8 league where they can practice their skills.

If you are interested in enrolling your child, want more information, plan on attending the Open House March 27. Log onto www.americafc.us for additional information or to enroll; enrollment in the program is limited to only 36 children and is on a first-come-first-serve basis.

You may direct questions to James Abundis at americafcsoccer@hotmail.com.

To Be Held May 1 & 2 at QYA

1st Annual NQ/Quincy Alumni Hockey Tournament

The first annual North Quincy vs. Quincy Alumni Hockey Tournament will be held May 1 and 2 at the Quincy Youth Arena.

The tournament, which will give old friends and teammates an opportunity to play with each other as well as against each other, will be set up in a round robin (two-game elimination) formation with two divisions: North Quincy and Quincy.

The Quincy Division and North Quincy Division will battle it out to see which alumni team is the best from each high school. The winner of each division will then represent their respective teams and fellow alumni in the North Quincy versus Quincy Alumni Championship game.

The cost of the event is $50 per player. Each participant will receive a jersey and will be guaranteed at least two games. You may sign up individually and will be placed on a team or you may also submit an entire team with a minimum of ten players per team.

For additional information regarding the tournament, whether you want to play, submit an entire team, volunteer or become a sponsor, visit www.quincynorthquincyalumnihockey.com or email Matt Gibbons at nghockey@hotmail.com with your name, school, graduation year and your email address.

Jessica Page All-Time Leading Scorer

Page set the new record of 1,659 points, surpassing the previous record of 1,632 by 27 points.

She broke the school record by two points in The Commonwealth Coast Conference semifinal game versus Endicott College on Feb. 15. She helped lead the Pride to a 73-66 victory.

Page played a team-high 1,037 minutes, and averaged 14.8 points per game through 30 games. She had a season-high 24 points against Mount Ida College (Nov. 15, 2009), and scored more than ten points in 23 games this season. Regis won 17 of those games in when she scored at least 13 points.

She helped lead the Regis College women's basketball team to the TCCC finals for the first time since the 1990s; the Pride lost to the University of New England in the TCCC finals, and to Plymouth State in the ECAC semifinals.

Page is a nursing student at Regis College and plans to continue practicing following graduation in May. She has been completing her clinical hours as part of the nursing program requirements all while being an active participant of the women's team.

Half Marathon To Be Held Sunday

This Sunday (March 21), the first annual 'The Half of Quincy' half-marathon will take place in Quincy.

Starting at the current Quincy High School, just outside Quincy Center, the 13.1-mile distance race will travel by Mt. Wollaston Cemetery through Merymount, along Wollaston Beach, around the Squantum Peninsula and Marina Bay, along the Neponset River, by the State Street South Complex, through Montclair, Wollaston, West Quincy, on Adams Street by the Adams National Historic Park and back to QHS through Quincy Center, passing Quincy City Hall, the Hancock Cemetery and the United First Parish Church.

The race is a way to provide a time trial for all those runners taking part in the Boston Marathon on April 19. This race, which had been enthusiastically welcomed by the city, will help to generate funds for running programs at the two city high schools, as well as the Quincy Track Club, the Quincy Police Department's DARE Program and the Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge.

Runners will receive technical shirts specifically designed for the race by Keezer Sportswear. Participants will be hosted by QHS with registration and number pickup in the school's auditorium and bag drop off and pickup after the race in the school's cafeteria.

For additional information, visit www.halfofquincy.com or contact JJ Larner, Race Director, at kellyandjj@aol.com or at 617-909-6726.

Bill Dunn Jr. Memorial Road Race June 26

The Bill Dunn Jr. Memorial Road Race will be held Saturday, June 26 in Houghs Neck. The event is a great time for friends and family of Bill Dunn Jr. to gather in honor of his life and share memories with each other. This is the 4th year the Road Race is being held and each year the support and participation is remarkable.

Registration for the annual event will begin at 7am at the St. Thomas Aquinas Hall on Darrow Street in Quincy. Those interested can participate in a 5 mile run or 2 mile walk beginning at 9am.

Prizes will be awarded for 1st Place Male/Female Runner and 1st Houghs Neck Resident Male/Female Runner. The first 600 people to register will receive a free race T-shirt.

Following this year's race, a barbecue will be held courtesy of local donations. There will be a disc jockey and a 50/50 raffle. We also will be giving away a scholarship the day of the race.

Proceeds from the event benefit the Bill Dunn Jr. Memorial Scholarship which has provided scholarships to Quincy High School students and donations to other local organizations.

The registration fee is $20 however for those that sign up before June 15th, the registration fee is $15. Registration forms are available on line at www.RememberB.com and can be mailed to: Bill Dunn Jr. Memorial Road Race, 105 Edgewater Dr., Quincy, MA 02169.

Quincy Residents Square Off in Florida

Mike Lebel and Scott Warwick, longtime friends and teammates from the time that they played together on an eight-year-old travel team up through Quincy American Legion, squared off against one another last week in Winter Haven, Florida.

Warwick was the starting pitcher for Fairfield University and Lebel batted on a six-game road trip in Oklahoma playing against perennial powerhouses Oklahoma State and Oklahoma.

Lebel led off the game with a walk and later scored; in the second inning, he banged out a single to left field to knock in a run, stole second base and ultimately came around to score.

URI won the game.

After their trip to Florida, both Warwick and Lebel, and their teams, are back in the Northeast getting ready to start their conference schedules. Also getting ready to start conference play are Ricky Salvucci of Northeastern University and Kevin Magoon of Sacred Heart University.

Quirk Forges Partnership With QY Baseball & Softball

In the spirit of community collaboration and teamwork taught throughout youth sports, Quirk Chevrolet, this spring, will be supporting Quincy Youth Baseball and Softball through the Chevy Youth Baseball/Softball program.

This sponsorship will include both monetary and equipment donations during the 2010 baseball/softball season.

Now in its fourth year, Chevy Youth Baseball is a grassroots initiative that establishes a positive relationship between local dealers and the communities they serve. Quirk Chevrolet is sponsoring QYB and Softball and over the course of the season will be donating equipment bags, baseballs, softballs, catcher's gear, batting helmets, ball buckets, scorebooks and first aid kits.

"We are looking forward to a great season with Quincy Youth Baseball & Softball that will be filled with exciting games and an enhanced experience for the teams through the equipment and cash donations," said Melanie Smith of Quirk Chevrolet. "Chevy Youth Baseball is just one example of how committed our dealership is to supporting the youth and families in the community."

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Decisions, decisions, decisions... Life is one hectic round of decisions - and none is harder than the one you have to make in the split second when the cafeteria line passes the dessert counter!

Many people have difficulty in making decisions. Some make decisions too quickly and others too slowly. Some people make decisions easily. There are others who appear to do nothing but wring their hands and bite their fingernails when they are confronted with the necessity of making a decision.

Every day, each of us makes decisions that determine the direction in which our lives will move. No one, no matter how wise or how highly principled, can make the right decision every time. To err is no disgrace. The disgrace lies in not learning from our mistakes, not recovering from our defeats, not picking ourselves up, brushing ourselves off and trying again.

Yet many of life's problems are insoluble. They just have to be lived with. And, yes, the problem of making decisions is certainly one of these...

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)
A pesky health problem should clear up soon. Meanwhile, travel - both for personal as well as for business reasons - is strong in the Aries aspect this week, and well into the next.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)
Look for Bovines to be on the move this week, whether it's traveling for fun or for business. Other "moves" include workplace adjustments and, for some, relationship changes.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20)
Geminis who have just gone through a hectic period involving job and/or family matters might want to take some well-earned time out to relax and restore those drained energy levels.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22)
A romantic situation seems to have stalled, just when the Moon Child was expecting it to go forward. Could that be a bad case of miscommunication going on. Talk it over openly and honestly.

LEO (July 23 to August 22)
Showing a genuine interest in something that's important to a friend, family member or colleague could open a communication line that had been pretty much shut down for a while.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22)
Making a potentially life-changing decision takes as much knowledge as you can gather, plus determination and patience. Take your time working it out. Don't let anyone rush you.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22)
You should be back on schedule and heading in the right direction after clearing up a misunderstanding. But there could still be some setbacks. If so, correct them immediately.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21)
A business matter keeps you pretty busy, but try to squeeze in time to be with family as well as close friends. You need the good vibrations you get from people who care for you.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21)
Investing in an attractive prospect (business or personal) with little or no information can be risky. Avoid future problems by getting all the facts before you act.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19)
Someone close to you might have an unexpected reaction to a decision you feel you're prepared to make. Listen to his or her point of view. It could prove to be surprisingly helpful.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18)
Don't give up yet. That once warm, personal relationship that seems to be cooling off fast could recover with some tender, loving care, and who better than you to provide it?

PISCES (February 19 to March 20)
Career matters are strong this week. You might want to enter a training program to enhance your skills. Also, consider getting professional help in preparing a brilliant resume.

BORN THIS WEEK:
You have a way of respecting the feelings of others, which is one reason people feel comfortable having you in their lives.

Congressman Delivered Federal Funds For Concourse, Broad Meadows Marsh Restoration

City Will Miss Delahunt's Hard Work, Influence

By TOM HENSHAW

Quincy will lose more than just a favorite son when Bill Delahunt leaves his 10th District seat in Congress next January. The city will miss a hard-working and generous friend at the very seat of government power.

"I'm happy for him personally but on the other hand I am sad for the city," said Mayor Tom Koch. "A seven-term congressman knows his way around Washington. He has had tremendous influence in Congress. It is a big loss to the city."

"He got us $6 million in America Resource Reinvestment Act (ARRA) stimulus funds for construction and demolition to start the final phase of the Quincy Center Concourse. That part of the project cost $8.2 million, so it allowed us to save $6 million."

"The federal government earmarked the $6 million for highway construction in Fiscal 2004," said Planning Director Dennis Harrington. "Delahunt was following the earmarks so that when the funds became available under ARRA in 2009 he worked to make sure the Concourse was eligible."

("Earmarks" is a dirty word around the halls of Congress these days --- but it has a different meaning on the local level.)

"Bill has worked for many years on the clean-up and restoration of the Quincy marshes," said Koch. "The federal government is paying 75 percent for the work on the Broad Meadows marshes. It hasn't started yet but the funding is committed."

"Delahunt's help was critical in allowing the project to go forward," said Margaret Laforest, the city councilor from Ward 1 and a longtime Houghs Neck activist. "Thanks to his efforts we'll have a multi-recreational area that is great for the environment and the (Broad Meadows) school."

The marsh work, which is set to start at the end of the month, will correct mistakes made in 1938 and 1956 when material dredged from the Town River was dumped in the marsh, choking off the natural habitat and replacing it with elephant grass, which periodically caught fire.

"He was a congressman willing and able to deliver for his district," said Rep. Stephen Tobin, whose legislative district includes the CONG. WILLIAM DELAHUNT's decision not to seek reelection this fall "is a big loss to the city," says Mayor Thomas Koch (left).

Broad Meadows marshes.

"Any time we needed help we could call Delahunt's office. Immigration, Social Security, veterans, anything to help the people of Quincy. His office and staff were great to us on a day-to-day basis. His constituent service was great."

Rep. Ron Mariano remembers Delahunt as "a conscientious congressman."

"He had a world view in Congress," he said, "but always remembered his constituents. He had old school values."

Delahunt worked diligently for what he termed "the Cultural Coast," a link among Quincy, Plymouth and Cape Cod that benefited tourism in Quincy by attracting those visitors who thought the area between Boston and Plymouth was devoid of anything of interest.

"I feel terrible to lose him," said Mark Carey, director of Discover Quincy. "He was a great friend of tourism. He always knew the whole picture. In these times people look to cut the budget. If they cut the tourism budget, we'd be in worse shape."

"The Cultural Coast enables us to advertise world wide as a group. Delahunt really identifies how tourism works."

Delahunt also played a key role in the plan to erect a memorial to John Adams on the Mall in Washington. The Adams Memorial Foundation was authorized in 2001 and reauthorized in 2009.

"He played a major role in the reauthorization vote," said former Mayor James Sheets, who currently works for the foundation. "He was the contact person."

The memorial is still in the planning stage. The foundation is still in the planning stage with seven or eight locations under consideration, each faced with a different issue, said Sheets.

"He was very active when we needed $30 million to transform Quincy Hospital into Quincy Medical Center," said the former mayor.

"As he used to point out, 'I'm one of only two people from Quincy to go the Congress,'" said Sen. Michael Morrissey.

The other one would be John Quincy Adams, who served from 1831 to 1848.

Will Quincy have to wait another 162 years for its third congressman?

$3.6M Contract Awarded For Salt Marsh Restoration

The Broad Meadows Marsh Restoration Project in Quincy will begin under the terms of a $3,660,500 contract issued recently by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, New England District.

The contract also includes $1 million in contract options.

The salt marsh restoration, which will be accompanied by RC&D, Inc. of Providence, R.I., is scheduled to begin later this month and take approximately two to three years to complete.

The project involves the removal of approximately 420,000 cubic yards of historic fill resulting from disposal of dredged material within a diked area. The dredged material will be excavated to replicate the marsh's historic tidal creeks and surface elevations and restore tidal flushing.

The project will restore approximately 65 acres of salt marsh, wetlands and coastal grasslands. The City of Quincy is the nonfederal sponsor for this project.

Construction activities will involve excavation of approximately 6 to 10 feet of former hydraulically dredged material, from the southern portion of the former dredged material disposal site to achieve a sustainable salt marsh elevation.

Two main tidal channels will be constructed through the marsh to provide tidal flushing to sustain a salt marsh ecosystem and provide about six acres of aquatic intertidal habitat.

The restored salt marsh will replace the low value common reed (Phragmites australis) marsh that occupies the site, restoring estuarine fish and wildlife communities.

All work will be accomplished under the supervision of a Corps of Engineers Quality Management Engineer/Representative to assure compliance with contract requirements.

Treasurer Deborah Coughlin Reports To Finance Committee:

Tardy Taxpayers Owe $8M On 300 Properties In Tax Title

Overdue tax bills now total $8 million owed to the city, according to Treasurer Deborah Coughlin who reported Monday that 300 properties are on the delinquents' tax list.

Coughlin spoke at the Finance Committee meeting Monday as Chairman John Keenan and councillors began their annual review of city departments.

According to Coughlin, the city has taken ownership of the largest property on the delinquents' list through two Land Court decisions in December. The court assigned ownership of adjoining parcels on Intervale Street to the city due to an $800,000 delinquent bill.

"The city now owns that," said Coughlin who suggested the property was worth less than the total tax bill. "The interest has brought it higher than the actual value."

As for the other 299 properties with delinquent tax bills, Coughlin said, the original taxes due on those properties was $5 million, but subsequent interest and penalties now total some $3 million.

Keenan asked Coughlin to prepare a list describing each property and the assessed value of the properties.

"We want to get that back on the tax rolls," said Keenan of the Intervale parcels and, later, of all the

Plan To Help Homeowners Displaced By Damages

Emergency Housing For Flood Victims

The City has established an emergency housing program to help homeowners who cannot move back into their homes for an extended period because of damages caused by last week's devastating flood. Mayor Thomas Koch announced Tuesday.

"We hope that providing housing assistance we will be able to give our families and homeowners a little peace of mind during this incredibly difficult time," Koch said. "There are homeowners affected by this tragedy that will not be able to get back into their home for three, four-months, or even longer. There are few things more devastating than to be without a home, and we want to do everything we can to help."

Koch, working with Neighborhood Housing Services of the South Shore, asked the Affordable Housing Trust Committee to convene an emergency meeting on Wednesday to provide funding for the program.

The Affordable Housing Trust Fund is money contributed to the City by developers of large-scale projects and set aside to provide affordable housing for Quincy residents.

Koch said he will ask the committee to waive traditional income requirements for the emergency program, meaning that the only eligibility requirement would be that homeowners have been displaced by the flooding.

Neighborhood Housing Services will administer the program by providing rental vouchers for market-rate apartments in the area. The program will also cover up to $1,000 of moving costs.

Frustrated Flood Victims Seek State Assistance

By JOE REARDON

Exhausted and frustrated from the aftermath of last week's relentless rain and flooding, Quincy residents packed into a function room at The Common Market on Monday night to hear the plan going forward to secure disaster area funds.

Kurt Schwartz of MEMA (Massachusetts Emergency Management Association) told the crowd of nearly 200 residents, mainly from West Quincy, that Governor Deval Patrick has been keeping tabs on the flooding that affected 60 cities and towns in the commonwealth. "The Governor has been fully aware since the rain started," said Schwartz.

Preliminary Disaster Assessment Teams were in Quincy and Norfolk County last week visiting the areas hit hardest by the nearly eight inches of rain that pounded the state. Mayor Thomas Koch said the first goal is to gather all the necessary information to present to Gov. Deval Patrick, who would then request that the city be declared a disaster area.

"We are working to build

Cookout A Welcomed Sight For West Quincy Neighborhood

By JOE REARDON

People's lifetime possessions lay on the sidewalk, destroyed by unforgiving floodwaters. Alrick Road neighbors, Saturday, were busy going in and out of their homes, many of them gutted beyond repair, throwing rugs, paneling and furniture onto their front yards and into dumpsters.

The reality of the relentless rain that dumped more than seven inches was in stark contrast to the sunny skies and party-like atmosphere of a cookout put on by the Quincy Fire Department.

Firefighter Ernie Arienti came up with the idea of putting on a cookout to give the residents a break and put the devastation of the neighborhood on the backburner, if only for a little while.

"We wanted to do something for them down here," said Arienti during a quick break from cooking up hamburgers and hot dogs on the grill. "Our guys were down here. They saw firsthand the devastation."

Within a couple of hours, the fire department had the Quincy Credit Union and Red Cross on board along with a number of volunteers. Pamphlets were made up and distributed and the notice of the cookout was on Quincy Cable.

"Things happened so quick," said Arienti. "We talked to people down here and they were shocked. 'We are here for you, and we will always be here for you,'" Arienti told the crowd. "It's incredible that the same rain that brought so much devastation just days ago has brought us so much closer."

A 25-year veteran of the fire department, Arienti has seen his share of flooding over the years, much of it devastating to homeowners. That didn't prepare him for the Alrick Road disaster area.

"It's the worst I've ever seen," Arienti said. "We've seen flooding but not this magnitude."

The music of DJ Joe Fasci blasted throughout the neighborhood as he tirelessly cheered on the kids in a hula-hoop competition. Fasci, who provides the musical entertainment for beach parties in the city, offered his talents free of charge, giving the event an even more festive atmosphere.

"This is amazing!" said Alrick Road resident Meaghan Ryan. "I spent years saving special items to give to my children as they grow older, and now these irreplaceable items are gone," Ryan said. "I want to thank the firefighters; their efforts here today have taken away from the loneliness. Coming out here today is fantastic!"

Senator Mike Morrissey was on hand, chatting with neighbors, and getting another look at the destruction. He commended the fire department and its work throughout the city during the flooding and assured residents he was committed to provide assistance at the state level.

"The fire department has been here the first day and they've been here ever since," Morrissey said. "We will get through these rough times, together."

Russ Robbs' 64 Alrick Road front yard was adorned with tents that were donated by The Tent Guys Party Rental. "No one got hurt," said Robbs. "We just have to go on from here. Tragedies seem to bring people together; you can see that here today."

Mayor Tom Koch and Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci chatted with the neighbors and looked over the carnage the flooding left in its wake. "It has been said that the worst of times brings out the best in people," Koch said. "The continued good will of the Quincy firefighters and the Quincy Credit Union shows that Quincy is more than a great city, but more importantly, a great community."

Said Palmucci: "I am so glad the firefighters are here to provide a positive action to offset the misery these poor people have suffered for days."

Virginia Ryan of 89 Alrick Road saw her cellar fill completely with water and work its way to the first floor, soaking it with 10 inches. No one on the street, she said, escaped unscathed. "We all got hit," said Ryan. "It's just devastating."

Kathy O'Callaghan was terrified by the force of the water. "This was a violent flood that burst through my steel doors," O'Callaghan said. "In the matter of two hours my cellar went from a trace of water to a flood. We had no time to evacuate ourselves. The firefighters took my children and me in a boat and put out a fire in my furnace. The calmed my children down and brought us to safety. The night before..."

Palmucci Office Hours At Ward 4 Community Room March 31

Ward 4 Councilor Palmucci will hold office hours Wednesday, March 31 beginning at 6 p.m. at the Ward 4 Neighborhood Association's Community Room, 100 Brooks Ave.

Residents who would like to discuss matters before the City Council, local issues, or individual matters are encouraged to stop by.

"While I am always accessible by phone or email, I want to give my constituents the opportunity to meet with me one on one to discuss the issues that are important to them," Palmucci said.

"Listening to and communicating with residents is one of the most important parts of my job, and I am trying to broaden the ways in which it happens."

Residents with questions about this or any other matter can contact Palmucci on his cell phone at (617) 834-3945 or by email at bpalmucci@quincyma.gov.

Census Assistance Center At Quincy Medical

Quincy Medical Center has teamed up with the 2010 U.S. Census to host a Questionnaire Assistance Center. The Census Bureau places Questionnaire Assistance Centers throughout the community to give people a place to go for help filling out their questionnaires. Census Bureau professionals staff the centers and are dedicated to helping people accurately complete their census. Information will be available in multiple languages and the Census Bureau will provide multilingual staff. The Census Questionnaire Assistance Center will be manned in the Quincy Medical Center's Conference Room D on Friday, March 26 and April 2 from 9 to 11 a.m.; and Friday, April 9 and April 16 from 1 to 3 p.m.

118 New Computers, Labs, Other Equipment NQHS Technology Systems Will Get Major Overhaul

Mayor Thomas Koch announced Tuesday he will use $270,000 in fees paid by Comcast to complete a major overhaul of technology systems at North Quincy High School, including more than 110 new computers, new computer labs, and other state-of-the-art classroom equipment.

"Improving and expanding technology use is absolutely vital to providing the best possible educational environment for our kids, and we expect this investment will go a long way toward ensuring our classrooms are equipped for the 21st century," said Koch.

The plan, developed in partnership with School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro and staff at North Quincy High, will create four new computer labs and update two existing ones.

The move means that each department at North will have its own computer lab, classrooms will be upgraded with overhead projectors and Interwrite boards, and several existing labs will be upgraded.

The plan calls for a total of 118 computers, 30 projectors, and 30 InterWrite boards, which are interactive writable screens like the ones used by television meteorologists. Room remodeling and refurbishments will be performed by in-house workers.

"This will affect every student and every teacher at North - it is truly a tremendous opportunity for our students and staff to utilize technology resources in all major content and curriculum areas," said DeCristofaro.

The funding comes from fees paid by the City's cable television provider, Comcast, as part of its license agreement with the City. No money from the City's general budget will be used for the project.

The North Quincy High project is one phase of a broader technology plan, Koch said, adding that officials will be looking at the needs of the City's middle schools as the next phase of the project. The upgrades come more than a year after the City conducted an overhaul of the school department's computer networking capabilities.

"We are taking a systematic approach to bring each and every one of our schools up-to-speed on technology systems and capabilities, which will only add to the wonderful work of our teachers and administrators do on a daily basis to make Quincy one of the best school systems in Massachusetts," Koch said.

We Salute Kiwanis Junior Heroes

We've all heard the expression: all news is bad, it's never good.

Thankfully, that's not true, of course. In fact, anyone who needs a healthy dose of feel good stories should look no further than the Quincy Public School system. And a few nearby schools with local students.

Because that's where you'll find plenty of inspiring tales of courage, dedication and sense of community.

These are the students who make up this year's class of Junior Heroes recently honored by the Quincy Kiwanis Club.

This newspaper joins Kiwanians, school administrators, teachers and public officials in applauding their efforts. We also recognize the love and support their parents provide in helping to raise these civic-conscious citizens.

The Quincy Kiwanis Club recently presented its Junior Heroes Awards to 17 students from elementary school to high school. The award is named in memory of Patrick Toland White, a very personable, outgoing and quick-witted kid who died of cancer in November 2005 at the tender age of 15. Because of Patrick's positive attitude and upbeat personality, the Kiwanis Club dedicated the award in "Whitey's" memory.

Like Patrick, this year's Junior Heroes are inspiration not only to their peers but to all citizens in every corner of the city. They are simply young people who are striving to make our schools and community a better place. But they are so much more.

Here's a look at this year's recipients and their "heroic" stories highlighted in this year's program booklet produced by the Kiwanis Club.

North Quincy High School students Katie Flaherty, Jackie Kelley, Stephanie Sweeney and Dana Djerf serve as the officers of the school's SADD chapter.

As the leaders of SADD, Katie, Jackie, Stephanie and Dana work together tirelessly to promote SADD's mission of Students Against Destructive Decisions.

DANA

They volunteer their time to play active roles in creating more awareness for SADD.

One initiative they're involved in is running a sunless tanning campaign. They've also presented a $1500 Taylor Meyer Scholarship to Kathi Meyer. Kathi is the mother of 17-year-old Taylor Meyer who died in October 2008 after binge drinking in Norfolk, MA.

The SADD Chapter – and these four young ladies – are helping to spread the word to their fellow students about the dangers of destructive decisions.

TAYLER BAKER is a student at the Sterling Middle School who was forced to leave her home after Hurricane Katrina. Classmates and staff call her a role model and leader. Among the activities she's involved in: Sterling Singers, volleyball, basketball, Helping Hands, and Homework Club. Tayler has been honored as a Student of the Month and is an honor roll student even though she missed a year and a half of school because of her relocation to Quincy. Despite the difficulty of some of her class work, she never stops trying to be the best student she can be.

The brother-tandem of Liam Batson and Griffin Batson was recognized for their work on behalf of those less fortunate. Liam – a two-time Junior Hero – attends Broad Meadows Middle School. His younger brother Griffin is a student at the Atherton Hough Elementary School.

LIAM and GRIFFIN

For many years, Liam donated all his birthday presents – as well as food – to the Germantown Neighborhood Center. His generosity helps bolster the Center's assistance around the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays. Liam is also active in Operation Days Work at Broad Meadows.

Griffin is deserving of the Junior Hero award in his own right. After the devastating earthquake struck Haiti, Griffin helped organize a "Hot Chocolate for Haiti" at the Quincy Youth Arena. With the help of his brother, Liam, the event raised over $1,000 for Haiti relief.

Mike Cronin, a former resident of Las Vegas, enrolled at the Point Webster Middle School last fall. Mike is lauded for his self-initiated acts of kindness. They include volunteering at local nursing homes at Christmas time. He's a very close friend of Santa and distributes holiday cards to the elderly. Mike and his father also deliver boxed lunches to families with low socioeconomic status.

MIKE

Mike, a member of the Student Council, also helps gather canned foods for the Germantown Neighborhood Center. He's collected Pennies for Patients and winter coats for Coats for Kids. He is always there to assist teachers in any way he can.

Elio Daci, a student at the Sterling Middle School, is known for his wonderful personality and disposition. He's also a strong leader. The vice president of the Student Council, Elio is willing to help any student or staff member. Among the causes he's actively engaged in: the annual Food Drive, holiday fundraising and is an assistant coach for the fifth grade volleyball program. He is also a member of the volleyball extramural and intramural teams. He is a three-year member of the swim team.

ELIO

Elio runs the audio-video portions at school assemblies; sets up all activities before and after school in the auditorium; and keeps the Student Council store stocked and running efficiently. His drive is also evident in the classroom: he maintains High Honor grades.

Xylena Desquitado, a student at the Sterling Middle School, demonstrates a strong sense of academics and community service. Since she was in the sixth grade, she has worked hard on her academic studies while exhibiting helpfulness and kindness to others. Her strong values and determination help her succeed in anything.

XYLENA

Among the Community Serving Learning projects that Xylena Desquitado has been involved in: Pennies for Patients, Coats for Kids, Idle Free Zone campaign for school, Recycling program for school, books for Reach out Reach Children's Hospital, Collecting Tabs for Shriner's Burn Hospital, and Cleaner, Greener Quincy.

Lauren DiBona of Quincy is a senior at Archbishop Williams High School in Braintree. She's a talented, motivated student with great study skills and a dedication to success. She's ranked in the top 5 percent of her class.

Lauren is also known for her dedication to worthy causes and projects. She volunteers at all school Open Houses, Back to School Nights and other events needing student presence. She also tutors her peers – as well as local middle school students – with their academics. Her sense of community and volunteerism began when she was in elementary school and it continues today.

LAUREN

Owen Doherty, a Wollaston Elementary School student, has been described by one of his teachers as one of the kindest children in her class. He also does a lot for the community. His activities include Boy Scouts (and marches in the color guard of every parade); participates in the Mayor's Community Breakfast for Scouts; and has had breakfast with the King of Sweden and other Boy Scouts when the King was in Boston for a yacht race.

OWEN

Closer to home, he has planted trees in the Blue Hills and Merrymount Park; has helped Girl Scouts clean up the nature trails at Beechwood

Son Beams

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Knoll; plants tulips at school and takes the trash out for a very sick lady every week since October.

In addition, he is involved with Christmas Caroling for a nursing home; has helped raise money for the "Heifer Project" at church to raise money for people in Africa to have cows and chickens; recycles at home and school; collects canned goods for a food pantry; and participates in the Quincy Medical Center Walk for Cancer.

Ryan Manning, a fifth grader at the Squantum Elementary School, is a natural leader, good hearted, and a role model, according to his teachers. He displays these traits in the Squantum School Drama Club. Teacher and Drama Club Advisor Marianne Salas says Ryan is constantly helping younger students in the group.

RYAN

During a holiday event based on "The Polar Express," Ryan rose to the occasion in several aspects. He acted as an "Elf" and assisted a number of craft and game activities. He also helped keep order among the younger children. "They looked up to him as being someone 'cool' and took his suggestions to 'walk slowly' or 'quiet down' very seriously," Salas explains.

Ryan is known for setting a positive example without alienating other kids. He's also a strong anti-bullying advocate.

Joshua Quinlan, a student at the Broad Meadows Middle School, exemplifies empathy for those he knows and those who are strangers to him. Joshua and his family recently traveled to Virginia to meet with and cheer up a boy afflicted with cancer.

JOSHUA

Instead of focusing on the basketball games he would miss, Joshua thought of the enjoyment he would help bring to this boy whom he had not yet met. Showing kindness to a stranger truly reveals the compassionate way that Joshua treats others.

In summing up his experience in Virginia, Joshua described how he was impressed with the boy's cheerfulness despite his illness. He focused on the boy who was suffering rather than his own act of thoughtfulness. The admiration for the young boy's heroism – while disregarding his own good deed – illustrates the strength of Joshua's character.

Jimmy Scribi, a junior at North Quincy High School, received this honor because he acts like a hero day in and day out. Despite being busy with a challenging course load, athletics and family obligations, Jimmy manages to find time to help less fortunate students.

JIMMY

One of the more inspirational stories of his volunteerism involves teaching special needs students how to swim at the Lincoln-Hancock Community School Pool. In fact, Jimmy calls it the most rewarding thing he has ever done. Even though he knows the student he's helping will never be able to actually swim without significant assistance, he helps that child and puts a smile on his face.

Korien Sorenson, a student at Quincy High School, is compassionate, athletic, empathetic and a great role model. She is tri-sport athlete who excels – with quiet grace and humbleness – on the softball diamond and volleyball and basketball courts.

She is also strong academically. Teachers say she is helpful in the classroom and a model student. She serves as a "Student Buddy" to introduce new students to Quincy

KORIEN

High School.

Gredi Zyba, a fourth grader at the Lincoln Hancock Elementary School, was honored for his work involving the beautification of the school grounds. During the city-wide clean-up last May, many people volunteered to weed, rake and spread mulch. Gredi took part from beginning to end. He manned the wheel barrow and delivered mulch to every garden surrounding the school.

Then, this past fall, Gredi led the efforts to weed the garden that lines one of the side-walks. The garden honors parents who have been active in the Parent Teacher Council and no longer have children in the school. When school started last September, the garden had not been weeded at all. Gredi made sure the garden was again looking its best.

Take a bow and a round of applause for this year's Junior Heroes. And most of all, thank you for your service to your school and the community.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1915 postcard is a view of the wooden fire station for Hose Three and Ladder Three that was on Copeland Street in West Quincy for over 40 years. It was built in 1894 next to the Willard School that was on the right. Hose Company Nov. 3 was simply called "Granite" when it was organized in 1852. Before it moved here its original equipment was housed in the building now occupied by Callahan's Tap on the corner of Furnace Avenue and Copeland Street. That plot of land was a gift to the Town of Quincy from Solomon Willard who also built the first school here and gave it to the Town. The present home of this fire company is to the left of this view on the corner of Miller Street. It was built in 1939. This above site became part of the school grounds and is now part of the parking lot for the Willard Building office condominiums. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Reexamine City-Thayer Academy Memorandum Of Understanding

I want to thank the Quincy City Council, particularly, Margaret Laforest, Brian Palmucci, Joseph Finn, and Douglas Gutro for bringing the Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) between the City of Quincy and Thayer Academy of Braintree for further examination by the Council's Monday, March 1 meeting. The Thayer Academy of Braintree presented plans for the rowing venue at the Town River historic waterfront facility.

To have a rowing venue at the Town River is one of the finest activities for the site along with Commercial Lobstermen. The Tide Mill and the historic wharf are all part of this site's complete picture, researched and eloquently presented by Councillor Laforest at Monday's meeting. Mayor Koch has stated that this deal is "a textbook of private public partnership" and perhaps it is. However, let's look if Quincy taxpayers are treated fairly and equally on the long run.

It was evident at the Monday meeting, these councillors are looking out for Quincy taxpayers best interest and asking pertinent questions and in general addressing the MOU's overall elusiveness. The most astonishing fact is that it remains in power in perpetuity for Thayer Academy's use. Those issues particularly were alarming, namely that Quincy taxpayers are paying for the maintenance, and energy on the facility even for the Thayer's use. In addition, Quincy is being the subservient user. Furthermore, an astonishing fact is that the Thayer Academy will enjoy free use of this waterfront access in perpetuity. There was no clause to revoke the MOU. Thank you Councillor Palmucci for asking these pertinent questions.

As a taxpayer, and also an avid rowing programs supporter (our grandson is a world champion rower and we have followed his rowing career here in the United States, in Canada and at the Worlds) the rowing program on this site is a great idea.

At this time, I would like to suggest to our Mayor, his legal department and the Park Department Board to please take another look at the MOU. Perhaps a user fee, lets say after five years, could be included in the MOU, by then Thayer Academy has had ample time to fully garner the benefits of their initial one-time investment on this incredibly valuable water access, not only to Town and Fore Rivers but also to the Atlantic Ocean.

The user fee could, for example, support the Souther Tide Mill historic preservation and restoration project, in keeping the sustainability concept in tact, as suggested by Councillor Raymondi at the Tide Mill public meeting held Feb. 25, 2010.

For years the Tide Mill site has been out of sight, yet one of the hidden treasures in Quincy. Now, thanks to Thayer Academy's proposal, this natural resource has finally come to daylight for action.

I would like to conclude: Thayer Academy knows what a valuable deal this is for a very little investment for their rowing program, and also good for Quincy. Quincy, however, has the most important part of the deal, the water access, perhaps the last publicly owned waterfront. The value of this property no one at the meeting was able to substantiate.

Now, I am sure that Thayer Academy is going to be a great partner with the City of Quincy, as they are with the Town of Braintree. Let's reexamine the MOU.

LaRaia To Submit Budget To Council; Sees $7 Tax Hike

By FRANK McCAULEY

Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia plans to submit the city budget for FY 1978 to the City Council Monday, April 4, a full month ahead of the extended deadline set by the state.

However, he declined to disclose the budget figures and he added that a supplementary budget would have to be submitted during the year to cover expected wage increases negotiated with city employees. It is expected to be a record-high budget.

"Members of my staff wanted overtime to prepare the budget to meet the original deadline," LaRaia said.

The City Council last year complained that it wanted the budget earlier despite the state extension.

LaRaia said the earlier estimate of a tax rate increase of no more than $7 was still operative.

TOBIN SEEKS MBTA AREA CLEANUP

City Council President Arthur H. Tobin has asked the MBTA to take immediate action to remedy the appalling condition of the parking areas at the Quincy, Wollaston and North Quincy stations.

"I have been advised by commuters who use the three facilities that they are in deplorable condition, rubbish strewn throughout the area and broken bottles, which cause hazardous conditions for commuters," he said in a letter to Joseph F. Toomey, assistant to the MBTA Chairman.

Publishes Book: 'Ghosts And Spirits: Insights From A Medium' Quincy Native Robert Gutro: The Ghost Writer

By JOE REARDON

Robert Gutro grabbed his dog and bolted out of the house, terrified, the first time he saw a ghost. Gutro was a 14-year-old boy in his Quincy home, when his deceased grandfather "materialized" in front of his eyes.

"His form started taking shape in the middle of a dark room," said Gutro. "That's the last time I saw him. If you're scared of the ghost the first time, it's likely they won't come back again."

Gutro, who now lives in Bowie, MD, couldn't explain the bizarre experience as a young boy, but after more encounters over the years he began to recognize his inherited ability to communicate with people who have passed on.

An expert on hurricanes, who works for NASA, Gutro recently had his first book "Ghosts and Spirits: Insights from a Medium" published. The first half of the book Gutro explains the difference between ghosts and spirits and the ways they attempt to communicate with the living. Gutro goes on to explain what they are and how to recognize the signs they give. In the second half, he recounts many stories of ghostly encounters throughout the U.S. of people who are known to Gutro.

While spirits have moved to the life and left the earth, ghosts are trapped on earth for different reasons. They may choose to stay near their family looking for forgiveness or don't leave because they fear their family can't get along without them.

"You have to meditate and believe what you're hearing and sensing," Gutro said. "I'm always confirming the messages I get."

During a tour of a historical house in Maryland, Gutro went into a room that was decorated as a nursery. He immediately began to sense a little girl playing in the room. Gutro asked the house historian if a child had died in the house. Gutro already knew the answer. The little girl, Anna, died when she was 3 years old and was buried in the backyard.

"They know who can sense them," Gutro said. "You're like an emotional tuning fork."

Amazingly, Gutro swears his father was in the house for a week after he died and witnessed him pass into the light. Ghosts, he said go to places where they are comfortable. "That's why grave yards aren't haunted," Gutro said.

One way of knowing if a person has crossed over is if they appear in your dreams. "Our logical mind is what blocks us from seeing their communication," Gutro explained. "At night, when we're sleeping, our logical mind is asleep."

Gutro went on to give his feelings about coincidences, which may come as a surprise. "There is no such thing as a coincidence," Gutro said. "Everything happens because there are spirits guiding us. If you get two job offers, you pick one because someone is guiding you to pick it."

We already know everything about our lives before we are born Gutro said; what path we follow, and how and when we die. When we are born our logical minds take over."

Gutro has never come across a demon or non-human entities. And he recommends that people stay away from Ouija Boards because of their unpredictability.

"It opens doors to things you don't want to deal with, the good and the bad," Gutro said.

He has met Mary Ann Winkowski, the paranormal investigator that Jennifer Love Hewitt portrays on the television show "Ghost Whisperer." He says shows like "Ghost Whisperer" and "Medium" are realistic up to a point.

"The Ghost Whisperer show is based on fact, but they take some Hollywood liberties," Gutro said. "Medium is about an ability to dream of people and things that are going to happen."

Dogs and cats also can sense ghosts, according to Gutro, because of the high decibel level they communicate in. The animals are sensitive to the sound.

Gutro's book was published by virtualbookworm.com and is available at Amazon.com and Barnes & Noble.

Historian To Discuss The Life Of First Lady Louisa Catherine Adams

Historian Michael O'Brien will discuss one of the nation's most complex and little known first ladies, Louisa Catherine Adams, Thursday, April 1 at 11 a.m. at the Adams National Historical Park, 135 Adams St., Quincy.

The program is free and open to the public.

O'Brien is professor of American Intellectual History at the University of Cambridge, England. The prize-winning historic will reconstruct the dramatic tale in "Mrs. Adams in Winter: A Journey in the Last Days of Napoleon."

In the winter of 1815, Louisa Catherine Adams, with her young son, made a 40-day journey by Russian carriage from Saint Petersburg to Paris to reunite with her diplomat husband, John Quincy Adams.

There was plenty of danger along the way, and to complicate matters, Napoleon had escaped from Exile in Elba and was also on his way to Paris.

In his compelling and insightful book, O'Brien explores the life of Mrs. Adams and her unique place in the world. Louisa Catherine Adams – the only foreign born First Lady in American history – spent her life crossing borders, both literally and figuratively. She was born in England, lived in France, and married an American diplomat who belonged to the most famous political family in America and who would eventually become the Sixth President of the United States.

As she grew older, Louisa came to treasure the memories of her remarkable journey, and prided herself on what she was able to accomplish on her own.

Mrs. Adams in Winter is the first book of any kind to re-create her 1815 journey. A compelling combination of biography, travelogue, and adventure, O'Brien gives a voice to one of the forgotten and least understood women in American history.

Free History Lecture April 8 At Eastern Nazarene College

Eastern Nazarene College will present a free lecture by noted historian Lawrence J. "Larry" Friedman Thursday, April 8 at 6:30 p.m. in ENC's Shrader Hall on the college's main campus, 23 East Elm Ave.

Friedman's lecture topic is "Love's Prophet: The Lives of Erich Fromm," an exploration of one of the world's most popular psychologists and public intellectuals.

An accomplished history professor and author, Friedman taught history and anthropology studies at Indiana University for 13 years before retiring in 2006. He had previously taught history at Arizona State University and Bowling Green State University and served as a visiting scholar in the history of science department at Harvard University.

The recipient of three research fellowships from the National Endowment for the Humanities, Friedman has published numerous books, including The White Savage: Racial Fantasies in the Postbellum South and Gregarious Saints: Self and Community in American Abolitionism, 1830-1870.

Wollaston Garden Club Beautification Efforts Commended

By JOE REARDON

Their work can be seen throughout the entire city with planters blooming with colorful flowers. And it didn't go unnoticed at a recent city council meeting when the Wollaston Garden Club was recognized for its tireless work in helping to beautify Quincy.

Club President Pat Artis and Civic Beautification Committee Chairman Josephine Costello were presented citations by committee president Richard Coughlin. Valerie Burrows, who was on hand representing the club's 117 members, was also presented a citation of appreciation.

"We're really glad to take the planters and fill them," said Artis.

Much of the club's work is on display in planters at some of the city's busiest and high-visibility intersection, most notably the Quincy Ave., and Southern Artery intersection. The Garden Club also maintains the flowers at several of Quincy's historical houses.

The club, which was founded in 1927 and federated in 1931, has three major missions and is currently working on a number of projects around the city. It emphasizes promoting and encouraging the love of gardening, the study of horticulture, and the development of floral and landscape design skills. The club aids in the protection and conservation of our environment, and to promote, encourage and support civic beautification throughout the city.

The club has worked on beautification projects at Newport Ave., and Beale Street, Anne Hutchinson Square, Intersection Planters in Quincy, planters at the Wollaston Branch Library and the Quincy Historical Society. The club has participated in a cleaner and greener Quincy, adopt a bump-out on Quincy Shore Drive.

Educational programs have included plants for elementary school gardens and providing support for schoolyard gardens at the Merrymount School and Lincoln Hancock School, Earth Day, April 2010 at Clifford Marshall School.

Garden Club cooperates on issues relating to the downtown redevelopment project, day lighting of the Town Brook Steering Committee, Rain gardens Study Group for Concourse and participation at the 2010 Earth Day Fair. Floral arrangement by club designers have appeared at Art In Bloom at the Museum of Fine Arts.

Club meetings are held on the third Thursday of the month, September through May, at the Wollaston Congregational Church at 48 Winthrop Ave.

Salmon Loaf With Creamed Peas

With the Lenten season underway, it's a good time to dig out some favorite seafood recipes.

And one of the favorites that we had when we were growing up was a salmon loaf. That entrée served with creamed peas was a delicious treat even when it wasn't Lent.

When you are making a salmon loaf, there are several things that can be added including a cup of rice, mashed potatoes, etc. I used mashed potatoes this time.

It can be made ahead of time and baked when ready for dinner.

Salmon Loaf

2 large cans red salmon (Bumble Bee was great)

2 eggs (beaten)

¾ cup seasoned breadcrumbs

1-tablespoon fresh parsley (chopped)

1 cup mashed potatoes (I used instant)

1 small onion (chopped)

Preheat oven to 350 degrees

Check the salmon for bones. Crush and place in a large bowl. Mix all of the ingredients until well blended. I didn't add salt because the salmon is salty.

Place in a slightly greased loaf pan or arrange in a log on a greased cookie sheet.

Bake uncovered for about 40 minutes. You can top it with shredded cheese if you prefer.

I served it with the creamed peas and mashed potatoes (not instant), or a choice of sweet potatoes. I also served it with lemon wedges.

The good part of all of this cooking is that if you have leftovers, they can be sliced and either sautéed in a frying pan or popped in the microwave.

For the creamed peas I usually use frozen peas. Make an easy cream sauce with two tablespoons butter, two tablespoons of flour and enough milk to thicken the sauce. (about a cup) Add the frozen peas and cook until well blended and the peas are tender.

Top each slice of salmon loaf with a portion of the peas.

Easter Egg Hunt Aboard USS Salem

The USS Salem's annual Easter Egg Hunt will take place Saturday, April 3 from noon until 3 p.m. onboard the 71-6-foot U.S. Navy ship moored at the former Fore River Shipyard in Quincy.

The USS Salem is located at 739 Washington St., Quincy, adjacent to the Fore River Bridge rotary.

"We really enjoy holding this event every year," said

Michael Condon, executive director of the Salem. "The kids get so excited," Condon added, noting hundreds of children take part in the annual egg hunt.

The event is one of several major fundraisers for the museum, which receives no city, state or federal funds for its support.

"We try to do fun and unusual events like the Easter Egg Hunt and Haunted Ship to attract people to the ship who may not ordinarily think of visiting the Naval Museum," Condon said.

In addition to the Egg Hunt, there are other activities for kids including egg and cup cake decorating, face painting and a treasure hunt.

Admission is $5 per person. Call 617-479-7900 for more information

Thanks City, Others For Flood Assistance

We speak for our family and perhaps many others when we say thank you to Mayor Tom Koch and City of Quincy employees from fire, police, public works and inspectional services for their assistance during our neighborhood's recent devastating flooding.

Because we were up all night for several days, we were able to see the public works employees come back several times in the middle of the night on a few nights to fill the fuel on the large pumps that were pumping the many thousands of gallons of water from O'Rourke Field.

We also appreciated the speaking out that Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci did for us, our situation and how it got that way, at the City Council meeting.

In addition, we were also grateful for the extra trash runs that Capitol Waste Management did over the past few days helping us to clear our sidewalks of soaking debris.

All of the employees were supportive and unfailingly polite. We have a great affection for this city and its response in this instance is just one more reason why we love living here.

The Voices That Should Count The Most

I write this letter on the 234th anniversary of the British evacuation of Boston back in 1776 when American patriots chased the British Navy from Boston Harbor. As General George Washington stood atop Dorchester Heights, he understood how important that event was for Americans fighting for their liberty and independence from foreign rule.

The American Revolution began in Boston. The original Boston Tea Party was held on Boston's Waterfront near what is now the Congress Street Bridge. Personal freedom and economic liberty go hand and hand. The people created us as a government of, for, and, and we understood that government was our business. Either we run it or it runs us. Back in 1976, we celebrated our Bicentennial.

Here we are 34 years from that great American experience and many of our elected officials seem to have forgotten who is in charge. We are the governors of this representative democracy of ours. The people rule, not those we elect. It appears that President Barack Obama, Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid and House Speaker Nancy Pelosi have all forgotten the role of the people in our form of government.

Our elected elites have come to decide they know better than us what is good for us. Kudos to former Mayor James Sheets for his most recent letter to the editor clearly pointing out what is wrong in the Nation's Capital today. It would appear Democrats in Washington want this healthcare overhaul so badly they will do it by hook or by crook. They are trying to smuggle in this country over one-sixth of the American economy anyway they can. Instead of heeding the will of the voters who spoke our clearly in recent elections such as Scott Brown's upset over the state's Democratic leaders, Democrats are looking more and more like Old West bandits rather than American Minutemen back during our own Revolution.

ary War.

The American people are waking up, which is why the Tea Party movement continues to grow leaps and bounds. At our core is a love of freedom and a dislike for demagogues like the self-righteous leadership up on Capitol Hill.

We need government to be our voices again. We need government to listen to us again. We need government to represent our interests and not theirs. We need government of, for, and by the people as it was meant to be. The Constitution and the Bill of Rights does not represent what government gives us, it represents a pact between the people and its leaders. It limits government's rule over us.

Everything starts with the people because we are the government, the voices that should count the most.

Quincy To Celebrate Community Development Week

Mayor Thomas P. Koch and Planning Director Dennis E. Harrington announce the City of Quincy will join other communities across the nation by proclaiming April 5-10 "National Community Development Week."

The week-long celebration provides the opportunity for Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) communities to showcase CDBG-funded projects and programs, and involve the local community, including local businesses, citizens, and community groups.

The CDBG program is a flexible program, administered by the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), that provides communities, such as Quincy, with resources to address a wide range of unique community development needs.

Locally, CDBG funds are used to support activities and services such as community center programs; emergency food centers; housing rehabilitation activities; code inspections; the creation of affordable housing units; and also supports economic activities such as public works projects and assistance to small businesses for jobs creation.

Last year alone, the city's administration of the CDBG program directly benefitted nearly 13,000 Quincy residents.

Since 1975, the CDBG program has provided over $71 million to the City of Quincy for community development programs.

"The CDBG program continues to strengthen our city by channeling Federal funds directly through our Department of Planning and Community Development to address crucial neighborhood issues," said Mayor Koch. "From community center funding to street and sidewalk repair, the CDBG program is a vital and effective tool to assist us in meeting the needs in our community."

Eleven events are planned during Community Development Week to celebrate the positive impacts CDBG and other HUD resources have had in Quincy.

All events are open to the public. The full Community Development Week schedule is as follows:

Monday, April 5

11 a.m., Germantown Neighborhood Center - kickoff of "Women's Initiative" and ribbon cutting of the "Emerge Boutique", 366 Palmer St.

Tuesday, April 6

10 a.m., Neighborhood Housing Services - ribbon cutting of a new affordable housing project in Weymouth, called "Safe Homes", 706 Main St. in Weymouth.

Wednesday, April 7

10 a.m., Quincy Fair Housing Committee - Premier of Fair Housing Information, Robert E. Foy Conference room at Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock St.

2 p.m., House Neck Community Center - Open House, 1193 Sea St.

Thursday, April 8

10 a.m., Ward 2 Community Center - Senior Line Dancing Class, 16 Nevada Rd.

10:30 a.m., North Quincy Community Center - Senior Luncheon, 381 Hancock St.

2 p.m., Ward 4 Neighborhood Center - Playgroup, 100 Brooks Ave.

Friday, April 9

10 a.m., Asian American Service Association - ChiGong class, 550 Hancock St.

11:30 a.m. to 3 p.m., Squantum Community Center - BINGO!, 136 Standish Rd.

12 p.m., Quincy Council on Aging - Yoga, Kennedy Center, 440 East Squantum St.

Saturday, April 10

10 a.m. until 4 p.m., an information booth regarding the "At Home in Quincy" program will be available at the South Shore Plaza in Braintree.

"At Home in Quincy" is a new program, which may provide homebuyers living or working in Quincy with help to make the purchase of their first home more affordable with up to 2% down-payment assistance and Private Mortgage Insurance (PMI) paid for through Quincy's Affordable Housing Trust Fund.

For more information on this program, please contact Tom Fabrizio at 617-376-1123.

The full Community Development Week schedule and a related Public Service Announcement is available on the Department of Planning and Community Development's webpage at www.quincyma.gov/Government/PLANNING/, under News & Alerts.

Emergency Housing Plan For Flood Victims

"The Mayor came to us and asked if we'd be willing to be the City's partner during this emergency, and we are more than willing to do our part," said Norm Grenier, the executive director of the Neighborhood Housing Services.

Under the program, homeowners will be able to choose their own apartments, and the Affordable Housing Trust and the Mayor's Office will provide assistance in locating available units.

Homeowners who want more information on the emergency program should call Thomas Fabrizio, the Executive Director of Affordable Housing Trust, at 617-376-1123.

The Affordable Housing Trust program will apply to homeowners, but Koch added that the City would be working with other partners such as the Quincy Action Programs, to provide assistance to residents who may meet certain income guide-

Delahunt: Health Plan A Boon To Country's Economy

Congressman Bill Delahunt said Tuesday the landmark health care reform approved by Congress this week will not only improve health care quality across the country, but will, also, offer an economic boon by cutting the country's deficit by over a trillion dollars.

"This will reduce the federal deficit by $1.3 trillion dollars," Delahunt said, noting that the savings projections were developed by the Congressional Budget Office, not him.

"It's a win-win and as much about our economy as health care," said Delahunt who spoke with The Quincy Sun just hours after President Obama signed the bill officially mandating the health care legislation.

"It's going to offer big savings to small businesses," said Delahunt who stated the massive health care overhaul will save Medicare through cost and quality controls. "It will extend the solvency of Medicare by ten years."

Delahunt blamed the current federal deficit on the Bush administration, noting that the deficit left by President Clinton was $5.6 trillion. The deficit ballooned to $12 trillion under the Bush administration.

On March 4, Delahunt announced that he will not seek re-election to the Congressional seat he has held since 1997. He is currently the Chairman of the United States Foreign Affairs Subcommittee on International Organizations, Human Rights and Oversight.

Delahunt, also, serves as the Congressional delegate to the United Nations and said this week that he intends to continue working on international issues at the United Nations even after leaving Congress.

When elected in 1996, Delahunt became only the second Quincy resident to represent the district in congress. The last Quincy native was John Quincy Adams whom Delahunt often quotes.

Adams, like Delahunt, represented the United States both locally and abroad.

Cleaner, Greener May 1

The city's annual "Cleaner, Greener Quincy" event will be held Saturday, May 1 from 9 a.m. to noon, Mayor Thomas Koch announces.

Cleaner, Greener Quincy attracts thousands of volunteers each year who work together alongside city employees to spruce up playgrounds, school yards, neighborhood parks, beaches, marshes, an open space areas.

Celebrating its 21st year, "Cleaner, Greener" is annually held on the first Saturday in May and is a proven successful tool in generating community spirit and achieving aesthetically pleasing impacts on all public outdoor spaces.

"I am very proud of and grateful to all our residents and corporate volunteers who devote their time toward this important springtime community event that beautifies our city," Koch said.

Each year residents, youth groups, neighborhood and local businesses join together with work crews from the Park Department and the Department of Public Works to clean up more than 40 public areas across the city.

Following the cleanup, Mayor Koch will host an appreciation barbecue at 12:30 p.m. for all volunteers at Pageant Field.

Those wishing to participarticipate are encouraged to coordinate a team, target an area to spruce up, and to contact the Park Department to identify their area as a cleanup site. The Park Department will make rakes, shovels, gloves, bags and other tools available for use. As the event draws nearer, cleanup sites will be posted on the city's website, residents can choose to join a designated site.

All volunteers will also receive a Cleaner, Greener Quincy T-shirt.

Individuals who would like to volunteer or have questions about the event may also contact the Park Department at (617) 376-1251 or email jconso@quincyma.gov.

MORE FOR YOU HERE AT HOME

Firefly's Bodacious Bar-B-Q and Beyond

Opened in March 2000, Firefly's Bodacious Bar-B-Q and Beyond owner/chef Steve Uliss began his salute to the South in the Northeast by creating a full service, authentic BBQ establishment. To this day he continues to focus on authentic dishes with not only an emphasis on BBQ but also Southern specialties.

"Years ago when I started this venture, only people who originated from the South knew what collard greens and chicken with waffles were," says Uliss. Now after 10 years and 3 locations (Quincy, Marlborough and Framingham), Uliss has continued to create new items that reflect the changing times but his staples of slow smoked pulled pork, St. Louis ribs and fried chicken will forever be imbedded in the restaurant's menu. "Not only do we create everything from scratch but we bottle our own sauces that people can take home and try to recreate our BBQ," says Uliss.

When Firefly's opened 10 years ago, a catering company was born alongside it and has been increasing in sales and customers ever since. Customers include the New England Patriots, MIT, Harvard, Fidelity Investments to name just a few. In addition, the traveling catering truck can also be enjoyed in the comfort of one's own backyard or in the carefree, down home atmosphere of the restaurants in Quincy and Marlborough. Uliss also enjoys competing in BBQ competitions throughout the Northeast and has been successful in taking home trophies which are proudly displayed in the restaurants.

Business is steady and Uliss looks toward the future with the same excitement and passion he had when he first got "roped in" and started perfecting his recipe for success in both authentic BBQ and his business.

STEVE ULISS owner/chef of Firefly's, 516 Adams Street, Quincy.

FIRE SAFETY

by Captain Tom Lyons
Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

Hot Beverages, Tap Water, Cooking

Here's the impact statement; scalds caused 84% of all burns to children under age 5 and 76% of the people burned by hot liquids were those less than 5 years of age. I am therefore writing to remind us of the importance of being mindful of hot liquids around young children in particular.

The State Fire Marshal has issued these statistics regarding this effort while I'll include some more here as well to remind us all of the need for caution around hot liquids, tap water and cooking.

Put coffee down when you hold a baby, a wiggling baby can jiggle your arm and spill the drink all over himself. Put drinks and soups toward the center of the table away from curious fingers; babies like to grab things. Consider replacing tablecloths with place mats to prevent your child from pulling everything from the table onto herself. Hot beverages caused almost one-quarter of the burns to children under five.

It takes only one second for tap water at 155 degrees to cause a third degree burn. Set your hot water heater temperatures at 125 degrees or less. Massachusetts State Law requires a setting between 110 to 130 degrees. Always supervise young children in a bath; toddlers like playing with knobs and levers. Test the bath water before you put a toddler into it; 71% of tap water scald patients were under 5 years of age as well.

And lastly, establish and enforce a NO zone around the stove. Do not let children play near a stove or barbecue. This protects children from cooking liquids, grease and hot metal. Children under 5 years of age are 3 1/2 times more likely to be burned by cooking activities. Turn pot handles inward; 22% of all cooking related burns were suffered by children under 5 years of age.

Good sound, safe, behavioral habits can be as easy to develop as careless ones. Take a moment to consider how these statistics apply to your own lifestyle and consider corrective efforts in changing any behavior which you feel jeopardizes a family member.

Meanwhile, the surest way to treat thermal burns immediately is by applying copious amounts of cold water directly to the site of the burn. This should counter any further immediate damage from the effects of heat. However, it is not a substitute for medical care, if needed. Seek medical attention should a severe burn result from an exposure.

Thank you.

In Sync Center for the Arts features a 7,000-square foot facility with three dance studios, a birthday party room, three private music lesson rooms, art and cooking room, large costume storage and a waiting area for parents, caregivers and siblings.

There's also air-conditioning and floating dance floors with marley dance surfaces to minimize injuries.

The waiting room features large flat screen TV monitors with live-stream HD color video from classrooms for parent viewing.

The annual end-of-the-year dance recitals will be held in June at Milton High School.

South Shore YMCA To Honor John Sheskey At 'Taste Of South Shore' Tonight

The South Shore YMCA will honor Hingham resident and architect John Sheskey at the 14th Annual "A Taste of the South Shore" fundraising event

Thursday, March 25 from 6 to 10 p.m. at Lombardo's in Randolph.

The fundraiser featuring fares from area restaurants will benefit the Strong Kids Campaign.

Sheskey will be recognized for being instrumental in the "Y's" success.

"Since first becoming involved with the YMCA 23 years ago, John has been a driving force behind its growth and development not only locally, but also state-wide," said Paul Gorman, CEO and president of the South Shore YMCA.

"How appropriate that we honor John at this year's 'A Taste of the South Shore', when 14 years ago he was the chairman of the very first event," Gorman added.

Owner of Sheskey Architects in Quincy, John joined the YMCA Board in 1987 and later served as Board Chair from 1997-1999. As co-chair of the first Annual Support campaign, Sheskey helped raise $17,000, laying the groundwork for what is known today as the "Strong Kids Campaign", a drive with a fundraising goal of $1.2 million this year, 100% of which will directly support area children and families in need.

As an architect, Sheskey has worked tirelessly conceptualizing and designing key YMCA projects locally and throughout the region. Locally, his commitment to his craft came together with his vision and passion for the "Y" to create the Germantown Neighborhood Center in Quincy, the Mill Pond Branch in Hanover, the Camp Burgess Dining Hall on Cape Cod, the Quincy Branch pool addition, and the soon-to-be-developed Pam's Place at Camp Hayward, and the Emilson Arts Pavilion at Mill Pond.

A Job Well Done

On Wednesday, March 17, at approximately 8 p.m., Officers Declan Breslin and William O'Neil were dispatched to Phipps Street on a report of a family trouble in progress. Upon arrival, the officers separated the male and the female to prevent further incident and to determine what occurred.

Officer O'Neil brought the female and her two children, ages 7 and 3 into the hallway while Officer Breslin interviewed the male in the kitchen. The female was visibly upset and crying at times as she spoke to the Officer. She said that the male is the father of her children and was out all day drinking.

When he arrived home, a verbal argument erupted but soon led to the male suspect taking his hand out of his pocket and swiftly slapping her on the right side of her face. She added that she wasn't injured and "he only clipped my face. He's getting too free with it." The officer asked if she was hit before and she responded that the children were present during this incident and after striking her, he said to the children, "see what mommy did." She then called the Police.

Officer O'Neil advised the female victim that the male suspect was going to be placed under arrest for Assault and Battery and this would be conducted out of sight of the children. The victim said that she did not want him arrested and only called the Police to scare him into stopping what he was doing. The male suspect, a 39 year old Quincy resident, was led outside of the house, where he was handcuffed and transported to the station for booking.

The suspect denied hitting the victim, but did state that he pushed her "when she was in my face." The suspect said that he almost filed a "Section 35" petition in the courts due to the victim's drug usage. When asked what drugs she used, he stated, "Whatever she can get her hands on." He also alleged that she had not taken the children to school before because of the drugs, and he had to call family members to speak with her about it.

Officer O'Neil questioned the victim about these allegations and she denied this, but did say that he forced her to quit her job at a local restaurant "because he hated me working there." She said that they had separated but got back together after moving into the current residence. The victim said, "This is the fourth time it's happened," referring to the suspect hitting her.

When asked if she had ever been injured from the suspect hitting her, she said, "There were some marks" from an incident two years ago. Officer O'Neil advised the victim of her rights under the abuse laws. The victim adamantly stated that she did not want a restraining order.

When told to re-think this because the suspect would be eligible for bail and could be out later in the evening, the victim said that she did not want him arrested, did not want him held and would allow him to come back home. Her reasoning for this was, "He's afraid now because the Police are involved." Officer O'Neil suggested staying at a domestic violence shelter, but she declined, stating that she was not afraid of him (the suspect). She added that she told her physician about abuse from the suspect in the past and he too recommended that she take action.

This case was referred to the Department of Children and Families for intervention. Officer O'Neil made every effort to get the victim to seek a restraining order and get help, but she refused, believing that the Police interaction would be enough to stop his assaults, now the fourth incident and in front of the children!

FOOT NOTES

Diplomate, American Board of Podiatric Surgery
Diplomate, American Board of Podiatric Orthopedics

BIKERS BEWARE

People who do a lot of cycling can experience exercise-specific foot issues. Numbness or burning of the feet is a common complaint, typically caused by compression of the nerves between the small bones under the ball of the foot. That reaction is most likely caused by tight shoes and road vibration. Also, too much climbing puts continuous pressure on the bottom of the foot. To alleviate these issues, try loosening the foot straps. Try a more cushioned insole in your shoe, and wear a different type of sock. Examine shoes for irregular seams or straps that might be pressing against the outer edge of the foot as well. If you continue to experience discomfort when biking, see your podiatrist.

From sports injuries to bone deformities to nail concerns, we turn to the most advanced treatment for problems of the foot and ankle, always with an understanding and compassionate approach. If your foot problem concerns pronation, we invite you to consult with us about HyProCure™. I am one of the only two podiatrists in Massachusetts who has the advanced training necessary to perform this pain-saving, minimally invasive procedure that requires no casting and has patients back in their regular shoes in just one week. We have office hours by appointment; please call 781-986-3668. We're located at QUINCY MEDICAL CENTER. Office hours are also available at 999 North Main St., in the Randolph Medical Office Building, and Milton Medical Building in Suite 221.

properties. Coughlin said the city could begin disposing of the Intervale property now as the city has foreclosed.

"The owner has up to a year to (challenge) the final judgment," said Coughlin but added that a reversal was unlikely as the court would be reversing itself. "It would be rare for the Land Court."

Both Keenan and Coughlin described many of the other parcels as small and of little value other than as open space or useful for increasing the lot size of abutting properties.

However, Keenan suggested now is the time to auction or rezone the properties, "dispose of them and have the money available for the following budget year."

of the fiscal year. Once the property is assigned a tax title lien, the interest rate is increased to 16% and the treasurer may begin a claim of legal ownership and foreclosure.

According to Chief Assessor Marion Fantucchio, delinquent taxpayers are notified by the city through demand notices and, finally, legal advertisements.

Fantucchio said there is a two-year period during which owners can reclaim their property.

Once the waiting period elapsed, the City Law Department (may) file a complaint in the Land Court to foreclose the rights of redemption. The City adds Registry of Deeds filing fees and Court complaint fees to the tax title account.

Land Court notifies property owners and sets deadlines for the taxpayer's response.

According to city records, the city budgeted a revised amount of $66,820 to the Tax Title Account which has a current balance of $49,210.

Employee Costs Also Mount City's Health Insurance Bill To Rise $3.3M Next Year

Both the city and city employees will pay more for health insurance in fiscal 2010-2011, according to Steve McGrath, Director of Human Resources.

McGrath told Finance Committee members Monday that the city's bill for the G.I.C., the state's health insurance program, will increase by $3.3 million in fiscal year 2010-2011 and that the employees' contributions have already increased.

At this time, the G.I.C. or Group Insurance Commission itself is $37 million in the red, according to McGrath who suggested the program was righting itself with the increases.

Even with those increases, McGrath said the city will save substantially on employee health insurance costs when compared to the health insurance costs of 2008-2009 before the city joined the state program.

Employee unions voted to join the G.I.C. in 2008 after more than a year of discussion and research.

This is the first full year of the city's participation in the G.I.C. and McGrath described the employees' transition as "fairly seamless" until February when employees got hit with premium and co-pay hikes "mid-stream."

"It was going pretty well until February," said McGrath who said Tuesday that he's heard complaints. "They're not happy about it."

As one example of the increases, participants in the Harvard Pilgrim plan must pay 10% more for individual insurance and, roughly 15% more for family coverage with the rates increasing from $52.63 to $60.50 and $127 to $147 respectively.

According to Auditor Sue O'Connor, the current budget for employee health insurance is $33,900,665.

In the previous year (2008-2009) before the G.I.C., the city budgeted $39,903,204.

McGrath described the initial savings of approximately $10 million in the first year and another 10% or 11% next year.

Councillor Joseph Finn said that cities and towns, statewide are under pressure to force employees to join the state insurance program in efforts to save health insurance costs.

By doing so, they would ignore the collective bargaining rights and agreements.

Finn noted that Quincy officials took the time to work with employee groups and unions when joining the state's health insurance program. "We did that respecting collective bargaining."

McGrath, also, noted that Medicare has covered the city's qualified elder retirees since 1992.

The Finance Committee has begun department reviews in preparation for the 2010 budget sessions.

Flood Victims Seek State Assistance

a case for the city and individuals," Koch said.

Quincy resident Jeanne Gallagher, the director of FEMA's Disaster Assistance Division, said the state is working quickly to get the information to the Governor to sign off on. She explained to the residents that the damage of Norfolk County, not Quincy alone, is given to the Governor. The county has to be designated a disaster area by Governor Patrick before sending it off to President Obama, calling for federal assistance. If the assistance is granted, residents can call an 800 number for help.

Gallagher was confident the county would be deemed a disaster area. "I think you'll be very happy when you see this all come together," she said.

Koch has already identified more than $6 million in needs for the city, including a pumping station near Alrick Road that was damaged. Schwartz pointed out that President George Bush declared parts of Massachusetts disaster areas because of flooding in 2005, 2006 and 2007. Both believed the damage from the flooding was excessive enough.

"The amount of flooding from this storm exceeded any of those," Schwartz said.

The compiled information will be handed over to Governor Patrick in a matter of days. The Governor then drafts a letter to the President within a few days. The final decision could come as early as five days to two weeks, or upwards of a month.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian

Palmucci empathized with the residents who were looking for answers and told them he would continue to work hard on their behalf after seeing the devastation up close. "I've been taking your calls for the past week," he said. "I know how frustrated you are."

State Rep. Stephen Tobin, who represents sections of Ward 4, told residents that he was meeting with Governor Patrick on Wednesday to present the need for assistance. "I will stress in no uncertain terms that the disaster relief is needed," Tobin said.

An assessment was done several years ago of the cost to relieve flooding in the Alrick Road area and it was determined to run between $25-30 million. Twenty-four locations in the city have been identified as high risk for flooding and so far four have been fixed.

Residents gave high grades to the Department of Public Works for the effort they put in pumping out the flooded areas during the entire storm. The fire department, too, evacuated many people from their homes by boat.

"These unfortunate events do remind us that we are a community," said Koch.

Another meeting, this one to examine ways to prevent further flooding and drainage problems, is scheduled for April 27 at the Sons of Italy Hall. City officials will also be looking into the Mass Highway's pumping of water from Route 93 onto Roberts Street during the storm.

'Quilts In Bloom' Topic April 15

"Quilts In Bloom" will be the topic of Robin Murphy's presentation to the combined annual meeting of the three Quincy garden Clubs Thursday, April 15.

The meeting will be hosted by the Wollaston Garden Club at 6:45 p.m. in Wollaston Congregational Church, 48 Winthrop Ave., Wollaston.

Murphy is a National Garden Club accredited gardening consultant and judge. She will focus on quilting with floral designs.

Insurance STRATEGIES
by Jim Sullivan

ARE YOU PAYING TOO MUCH FOR AUTO INSURANCE?

There are many factors that can cause an accident. If you are in an auto accident, don't assume that the driver of the other vehicle has auto insurance. Please call JAMES J. SULLIVAN INSURANCE AGENCY at 617-328-8600 to schedule a consultation. We can review your current auto coverage and identify any gaps that compromise your financial security, or we can provide you with a whole new policy. As an independent insurance agency, offer you the best coverage at the most competitive price. Our office is located at 151 Hancock Street.

It is not enough to mind your own p's and q's when it comes to auto safety and insurance; you also have to keep an eye out for other drivers, particularly when it comes to those who shirk their responsibilities. The fact is that the downturn in the economy has left many vehicle owners either without the means to purchase adequate auto insurance coverage or any at all. The real misfortune strikes when responsible vehicle owners are involved in accidents with their less-responsible counterparts. Without Uninsured Motorist Bodily Injury (UM or UMBI) coverage, responsible drivers may be left in the lurch. This coverage protects drivers if the other party is at fault and is not insured.

NOTE: Uninsured Motorist Bodily Injury coverage also protects against hit-and-run drivers.

Clearing the Air on Demolition Work

DEAR HAMMER: I read your recent article about removing dust created by drywall replacement, and it brought me to my feet. I renovate buildings strictly from the 1800s, and nine years ago was exposed to a falling plaster ceiling above which was a thick layer of coal dust (the building had been heated with coal for 100 years). Coal dust gets everywhere, as it's very fine.

We constantly get exposed to stuff like this in my field -- we can't always open a window, because for one reason, we like to be warm while we work. I took what I learned in jet mechanic school in the Marine Corps, and started looking for a filtering fabric. After much testing, I think I solved the problem.

My company has a filter that can clear dust from thousands of cubic feet of air in a room, including fine particulates like drywall, coal dust, asbestos, even pet hair and molds. The filter fits fans upwards of 60 inches in size and can be washed and air-dried for reuse. It's great for demolition work.

Would you mention my product to your readers? Thanks for helping me get the word to those that need it! -- Patrick Sheehan, CEO, Demo Air Net LLC

DEAR PATRICK: Sure! As someone with allergies who suffers during even light repair and cleaning work, I stay on the look out for good filtering systems. This product is an affordable addition to a forced-air removal system, so if you're doing demo work -- or any work that generates a lot of dust in a room -- consider purchasing this filter.

You can learn more about the Demo Air filter at www.demoinet.com, including videos of the product in action and a price list.

HOME TIP: Removing or avoiding dust and fumes in a workspace is important to stay healthy. If you don't have an air removal system in place, wear a breathing mask with replaceable filters while working.

Send your home-repair and maintenance questions to homesguru2000@hotmail.com, or write This Is a Hammer, c/o King Features Weekly Service, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. Remember, when in doubt as to whether you can safely or effectively complete a project, consult a professional contractor.

Quincy Real Estate Market: Signs Point To A Strong Spring

By ART FOLEY

The Quincy real estate market has seen the best of times (1995-2005) and the worst of times (2005-2009).

With the rapid decrease in values coupled with the lack of financial controls in the mortgage market, we saw a dramatic increase in foreclosures and short sales. While this sad turn of events is not behind us, there is light at the end of the tunnel.

For the first time in the last six years, real estate in Quincy has started to appreciate. Low prices, ample inventory, the tax credits and historically low interest rates have finally started to inject life into the otherwise dismal real estate market.

If the economy continues to show improve and unemployment starts to decline, we should experience one of the best spring real estate markets ever.

Foreclosures and short sales will continue for some time but at least increasing values will mitigate this situation over time. Good weather, a healthier economy, and a robust real estate market will return us to the "Best of Times."

It may be two years away but going in the right direction gives us hope and confidence which when apparent will feed on itself.

(Art Foley is the owner of Century 21 Annex Realty located in Quincy.)

QCAP Homebuyer Education Series

Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc (QCAP) will offer a First Time Homebuyers Workshop series Tuesday, April 20 from 6-8 p.m., and Saturday, April 24 and May 1 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Quincy Community Action Programs, 1509 Hancock St., 4th Floor, Quincy.

Attendance at all three sessions is required in order to receive a certificate. The workshop is free of charge.

This workshop provides a comprehensive review of the homebuyer's process. Real Estate professionals will cover everything from mortgages to home insurance. In addition, participants who complete the 12-hour program may be eligible for down payment/closing cost assistance of up to $10,000 and for the Soft Second Program. Participants may also use their Certificate of Completion to obtain a low rate loan through MassHousing or MassHousing Partnership.

Registration begins on April 5. For more information about the program and/or to register for the workshop, contact Pat Christopher at 617-479-8181, ext. 319.

Ernie Falbo, David Smith Receive Lions' Highest Honor

Two members of the Quincy Lions Club were named Melvin Jones Fellows at the Lions District 33K Mid-Winter Conference, held recently in Dedham.

Named for Melvin Jones—the Chicago businessman who in 1917 founded the Lions Club—the Melvin Jones Fellowship is the highest honor bestowed by the Lions Club, which with 1.4 million members is the largest service organization in the world.

Lions Club President Michelle Lydon said Falbo and Smith were nominated for the prestigious honor by the Quincy Lions Club in recognition of their many years of devoted service to the Quincy Lions Club and the local community.

"Both Ernie and Dave have volunteered countless hours to the Lions Club in order to make our community a better place," said Lydon, who noted that both Falbo and Smith are past presidents of the Quincy Lions Club. "They are both richly deserving of Lionism's highest honor."

A member of the Quincy Lions Club since 1990, Falbo is a graduate of Providence College and Boston University School of Law. He is retired from West Publishing Company, and serves on the board of directors of Cerebral Palsy of Massachusetts. Falbo and his wife, Karen Lundsgaard, have four children and one grandson.

Smith, a member of the Quincy Lions for 32 years, taught science for nearly 30 years at Quincy High School. A graduate of Eastern Nazarene College and Boston State College, he has been a Master Mason for 40 years and his volunteer activities have included serving as a Boy Scouts assistant scoutmaster, donating platelets to the Dana Farber Cancer Center and serving on the board of directors for Amigo, Inc. and Beechwood on the Bay. Smith and his wife, Doreen, have three children and one grandson.

Tips And Tools That Help You Get Fit And Stay Slim

(ARA) - It's easy to over-indulge in the rich foods that feel comforting and warm during the cold winter months. When it starts to be a challenge to get your pants buttoned, you know it's time to cut back. It's hard to put down the cookies and step away from the cream sauces, but it's even more difficult to reverse those extra inches and pounds you've gained.

Eating a healthier, more balanced diet is a great way to start. Along those lines, you might try to develop some new eating habits, like keeping a more limited supply of foods in your kitchen and focusing on buying fresh, whole ingredients more often, or switching your eating schedule so that your biggest meal of the day is lunch, not dinner. Whole, nutritious foods like greens and other vegetables are not only packed with vitamins - they're often more filling than manufactured products loaded with fillers and chemicals. And moving your main meal to the middle of the day allows you more time to work off some of the calories you consume than you would have in the evening.

Another important key is to be more active. There's a good reason that yoga is such a popular exercise option for many people - it helps to build strength and increase flexibility, but it's also calming and restorative. Because the countless poses can be adapted to make programs for people of all ages and ability levels, it's an exercise that can be practiced throughout your life. An added benefit is that you don't need a lot of expensive equipment - just invest in a high-quality yoga mat and you're ready to get started.

Low- and non-impact exercises are a great way for people of all ages to slim down because they build strength without putting too much strain on the body. Balance balls are a great way to tone your core muscles, like the all-important abdominals, without impact that can cause damage now or down the road. For a safe workout, it's important to use an anti-burst balance ball that is appropriate for your height - they typically range in size from 55 cm to 85 cm.

Even if you're exercising and eating right, you might still not feel comfortable in your clothes while you wait for the changes to happen - after all, the healthiest weight loss takes a little bit longer. While you're working toward your goal, a body shaper can help you regain the silhouette you're striving to get back to. There are numerous options for body shapers for women and men, many of which are virtually undetectable under your everyday clothes.

To encourage yourself to keep going toward your goal of slimming down, it's important to track your progress. While you might see some quick results, it's likely that changes will slow down and stay slow but steady over a longer period of time. Because it can be difficult to notice such subtle changes, you should be equipped with tools that can help you determine how far you've come and how far you have to go to reach your goal. A scale is an essential choice, but for a more detailed read-out, look for a scale that incorporates a body-fat monitor. Another worthwhile investment is a small, portable body fat analyzer that can give you an analysis in about five seconds. Some models have memory functions that allow you keep track of your past measurements so that you can see what you've accomplished.

Once you're on the road to a slimmer you this year, you'll feel more energetic and happier than ever. Shedding pounds isn't just important for your self-esteem; it's good for your health. For more information on slimming aids, go to www.sports-hoop.com.

employs physical therapy to strengthen and stretch back muscles in an attempt to relieve pressure on the spine and its nerves. Anti-inflammatory medicines like your Aleve control pain. You might need stronger pain medicines. Epidural injections of cortisone ease inflammation and give the spinal canal and spinal nerves more room. "Epidural" means the injection is made into a space in the spinal canal above its covering membrane. Surgery is a solution when these measures fail.

The pamphlet on back pain discusses the many conditions that lead to one of medicine's biggest problems. It describes different conditions and their treatments. To obtain a copy, write to: Dr. Donohue - No. 303W, Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Will you repeat the article on a runny nose when eating? My husband has it, and it's embarrassing to him. - J.W.

ANSWERS: Some explain why noses run upon eating by invoking sensitivity to temperature changes, i.e., hot or cold food. Or it could be that spices start the nose dripping. Chewing might trigger a reflex that makes the nose run. And, in all truth, the reason could be something that remains a mystery.

Atrovent nasal spray, a prescription item, can sometimes stanch the drip. A drying antihistamine taken an hour before meals is another way to keep the nose dry. People shouldn't resort to medicine before every meal. They should save it for occasions when a drippy nose is a source of embarrassment.

This curiosity has a name, gustatory rhinorrhea.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him or request an order form of available health newsletters at P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

Spinal Stenosis a Major Cause of Back Pain

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Sixty-two must be the age when everything falls apart. I'm there. My latest body part to give way is my back. I have back pain a considerable amount of the time. It finally brought me to a doctor, who tells me I have spinal stenosis. I have been told to take Aleve for my pain, and I'm scheduled for physical therapy. I don't have great hopes of a cure. What exactly is this? What else can be done for it? - T.R.

ANSWER: Spinal stenosis accounts for about one-third of all cases of low-back pain. It's an elusive concept that calls for an anatomy lesson. The backbones (vertebrae, spinal column) have a tunnel running through them -- the spinal canal. In that canal or tunnel is the spinal cord and spinal nerves. Spinal stenosis signifies that the spinal canal has narrowed and is pressing on the spinal cord or spinal nerves. That, in turn, produces back pain that can spread to the buttocks, the back of the thighs or the lower leg. The pain worsens on standing or waking, and goes away when the person sits.

Aging is the most important factor in developing spinal stenosis. Back ligaments, which hold the backbones in place, thicken and calcify. Arthritic changes in the backbones sprout bone spurs that impinge on the canal. Back discs -- the spongy shock absorbers between adjacent backbones -- degenerate and crumble, and that narrows the canal and exerts pressure on the spine and spinal nerves.

WISE CHOICE?

"Wisdom teeth," which are the last teeth to erupt in the mouth, are somewhat controversial. While some people retain these teeth their whole lives, others choose to have them extracted, sometimes before they emerge from beneath the surface of the gums. The decision to remove wisdom teeth or leave them alone is one that should be made with the dentist. During an evaluation between ages 16 and 19 years of age, the dentist may recommend extraction if a wisdom tooth is crowding other teeth, causes pain, or has become impacted (stuck below the surface). Infection is another good reason to have a wisdom tooth extracted. Impacted wisdom teeth are often extracted by age 20 to prevent potential future problems.

The relative ease at which your dentist can extract your wisdom teeth depends on their position. Our entire staff encourages your questions about comprehensive dental care. We supply superior oral health care for the entire family. For answers to your oral health issue questions we invite you to call our office at 617-479-6220. Your health is our first priority. We are pleased to provide you with state-of-the-art dental care at 44 Greenleaf Street. Our goal is to make each visit to our office a comfortable and positive experience. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. If wisdom tooth extraction is recommended, it is best to do so before age 20, when developing tooth roots and bone are softer.

CARE FOR PREGNANT WOMEN

Chiropractors are trained to care for pregnant women, utilizing techniques and tables that avoid exerting unnecessary pressure on the abdomen. At our office we are able to adjust patients standing or sitting. We see many patients well into the last trimester, up until the due date, comfortably and safely. Chiropractors pay special attention to several physiological and hormonal changes that occur during pregnancy, including increased curvature of the back, pelvic changes, and postural adaptations. It is important that mothers-to-be establish proper spinal alignment and pelvic balance in order to optimize the available amount of room that the developing baby needs. Otherwise, the fetus' movement may be restricted, a condition known as "intrauterine constraint." Chiropractic treatment may also help to ensure that the pelvis will be properly aligned so that the baby will be in the best possible position to be delivered.

Chiropractic care during pregnancy may provide benefits for women who are pregnant. At the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we feel the key factors to health are balanced nutrition, exercise, peace of mind, reduced stress, adequate rest, and a sound nervous system. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy, where we have complete facilities and equipment available to determine if your condition may be helped through chiropractic. Call us at 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. If your pain is a chiropractic condition, we can offer you exceptional service.

P.S. Pregnant women are more prone to sprains because their ligaments are loosening up in preparation for childbirth.

Bruce Ayers Club Wins QYA Mite Jamboree

The Bruce Ayers Club closed out its Quincy Youth Hockey season by winning the Mite Jamboree on Saturday, March 20. Bruce Ayers Club defeated the Paul Harold Club, 4-2, to capture the jamboree championship.

This winter, the Bruce Ayers Club, enjoyed a successful campaign. After winning only one game last year, this year's squad finished their season with a 17-1-4 record; the team went undefeated (4-0) in the Mite Jamboree.

Ronan Hurley (32 goals, 11 assists) finished the season as the team's leading scorer. Also producing for the Bruce Ayers Club were goal scorers Jason Whalen (ten goals), Danny Kelly (ten), Hayley Parrish (ten) and Ryan Lawton (nine goals). Thomas Richardson, Zachary Holmes, Danny Kelley, Jason Whalen and Doug Concannon all played standout defense for the club.

The Bruce Ayers Club's second line, led by Hurley, Kelley, Lawton, Jack Mariano and Whalen was the best line in the QYA all league long, according to the coaching staff of the Bruce Ayers Club. The team's third line, made up of all first-year players improved all season long and finished up great at the end of the schedule and the squad's first line, led by Parrish, Aiden McDonnell, Concannon, Richardson and Holmes, matched up well all year long with other teams in the league.

"Last season was a long season only winning one game and to turn it around this year and going from worst to first was great for the kids and the parents too, everyone enjoyed it," said the Bruce Ayers Club coaching staff. "We returned our first and second lines from last year and added great third line players this year that rotated through first and second lines all year.

"The kids worked really hard at practice all year and they were rewarded on Saturday with the Championship."

Running Her 13th Boston Marathon For Alzheimer's Association of Massachusetts

Quincy's Maureen Lamie Is A Marathon Veteran

By JOE REARDON

When Maureen Lamie takes the turn from Route 16 onto Commonwealth Ave., heading towards the infamous Newton Hills at this year's Boston Marathon, the Quincy resident is hoping her experience of 12 past Hopkinton-to-Boston races will carry her through the most challenging section of the course.

Lamie has her personal best of 3 hours, 27 minutes, 52 seconds clear in her crosshairs, but has plenty of motivation besides lowering her mark from 1996. She's running for the Alzheimer's Association of Massachusetts after losing her mother, Ann, to the disease last August 27.

Lamie was initially going to put on a fundraiser in a local hall, but decided it made more sense to somehow work a fundraiser in with her job as a hair stylist. "I thought, 'I'm a hairstylist. I should do what I do best.'"

With that in mind, Lamie planned an April 11 fundraiser at the Louis Anthony Hair Salon, where she works, to raise money for her "2010 Run For The Memory." She's already raised $1,030 of her $3,000 goal.

Those coming in for a "Locks For Love" haircut will pay just half price. The program entails having 10 inches of hair cut that is used to make wigs for children with cancer. There will be T-shirts and water bottle giveaways during the fundraiser.

High School Spring Sports Season Begins On March 29

By SEAN BRENNAN

With the weather outside fluctuating from sunny and warm to wet and wild, the city's two high schools have been holding tryouts and preseason practices with the ultimate goal of being prepared to kick off the 2010 spring sports season at the end of this week.

The month of April (and late March in some cases) brings with it new opportunities for local student athletes to leave their marks on the baseball and softball diamonds, the tennis courts, lacrosse fields, golf courses, volleyball court, track, and local waterways.

The best season of the year also brings with it the chance for unforgettable moments, individual accomplishment and team success.

This week, The Quincy Sun, is giving its readers a quick glance at some of the early season games. Over the course of the next few weeks, the paper will profile each team, which players to watch out for, and what can be expected over the next two-and-a-half months.

NORTH QUINCY

Softball

Coach Kerry Ginty's team will be playing this spring for the Patriot League's Keenan Division championship after playing last year in the Patriot League's Fisher Division.

Last season, following a 10-10 regular season record, the Red Raiders qualified for the MIAA Division I South Sectional tournament. The team lost to Wellesley High School in a preliminary round game.

Their season opens up with a league game against Hingham High School on April 7. NQ will play its first home game (at Mitchell-McCoy Field) on April 9 at 3:30 p.m. against Whitman-Hanson HS, followed by back-to-back league road games versus Silver Lake HS (April 12) and Duxbury HS (April 14).

Home dates against Scituate HS (April 15) and Hanover HS (April 26) will be followed by a date on the road with Middleboro HS on April 28 and an away game versus Quincy High School on April 30.

Baseball

Just one season removed from finishing with a 9-11 record, North Quincy, under the direction of Head Coach John Fidalgo, went 16-6 last spring. The Red Raiders captured the Patriot League's Fisher Division title (the program's first division crown in 25+ seasons) and earned a first-round bye in the Division I state playoffs.

This season NQHS will be challenging for the Patriot League's Keenan Division championship.

The season opens for NQHS on March 31 with a home game against Brockton HS (3:30 p.m.); this game will be followed by a road game at Brockton HS (April 2) and an away game at Weymouth HS (April 5). The Raiders return to Adams Field on April 7 to host Hingham HS before hitting the road on April 9 to play Whitman-Hanson HS.

On April 20 and 22, NQHS and QHS will host their annual QHS/NQHS Baseball Tournament at Adams Field.

NQHS will play QHS on April 30 at Adams Field.

Boys Tennis

The North Quincy Red Raider boys' tennis team will open the season on April 7 with a home match against Hingham High School (3:30 p.m. Quincy HS Courts).

Head Coach Mark McGuinness will take his squad on the road to play against Whitman-Hanson HS on April 9; the team will follow that with consecutive home matches against Silver Lake HS (April 12) and Duxbury HS (April 14).

NQHS will travel to Scituate HS on April and Hanover HS on April 26. The Raiders will square off with Quincy High School on April 30.

many people as we can," said Lamie. "I have about 12 hair stylists coming in."

As a teenager, Lamie ran cross country and track at Quincy High School but, like lots of kids, she didn't take her training too seriously. Looking back, it's the one regret of her high school years. "I wish I did take it serious because I was a pretty good runner," she said.

Lamie has more than made up for lost time after starting again several years later. She's on the starting line at a number of shorter road races a year and has accumulated a closet full of trophies and medals, but her true passion is the marathon.

Because of her busy schedule Lamie trains four days a week through the streets of Quincy. There's nothing paltry about her mileage, packing away 45-50, along with strength and cross training. She put in 14 miles on March 13 and beat the pelting rain of the day.

"I beat the rain," she said with a smile. "I was out at 5 in the morning."

She's had a couple of high-mileage weeks where she logged 65-70 miles on the maze of routes she has in and around Quincy. Lamie does the grunt of her hill workouts on Quarry Street and has several courses that take her along Wollaston Beach, the Granite Links On Quarry Hill and Marina Bay.

Lamie used Sunday's First Annual The Half of Quincy 13.1-mile road race to gauge just where she was at, fitness-wise. Lamie ran even splits to take 13th among women and second in the master's division. She was extremely pleased with her time of 1:38:09.

"It was a nice race," Lamie said after. "I felt pretty strong. I ran consistent. I went out a little fast the first two miles, but I started to back off. I definitely picked it up the last couple of miles."

Lamie's running also was a good pacifier when she had a melanoma scare a few years back and her solitude on the roads took on a whole new meaning when she beat down the cancer. "Running helped mentally," Lamie said. "Any time you're faced with life and death you really appreciate your life. Running got me through a lot."

"It keeps me sane. If I didn't work out, I don't know what I'd do."

With the marathon just over a month away, Lamie has begun the process of systematically tapering her training leading up to her date with 26.2 miles on Patriot's Day. She ran the first 22 miles of the marathon with her L-Street Running Club teammates two weeks ago and felt particularly strong on the hills. Lamie further assessed her racing shape by running the Quincy Half Marathon course on March 21.

And while the winter training months are notoriously the toughest of the year in New England, Lamie found this winter to be a good one overall. "This winter wasn't bad at all," she said. "There were a few cold, cold days but the cold doesn't bother me."

Experience alone gives her a huge advantage running Boston. She knows every step of the course and has run it in nearly every weather condition possible. Most importantly, though, Lamie is keenly aware of just how tricky a course Boston is. With its downhill and flat sections for the first 15 miles, the course has a knack for enticing runners to go out too fast at the gun, only to leave them by the wayside when they begin their ascent on the fabled Newton hills.

"I don't want to go out too fast, absolutely," Lamie said. "I know how to run Boston. You really have to save your energy. There's a long downhill right at the start and you can go out too hard. If you go down them too quick you fry your legs."

"You still have to hold back (in Wellesley) and save energy for the hills."

And it's through experience that Lamie learned how to attack the course – when to pick it up and when to hold back and be patient. Prior to her first Boston, runners told her how important it was to keep the brakes on in the early going. Unfortunately, Lamie fell into the all-too-common trap of running hard at the start and it cost her.

"When you're wrapped up in the moment you don't think like that," she said.

Lamie admits she still gets caught up in the moment and excitement that surrounds Boston. Last year her training was interrupted with several maladies in the final two months leading up to the race. The flu and a stomach bug forced her to take time off and she had bronchitis on race day. Still, Lamie talked herself into running, although she wound up struggling for much of the race.

"I was told not to run it three days before by the doctor," she said. "He smiled because he knew I was going to."

Lamie's hoping for good running weather but knows history has shown that's a crapshoot at best in New England during April. Lamie just shrugs it off as something you learn to deal with in New England. "Fifty degrees, no wind and overcast," she said with a smile. "We're in New England. It can be 70 degrees one moment and snow the next."

In the end, though, the race is more about honoring her mother than crossing the finish line with a fast time. "I can not put into words the way I felt when I realized mom did not know me," Lamie said. "I was a familiar and comforting face to her. My heart still breaks not knowing what she felt, was she aware, I need to believe she was. A few weeks before her passing she had a quick moment of clarity. She lifted her head and said 'Maureen.' She was reaching out, she knows me, I believe. As quick as it came it was gone. The was the last spoken word I heard from her."

No matter what happens on Patriot's Day, Lamie will continue training and competing in the marathon.

"I'll do it for as long as my body lets me," she said. "Why stop doing something you love?"

377 Runners Participate In 1st Quincy Half-Marathon

By JOE REARDON

Cool temperatures and clear skies, and the prospect of a pre-Boston Marathon conditioning gauge, brought out a field of 377 runners for Sunday's First Annual The Half of Quincy 13.1-mile road race.

The half-marathon layout, which started and finished at Quincy High School, passed several of the city's historic sites and also included a stretch along Wollaston Beach and the quiet streets of Squantum.

Patrick Leary of North Providence, RI, was never challenged, pulling away to an easy win in 1 hour, 16 minutes and 25 seconds, well ahead of runner-up Tom Walsh of Beverly (1:17:18). Scituate's Paul Hughes was just over a minute back to clinch third with his 1:18:34. Hassan Haydar was the first Quincy finisher, taking 15th overall and third in the 50-59 division in 1:29:38.

Somerville's Diona Fulton destroyed the women's field, averaging 6:34 miles for a seventh-place finish in 1:25:55. Katja Fox of Wolfeboro, NH, was a distant second in 1:30:57. Fox's time was good for 22nd overall. Ana-Maria Vranceanu of Arlington was third in 1:32:57. Laura Shuford finished 49th overall with her 1:35:44 as first Quincy female.

Race director JJ Lerner, a Quincy native who ran cross country and track at BC High, believed the favorable weather conditions were key in bringing out so many runners in the event's first year.

"Because of the weather we had a good walk-up (registration), which helped us a lot," said Lerner. "We hope to double the entries for next year. It's a nice tour of Quincy. This time of year, the weather can be tricky."

"Hopefully it was a great day for Quincy."

Run on the same day as the prestigious New Bedford Half-Marathon, the Quincy race was the final tune-up for many runners tackling the Hopkinton-to-Boston classic on Patriot's Day.

"It's a month out from Boston so it's a good chance to get a tune-up in," Lerner said.

Behind Leary in the 30-39 division, Tyler Hart of Somerville took second (1:19:04) and Pascal Marnier of Lexington was third (1:20:04). Walsh took the Under-30 division while the Boston duo of Frederick Warburg (1:29:12) and Jeredich Feuld (1:29:28) were second and third, respectively.

Behind Hughes in the master's division, Michael Carroll of Millville was second in 1:21:45 and Scituate's Ted Coyle claimed the bronze in 1:29:42. Brockton's John Saville edged out Garrett Tingle of Cambridge to win the 50-59 division with a 1:27:05. Tingle was just 27 seconds back with a 1:27:32. Haydar was third. Dorchester's Joe McCarthy had no problem contending with the 60-and-over division in 1:34:42. Winchester's Jack Stone was second in 1:43:55 and Peter Bleiberg of Belmont nailed down third at 1:48:10.

In the women's competition, Erin Moseley of Revere tore through the course in 1:33:46 to win the 29-and-under division. Boston's Erica Hepp took second in 1:34:00 and Vera Murton, also of Boston, was third at 1:34:13. Christina Stone of Woburn was third behind Fulton and Vranceanu in the 30-39 division in 1:33:34.

Hometown girl Maureen Lamie was second in the master's division to Fox with a 1:38:09 in her last race before Boston. Cohasset's Beth Corry was third in 1:38:34. Milton's Regina Tsanotellis was more than 10 minutes in front of her nearest competition in the 50-59 division. Her 1:41:22 easily outdistanced second-place finisher Karen Shanley of Marshfield (1:51:42) and Scituate's Sharon Tassini in third (1:52:29). And in the 60-and-over competition, Joanne McCabe Morris of Quincy clocked a 2:03:28, giving her a small, but comfortable win over Rockland's Sue Simmons, who clocked a 2:04:22.

Winter Olympic Slide Show March 31

David Hodgdon, founder and Executive Director of the Blue Hill Adventure and Quarry Museum, will be presenting a slide show of his trip to the 2010 Winter Olympic Games, which were held in Vancouver, Canada during the month of February.

The slide show presentation will be held on Wednesday, March 31 at 7 p.m. at Presidents Place (Quincy Center) in the Basement Conference Room.

Hodgdon, a member of the Winter Olympic Nordic Ski Patrol, has been a part of past Winter Olympic Games including Lake Placid (1980), Calgary (1988), and Salt Lake City (2002), and this year he traveled to Vancouver. The March 31 presentation will feature photographs from the 2010 Winter Games. A memorabilia display of Hodgdon's previous trips to Olympic Winter Games will also be on display.

For additional information, contact Kumu Gupta, Director of Special Events, at 617-328-0703 or call the Museum's 24-hour number at 781-326-0079.

HS Spring Sports Season Begins

Girls Tennis

Head Coach Kathy Sorensen's team opens the season on April 7 on the road against Hingham High School.

The Raiders will open their home schedule with a match on April 9 versus Whitman-Hanson HS (3:30 p.m.) followed by back-to-back Patriot League games against Silver Lake HS (April 12) and Duxbury HS (April 14).

NQHS will host Scituate HS (April 15) and Hanover HS (April 26) before traveling to Middleboro HS on April 28. The Raiders will play versus Quincy High School on April 30 at 3:30 p.m.

Girls Golf

(North Quincy/Quincy)

Maureen Duggan's team will open the spring season with home matches against Ursuline Academy (March 30) and against Brookline High School (April 5) before participating in a four-school match at Rockland with Brookline HS, Notre Dame Academy and Rockland HS on April 6.

Before the April school vacation, NQ/Quincy will host Hingham HS (April 8) and Fontbonne Academy (April 13), and the team will close out the month of April with a tri-match at Hingham against Braintree HS and Hingham HS.

Girls Lacrosse

The Red Raiders, under the direction of Head Coach Justine Restruck, will open the year next Monday (March 29) versus Hull High School followed by another home game on March 31 versus Hingham HS.

An away game, again, against Hull HS is set for April 5; a home game versus Coyle-Cassidy HS is scheduled for April 7, and back-to-back away games versus Cohasset HS (April 8) and Silver Lake HS (April 12) follow.

On April 29, North Quincy will play against Quincy HS for the one and only time this spring.

Boys Lacrosse

Head Coach Mark Nutley's team will open the 2010 season on Friday (March 26) with an away game against Coyle-Cassidy HS, followed by road games next week versus Cambridge R & L (March 29) and Hingham HS (April 1).

A six-game home schedule brings NQHS into the vacation week: Hull HS (April 5), Cambridge R & L (April 7), Coyle-Cassidy HS (April 10), Silver Lake HS (April 12), Plymouth South HS (April 14), and Mashpee HS (April 15).

The Red Raiders will play against Quincy HS on April 30.

Note: Team schedules for boys' volleyball (under Head Coach Jason Cai), spring track (Jim Finn, boys' coach and Geoff Hennessy, girls' coach) and varsity sailing (head coach Michael Imhoff) will be published when they become available from the Athletic Director's Office.

QUINCY

Softball

First-year head coach Roger Bacchieri takes over a program that has made two straight tournament appearances. Last year, the Presidents made the post-season with a late-season surge, and defeated Silver Lake HS in the first-round of the Division I playoffs.

This year, QHS, will challenge for the Patriot League's Fisher Division championship.

The team opens the season on March 31 at home against Stoughton HS (3:30 p.m.). A week later QHS will host Pembroke HS (April 7) before playing their first away game on April 8 against Hanover HS.

Back-to-back home games versus Randolph HS (April 12) and Rockland HS (April 14) precede an away game against Middleboro HS (April 15).

The Presidents will meet North Quincy HS for the first time on April 30; both teams close out their seasons against each other on May 25.

Baseball

The Quincy Presidents will open up their Patriot League schedule on April 7 with an away game at Pembroke HS.

Head Coach Tim Daley's team will play their first home game of the spring on April 8 against Hanover HS (3:30 p.m., Adams Field). QHS will then have back-to-back road games against Randolph HS (April 12) and Rockland HS (April 14) before hosting Middleboro HS at Adams Field on April 15 (3:30 start time).

QHS, along with NQHS, will play in the QHS/NQHS Baseball Tournament at Adams Field on April 20 and 22. The two city teams are also set to meet up on April 30 at Adams Field.

The Presidents will compete, this season, in the Patriot League's Fisher Division.

Boys Tennis

Head Coach Peter Swanson takes his team to Pembroke HS on April 7 to open the year. A home tilt against Hanover HS (April 8) is followed by road matches against Randolph HS (April 12) and Rockland HS (April 14).

A home match with Middleboro HS (April 15) brings QHS to the April break and after returning the team will host Silver Lake HS (April 26).

QHS and NQHS are scheduled to meet on April 30.

Girls Tennis

The girls' team opens the year on April 7 with a home match against Pembroke HS.

QHS will travel to Hanover HS on April 8 followed by home matches against Randolph HS (April 12) and Rockland HS (April 14). A match on the road against Middleboro HS (April 15) brings the team to the vacation break.

QHS will host NQHS on April 30 at 3:30 p.m.

Peter Swanson also coaches the girls' team at QHS.

Girls Lacrosse

Head Coach Kerry Duffy's team opens the season on March 31 with an away game at Plymouth North HS. The team starts their home schedule on April 1 with a game versus Pembroke HS (4:30 p.m. start time).

Games before April break include: Hanover HS (away, April 6), Duxbury HS (home, April 8), Plymouth North HS (home, April 12), Coyle-Cassidy HS (road, April 14) and Cohasset HS (home, April 15).

QHS will play against NQHS on April 29 at 5 p.m.

Boys Lacrosse

First-year head coach Alex Mendez takes his team to Pembroke HS to open the season on March 31.

The team starts its home schedule on April 6 against Hanover HS (3:30 p.m.) followed by a three-game road trip before school vacation break: Duxbury HS (April 8), Plymouth South HS (April 12), Plymouth North HS (April 15).

On April 30, QHS will play against NQHS in the two high schools only meeting of the spring.

Note: The schedule for the QHS boys' volleyball team will be announced when it becomes available. First-year Head Coach Alex Mendez will lead the Presidents this spring.

Bethany Congregational

Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Center will have Palm Sunday Worship at 10 AM.

The Rev. William C. Harding will conduct the service and preach a sermon entitled "Bow Down and Worship Him."

A time of Fellowship with light refreshments will follow the worship service with pony rides for the children, symbolizing Jesus' triumphant entrance into Jerusalem as people placed palms before the donkey he rode.

Next Sunday, April 4th, is the Easter celebration of the resurrection of Jesus our savior. Food items will be collected for the I.S.S. Food Pantry. The Youth Group meets every Sunday at 6 p.m.

Maundy Thursday Candlelight Service with Communion will take place April 1st at 7 p.m. This is a moving experience and brings to bear the sacrifice Jesus made for all of us.

Friday, April 2nd Bethany members will attend a combined Good Friday Service at Quincy Point Congregational at noon.

All are welcome to attend Bethany Church Worship Services and its group activities. Bethany has Women Groups meeting daytime and evening, a Youth Group, a Men's Group, an Outreach Mission Group doing various charity works and a Friday morning Bible Study Class.

The Bethany Church Service is broadcast on Quincy Access Television at 6 p.m. Thursday evenings on Channel 8.

The church is wheelchair accessible.

Houghs Neck Congregational

Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 310 Manet Ave. will mark the Palm Sunday during its weekly worship service Sunday at 9:30 a.m.

Palm Sunday Brunch At Quincy Community United Methodist Church

Following the 10:30 a.m. Palm Sunday Service Sunday, March 28, the Quincy Community New Women, one of three women's groups at Quincy Community United Methodist Church, will host a Spring Brunch.

The menu will include eggs, bacon, ham, quiches, potato casserole, French toast casserole, Greek pasta salad, fresh fruit platter; juices, coffee, tea, milk, and assorted sweet breads.

Tickets are $10 in advance; $12 the day of the event.

Quincy Community United Methodist Church is located at 40 Beale St., Wollaston. The building is accessible through the door nearest the flag pole on Beale Street.

For more information call the church office at 617-773-3319.

Wollaston Congregational Church Pancake Breakfast

Wollaston Congregational Church will host a Palm Sunday Pancake Breakfast Sunday, March 28 from 8 to 9:45 a.m. in Social Hall, 48 Winthrop Ave., Quincy.

The menu will include pancakes, sausage, fruit, a variety of baked goods, coffee, tea and juice.

Cost is $3 per person, or $10 per family. Reservations are encouraged and appreciated. To RSVP, e-mail Lisa at wollycongevents@ yahoo.com with the number of people in the party. Walk-in guests are welcome, too.

Palm Sunday worship service will begin at 10 a.m. All visitors are invited to worship.

All proceeds will benefit the Wollaston Congregational Church, recently named to the National Register of Historic Places.

For more information, call Lisa at 617-773-7432.

Quincy Point Congregational

Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St., will celebrate Palm Sunday March 28 with a 10 a.m. service.

The service will include a reception of new members. Rev. Ann Suzedell will give the sermon.

Deanna Van Schagen will be deacon of the day. Susan Egan will be the lay reader.

Following worship, feel free to join us for fellowship coffee hour in the downstairs social hall. All are welcome!

On Sunday, April 11th, the church will be going on a special group outing, a guided tour of the Blue Hill Weather Observatory & Science Center.

The cost will be $3 per person (17 years and older) and $1.50 (ages 5-16). Call the office at 617-773-6424 if you plan to attend.

People should meet at 12:30 in the trails side parking lot. Shuttles will take people from the parking lot to the summit.

Weather permitting, those capable of walking up the trail can choose to do so, as long as they arrive early. Each tour only includes 16 people, so there will probably be a few groups going. This event is a continuation of the church's stewardship theme of "Walking with Jesus".

The church will hold an indoor yard sale Saturday, May 1st from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Save your treasures. Call the church office to arrange a drop off or pick-up.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)
An unexpected problem should be handled as quickly as possible so that it doesn't cause too much of a delay. Someone who knows what you're facing could provide needed advice.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)
An unsettling situation seems to be taking forever to be resolved. Fortunately, your Bovine aptitude for patience is strong this week, so you'll be more than able to wait it out.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20)
Taking a stand against an uncalled-for situation involving a friend or co-worker isn't easy, but somehow you'll rise to the challenge and do it. Rely on advice from someone you trust.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22)
There are still some questions on all sides that need to be dealt with in order to allow hurt feelings to heal. Get your workplace tasks done early so that you can devote more time to loved ones.

LEO (July 23 to August 22)
Consider a new spring makeover that will show all you Leos and Leonas in your best light. A new hairdo and some fashionable new clothes can help put a fresh glow on your image.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22)
Some stormy, emotional weather can blow up in the workplace when an irate co-worker has strong words for you. But if you believe right is on your side, you'll be able to ride it out.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22)
Creating more balance in your life is especially important now so that you're not distracted when you get into projects that will make demands on both your physical and mental energies.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21)
As much as you enjoy being right when others are not, show your generous side by offering to use what you know to everyone's benefit. This way, you gain admirers and avoid resentment.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21)
This is a good week for the Archer to aim at healing relationships. Whether it's at home, at work or among your friends, get everyone to set things straight and make a fresh start.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19)
Although you like things done your way, this is a good time to listen to ideas from others. You might even find yourself agreeing with one or more of their suggestions.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18)
Aspects favor positive action to reclaim your ideas from someone who might want the glory without doing any of the work. Expect to find many people rallying to support you.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20)
You might feel uneasy about taking that step forward at work or in your private life. But who knows better than you that while treading water keeps you afloat, it doesn't get you anywhere.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a way of creating positive attitudes and making people feel good about themselves.

DON MCCARTHY
Managing DirectorA THOUGHT
FOR THE WEEK

Bibles of every religion in the world mention the word - "witness." Let's think about the word, not necessarily in a religious sense, but from an earthly view of human reaction. All of us witness things every day. We see varying circumstances, situations and attitudes all around us, both good and bad.

As we witness these things in other people, wouldn't it be a good idea for us to ponder what other people see or witness in us? Each of us, individually sets a standard of behavior, thought and expression linked to ourselves. In doing this, we naturally provide a scene or knowledge for others to witness. The things we do and the things we say cause people to talk about us favorably or gossip about us unfavorably.

We create our own image, good or bad. We control the destinies of our image in the minds and thoughts of others. When we can be rightfully proud of what others witness in us, we gain an inner gladness that automatically portrays a better, more likeable image....

Cookout A Welcomed Sight For West Quincy Neighborhood

fore, they evacuated my mother down the street who just got out of the hospital after having brain surgery. These guys really stepped up to the plate; they were there in an instant."

Mike Masone of 75 Alrick Road hadn't yet made his way up the street to the festivities. Dressed in dungarees and a sweatshirt, Masone was still clearing out his belongings that were destroyed in the flood, his home, completely gutted.

He couldn't have foreseen the trouble that was descending upon the neighborhood. He noticed on Saturday that the storm drain was getting higher and by nightfall, the water was gurgling at the very top.

Backyard flooding had started further up the road. Masone spent the night clearing out his basement. "I didn't have any water in the basement, just the sump hole," he said.

The water continued to rise and by Monday, Masone knew he was in trouble. "My basement windows were fish tanks," he said.

When the rains passed, Masone was finally able to assess the damage. Water moved up the inside of the walls and a $35,000 renovation of his kitchen, he completed just four years ago, was destroyed.

"It felt like someone hit me in the chest with a shotgun," Masone said.

Despite extensive damage to his home, Masone was able to keep a positive attitude after the floodwaters receded. "My attitude is, bad things happen to good people and it's my turn," he said. "A lot of the neighbors have lived in these houses since they've been built. It's a tight knit neighborhood.

"It wasn't real. It's just starting to sink in when I walk into the house and it's gutted."

Jennifer Martinelli of Cross Street was cleaning out her basement on Saturday when a couple of firefighters came by to let her know about the cookout and that she should stop by.

"It's awesome," she said. "It's nice not to be in our place cleaning out for a little while."

Rotarians Receive Paul Harris Award

QUINCY ROTARY CLUB recently honored three club members with the Paul Harris Award, the highest award a Rotary Club can bestow on an individual member or member of the community. The presentation was made at the Quincy Rotary's Million Dollar Meal fundraising event. This year's theme was "A Salute to the Oscars." Award recipients – dressed up as various movie characters – from left are: Wendy Simmons of Prism Consulting, Inc. in Quincy; John Sharpy, commercial banking - lending for the Bank of Canton; and Marianne Peak, superintendent of the Adams National Historical Park. The Paul Harris Fellow Award is named after the founder of Rotary International. A donation of $1,000 is given to Rotary International by the club for each of the award members. The donation provides the funds needed to help with Humanitarian efforts of Rotary around the world.

Public Meeting On Downtown Park Plan

Mayor Thomas Koch was set to host the first public meeting with the Halvorson Design Partnership to discuss design opportunities for a new urban park in the heart of downtown on Wednesday evening (March 31) from 5-7 p.m. in the City Council Chambers.

"Our team from the Planning Department has been working incredibly hard on this vital component of our efforts to redevelop Quincy Center, and together with our partners at Halvorson, we wanted to share our ideas and more importantly, listen to ideas from our residents," Koch said.

Halvorson, which is one of the leading landscape architectural firms in the nation, is working with the City thanks to a $50,000 Transit Oriented Development Grant from the state. The firm is working with the City to develop a schematic design for a new public space that officials believe will be a centerpiece of downtown redevelopment efforts.

Conceptual work on the new park marks the next major step for the City's downtown plan, coming as construction for the final phase of the Quincy Center Concourse is set to begin this spring.

Halvorson will be meeting regularly with transportation officials, historic organizations and City leaders to solicit input on the schematic design, and will be using several years worth of ideas and suggestions from the public as the foundation of their work. That public input – which had included

Granite Links Team Plans Legal Action Against Milton To Stop Wind Turbine

Diplomacy didn't work so the next step is court-side for Granite Links Golf Course executives who hope to shut down the Town of Milton's plans to erect a 450-foot high wind turbine towering over their award-winning greens.

"We definitely will take legal action," Granite Links Manager Walter Hannon, 3rd, said Monday.

Jeffrey Tocchio, the attorney for Granite Links, agreed. "We've pointed out all the legal issues. They're just content to say everything is good."

In fact, Tocchio said three major issues – Granite Links' leasehold rights, conservation and historic issues – should concern the Town of Milton regarding their wind turbine plan.

Tocchio said Granite Links will now direct their opposition to the turbine through courts and the permitting process.

William O'Connell, president and co-owner of Granite Links, Hannon, and Tocchio met with Milton selectmen March 18 in a last-ditch effort to reach détente.

The golf course team received a cordial welcome and open mike but failed to score at Milton Town Hall as both sides clung to their assumptions.

Selectmen Chairman John Shields shut down any hope of a retreat by Milton after the Granite Links presentation. Shields informed the visitors that two successive Milton Town Meetings have approved the project. "The last one was a unanimous vote."

"We feel this is a revenue enhancer," said Shields, adding, "We just got the bond authorization. We will have our own scientists refute these claims."

Presentation

Hannon used a DVD presentation by an amateur to illustrate the noise potential of a wind turbine impacting golfers and Tocchio outlined the legal obstacles in store for Milton.

"It's just a monstrosity. It's just

More Substantial Damage To Homes, Infrastructure City 'Fights Out' More Flood Woes

On the same day that President Obama declared Quincy a federal disaster area, the City was hammered by yet another massive storm that caused more substantial flooding in some of the same areas hardest hit by the historic rainfall just two weeks ago.

With as much as another seven inches of rain expected through the storm's duration, Mayor Thomas Koch declared a State of Emergency and the City's Emergency Operations Center was opened on Tuesday as the Furnace Brook and several other waterways around the City raged over their banks. As of press time, Furnace Avenue, and Sheldon, Ballou, and Unity Streets were among the hardest hit, officials said.

DPW crews continued to work around the clock pumping backyards, streets and basements, and the Quincy Fire Department advised residents in the lowest-lying areas to be prepared to leave their homes. As of Tuesday evening, there had been no assisted evacuations.

"We are out there fighting it

Legislators To Update Council On State Revenue

The city's state legislative delegation will meet with city councilors Monday to discuss the state's upcoming budget and potential aid for Quincy as well as legislative initiatives.

State Sen. Michael Morrissey and state Reps. Ron Mariano, Stephen Tobin and Bruce Ayers have all accepted council's invitation for the annual meeting.

Councillors seek a report on the state of the state before beginning budget reviews.

This is going to be a difficult year as Mayor Thomas Koch has warned in the past and, again, this week

"We've got to make tough choices over the next few months," Koch said Tuesday.

Police Promotion Ceremony Attended By Family, Friends, Officers

Kusser Promoted To Lieutenant, Willard New Sergeant

Nearly three dozen persons applauded Tuesday after City Clerk Joseph Shea administered the oath of office promoting two police officers.

The audience of family, friends and police officers cheered Edward Kusser who is Quincy Police Lt. Edward Kusser now and Ralph J. Willard who is Quincy Police Sergeant Ralph J. Willard.

Mayor Thomas Koch presided over the promotion ceremony held in the council chambers of old City Hall and cited the outstanding qualities of both officers.

Police Chief Paul Keenan, and Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi, also, commended Lt. Kusser and Sgt. Willard for their outstanding police work and character.

Keenan described his long history working with Lt. Kusser and noted that Willard's commanding officer regretted losing him from his detective squad.

"Ralph's an excellent detective," said Keenan, referring to Sgt. Willard.

As for Kusser, the chief said both he and Kusser joined the force at the same time and studied for promotion examinations together, until Lt. Kusser began scoring higher than he did.

"It was a long time coming," said Keenan of the Kusser's promotion which, in fact, climaxed a five years struggle for Kusser whose promotion was recommended by the Civil Service Commission which found he had been unjustly denied a promotion in 2005.

Also, on hand for the ceremony was Raymondi who congratulated both Willard and Kusser.

After the Civil Service Commission issued its findings in favor of Kusser Raymondi sponsored a city council resolution asking Koch to promote Kusser immediately.

In sponsoring the resolve, Raymondi noted that it was unlikely that a position for lieutenant would automatically open up before Kusser's mandatory retirement at 65-years-old. Kusser is 63.

At the time, Raymondi said that any legal action by Kusser would likely cost the city considerably more than the cost of Kusser's new salary and pension as a lieutenant.

"It was my pleasure and honor to advocate (for you)," Raymondi said Tuesday.

Kusser had applied for the promotion in 2005.

Despite higher scores than successful applicants, Kusser was denied the promotion. In February, the Civil Service Commission filed a report charging that Kusser was denied a promotion due to the politics of the past administration.

The Civil Service decision blasted the selection format as well as the decisions of former Mayor William Phelan.

After the decision, Raymondi said the city was very unlikely to win an appeal and any court challenge would be very costly, citing potential for damages in the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Kusser's wife Susan pinned the shiny new badge on Lt. Kusser and Sgt. Willard's five-year-old son Jack and his wife Laura Lee pinned the badge on the new sergeant.

Among those attending the ceremony were Kusser's sons, Adam and Donald and his niece Kristen and Sgt. Willard's mother Barbara and his one-year-old son Thomas.

Meeting Tonight On Proposal To Build Single-Family Home At 86 Centre St.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian

Palmucci will host a community meeting tonight (Thursday) to discuss a proposal to build a two-story single family home at 86 Centre St.

The meeting will be held at 6 p.m. at the Quincy Sons of Italy, 120 Quarry St.

All neighbors and interested parties are invited and encouraged to attend and participate.

Palmucci said owner of the property proposes to tear down the existing building and replace it with a larger residential building. The owner and his representatives will be on hand to discuss the proposal in further detail with neighbors.

Residents with questions about this or any other matter can contact Palmucci on his cell phone (617) 834-3945 or by email at bpal-mucci@quincyma.gov.

GRADUATE GEMOLOGIST

PAST, PRESENT, AND FUTURE

Three-stone anniversary rings typically feature a central gemstone flanked by two smaller gemstones, symbolizing the past, present, and future of a relationship. These multi-stone rings are customarily worn on the right hand as a counterbalance to the wedding ring worn on the left hand. Three-stone rings can also be presented as engagement rings. Three-stone designs have long been popular among marrying couples who have their rings set with triads of precious colored gemstones. To further customize three-stone rings, the cut of the central gemstone can be varied from the cut and shape of the two side stones. The beauty of this style is that it can be made to reflect the unique nature of the relationship it represents.

Express yourself with the gift of jewelry from our beautiful displays. Whether you say it with a three-stone ring, a shimmering pearl necklace, or a stunning gold bracelet, you're sure to find what best expresses your feelings among our outstanding collection of fine jewelry. And since there is no substitute for first-rate, quality products and services, you'll be glad you came to 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center, to make your selections or to work with our designers to create a most individual piece of fine jewelry. Raymondi Seeks Study On Crematory Potential

City-Owned Crematory Could Be City Moneymaker

Duxbury's town-owned crematory has long been a hefty moneymaker for that town and Quincy might, possibly, latch on to the action, according to Ward 2 Councilor Daniel Raymondi.

Raymondi cited recent press reports detailing Duxbury's $600,000 annual income from its municipal facility and suggested, at the council's March 15 meeting, that Quincy's coffers could use a similar boost.

Not only could the city use the income, but also it's an expanding business.

More Americans are opting for cremation and Quincy's city-owned burial pots are dwindling fast.

In fact, there are fewer than 325 burial plots currently available for sale at Pine Hill Cemetery and the only space available at Mount Wollaston Cemetery, at this time, are 12 veterans plots, according to the Board of Managers.

Last spring, cemetery officials announced that plots at Pine Hill were only being sold on an as-needed basis as in, "If you're not ready or near ready to fill a grave at Pine Hill Cemetery, you can't buy one."

Raymondi said he was not advocating cremation, but simply acknowledging a trend and possibly identifying a revenue source for the city.

"Looking into the future, it may be something we may want to consider," Raymondi said before he submitted his resolution asking that the Park and Recreation Department study the feasibility of a city-owned crematory and conduct hearings on the proposal.

Councillors unanimously approved the resolve which was forwarded to Kristen Powers, Executive Director of the Parks and Recreation Department.

"That's a question we're looking at," Powers said Monday of the crematory resolve, adding that there could be significant start-up costs of $1M to $2M for building the structure, then training and certifying an operations staff.

"Chances are that the funding wouldn't be available," Powers said.

Powers also said that

KRISTEN POWERS

some of the area funeral directors are committed to their crematory and are unlikely to switch to Quincy.

Crematory Capacity

While the city's cemeteries are nearly full at this time, one of the few remedies is expanding a 15 to 20 acre-area at Pine Hill Cemetery that has been tied up due to environmental concerns.

The city is currently challenging the state's decision favoring an endangered rattlesnake over the city's needs.

"If we are successful in

the Pine Hill expansion, that might be a place," Powers said of a possible site for a crematory.

While the prospects look attractive now, the competition for cremations is growing, according to Roger Hamel, owner of Hamel Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home, The Cremation Society of Massachusetts, and a funeral director for 45 years.

Hamel said several local cemeteries, including a Catholic cemetery, are planning to open crematories.

The city's returns won't be that high "if everybody opens one," said Hamel.

"We go to Duxbury three times a week," said Hamel who suggested he'd be happy to save the travel time needed for the Duxbury crematorium. However, he warned that the city must consider the cost of equipment, manpower and liability

In fact, the Town of Duxbury must now build a new crematory to replace its aging plant. Last Saturday, Duxbury voters approved a $2M override which is needed for a new facility and for other town needs.

Cremation Popular

Cremation is currently at an all-time high and the numbers are increasing each year, according to Hamel. Such factors as environment, the scarcity of open land and revised directives from the Roman Catholic Church impacted the change, according to Hamel.

The Catholic Church began permitting cremation in 1963 and expanded the change again in the 1980's.

Current statistics indicate an explosion in the growth of cremations. In Massachusetts alone, the numbers increased from 24.75% in 2003 to 31.15% in 2006 and 35.12% in 2008.

"The New England states are a little behind the rest of the country," said Hamel, adding that the number of cremations in Massachusetts is lower than other New England states, such as Vermont where, last year, cremation was chosen for 60% of the deceased, 59% in Maine and 58% in New Hampshire. He did note that those states also have long months when the ground in cemeteries is frozen.

Powers said the issue would be discussed at the cemetery's next Board of Managers meeting

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On April 7, 1776, Navy Capt. John Barry, commander of the American warship Lexington, makes the first American naval capture of a British vessel when he takes command of the warship HMS Edward after a desperate battle off the coast of Virginia.

• On April 9, 1865, at Appomattox, Va., Confederate Gen. Robert E. Lee surrenders his 28,000 troops to Union Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, effectively ending the Civil War. Forced to abandon the Confederate capital of Richmond, Lee had no other option.

• On April 10, 1906, O. Henry's second short-story collection, "The Four Million," is published. O. Henry was the pen name adopted by William Sydney Porter. Porter began writing in the late 1880s but did not seriously apply himself until 1898, when he was jailed for embezzling from a bank in Austin, Texas.

• On April 8, 1935, Congress votes to approve the jobs-creating project Works Progress Administration, a central part of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's "New Deal." The careers of several important American artists, including Jackson Pollack and Willem de Kooning, were launched thanks to WPA endowments.

• On April 11, 1961, Bob Dylan plays his first major gig in New York City, opening for bluesman John Lee Hooker at Gerde's Folk City. With his guitar and harmonica, Dylan was a unique stage presence with a vast library of American folk songs in his repertoire.

• On April 6, 1970, Sam Sheppard, a doctor convicted after a sensational trial of murdering his pregnant wife in 1954, dies of liver failure. After a decade in an Ohio prison, Sheppard was released and later acquitted following a re-trial. He briefly returned to medicine and later embarked on a short stint as a pro wrestler called "The Killer." His story is rumored to have loosely inspired "The Fugitive" television series and movie.

• On April 5, 1984, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scores the 31,420th point of his career, breaking the NBA's all-time scoring record, which had been held by Wilt Chamberlain. The 7-foot-2 Abdul-Jabbar was born Ferdinand Lewis Alcindor Jr. in 1947 in New York City, and changed his name in 1971 after converting to Islam.

Son Beams

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Thank You, Again

I know I sound like a broken record.
But I have to do this one more time.
Thank you.

Thank you to everyone who contributed in honoring my father, the late Henry W. Bosworth posthumously as The Quincy's Sun Citizen of the Year for 2009. The ceremony March 25 at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center was attended by more than 150 family, current and former staff, past and present city officials and so many friends and colleagues of Henry's.

As one of the speakers so aptly pointed out, the night was like a trip down memory lane.

The tributes were touching, the memories fond and the recollections comforting. Losing Henry was a tremendous loss to his family, his newspaper and the city he loved: Quincy.

But his recognition reception exceeded all expectations.

And for that I have a lot of people I want to personally thank.

I hope I don't leave anyone out.

So here goes.

First, a big thank you to our distinguished group of speakers, who recalled friendships with Henry that go as far back as his boyhood days in Quincy Point. The stories that you told, and the heartfelt remembrances of Henry will be cherished for years to come.

Remembering Henry in such special ways as speakers were Mayor Tom Koch, former Mayors Arthur Tobin and Frank McCauley, former City Clerk John Gillis, City Clerk Joseph Shea, former Norfolk County D.A. George Burke, State Rep. Bruce Ayers, Norfolk County D.A. William Keating, Councillors Kevin Coughlin, Dan Raymond, Margaret Laforest, Brian Palmucci, Maralin Manning of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce and Quincy Sun Award past recipient Robert Derbes.

You'll find a summation of their comments on Pages 19 and 22 of this issue. But to get a full appreciation of their sentiments, please tune into Quincy Access TV for the full coverage of the ceremony. Anyone who misses Henry - and there are a lot of you out there - will appreciate their touching tributes. (The program is tentatively scheduled to air on QATV Channel 8 this weekend.)

I want to thank the judges who unanimously selected Henry for this honor. They are: Bette Campbell, executive director, Quincy Access TV; the Rev. Ann Suzedell, pastor, Quincy Point Congregational Church; Maralin Manning of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce; former Mayor and Quincy Sun award past recipient Frank McCauley and George Burke, former Norfolk County district attorney and city councillor and immediate past recipient of the Sun Award.

Initially, I was hesitant to honor Henry with the award. Henry had been nominated in the past and although grateful of the recognition, he quickly withdrew his name from consideration because he was steadfast in honoring someone else.

So, this year, when I opened the nominations and began selecting the judges, I figured Henry's nomination would be "an honor in itself" and I could persuade the judges to look beyond Henry and choose another deserving nominee (and there were many others who could have easily been honored this year.)

It's not like I control the balloting or the nomination process. Those are left up to our readers and the judges. I merely moderated the discussion.

Quickly, it became apparent that Henry was the clear-cut choice for the honor. The vote was taken and Henry was the winner. If his selection had been a prize fight, it would have been a TKO in the first 30 seconds of round one.

I'm glad nobody listened to me during the judging process. Last Thursday night turned out to be one of the finest tributes my father could have ever received. Obviously it would have been so much better to have him there with everyone that night . . . but you got the feeling that he was there. His presence was felt. He was on everybody's mind. And what people said from their heart was comforting because his loss is still painful today.

HENRY

I want to thank Marie Lumaghini and the Quincy Sons of Italy for their hard work in setting up the function room. Bette Campbell and Mark Crosby deserve kudos for filming the reception and editing the final program for broadcast.

I want to thank every guest who attended - including family members, current and past Quincy Sun staff and so many long-time friends of Henry, some of whom traveled considerable distance to be a part of the celebration of his life.

Everyone had a kind word to say about Henry. I think with a few more speakers, it could have lasted another hour. Or more. And I don't think many would have minded.

I also want to acknowledge the many invited guests who unfortunately could not attend the reception because of other commitments or last-minute changes in their schedules. I appreciate your thoughtfulness and kind words about Henry in RSVPing your regrets.

Last, but certainly not least, I must express a debt of gratitude to Edith Matthes of Weymouth who nominated Henry for the award. Without Edith taking the time to put her thoughts into words about Henry, filling out the nomination ballot, and mailing it to The Quincy Sun, the award reception would not have taken place.

In her nomination, Edith wrote: "Henry Bosworth deserves this award because it is only fitting to praise his superior talent in the building of The Quincy Sun, especially his 'Sunbeams' column as it was full of history and knowledge of Quincy and the world."

"The untimely passing of Henry W. Bosworth has been a tremendous loss. I did not know Mr. Bosworth personally but got to know him just by reading The Quincy Sun and his 'Sunbeams' column. I can still remember when the newspaper started."

As I did the night of the reception, I want to personally and on behalf of the Bosworth family and the Quincy Sun staff thank Edith for remembering my father with such fondness. Knowing Edith has been a faithful reader for so many years would have brought Henry great joy.

Edith's nomination also underscores the uniqueness of the award. It is a community award -- readers nominate and the judges select. The Quincy Sun has no say who gets nominated and who is selected. We are merely the "vehicle" in presenting the recognition.

We don't take nominations "from the floor" when the judges meet. They are given a list of ballots that are submitted by the Dec. 31 deadline. The Sun or the judges don't add to the list. So, because of Edith, the community had a chance to recognize Henry.

And I think that's what Henry would have cherished the most.

I don't have a crystal ball, and I can't be sure what my father would have said in receiving the Sun Citizen of the Year Award. But I strongly suspect that Henry would have wanted to share this recognition with the community. For he was proud to have the word "Quincy" in the newspaper banner, and equally proud to have it considered Quincy's community newspaper.

A few speakers mentioned the risk Henry took in starting his own paper in September, 1968. At that time, he had a secure job writing for a Boston newspaper. He also had a wife and five kids to support.

But he took a chance . . . and so did the community. Quincy welcomed the Sun and the paper has been shining ever since.

It's only fitting the Sun honor Henry. He shined the brightest for over 40 years.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1937 real photo postcard shows Quincy's famous Bargain Center just after it opened on the corner of Washington and Hancock Streets in Quincy Square. The founders: Joseph Copleman, Louis Ross and Harry Van Dam and their next generation family members operated this store for almost 50 years until it closed in April 1986. The business began with 20 employees all taken from Quincy's relief-roll of the unemployed during the Great Depression. After World War II, the business grew so that a downstairs basement was opened in 1949 and an upstairs basement was added in 1951. In 1953 they expanded with a new three-story building and garage. Full-time employees grew to over 200. This unique business offered for sale a most diversified line of merchandise or, as they so aptly phrased it: "At the Bargain Center you can find almost any item at one time or another." When they had a sale newspapers carried page after page of their ads. Their low prices and quality merchandise attracted shoppers from miles around. During the 1960's their famous three-day sales drew crowds of 25-30,000 shoppers. They were lined up under police control at the doors, and Quincy Square traffic was horrendous. Several hundred part-time employees were necessarily hired for the sales. Today's low-price eclectic stores like Building 19 and Ocean State Job Lot don't even come close to resembling what many affectionately remember as simply "The BC" or "The Bargie." Its place in Quincy's retail legacy is legendary. A year after the store closed the building was demolished and ground was broken for the Presidents Place complex that now occupies this corner of Quincy Square. The Munroe Building on Hancock Street can be seen on the far left. Andy Sawicky of Milton contributed this postcard view. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Keating's Pension Should Not Be An Issue

I recently read where Norfolk County District Attorney William Keating had to address the fact that he will be seeking his state pension built up over 33 years of employment if he elected to the U.S. Congress in the 10th district.

He doesn't have to explain that decision to anyone. It shouldn't be an issue in the U.S. rep. race either.

He has already stated, he won't be going into the federal pension system.

People upset with him apparently don't understand that he won't be double dipping. He's qualified by years of service and age to retire as a state employee. He will do just that if elected to Congress.

He also has the right to run for higher office which he is doing. If elected, he will get a paycheck for his new federal job as a member of Congress.

He doesn't owe anyone an explanation. It is neither illegal nor unethical to retire as a public employee or to try and get elected to Congress. He has always served his constituents well whether as in the state legislature, district attorney, and, maybe as a congressman.

I have come to know him as an honorable elected official who always does the best he can for the people who elect him.

Hopefully, opponents in the 10th district race will focus on the issues and not make up a controversy that doesn't exist.

Public Meeting On Fore River Bridge Project April 12

The state Department of Transportation's Highway Division will hold a public information meeting for the Fore River Bridge Replacement Project Monday, April 12 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the Fore River Club House, 16 Nevada Rd., Quincy.

The purpose of the meeting is to present the Fore River Bridge Replacement project and the different bridge types being evaluated as part of the 25 design process.

The evaluation is being performed as part of the federal NEPA environmental review process and in accordance with the scope outlined in the Secretary's Certificate for the Environmental Notification Form.

The project team will also summarize comments received to date and how they are being incorporated into the environmental evaluation.

Following the presentation, MassDOT staff will lead a discussion to answer questions and gather public comment on the alternatives. Comments received will be carefully considered as the alternatives evaluation moves forward.

The replacement of the Fore River Bridge, which carries Route 3A over the Fore River between Quincy and Weymouth, is being conducted under the Commonwealth's Accelerated Bridge Program (ABP). This is one of the most significant projects being undertaken by MassDOT under the ABP and when completed, will create a permanent, moveable bridge to replace the current temporary span, state officials said.

For more information about the project, contact Mike O'Dowd, Highway Division Project Manager, at 617-973-7475.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Stedman Will Command Largest U.S. Vessel

By FRANK MCCAULEY

There is an old saying: "There's always room at the top of the ladder." A Quincy boy had found that saying to be true.

He was Chiles Chester Stedman, Quincy Master Mariner. He reached the top of the ladder in his particular field of endeavor, other, the American Merchant Marine Service and he found room there. That "room" is the job of Master of the U.S. America, the Queen of the American Merchant Marine and the largest ship ever built in this country.

The United States Lines in New York announced that Captain Stedman, for the past few years Master of the USS Washington, had been chosen to command the new passenger lines.

Capt. Stedman was a member of the Quincy High School Class of 1914. The class, which included actress Ruth Gordon, was called the worst class in Quincy High School history because no one made the honor roll.

(Editor's note: Stedman served as an admiral in the U.S. Navy during World War II.)

ORCUTT BLOCKS BEACH FOR HN AREA

Ward 6 Councillor Frank N. Orcutt objected to passage of an order that would take Lord's Point land for a new public bathing beach.

Residents of Houghs Neck formed a solid front at City Hall last night to appeal for the taking of land at Lord's Point off of Sea Street for a new public beach proposed for that section. Nearly 50 residents favored taking of the land assessed at $4,500.

Councillor Orcutt blocked passage of a land taking order after objecting to the appropriation of only $1 per parcel for the land.

(Editor's Note: Lord's Point was a number of cottages on Babcock Street to the left of the "Welcome to Houghs Neck" sign. In February 1940, the infamous St. Valentine's Day Blizzard with its high tides swept all but one cottage out to sea. The remaining cottage was moved across the street, was winterized and remains today as a private residence. I do not believe that the city ever took the land although for many years the city sanded the beach area.)

QUINCYISMS

The Bargain Center in Quincy Square was advertising for 100 salesgirls "wanted for our third anniversary sale, apply at once at the Bargain Center, 2 Washington Street"... City Clerk Emery Crane announced that, "dog licenses were due on April 1. The license fees were as follows: male $2, female $5, spayed $2"... The Quincy Kiwanis Club's regular meeting was broadcast over radio station WOOR. Kiwanis President Joseph P. Leone opened the broadcast with a short statement about Kiwanis. He then turned the program over to fellow Kiwanian and past president Mayor Thomas S. Burgin who extended the greetings of the city... Fratus Motor Car Company, 400 Hancock St., North Quincy, was advertising: "A Special 4-Door Pontiac Touring Sedan for $884"... The Granite Trust Company notified all depositors that, "In accordance with General Laws Chapter 172, Section 70, we are required to call in all deposit books for verification. All books must be brought in during the month of April"... Theresa Libertine was elected president of the Mandate Juniors Club succeeding Gena Sacchetti... Lodges Market, 1474 Hancock Street, was advertising: "Boneless - Well Trimmed Steak for 27 cents a pound"... The Stock Market's Dow Jones Industrial Average stood at 147.90... Quincy Market, 18 Chestnut St., was advertising: "Fresh Ground Hamburg, Two pounds for 25 cents"... Grossmans, 130 Granite Street, was offering: "Outside White Paint for $3.09 per Gallon"... "The Fighting 69th" starring James Cagney and Pat O'Brien, was playing at the Wollaston Theater, 12 Beale St., while the Lincoln Theater in Quincy Point's double-feature included: "First Love" with Deanna Durbin and "Two Buses to Work" with the Jones Family... The Anchor Inn, Dine and Dance, 751 Wollaston Blvd, was advertising: "Lobster Dinners, Broiled, Baked and Boiled for 75 cents"... Ted Olson of Squantum, starred in relief for the Boston Red Sox in their exhibition game with the Cincinnati Reds. Pitching in relief, Olson shutout the Reds and preserved a 9-6 Red Sox win... The Rendezvous Restaurant, 853 Hancock St., was advertising: "Dinner Specials on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesdays, Two Fried Chicken Dinners for 75 cents." CORRECTION: The third paragraph in the lead item of the March 25, 2010 Yesterdays column should have read: "Members of my staff worked overtime to prepare the budget to meet the original deadline," said Major Joseph LaRaia. The word "worked" was printed as "wanted" last week. The Sun regrets the error.

April 27 In McCauley Building Lobby

Quincy Medical Center To Host Green Brush Art Reception

Quincy Medical Center (QMC) will hold its second annual Green Brush Art Reception Tuesday, April 27 from 6 to 9 p.m. in the QMC McCauley Building Lobby, 114 Whitwell St., Quincy.

The Green Brush Art Reception is an evening of Asian culture, art, music, fashion and cuisine to benefit the QMC Asian Service Fund, which provides free health education, screenings and publications to the South Shore's growing Asian community and enhances Asian services at QMC.

The event will feature a silent auction of artwork by internationally-renowned Chinese American Fine Art Society artists, live traditional Chinese music by the talented musicians of the Foundation for Chinese Performing Arts, and an Asian couture fashion show with models from Boston's Tonn Model Management.

Participants will also enjoy live Chinese brush painting and calligraphy demonstrations, raffle drawings, and wine, beverages and hors d'oeuvres.

"This year's reception is shaping up to be a very entertaining and exciting event thanks to our event chairpeople Catherine Tan Chan, PhD, Foundation for Chinese Performing Arts; Wan Wu, PhD, Kam Man Food; and Tonn Cao, Tonn Model Management; and our entire planning committee comprised of many local businesses and community leaders.

"It will be a rich evening of Asian culture," says Lola Tom, QMC Asian Services Manager. "We are also very thankful for the numerous sponsorships that have already come in, including top Green Brush Stroke level sponsors, Signsand-prints.com, Kam Man Food and South Cove Community Health Center."

The public and business community are welcome. Event tickets are $68 each and sponsorship opportunities are available.

For more information and details, call (617) 376-5493.

Morrissey Candidate For District Attorney

State Sen. Michael W. Morrissey announced Tuesday he will seek the office of Norfolk County District Attorney this fall. The current District Attorney William R. Keating has announced that he will not run for a fourth term.

In his announcement, Morrissey said, "The District Attorney's office is in effect the largest law firm in Norfolk County. To lead that office is an opportunity to continue my commitment to public service while applying the knowledge and skills I have attained both as a legislator, law firm administrator and practicing attorney."

"As a lawmaker, I have drafted and supported much of the legislation that law enforcement agencies today use to protect Massachusetts' residents. As a founder and managing partner of a major law firm, I have gained extensive administrative experience managing the operations of a large legal office," Morrissey said.

"I would be honored to be the next Norfolk County District Attorney and look forward to discussing my qualifications, experience and commitment with residents of Norfolk County during my upcoming campaign."

Sen. Morrissey, a 55 year old lifelong Quincy resident, currently represents the Norfolk Plymouth State Senate district comprising the City of Quincy, the towns of Braintree, Holbrook, Abington and Rockland. In 1976, Morrissey was one of the youngest members elected to the Massachusetts House of Representatives. In 1992, he was elected to the State

MICHAEL MORRISSEY

Senate where he is currently serving his ninth term. During his tenure, Morrissey has served as the Chairman of six major committees including Public Safety, Consumer Protection and Professional Licensure, Telecommunications, Utilities and Energy, Public Service and Government Regulation. He has also served as Vice Chairman of the Re-Districting Committee and as a member of the Senate Ways and Means Committee.

Morrissey has been a strong proponent of criminal justice legislation. Legislation authored or co-sponsored by Morrissey has been signed into law by every governor since 1977. Morrissey co-sponsored the "Son of Sam Law" that prohibited convicted criminals from profiting financially by selling the book or movie "rights" of their crimes.

Morrissey sponsored legislation that extended the "Good Samaritan" law to legally protect those using automatic defibrillators when assisting people in medical emergencies. Morrissey has also authored or sponsored major criminal justice laws related to punishment for drug dealers.

As past Public Safety Committee Chairman, Morrissey worked closely with the public safety community statewide, multiple police associations, and victim/witness groups to strengthen our criminal justice laws and provide Massachusetts law enforcement agencies with the necessary resources to aggressively fight crime.

Morrissey has been recognized for his work by major police organizations across the state during his legislative tenure. In 2003, he was honored by the Massachusetts Chiefs of Police for his commitment to providing funds to upgrade and operate Massachusetts' E911 Emergency Statewide Response System.

Morrissey served as a member of the Governor's Anti-Crime Council. He is a former member on the Board of Directors of DOVE, which is the only shelter for battered women and children between Quincy and Plymouth. He remains an active supporter of DOVE and an active advocate on behalf of the Diana DeVanna Center in Braintree which works with children and families in crisis.

Morrissey has been a long time consumer rights advocate. He authored the state's new Identity Theft law that requires consumers to receive notice in the event that their personal information is compromised and it provides recourse to victims of identity theft. Additionally, as Chairman of the Telecommunications, Utilities and Energy Committee, Morrissey has fought for lower utility rates and greater accountability on billing issues from utility providers. Senator Morrissey co-authored the State's Green Community Act and has been a leader in the effort to reduce green house gas emissions. He is one of the leading proponents of the development of renewable energy in the Legislature.

Morrissey is a founding member and managing partner of the Law Firm of Boyle, Morrissey and Campo P.C. Senator Morrissey has 25 years of trial experience often involving complex litigation requiring medical, forensic and professional experts. The firm currently employs fifty professionals in three states and enjoys a strong reputation as a leading litigation firm across the region.

Morrissey is a graduate of Quincy Public Schools, earned a BA from the University of Massachusetts-Amherst, holds a Master's Degree in Public Administration from Western New England College and is a graduate of Suffolk University Law School. Morrissey and his wife Joanne (Ross) have been married for 30 years. They are the parents of two children: Colby, a Villanova University graduate is a second year student at New England School of Law; and, James, a Massachusetts Maritime Academy student graduating in June, 2010.

The Committee to Elect Michael Morrissey will be announcing the opening of the campaign headquarters in Quincy and anyone wishing to volunteer can do so by visiting the campaign website at www.votemorrissey.com.

Dwyer Candidate For State Representative

ELAINE DWYER

School Committeewoman Elaine Dwyer announces she is a Democratic candidate for state representative in the Second Norfolk District.

Dwyer, a longtime community leader, has been a member of the Quincy School Committee for the past nine years, including two as vice chairperson. During this tenure, she said will end in 2011, she has supported the needs of students, teachers, and parents. She has also participated in several important initiatives to improve the quality of education in Quincy.

Highlighting her service, she noted: implementation of a full-day kindergarten, a literacy program, and a high school drop-out prevention program.

During the past four years she has been an active member of the new Quincy High School building committee. As a member of the Quincy School Committee, she said she has monitored the city's largest budget, carefully balancing quality education with taxpayer's dollars.

"If elected, my highest priority would be to improve the economic climate and quality of life in my district," Dwyer said. "There is a significant need to increase job opportunities, maintain quality education, and improve state funding for the city's infrastructure while limiting the ongoing burden of the taxpayer," she added.

Dwyer, a graduate of Quincy College, has lived in Quincy for 30 years. She is married and has raised two daughters and is currently a small business owner in the travel industry.

The Second Norfolk District comprises all five precincts in Ward 1; Precincts 1, 2 and 5 in Ward 3; precincts 2 and 4 in Ward 4 and precincts 1, 3 and 4 in Ward 5.

Current State Rep. Stephen Tobin has announced he is running for State Senate.

'Be A Parent, Not A Pal' Tonight

North Quincy High School Parent Advisory Council will meet tonight (Thursday) at 6:30 p.m. in the school's media center.

The meeting will include a presentation "Be A Parent, Not A Pal" by representatives from the law firm Campbell, Campbell, Edwards and Conroy. It will highlight Massachusetts social host laws, with the goal of educating parents about the legal consequences of allowing people under the age of 21 to possess alcoholic beverages.

Parents and community members are encouraged to attend. The presentation is sponsored by the school's Students Against Destructive Decisions chapter.

Bank Of Canton Donates $5,000 To St. Boniface Haiti Foundation

The Bank of Canton recently donated $5,000 to the St. Boniface Haiti Foundation in Randolph, announces Bank President and CEO Stephen P. Costello.

The contribution will be used to help support ongoing relief efforts for the catastrophic earthquake which devastated Haiti on January 12.

The earthquake caused major damage to the country's infrastructure, caused the loss of more than 200,000 lives, and has left an estimated one million residents homeless.

"We appreciate Bank of Canton's generosity and thank them for responding to our needs as we do all we can to help the people of Haiti during this crisis," said Nannette Canniff, President and CEO of the St. Boniface Haiti Foundation.

"This gift will go directly toward the care of the patients that we have been receiving from the (United States Naval Ship) USNS Comfort on a daily basis in our hospital in Haiti. It will make a great difference in their care."

The St. Boniface Haiti Foundation is a non-profit, volunteer organization founded in 1983 by the parishioners of St. Boniface Catholic Church in Quincy, Massachusetts.

For over 25 years, it has served those who suffer from extreme poverty in rural Haiti, providing health care through the St. Boniface Hospital, work retreats, and other projects.

The foundation helps improved the quality of life in the Haitian community through education programs and humanitarian aid.

Street Sweeping Starts Monday

Quincy's Department of Public Works will lead an aggressive street sweeping schedule to clean neighborhood streets of sand, salt and other winter debris.

Street sweeping will start on Monday, April 5 and will be done Monday through Friday between the hours of 7 a.m. and 4 p.m. The schedule for street sweeping will be posted on the City of Quincy's website under the Public Works Department at www.quincyma.gov.

The DPW would like you to make every effort to have your vehicles off your street the day your street is swept so that the street sweepers can effectively sweep them. Please note that if you have a temporary basketball set, please be sure that it is not overhanging into the street, this will prevent proper sweeping.

Signs will be posted in your area the day before sweeping to remind residents.

The DPW is encouraging residents to sweep the sand off their sidewalks over the curb so that the sweeper can get to it. They are also asking you to help assist neighbors who are seniors or disabled by sweeping their sidewalks. Sand needs to be cleaned off the streets before it infiltrates our storm water drains.

The DPW would also like residents to spread the word to your neighbors on when your street will be swept so streets will be cleaned.

If you have any questions, please call the DPW at 617-376-1959.

The schedule of street sweeping is as follows (weather permitting):

APRIL

April 5 - W4-P1; April 6 - W4-P2; April 7 - W4-P4; April 8 - W4-P5; April 9 - W4-P3; April 12 - W4-P3; April 13 W3-P1; April 14 - W3-P3; April 15 - W3-P4; April 16 - W3-P5; April 19 - HOLIDAY; April 20 - W3-P2; April 21 - W3-P2; April 22 - W6-P1; April 23 - W6-P2; April 26 - W6-P3; April 27 - W6-P4; April 28 - W6-P5; April 29 - W6-P5, and April 30 - W5-P2.

Keenan Announces State Senate Candidacy

Four-term At-Large City Councillor John Keenan announced Tuesday his candidacy for the Massachusetts State Senate, vowing to bring "performance, not politics" to Beacon Hill with a grassroots campaign focused on spending reform, job creation, and restoring the public's trust in state government.

JOHN KEENAN

"It is time for us to end business as usual on Beacon Hill, and I am greatly looking forward to having honest conversations in every neighborhood in the district about our future and how we can change the direction of our state," said Keenan, who is running as a Democrat. "These are historic times, and we simply can no longer afford to go-along-to-get-along. It is time for responsible spending, time for economic growth and job creation, and time for us to protect our future with a renewed commitment to the education of our children."

Keenan, who said he is building a grassroots network of volunteers throughout the Senate district of Quincy, parts of Braintree, Abington, Holbrook, and Rockland, made his formal announcement via his website, www.keenanforsenate.com.

Keenan highlighted his six-year tenure as an at-large councillor that has produced a clear record of "action, the kind of honest answers that we need on Beacon Hill right now. It's going to take hard work, dedication and creative ideas, not politics as usual."

Keenan said his analysis of the state's current budget crisis is simple — Beacon Hill leaders spent too much during the good times and never prepared for the potential of a sharp downturn. The solution, he said, is just as simple: "We can't spend more than we can afford," Keenan said, pointing to several questionable revenue sources and other maneuvering included in current budget proposals that he describes in more detail on his website.

Spending reform alone won't be enough to protect the state's future, Keenan said, saying that the Legislature needs to work harder to create jobs and economic growth across the state. He highlighted his role in shaping plans for the City's $1 billion private investment in Quincy Center as Chairman of the Council's Downtown Committee and his votes for tax incentives to businesses that helped create hundreds of jobs in Quincy.

He said he will be talking during the campaign about veterans' issues, pension reform, protecting state funding for education and public safety, and investing in new energy technologies.

"If we work together, if we find creative solutions, if we can restore the public's trust, if we create the atmosphere for growth and job creation, we will get through this crisis and secure the potential of this region and our Commonwealth," he said.

One of seven children, Keenan worked his way through Harvard University with a job in the athletic department equipment room and graduated in 1986. He later earned a law degree from Suffolk University Law School, and worked as a public defender and litigator fighting insurance fraud. He oversaw more than 20 City departments as Quincy executive secretary for several years, and today manages a retirement system for 10,000 active and retired Norfolk County employees.

Prior to serving on the Council, Keenan sat on the city's Zoning Board of Appeals and today is working on zoning reforms as part of Mayor Thomas Koch's comprehensive zoning task force. He's been a youth basketball coach for several years, and is a member of the Merrymount Association and the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Keenan and his wife, Dr. Jeanne Hopkins Keenan, live on Hobomack Road in Merrymount with their three children.

Grandasia Bridal & Fashion

It is rare to find such a small store with such a big story; the story at Grandasia is definitely big.

Packed into this little corner in Wollaston at 663 Hancock Street, you will discover a spectacular collection of dresses for just about every "special occasion." There for the choosing are dresses for little princesses and big princesses; for weddings, proms, galas and just about every other socially important occasion and in every luscious color imaginable. Select from dresses that are available in all the latest silhouettes and in every fashionable length; some with exciting sparkle and intricate trim.

Wedding dresses from "couture" and private label collections like Honey Bridal and in a wide range of price points and with appropriate style selections for the bride's attendants; that includes mother and the flower girls as well.

Prom dresses, that are uniquely individual, from Jasmine and Jasz Couture; for the most part a one of the kind group. First Communion and Christening dresses are available; it is never too early to be fashionably and elegantly dressed.

In an attempt to make it a one-stop shopping source, headpieces (coronets, veils & tiaras) shoes, gloves, jewelry and miscellaneous accessories from ring pillow to specially constructed undergarments. All types of alteration services are available as well. In addition, for your convenience other bridal services from photography to limo service are available as on-site services connections. When the reception is over they can even restore and preserve your "special" dress for you.

Most of the business at Grandasia is the result of satisfied customer referrals that herald the great design, the quality and the excellent pricing, not to mention the superb personalized customer-service that is usually only found in a small local shop. Visit Phi Du and her staff and while you are there, ask about her incredible "dancin' shoes." Exclusive imported footwear at Grandasia, that will let your toes twinkle on the dance floor, in comfort, like the ladies on "Dancing with the Stars."

a menace," O'Connell told that board, describing the proposed turbine height as 50% taller than the Statue of Liberty and half the height of the Eiffel Tower. "We sincerely think that it's in the wrong place.... That only singles us out, punishes us."

Granite Links Golf Course was recently named Best In New England and one of the best 100 courses in the country.

In addition, O'Connell warned that the town's projected income from the project might be overly optimistic. "The economics are very marginal. It looks like a risky project."

"This will affect 19 of our 27 holes on the golf course," said Hannon, warning of the potential for noise that "sounds like jet engines," and of annoying flicker effect on three greens from the turbine blades.

Shields said that Milton has agreed to shut off the turbine during the few times that the flicker would affect golfers.

Milton's Town Administrator Kevin Mearns suggested the noise would be "lower than the airplanes that fly over Quarry Hills."

"This is a constant sound," responded Hannon, adding, "Golfers don't make any noise."

Access Road

"It's causing alarm for us. There's nothing fun about opposing Milton. We've got cause for alarm and concern," Tocchio described trading correspondence and e-mails with Milton's legal council regarding access rights over the road to the turbine site.

Tocchio challenged selectmen to seek a Declaratory Judgment in court regarding the restrictions and rights to the access road that runs along the Granite Links' leased property.

"They lack rights of legal access to the road or to any other portion of the leasehold property," Tocchio asserted Monday in reiterating Granite Links' claims and suggesting a major impediment to the project.

Tocchio said this week that road has been gated and locked and the Town of Milton has no right of access, particularly for turbine construction hauling.

"There's a road up through the leasehold property and the Town continues to use it," said Tocchio.

"The town intends to access the proposed turbine site over this dirt road. This access road is over the capped landfill, adjacent to a National Register archaeological site and proximate to a significant wetlands area."

Tocchio said the Massachusetts Historical Commission is already alerted to any infringements to the Hornsfield Quarry, a National Historical Register site, which lies within Milton's original landfill property.

Milton Connection

Milton leased their former landfill property to Quarry Hills Associates, LLC, for 50 years in return for the filling and capping the Milton landfill.

Eight of the course's 27-holes are on that tract.

The 450-acre Granite Links Golf Course is, also, built atop the filled and capped landfill once operated by the City of Quincy. Dirt from what was called the 'Big Dig' was used for both landfill cappings.

Speakers agreed that Milton saved $13 million when the Quarry Hills Associates, LLC, closed and capped the Milton landfill.

Quarry Hills is currently a Milton taxpayer due to the lease agreement.

"It was a mutual benefit to both of us," said Shields, citing Quarry Hills' benefit from Boston's Central Artery project dirt.

Shields then rejected the fears raised by Granite Links speakers, citing scientific studies.

"We have the right to enhance our revenue stream," Shields said.

"We hope it wasn't contentious," Tocchio told the board. "We see a lot of problems. You've got responsibilities. We think some of the assumptions are unjustifiably optimistic."

Milton collected $30,000 in real estate taxes last year, according to town Administrator Kevin Mearns.

Quincy collected $267,741 in payments based on golf course income, according to city records.

However, Quincy is currently reviewing the golf course financial records in response to questions regarding payments to the city.

Curry Ace Hardware Opens Third Location In Hanover

Curry Hardware announced it has opened a third location at 1271 Washington St. in Hanover.

With locations in Quincy and Braintree, Curry Ace Hardware's Hanover location spans 12,000 square feet and features new departments and expanded lines.

The new store has been designed inside and out to bring helpful, convenient home improvement service and advice to consumers of all ages. The store stocks more than 25,000 products on hand and can readily tap into an additional 35,000 products carried in the local Ace distribution center.

The new building has been constructed with energy saving light fixtures and finished with environmentally friendly coatings.

Curry Hardware was started in 1945 by Paul Curry as a classic hardware store. The original store stocked housewares, sporting goods, paint and tools. The store burned to the ground in the early 1960's and the current Quincy store property was purchased from the Hartford Railroad in 1963 and built in

Paul's nine sons and daughters all played a part in the business growing up. In 1975, Paul's wife Grace took ill and he sold the business to his son Bob Curry. He expanded the store (more than once) and opened the second location in 1986.

Bob Curry and his son, Sean, currently own the business together and are looking forward to the launch of their third, and largest, location.

Sean and his wife Tara said they hope to see the business grow and be taken over by a fourth generation. They have a son and two daughters who love to help and join their parents every chance they get.

"We are committed to providing home improvement solutions, helpful advice and resources to residents in Hanover," said Sean Curry, owner of Curry Ace Hardware.

"We're excited to be part of the community, and we look forward to making a positive impact for many years to come," Curry added.

City 'Fights Out' More Flooding Woes

with everything we have, and we will continue to do so until the water recedes. But we are without question facing more substantial damage to homes and our city's infrastructure," Koch said. "The first storm was the worst we have seen in at least 20 years, and I cannot believe that we've had a back-to-back event like this at any point in recent history. It's devastating."

DPW crews were fanned out across the City with more than 50 pumps, including larger pumps from private contractors and the Massachusetts Department of Transportation, Department of Public Works Commissioner Larry Prendeville said. Roads and portions of roads were closed in West Quincy, as was Southern Artery because of flooding, and officials were girding for the affects of several high tides over the course of the next several days.

The City opened its emergency shelter at the Kennedy Center on East Squantum Street; at the same time officials are working to place families whose homes need major repairs from the last storm in long-term housing.

The Presidential declaration means Quincy residents whose homes and businesses suffered damage from the flooding — either this week or the March 12 storm — are eligible for federal disaster relief funding. Residents should call 1-800-621-FEMA or visit FEMA.gov to begin the application process.

"We are grateful to the President and our state leaders for their efforts to secure the designation, and we hope it will be an important tool for many of our families whose homes suffered serious damage in these storms," Koch said.

President Declares Major Disaster For Massachusetts

The head of the U.S. Department of Homeland Security's Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) on Tuesday announced that federal disaster aid has been made available for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts to supplement state and local recovery efforts in the area struck by severe storms and flooding beginning March 12, 2010, and continuing.

The President's action makes federal funding available to affected individuals in Bristol, Essex, Middlesex, Norfolk, Plymouth, Suffolk, and Worcester counties. Assistance can include grants for temporary housing and home repairs, low-cost loans to cover uninsured property losses, and other programs to help individuals and business owners recover from the effects of the disaster.

Federal funding is available on a cost-sharing basis for hazard mitigation for all counties within the state.

James N. Russo has been named as the federal coordinating officer for federal recovery operations in the affected area. Russo said additional designations may be made at a later date if requested by the state and warranted by the results of further damage assessments.

MWRA Chief To Meet With Councillors On Sewage Release

Mother Nature wasn't all to blame for the pain and suffering the city endured during the mid-March floods.

State workers from MassHighway opened the floodgates in West Quincy and the regional water and sewer agency, the MWRA, unleashed 14.5 million gallons of untreated sewage from Nut Island into Quincy Bay, according to official records, photographs, and local observers.

Now, the City Council wants to know who picks up the tab for the destruction and the cleanup.

One agency chief has stepped to the plate to discuss the issue.

Fred Laski, Executive Director of the MWRA (Massachusetts Water Resource Authority), notified City Hall this week that he will meet with the council on April 20.

Laski oversees the regional water supply and sewage disposal of 61 cities and town in the state.

During the rainstorms on March 15, the MWRA chose to release 14.5 million gallons of untreated sewage into Quincy Bay rather than allow the sewage to back up into the Houghs Neck homes along their pipeline and to destroy the Nut Island plant.

At their March 15 meeting, councillors agreed the MWRA faced a 'Hobson's Choice,' but worried about clean-up costs for Quincy Bay, the beaches and tide-waters contaminated by the sewage breach.

At the same meeting, councillors blasted MassHighway's policy of protecting Interstate I-93 by re-routing excess flood waters into West Quincy homes and business on such streets such as Ballou and Willard.

"MassHighway was pumping water into Ballou Street off the highway to ease their problems with no regard for our problems," said Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci.

"Do they have greater rights than a citizen?" asked Ward 4 Councillor Daniel Raymondi. "Why can't we just sue the Commonwealth?"

dozens of public meetings and planning sessions — is a major source for the overall vision plan for downtown, said Dennis Harrington, Quincy Planning Director.

"The vision plan shows as an inspiring and memorable civic space between the United First Parish Church and the Old City Hall, transforming this section of Hancock Street by making it into the heart of the City — a new town common that would unite the Church, the historic burial ground and the Old City Hall, while providing a connection between the Quincy Center MBTA Station and the City's historic landmarks," Harrington added.

Halvorson Design Partnership, Inc. is one of the nation's leading landscape architecture offices. Founded in Boston in 1980, the 15-person firm is dedicated to creating exemplary landscape and urban open spaces for a broad array of public and private clients.

Halvorson Design's portfolio includes some of the nation's most honored works of landscape architecture, from Post Office Square Park in Boston to the restoration of Mount Auburn, the world's first "garden cemetery." The firm is currently working on major projects throughout New England as well as in New York, Pennsylvania, Minnesota and Illinois. Recent projects include Center City Park in Greensboro, NC, City Square Park in Charlestown, MA, Quincy Square Park, Harvard Square Redesign and University Park at MIT in Cambridge, MA, and Harvard Business School, the Federal Reserve Bank, Christopher Columbus Park renovation and the Ulfelder Hearing Garden/Green Roof at Massachusetts General Hospital, in Boston.

The overall range of practice is broad, including award-winning accomplishments in urban design, parks, office, hotel and retail developments, waterfronts, museums, non-profit organizations, schools and colleges as well as historic preservation and private residential projects.

Sustainable design, urban public spaces and meticulous detailing are hallmarks of the firm's work. Halvorson Design Partnership is also renowned for its commitment to collaboration with other design professionals, artists and clients in the creation of designs that stand the test of time.

McNamee Calls For MassDOT Transportation Secretary's Resignation

Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee has publicly called for the resignation of Jeffrey B. Mullan, MassDOT Secretary of Transportation.

"Mr. Mullan has demonstrated his incompetence in undertaking the reconstruction of the Neponset River Bridge without any planning. MassDOT representatives at a recent public meeting in North Quincy said they have only had the project under their jurisdiction for ten weeks. How could this be possible when the Patrick administration has known of this project for over three years?"

"Despite the claims of little time to plan MassDOT is ready to proceed post-haste with this project. Mr. Mullan must resign since it is clear he has earned a grade of zero for planning and 100 for incompetence."

McNamee said, "Planning is graded at zero and incompetence is 100 because the current oversight lacks a plan for public transportation or police details beyond the bridge. Mr. Mullan wants commuters to take an hour to get over the bridge only to find they have to wait at a red light on the other side so Boston and Milton commuters can get downtown."

"This is breath taking incompetence. MassDOT gets traffic control on the cheap and the rest of the commuting public be damned."

McNamee calls for extensive planning that includes State Police details at several locations on and beyond the bridge including on Route 93 to force expressway traffic to the left side of the highway so Neponset Circle can be emptied out. Currently the Neponset Circle on-ramp to Rte. 93 creates a bottleneck by virtue of its narrowing and the failure of those on the expressway to permit an orderly merger of traffic from the Neponset on-ramp. If the far right hand lane on the expressway is empty the gridlock that occurs at Neponset Circle can be alleviated.

BRIAN MCNAMEE

McNamee states that no construction should commence without further public meetings by MassDOT demonstrating they have a plan.

"With new leadership at the MassDOT, I am confident this can occur," McNamee said.

The project is expected to start April 12 and continue for three to three and a half years, McNamee said.

Students, Legislators At YouthBuild State House Day

working with Quincy Housing Authority to renovate homes in the city's Germantown neighborhood. Training Resources of America has a Quincy site located at 1458 Hancock St. The private, non-profit organization provides education, employment, training and workforce development services for educationally and economically disadvantaged youth and adults.

Beach Commission Seeks Photos, Pictures, Memories

Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission is looking for photos, pictures and snap shots of local residents and families "On the Beaches of Quincy" for inclusion in the 2010 Beach Guide.

The commission is also seeking memories of "On the Beaches of Quincy."

"We are designing our 2010 Beach Guide and thought pictures and memories which residents of Quincy submit would be a nice touch," said Leo Kelly.

Photos and written memories should be mailed to Leo Kelly, 143 Spring St., Quincy, MA 02169.

Quincy, MA 02169.

"We will scan any pictures submitted and return to the owner. Written memories will not be returned," Kelly said.

"Residents of Quincy, here is your opportunity to dust off the old photos, write down that time on the beach you will never forget, and get it printed in this year's Beach Guide," Kelly said.

For more information, call 617-773-1534.

The Beach Guide will be published in early May. Deadline to submit photos and written memories is

April 15.

Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission is an all volunteer organization, appointed by Mayor Thomas Koch, to promote, conserve and educate residents of Quincy to the 27 miles of city coastline.

ENC To Launch 'Boston Semester' Program

College students from across the nation soon will have an opportunity to experience Greater Boston's wealth of educational, arts and cultural offerings through Eastern Nazarene College's new "Boston Semester" program.

Scheduled to launch this fall, the program will enable undergraduate students from other colleges to spend a semester studying at the Quincy-based Christian liberal arts college, where they will take courses in colonial history, New England literature and art history while also taking advantage of ENC's proximity to Boston.

"One of the many great things about studying history and culture in the Boston area is that so many wonderful museums, historical sites and libraries are here," said ENC History Department Chair Randall Stephens.

Students who enroll in the Boston Semester program will live on ENC's Wollaston campus while taking a minimum of three required courses: Colonial to Revolutionary America, Introduction to Art History and Literary Boston.

"While studying America's early history, students will visit local colonial landmarks and early American homes," Stephens said. "Trips to Henry David Tho-reau's Walden Pond or the home of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow will add immeasurably to the literature course. And the art history course will benefit from visits to the Museum of Fine Arts, the Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum, Harvard's Fogg Museum and walking tours of the city."

Stephens said ENC hopes to launch the Boston Semester program with an initial group of approximately 20 students drawn primarily from other Christian colleges.

For information, including the cost of the program, call 617-745-3000.

2008 Annual Fire Incident Report

Each year the State Fire Marshal accumulates fire incident data within Massachusetts to look at the total fire experience within a year, to identify fire problems, and to develop fire strategies to address specific issues derived from the data. For instance, in 2008, the data was taken from the 99% of Massachusetts's fire departments that contribute incident information to the statewide system. The 2008 Annual Report was just released.

Here are some of the conclusions derived from that report. When reading them, I suggest that when looking at these conclusions and what they might imply, that you consider any connection you may have with behavioral habits that lead to fire and might place you at risk of fire in the future. Modifying poor behavior patterns, whether they pertain to smoking, cooking, the use of electric devices etc., may keep you from inclusion into future statistics defining the fire problem. That's our goal, and we're here to assist you in that effort.

In 2008, the total number of fires decreased by 11% from the previous year. One firefighter lost his life while fighting a fire. 49 civilians died in 43 fires. Civilian deaths decreased by 12 or 20% from the 61 deaths in 2007. This is the second lowest recorded number of fire deaths since World War II. Unfortunately, 26% of all residential fire victims were not alerted by smoke detectors. Remember, working smoke detectors double your chances of surviving a fire while 50% of fire fatalities occur in 5% of the homes without smoke detectors. These people without detectors mistakenly thought fire wouldn't happen to them.

Cooking caused 60% of all residential fires, unattended cooking being the principle behavioral pattern leading to fire. Careless disposal of smoking materials was once again the leading cause of fire deaths in 2008, accounting for 26% of the total residential fire deaths. Smoking has been the leading cause of fatal fires as far back as the 1940's. Electrical problems were the second leading cause of fire deaths and fatal residential fires.

It is my hope that you will use this report to map out and measure fire prevention strategies within your own daily routines. Make certain smoke detectors are properly located within your home, are properly maintained with working batteries and checked monthly. Early notification of fire is key to your survival.

If you must smoke, do not do so lying down, use deep ashtrays, snuff out cigarettes without leaving them unattended and do not discard cigarettes into the trash until extinguishment is assured. Do not leave cooking unattended, and if you must, take along a potholder or spoon to remind you of your efforts within the kitchen. Check extension cords for integrity and do not overload them as well. Do not continue to use appliances that are faulty, and use them within the limits and as directed by the manufacturer's instructions.

Don't be a statistic; take time to prevent fire within your home.

Two Residents On Clark Dean's List

Two local residents have been named to the dean's list for the fall semester at Clark University.

They are:

Joseph R. Griffin, a senior, who attended Quincy

High School.

Enrica Filippi, a sophomore, who attended North Quincy High School.

Both residents received second honors which requires a grade point average of 3.5 or higher.

FITCHBURG STATE COLLEGE student David Trauterman volunteers at Hancock Park, teaching residents such as Regina Lawless how to use the "It's Never 2 Late" computer program.

Nursing Center Residents Discover It's Never Too Late To Master New Skills

At Hancock Park Rehabilitation & Nursing Center in Quincy, the residents are embracing the benefits of the Internet thanks to the "It's Never 2 Late" (IN2L) computer system.

The easy-to-use program, with its large touch screen, empowers individuals to stay connected, while taking the confusion out of mastering a computer keyboard and a mouse.

"With this computer program we've found a way to help families stay more connected and to keep residents in tune with technology," says Richard Coughlin, administrator of Hancock Park Rehabilitation & Nursing Center.

Whether playing online word games or Jeopardy, writing emails to family and friends or investigating one's genealogy, the IN2L computer system has something for everyone. Additional programs such as a greeting card creation program or a painting program encourage residents to exercise their creativity. There's even a flight simulator, driving simulator and an exercise cycle simulator that can be used on the computer!

Hancock Park Rehabilitation & Nursing Center is a 142-bed skilled center, providing high-level rehabilitative, medical, and nursing care on a short- or long-term basis. Welch Healthcare & Retirement Group, which is celebrating 60 years of quality service to seniors, owns and manages the Quincy center.

For Outstanding Community Service As The Founder Of The Quincy Sun Newspaper

Henry Bosworth Honored Posthumously As Sun Citizen Of Year

Henry W. Bosworth, Jr., the founder of The Quincy Sun newspaper, was honored posthumously as the Sun's Citizen of the Year for 2009 at a reception March 25 at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center.

The reception was attended by more than 150 family, clergy, past and present public officials, friends and longtime business associates and colleagues.

Mr. Bosworth was selected by a panel of judges from among 23 nominees submitted by Quincy Sun readers. He was nominated by Edith Matthes of Weymouth, a longtime Quincy Sun reader who wrote "Mr. Bosworth deserves this award because it is only fitting to praise his superior talent in the building of The Quincy Sun, especially his 'Sunbeams' column as it was full of history and knowledge of Quincy and the world."

At the reception, Mr. Bosworth was lauded for his outstanding community service as the founder of Quincy's community newspaper which he established in September, 1968.

An array of speakers remembered Mr. Bosworth's kindness and his commitment to local charitable and civic causes. A portion of those remarks can be found on Pages 19 and 22.

Photos from the special celebration of Mr. Bosworth's life appear on Pages 1, 19, 20, 21 and 22.

Robert Bosworth, publisher of The Quincy Sun and Mr. Bosworth's son, thanked Mrs. Matthes for nominating his father. He also recognized the panel of judges that selected Mr. Bosworth for the honor as well as the other 22 nominees and the readers who submitted nominations in their behalf.

Below is the biography of Mr. Bosworth that appeared in the reception's program booklet.

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Henry W. Bosworth, Jr. lived a full and blessed life.

He loved his family, his country, his religion and the city where he left an indelible mark: Quincy.

Although he will be most remembered as the founder of The Quincy Sun newspaper, Mr. Bosworth's life encompassed so much more.

He was born in Boston, raised in Quincy Point and graduated from Quincy High School in 1942. He later attended Boston University Evening Division.

Shortly after graduating high school, Mr. Bosworth enlisted in the U.S. Navy and served aboard the destroyer USS Cogswell during World War II. The Cogswell was present at the signing of the Japanese surrender in Tokyo Bay. He was a decorated Navy veteran.

His newspaper career spanned more than seven decades. It began his senior year at QHS when he became the high school correspondent for The Patriot

HENRY W. BOSWORTH, JR.

Ledger and wrote schoolboy sports. He became assistant sports editor after graduating from QHS.

After serving his country in World War II, Mr. Bosworth returned home and began working again at The Ledger. He was transferred to the news department and covered police, fire, court and hospital news and also wrote features and a column called "Worth Mentioning."

Highlights during his career at the Ledger included heading up the coverage of the Domenic Bonomi murder trial that won the Ledger a Pulitzer Prize nomination.

Mr. Bosworth also covered many top news stories including General Douglas MacArthur's visit to Quincy and Harry Truman's whistle-stop campaign. He traveled with Adlai Stevenson aboard his Presidential campaign train.

In 1956, Mr. Bosworth joined the Boston Traveler and covered the Brink's Robbery trial in 1956 and John F. Kennedy's Presidential election in 1960.

He wrote the column "Inside the South Shore" and one of those columns featured Francis X., the lonely "Little Boy Blue" at the Lakeville Sanitarium with muscular dystrophy who wanted "four or six" birthday cards for his ninth birthday in October, 1957. He had few visitors but Mr. Bosworth's column attracted the attention of countless readers.

Instead of a few cards, Francis received over a half million pieces of mail, over $12,000 in coins and dollar bills and three rooms full of toys and presents. The latter were shared with the other young patients and the money went into a trust fund for Francis.

Comedian Jerry Lewis saw the story that was picked up by news wire reports and put on a closed circuit TV program from Hollywood to Lakeville Hospital just for Francis on his birthday. The other young patients watched with him.

Major stars of the day appeared on the program and entertained Francis while expressing personal birthday wishes. The closed-circuit show for Francis turned out to be the forerunner of the Labor Day Muscular Dystrophy Telethon that has raised millions of dollars for MDA research.

Years later, Jerry Lewis came to the Boston area and thanked Henry personally for writing that column. He also sent him a congratulatory telegram after the Quincy-South Shore Labor Day Committee, chaired by Henry and the late Richard Koch, Sr., reached the $1 million mark in local fundraising for MDA.

Toward the end of the 1960s, Mr. Bosworth saw an opportunity to embark on a life-long dream: to start and operate his own weekly newspaper in the city he loved, Quincy.

That dream began to unfold in September, 1968

A PROUD DAY - Quincy Sun founder Henry W. Bosworth (center) admires The Quincy Sun sign on Feb. 25, 1975 as it is placed outside the newspaper's office at 1372 Hancock St. This present location was the third for the newspaper.

when the first issue of The Quincy Sun was published as the city's hometown weekly newspaper.

"Reaction to that first issue was encouraging," Henry noted in The Quincy Sun's special supplement last year celebrating the paper's 40th anniversary. "But there were skeptics who read the 'Sunrise' edition and predicted 'Sunset' would follow within six months."

Fortunately, there were readers, news sources and advertisers who believed in a community newspaper. They also agreed Quincy was better served as a two-newspaper town.

But more importantly, there was Henry Bosworth who was determined to publish the paper week in and week out. He wrote stories, edited copy, sold ads and guided production work while building and sustaining business and civic relationships. If it needed to get done, Henry was there to make sure it got done.

Faithful readers of The Quincy Sun know the rest of the story. For 40 years, Mr. Bosworth faithfully guided the publishing of the paper with the hallmarks of fairness and accuracy. Sun subscribers were entertained, informed and at times galvanized by Mr. Bosworth's popular "Sunbeams" column. Whether you agreed with him or not, he always conveyed what was exactly on his mind.

Through the years, Henry always took time to publicly thank those who supported the newspaper. "All of you - our readers, advertisers, news sources and carriers - are as much a part of The Quincy Sun as the staff," he wrote in each issue marking the Sun's anniversary.

Henry was proud The Sun was recognized as a Blue Ribbon newspaper. He beamed when folks of all walks of life told him how much they enjoyed reading the newspaper. He knew how important The Sun has become to the fabric of the community.

And that feeling was mutual. Henry not only became associated with dozens of organizations and charities in Quincy but he was an active participant in all their causes. Every group he joined - including MDA, Salvation Army, South Shore YMCA, Quincy Lodge of Elks, Quincy Sons of Italy, American Legion, United Way, Veterans of Foreign Wars and so many more - he did so to help make a positive difference in the community.

Mr. Bosworth loved Quincy -- but he loved his family more. The sacrifice he made in working long hours was not only because he believed the city deserved a weekly newspaper, he did so to support his wife Dorothy and his five children and later his nine grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

The Bosworth family knows how blessed they are to have had a patriarch like Henry. We are even prouder that he lived out his life-long dream of publishing a weekly newspaper in the city he fondly described "the best in the world."

We hope the community will always cherish Henry for his efforts to make Quincy a better place, too.

Insurance STRATEGIES
by Jim Sullivan
ARE YOU PAYING TOO MUCH FOR AUTO INSURANCE?
Your home is likely to be your most significant financial investment. If you own a "green" home, you have taken extra steps to select materials and systems that minimize their impact on the environment. Regardless of the type of home you own, it's important to have the right type and level of insurance. Please call JAMES J. SULLIVAN INSURANCE AGENCY at 617-328-8600 to schedule an insurance consultation. We offer insurance for homes, condos, and apartments. Most importantly, we can periodically review your coverage to keep up with your changing insurance needs. Our office is located at 151 Hancock Street.
We are speaking here, of course, of "green" homes in the sense that a residence utilizes building materials, design, and structure that minimizes environmental impact, reduces energy and water consumption, diminishes pollution, and conserves natural resources. So, the broad "green" label applies to everything from roof design to heating/ventilating/air-conditioning systems and plumbing to electricity-generating solar and wind systems. With this in mind, "green" homeowners policies are emerging as either stand-alone products or endorsements to non-green policies that provide increased coverage for replacement of damaged property constructed with "green" materials and design. Not only do "green" policies provide coverage for damage sustained by a loss, but also the increased costs associated with rectifying the building to its pre-loss "green" condition.
NOTE: "Green" homes are expected to make up ten percent of new-home construction by 2010, according to the U.S. Green Building Council.

Quincy Sun Founder Honored Posthumously At Citizen Of The Year Ceremony

Fondly Remembering Henry W. Bosworth, Jr.

Mayor THOMAS KOCH

"When you really sum it up, Henry was a great American. Grew up in the Depression, went off to serve his nation in the U.S. Navy (during World War II) - 'The Greatest Generation' - came back, working hard, raising a family but chased his dream. He took it to the next step. He took that risk to open up that dream called The Quincy Sun. And boy did he succeed and the city of Quincy is so better off for The Quincy Sun.

"The Sun became an institution in the city the last 40 years. Every page was a reflection of Henry Bosworth. Whether you were a candidate for public office or involved in a community organization, Henry was always there to help you out. How many kids first read their names in the paper - whether it was a soccer game, or a school award - in The Quincy Sun and how meaningful it was for each of them.

"That's what Henry was about. It wasn't the big stuff. It was all those items that meant something directly to people. And Henry succeeded. As a city, we're a better city because of Henry Bosworth, we're a better city because of The Quincy Sun. Henry, thank you."

Former District Attorney GEORGE BURKE

"Henry became my closest friend. I grew to love the man very deeply for all the good works that he did for the city of Quincy. One day he came to me and said 'I think it's time for me to leave the Herald Traveler. And I said 'what are you going to do?'

"He said, 'I want to set up a newspaper. So we sat down, we talked it all over, we drafted the purpose for The Quincy Sun. I went into Boston with the papers and I filed the incorporation papers and that was the beginning of The Quincy Sun.

"I have the greatest of memories of Henry.

"There are very, very few men that I have loved during my lifetime. Dick Koch was one of them. Henry Bosworth became my closest friend. I loved Henry. And I always will."

Former Mayor ARTHUR TOBIN

"My memories of Henry go back 45 years. In fact, 42 years ago, I remember visiting Henry in his office on the second floor of the old Kincaide Building. Jim McIntyre and I visited Henry on the first edition of The Quincy Sun just to be supportive and bring greetings and to let him know we were there for him and just to give him encouragement.

"And when you think about it, what a bold and courageous move for this young reporter, struggling along with a young family, deciding that Quincy should have a second newspaper in our city.

"What was the paper all about? It was Henry telling a story about ordinary people, about ordinary happenings, about ordinary things that happened in their lives that they could relate to.

"Henry was not only a newspaper reporter, he gave back to the city he loved.

"I had the opportunity to sit with Henry, to swap stories with Henry. We laughed and we also grieved over the loss of loved ones and family.

"Thank you for allowing us tonight to go back in time. I cherish the times we were together.

"Henry, thanks for the memories."

City Clerk JOSEPH SHEA

"I've spent 30 of the last 45 years in Quincy Square and I think no week ever went by that I was fortunate enough to actually see Henry, and spend some time with him. Henry usually visited the city clerk's office on Tuesday and he was probably the only newspaper publisher in the world to deliver his newspaper to City Hall on Wednesdays.

"Maureen Hallsen, the assistant clerk and most of the workers from the clerk's office are here tonight paying tribute to Henry because they loved him so much. He would take the time to visit the whole office.

"There was never a week that went by that Henry didn't have a kind word to say."

Former City Clerk JOHN GILLIS

"I grew up in Quincy Point with Henry Bosworth. There wasn't a place in the world that was as good as Quincy Point. We had every nationality, every religion. If you were a good guy, you were a good guy; if you were bad, you were bad. Nothing about religion, race.

"We had such great times.

"In the ninth grade, Henry was the first baseman on our Quincy Point Junior High baseball team. We had an English teacher who told Henry he was gifted at the writing. Well, that was the end of baseball. He became a writer. He did it in junior high school, he wrote in The Pointer, and he wrote in Quincy High School.

"Henry was great. We were brought up so good during the Depression. We didn't know we were poor. We had great times and the kids were all good.

"Henry was a part of the Greatest Generation. He went into the service like all of us. We were so proud of being Americans.

"I appreciate all the great times we had together. I'll never forget Henry. He's up in heaven right now and I guarantee you he's got a manhattan or a martini, looking down on us and saying 'I hope they have a really good time.'

MARALIN MANNING
Quincy Chamber Of Commerce

"Personally, when I think of Henry, two rather simple words come to mind: gentleman - number one; and that he was; both a gentle man and a gentleman - always. Old school politics and polite to the core.

"The second word was friendly. And being able to call Henry a friend was indeed a special privilege. He didn't take that word lightly and once given that privilege, it was not to be taken for granted.

"To Henry, friends really meant friend in every sense of the word. . . . Truly good friends are hard to find, difficult to leave and impossible to forget."

Ward 2 Councillor DAN RAYMOND

"There are five words that I constantly remember Henry and I having conversations that go back probably back to 1968 when I was first on the ballot - and then pretty much every two years thereafter.

"The five words were: 'What do you hear, kid?'

"Sure enough, he'd be thinking about things and that's how the Sunbeams column meant so much to many of us.

"You can talk about his service to his country, being a veteran of World War II. You can talk about his dedication and love of this community. But clearly Quincy and Quincy Point, Quincy Point Junior High School, all of that was such an integral part of what Henry Bosworth was all about. He was very proud of his Quincy Point heritage.

"His wonderful acts of charity; some known, some not. There wasn't anything that Henry would not do to help an organization that needed to raise money, to help all of us who just needed a hand to help someone in need. He was just a wonderful, wonderful person.

"If you look at the life, the accomplishments, the humanity of Henry Bosworth, you come to realize the significance and the importance of this award. This is the honor that Henry would have liked to receive the most. It's from family, it's from community, it speaks from the heart."

State Rep. BRUCE AYERS

"Henry was a quiet giant with a lot of friendly persuasion that he unselfishly used to help others through his love and compassion for the city. His stories in The Quincy Sun reflected the pride and history of the city. Growing up in Quincy I can remember waiting every Thursday for The Quincy Sun. You wanted to read about your neighbors, you wanted to read about the community, sports, who got married, what was on the political page, what was going on.

"I always admired Henry's fairness and his sound judgment. Tonight is a great opportunity to look back and pay tribute to Henry. He made such a great impact."

Former Mayor FRANK MCCAULEY

"Henry had a dream of starting his own newspaper. It was a big decision to make. He had a secure job with the Traveler and a young family. He was helped in this decision because at the same time, The Patriot Ledger decided to expand its coverage in the contiguous towns of Quincy in the city edition.

"Henry, being the astute newsman that he was, saw there was a downside to the Ledger for this. They couldn't cover the city of Quincy in as great a detail as they used to because of these added responsibilities. So Henry went for it, The Quincy Sun was born and on Sept. 26, 1968, the first edition rolled off the presses.

"It's a great pleasure for me one day a week to pick up a newspaper that isn't full of stories of rape, riot and revolution, nefarious characters, and devious people throughout the world.

You read what is a good, positive newspaper. Positive things that go on in city of Quincy, every day, every week, every year.

"Henry Bosworth had a dream about starting a Quincy newspaper. He fulfilled that dream and for that we owe him a debt of gratitude. Henry W. Bosworth made our life a little bit better with The Quincy Sun.

City Council President KEVIN COUGHLIN

"No matter how long you knew Henry, he always had this uncanny ability when you met him to make you feel like you had been connected for a long time - and to make you feel valued.

"Henry had a sense of integrity, honesty and fairness in dealing with people. He valued hard work, had a fundamental commitment to family, a love of country, and certainly a love of Quincy."

Coughlin also quoted John F. Kennedy, whom Henry met after he was elected President in 1960.

"One man can make a difference. Every man must try."

"Henry made a difference in the lives of everyone whose life he touched. Let us all strive to do the same."

Norfolk County D.A.
BILL KEATING

"The first time I met Henry was through Paul Harold who wrote the Quincy Yesterdays column. I also remember how kind Paul's words were about Henry. I think if Paul didn't go into politics, he would have loved to have been a writer and Henry had a great influence on him. They had a special friendship and I was always impressed with that.

"I was also impressed that after he met someone, Henry really made an effort to get to know that person. He wanted to get to know you personally.

"In an era when people move away and there's a great deal of mobility and people don't have time to remember what brings them together, Henry and his Sun unified us. He would always weave the threads of the community into any story."

Quincy Sun Publisher
ROBERT BOSWORTH

"Henry and his newspaper covered a lot of events and history over the past 40 years. But The Quincy Sun is much more than just pages of newsprint.

"The paper was Henry's service to the community. He made sure those pages were full of feel-good stories promoting charitable and civic causes.

"And he treated every cause equally. From raising money for MDA, to installing lights at Veterans Stadium or publicizing a lemonade stand to help a neighborhood cause, they all mattered to Henry.

"He loved Quincy and was proud to have the word 'Quincy' in the newspaper banner. But he was just as proud knowing The Sun is the city's community newspaper.

"Thank you for being a part of Henry's dream - a weekly newspaper in the city he loved."

Past Quincy Sun
Award Recipient
ROBERT DERBES

"In 1998, Henry informed me that I was The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year. He gave me a big send-off (at the award reception) that I'll remember the rest of my life."

Derbes said he was grateful to Henry for always noting that he was a past Quincy Sun award recipient. He also wrote a Sunbeams column on the entire Derbes family.

"He told me, 'Bob, you were elected by a committee that has nothing to do with us. It's my paper, you earned it. You come to every single one of our award receptions. We're not going to take your name off the list (of past recipients).

"That's the other side I wanted you to know. He's a good guy."

Ward 1 Councillor
MARGARET LAFOREST

"I would often visit Henry's office promoting a charitable event that I was supporting and looking for some promotion. I really enjoyed my conversations with Henry. It was like a grandfatherly relationship to me. He was always so proud - 'what are you involved in now kid?'"

"I really appreciate The Quincy Sun family and what it does for our community. This is such a fitting tribute for Henry tonight. It is such an honor to be a guest to honor Henry."

Ward 4 Councillor
BRIAN PALMUCCI

"When I think of Henry Bosworth, it reminds me of something I once read. It said: 'the true measure of a man is the legacy he leaves behind after he is gone.'

"That quote couldn't be more fitting for someone like Henry Bosworth. The legacy that he leaves behind - through his children, through the newspaper, and the deeds of his life. He was a true hero, both to his country and to his community. The man we're here celebrating tonight - the legacy he leaves behind - is one that won't soon fade from the city.

Helpful Household Hints

Decluttering Your Closet

(NAPSA)-Clearing out your closet and creating a clean and attractive spot for your stuff may be easier and less expensive than you may have feared.

Here are hints that can help:

- Edit your wardrobe. Donate clothing you haven't worn in a year or more, plus anything that no longer fits. When you wear something, return it to the closet with the hanger facing out; at the end of the year, you'll know which items you've never worn.
- Consider painting your closet interior a bright color or lining the shelves with pretty wrapping paper. Making your closet prettier and brighter may encourage you to keep it clean and clutter-free.

- Choose the right hanger. Real Simple Solutions flocked slim-line hangers can double your closet space and keep clothing from slipping. Indents hold straps in place and accessory bars securely hold belts, scarves or ties.
- Arrange folded items. When folding clothing to store on shelves, place heavier items at the bottom. Arrange garments by function (workout tops together, business tops together) and color (white to nude to bright colors to black). If your closet has no shelves, consider the Real Simple Solutions Sweater Organizer. If you have a taller closet, hang it lengthwise; if it's wider, use the side hinge to flip up the bottom shelves so they're side by side. The stretchy side pockets can store belts, scarves, purses or other accessories. Other uses for the item include putting it in the mudroom and assigning one section to each family member; organizing your child's outfits for each day of the week; or hanging it in the pantry and stocking it with entertaining supplies such as napkins, place mats and plastic dinnerware.

- Put your purses away. A hanging purse organizer lets you store your bags in a safe, space-saving manner. It will also hold rolled towels or linens or help you organize toys and sports equipment.
- Store shoes. For everyday shoes, you can use the sturdy Real Simple Solutions Shoe & Boot Organizer for easy access. It can hold 18 pairs of shoes in the pockets, plus two pairs of boots. The eight stretchy side pockets can store accessories.

Tips On Managing Your Lawn Like A Pro

By KYLE MILLER

(NAPSA)-Healthy lawns don't just happen. They require a plan. To maintain a healthy lawn, do what the lawn care pros do and develop a turf health care plan that includes proper mowing, watering, fertilizing and pest treatments. These fundamental steps are the foundation of an integrated health care plan for a beautiful, enjoyable lawn.

Mowing: Turf pros mow at least weekly. Frequent mowing minimizes leaf area removal, which creates less shock to turfgrass. It also helps grasses tiller, meaning new offspring plants grow next to parent plants, leading to a denser, healthier lawn.

Start by sharpening your mower blade and put it to work frequently. Dull blades tear turf, and turf damage makes grass tips more susceptible to disease and insects. Sharp blades make clean cuts, which heal quickly and are less prone to pests.

Watering: Watering is crucial for healthy lawns. Do it early in the morning for two smart reasons. First, 30 percent of watering during a hot day simply evaporates. Second, morning watering allows the sun to dry the tips of the blades, which reduces the amount of time the turfgrass foliage stays wet. That's good news, since diseases and insects are most destructive in moist plant material, so don't water at night when the top of the lawn will stay wet for many hours.

Fertilizing: Stimulate grass growth by applying a fertilizer when turfgrass is actively growing. Nutrients in fertilizer typically include nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium and levels of each, such as 5-10-20, appear on packaging. In this case, the 5-10-20 fertilizer would have 5 percent nitrogen, 10 percent phosphorus and 20 percent potassium.

A balanced fertilizer such as 5-10-20 promotes strong roots for the fall and winter months.

Treating for Pests: Plants-like people-can get sick. For example, grass can suffer from environmental stress that creates conditions for pest pressure. If lawn disease strikes, medication treatments in the form of pesticides are required to nurse the plant back to health.

To control weed pests, such as dandelions and clover, sedges and grassy weeds including crabgrass, treat your lawn with a pre-emergent herbicide. As the name implies, pre-emergent herbicides inhibit weed growth before weeds emerge.

If weeds emerge over time, treat them with a postemergent herbicide. Always consult specific pesticide product labels for restrictions, rates, use sites and safety information. Learn more at www.better-turf.basf.us.

Garage Door Safety

(NAPSA)-Teaching young children how to spell the word "door" may offer an additional lesson about garage door safety.

www.GarageDoorCare.com, a site sponsored by the International Door Association (IDA), spells safety this way:

- Doors are heavy-never stand, run or play under or near any garage door, especially when the door is open or moving.

IT'S AN OPEN-and-shut case. Children should learn that the garage door is not a toy.

- Openers are for adults-never play with the button on the wall that opens and closes the garage door.
- Ouch!-never touch any part of a moving garage door. Your fingers and hands can get hurt.
- Remotes are for adults-never play with the remote control in the car or on Mom and Dad's key chain.

IDA is the world's largest trade association of professional garage door and access system dealers and installers. The site helps homeowners learn about garage door safety and maintenance.

NQ Red Raiders Are Loaded This Year

By SEAN BRENNAN

This year's North Quincy Red Raider baseball team is going to be good, with the potential to one of the better teams on the South Shore. So, if you like watching quality high school baseball, this is a team that you should come out and support.

Last year, North Quincy High School had one of its best seasons in a decade. The Raiders finished with a 16-7 regular season record, and, won the Patriot League's Fisher Division title. The 16 regular season wins were one shy of the all-time school record of 17 set in 1998, and the Fisher Division championship was the program's first division title in over 25 years.

The Raiders also earned their first tournament appearance (Division I) since 2002, breaking a streak of seven years without playing a meaningful post-season game. The Raiders' season ended prematurely in the Division I first round following a 5-0 loss to Walpole High School.

"I had a real good team last year, but I actually feel like this year's team has the potential to be even better," said NQHS head coach John Fidalgo, who entering his third year as head coach has quickly turned around the Red Raider baseball program, shaping it into a potential South Shore powerhouse. "There is more talent across the board. We have more depth and that is going to give the coaching staff the option of moving guys around and seeing what combination works best.

"To be honest, at this point, I am still trying different guys out and moving players all over the place. The goal is to figure out what works and improve as a team as the season moves along."

Despite the fact that North Quincy graduated nine seniors off last year's team, including starting catcher Matt Rodriguez, #3 starter Joe Edgerly, and starting first baseman Danny Russell, this year's edition is loaded again, a fact that is not lost on Fidalgo.

The Raiders return their middle infield (2B and SS), their 3B, and every outfielder is also a returning varsity player.

Senior John Ainsley is back at second base, and junior Colin Ryan will be back at shortstop. Senior Ryan Louis will man the hot corner (3B), and Mike Medeiros, Devon Hudson and Brian Donaghey will see considerable time in the outfield. Other players to watch for include Ryan O'Connell, Mike Stille, Jim Vialpando, Matt Jayne, Joe Alibrandi, Tim Liuzzo, and Jose Ordonez.

Every player on this year's team, according to Fidalgo, has the ability to play multiple positions, which will give him the chance to play to his team's strengths as the season hits May and June.

"With Ainsley and Ryan and Louis, we have three very good returning starters in our infield," Fidalgo said. "Ryan can shift from shortstop to third base, and Ainsley and Louis also have the talent to play other positions. Then you have guys like Stille, Alibrandi and Liuzzo, who also can play multiple positions for us as well.

"The depth that we have will give us a better chance of winning games. It may take a little while to get everyone going, but we feel like this has the potential to be a very strong team."

With so much talent, North Quincy has a handful of players that will see time on the mound, either starting or pitching out of the bullpen. Included in this mix are Ryan, Louis, O'Connell, Medeiros, Liuzzo and Alibrandi.

MEMBERS OF THE NQHS Girls Rugby Club recently took part in a preseason rugby skills development program held at Lincoln-Sudbury Regional High School on March 27. Approximately 90 girls from throughout New England enjoyed training sessions led by high school and club coaches. The event was organized by Sarah Greeley (LSRHS) and ended with full-contact scrimmages for all participants. This is the second season of rugby at NQHS. Brian Casey, a NQHS chemistry teacher, is the head coach for both the girls and boys teams. Joe Eckstrom (a student teacher at NQHS) and Paul Hales (parent) are assistant coaches. Both teams are currently fundraising to cover transportation and referee fees. Anyone interested in sponsoring teams can contact Brian Casey through the NQHS school office at 617-984-8745. Front row from left: Bethany Routier, Courtney Bondarick and Jane Nguyen. Back row: Kristina Vey, Angelica Sincavage, Theresa Riordan, Tayla Hussey, Nancy Tran, Becky Vasquez and Sam LaVie.

"This may be the deepest pitching staff I have ever had," said Fidalgo. "Again, at this point, I am not even sure who our number one starter will be. All of these guys have shown the ability to get outs and that gives us a number of different ways to set up our staff.

"And with the potential for early season rainouts, having depth in our pitching staff should help us get through the start of the season."

Most, if not all of the players on this year's team, experienced the highs and lows of last season. They enjoyed the success of the regular season, and the bitterness of the post-season, and that experience should only go to strengthen the Raiders resolve this spring.

"Last year, overall, was a good season for us," added Fidalgo. "We won the Fisher Division title and advanced to the post-season and most of these guys had the chance to experience that. They also had to deal with the disappointment of a tournament loss.

"Looking back, I think our lack of tournament experience may have hurt us. We played tight in that game, but this year we will know what to expect. Also, most of these kids play together with Morrisette Legion after the high school season is finished, and last year that team was very successful. I am hoping some of that confidence can be used this year."

Despite winning the Patriot League's Fisher Division last season, North Quincy will not have the opportunity to defend that division championship this year. This season the Raiders

Coached Archbishop Williams High School
Boys Basketball Team To A 14-7 Record

Quincy's Ged Phelan Honored With The Paul Sargeant Award

It's not an eye-opening fact that coaching the Archbishop Williams basketball team to wins is high up in importance on Ged Phelan's to-do list. And this past season was more satisfying than most.

After a disappointing 1-19 winter in 2009, the squad bounced back to a splendid 14-7 record, which included a trip to the Div. 3 South Sectional tourney. Quincy was well represented on the Bishops' roster with a lineup that includes Matt Forbes, Tom Bloomer, Bill Hannon, Mike Augustine, Mike Mollins, Jason Pekkinen and Sean Ryan.

The entire basketball program fed off the varsity team's success with the freshmen compiling a strong 13-6 campaign and the JV players finishing at 11-9. Quincy natives Marc Cellucci and Kevin O'Connell coached the freshmen and JV teams, respectively.

But as driven and competitive as he is, Phelan hasn't forgotten the importance of good sportsmanship from his teams, regardless of their records. Phelan's character didn't go unnoticed, evident of his recent selection by the basketball officials of Board 54 IAABO of the South Shore to be awarded with the Paul Sargeant Award. The honor is bestowed upon a coach who exemplifies sportsmanship, character and development above wins and losses, and individual accolades.

"This award truly is because of the quality of the student athletes that played for Archbishop Williams this year," said Phelan. "I was blessed with good players who represent their school with class and dignity on and off the floor. The whole Archbishop Williams family should be proud of this staff. From the students, to the parents, to the teachers, to the administration, to my coaching staff. This is what we strive for as a learning institution."

GED PHELAN, a Quincy native and head basketball coach for the Archbishop Williams High School boys' team, was recently awarded the Paul Sargeant Award. This award was bestowed on Phelan for the sportsmanship, character and development above wins and losses and individual accolades that he showed this season. His team finished with a 14-7 record, a turnaround from a 1-19 record in 2009.

Phelan was also thrilled with the coaches working under him and their rapport with the kids. "Both Coach O'Connell and Coach Cellucci did a fantastic job for us this season," he said. "They were a big part of the varsity's success too. All the kids love these two guys."

Phelan has been a top producer for the Century 21 Annex Real Estate company of Quincy for the last six years. "I love the challenge in both professions," he said. "Both are very competitive situations. I'm very lucky to be associated with Archbishop Williams and Century 21 Annex."

ers have been moved into the Patriot League's Keenan Division, which means that they will have a tougher road to a first-place finish.

North Quincy will be competing with Hingham HS (undefeated last year), Duxbury HS, Scituate HS, Silver Lake HS, and Whitman-Hanson HS for the Keenan Division title.

"The change in divisions will be a challenge," said Fidalgo. "This is going to be a strong division. Hingham is one of the better team in the area, as is Duxbury and Silver Lake. All three of these teams, along with us, really have the ability and talent to win the division. It will be a tough schedule."

The Raiders' non-league schedule isn't going to be a walk down easy street either. North Quincy has scheduled Brockton HS, Weymouth HS, and Catholic Memorial; all three teams should challenge for supremacy in their respective leagues.

"Every year I look at my team and decide if it is a team that I want to push," said Fidalgo. "This non-league schedule will give us the chance to play against some of the best teams in the area. CM is one of the best teams in the state, and Brockton and Weymouth are strong as well."

The 2010 schedule is proof that Fidalgo and his staff believe in this team. Matching last year's 16-win mark is not the goal, neither is a division title. The goal is to be playing their best baseball when it matters most, and that is tournament time.

"We always have team goals, but I don't really look at wins and losses," added Fidalgo. "It is about playing good baseball when it matters most. The great thing about this team is that we (coaching staff) no longer have to teach them how to play the game.

"The physical aspect of baseball, these guys have, they are consistent. We can now focus on the mental aspect of the game and get to a higher level of advance coaching."

Notes: North Quincy, which was set to open the 2010 season on Wednesday at home versus Brockton, is now tentatively scheduled to play a double-header on Friday against Brockton at Campanelli Stadium. The first game is set for Noon and the second game for 3 p.m.... The team will travel to Weymouth HS on April 5, before hosting Hingham HS at Adams Field on April 7 (4 p.m.)... An away game at Whitman-Hanson HS on April 9 closes out a busy week of baseball for NQHS.

North Quincy & Quincy Drop Season Openers

The North Quincy Red Raiders lost to Barnstable High School, 3-0, in the season opener for both teams. The Atlantic Coast League game saw Barnstable defeat North Quincy, 25-14, 25-17, and 25-20.

North Quincy got great play from junior captain Derek Seto (team-high 16 assists and five blocks), while junior captain Johnny Ly led the Red Raiders with 15 digs.

Senior Alfredo Cabrera (seven kills) and sophomore Aris Bega (five blocks) also played solid for North Quincy.

New Bedford def. Quincy, 3-0

Senior RiSeng Mai led the Presidents with six digs as the visitors dropped a non-league game to New Bedford High School.

A Night for Eric Torvi April 24

A special fundraising event called 'A Night for Eric Torvi' will be held on April 24 from 7 p.m. until midnight at Florian Hall, 55 Hallett Street in Dorchester.

Torvi is the son of Doug and Deb Edgerly of Quincy.

The event, presented by Johnny Pizzi, will feature comedy and music performances by the North Shore Acappella, DJ Barry Mooney, George Lyons, Carrissa Scieri, Sal Votano, Johnny Pizzi, Paul D'Angelo and Christine Hurley.

The evening will also

Quincy Resident To Run In His 30th Marathon

Hassan Haydar Doubling Up At Boston

In 2006, Hassan Haydar ran the Boston Marathon twice for a total of 52.4 miles. His odyssey started out at the finish line in the early hours on marathon morning where he began his run to Hopkinton in time for the race. Haydar finished, took a deep breath, then reversed direction and ran back to the finish line in Boston with the thousands of other runners.

Haydar will be spending his Patriot's Day tearing up the fabled course once again, twice over.

Haydar enjoys the sport for the benefits and overall simplicity. "The miracle of running is that it delivers improvement no matter what shape you're in or how old you are, regardless of injuries or shortcomings from birth," said Haydar. "Your gender doesn't matter, nor does your intelligence. Simply grab your running shoes and head for the door."

The distance ace will be starting out at the finish line at 4 a.m., hopes to make it to Hopkinton before the race starts at 10 a.m. Haydar is aiming for 4:30 on the way to Hopkinton and is looking to break 4:00 in the actual race. He has a personal best of 3:13.

All indications are that Haydar is up to the challenge once again. He cracked the top 20 in the Quincy Half Marathon on March 21 with a 1:29:38. His time was good for 15th place and the bronze medal in the 50-59 division.

Haydar has spent the winter packing in the miles in preparation for Boston times two. He trains with the popular South Boston L Street Running Club and the members have been very supportive of his ambitious marathon-day trek. Haydar singled out Josh Nemzer for getting him to aim higher, run longer and push the running envelope.

Haydar has been running for the past 10 years. This year's race will be his 10th Boston in a row and 30th marathon overall. Haydar truly believes that running can turn lives around. It certainly can't compensate for jobs and housing, but it provides focus and discipline. Running helps in losing weight and giving up unhealthy habits.

The Boston Marathon route is very challenging. It descends from a height of 462 feet above sea level to 49 feet at the Newton Lower Falls. It ascends again before finally winding up at nine feet above sea level at the finish line. The terrain taxes the quadriceps muscles. Boston, though, is the No. 1 sought after marathon in the running world, on many runners' to-do list.

HASSAN HAYDAR will be running his tenth Boston Marathon on April 19.

Friday, April 2 at Veterans Memorial Stadium

Strikers FC Sponsoring Free Soccer Jamboree for U8 Youth

This Friday (April 2), from 5:30-7 p.m., the Strikers FC are offering a free soccer jamboree for boys and girls between the ages of 6 to 8 at Veterans Memorial Stadium on the turf.

Teams will be organized starting at 5:15 p.m. and all teams will play three 25-minute games in a 4 x 4 format. Quincy Youth Soccer U8 spring coaches are encouraged to bring their teams, but you do not need a QYS team to play; the jamboree director is forming teams for anyone interested who attends.

Email Derek McCleary at damccleary@verizon.net with your child's name along with friends who will attend, or if you have a team, email the name of the team and list of players.

You will receive an email confirming your spot in the jamboree.

Space is limited to eight teams and will be given on a first-come-first-serve basis; QYS players are encouraged to wear their uniforms.

The Strikers soccer club will also be accepting registration for players interested in joining its spring skills training program. The Strikers U8 Foundation training program is specially designed with this age group in mind to make it fun, promote friendship, and teach skills.

For those in attendance, the nine-week Foundations program starts April 6 with training sessions on Tuesday and Thursday from 6-7:30 p.m. and Saturday from 10-11:30 a.m. at Quarry Street Fields (across from the Elks Lodge). The schedule is designed to be flexible with plenty of training options.

The total cost of the program is $80 and includes two training jerseys. Derek McCleary and Don Martin (QHS girls varsity coach), with a combined 40 years of youth coaching experience, will be the trainers. Both have USSF E Coaching Licenses along with being Grade 8 USSF referees.

For additional information, contact Derek McCleary at 617-479-4912.

The Strikers FC Club is a non-profit, with all proceeds from the program going toward promoting soccer in Quincy and creating scholarships for families in need.

RICKY SALVUCCI and David Ortiz get together for a photo opportunity before the Northeastern University Huskies played against the Boston Red Sox in an exhibition game on March 3 in Fort Myers, Florida. Salvucci is a Quincy High School alumni and a product of the Quincy Youth Baseball and Morrisette Legion programs.

Quincy's Ricky Salvucci Shares Diamond With Red Sox

Ricky Salvucci, of Quincy, who, this season, is a member of the Northeastern University baseball team, playing 2B, INF, and DH, had a memorable moment on March 3, in Fort Myers, Florida.

Salvucci and his Huskies played an exhibition game against the Boston Red Sox. Salvucci came to bat against a big left-handed Dominican pitcher who threw 95 mph. Salvucci had a great at-bat, and after working the count, he roped a hard hit ball down the third base line. Red Sox third baseman Bill Hall made a good play and threw out Salvucci at first base by a step.

The Huskies lost to the Red Sox, 15-0, and only had two hits, but rubbing elbows with the Red Sox was an experience of a lifetime.

Salvucci also had the opportunity to share a chat on the field with David Ortiz. He showed Ortiz his jersey number (#34), the same as the Ortiz, and the two had a moment with Ortiz saying, "that's a lucky number, keep it."

Salvucci wanted to thank all the friends, family, Quincy Youth Baseball, Morrisette Legion Baseball, Coaches, the Robert Brill Baseball Scholarship and QHS Alumni, who all supported him in the Northeastern Baseball 100-pitch challenge, which raises funds for this annual trip to Florida, and helps make this game possible by pledging support for Salvucci.

Local Players Continue To Make Contributions

Local Quincy residents continue to make key contributions to their respective college baseball teams.

Mike LeBel, who plays shortstop for the University of Rhode Island, completed a torrid nine game stretch in which he batted out 18 hits, including three home runs, for a .467 batting average and a .795 slugging percentage, and scored 16 runs. For the season, he leads the Rams in several offensive categories: home runs (4), runs scored (24), and slugging percentage (.585). His .366 batting average is the team's second best.

University of Massachusetts teammates Tom Conley and Glenn Misho made significant contributions over the past seven games. Conley, a catcher, batted .385 and had a .500 on base average, increasing his season averages to .265 and .414, respectively.

Over the same seven game stretch, Misho has pitched seven innings, allowed three hits and one earned run and struck out four batters.

Scott Warwick, who had pitched 12 innings for Fairfield University, is still in search of his first decision.

Dean Sandomato of Bentley University had a dominating relief effort against Division II nationally ranked Franklin Pierce this past Sunday. He retired eight of nine batters and earned the save. He reduced his season earned run average to 3.46 and leads Bentley in saves.

Matt Rodriguez, a catcher for Curry College has played flawlessly in the field. He has a .263 batting average while starting about half of Curry College's games.

Kim LeBel Starring for Quinnipiac University

Kim LeBel, a Quincy High School graduate and a senior at Quinnipiac University, is the starting left fielder on the school's softball team.

LeBel is a four-year softball player and she began her career as a catcher before moving to the outfield this season. Her transition has been flawless as her fielding percentage is a perfect 1.000%.

In addition to her fielding excellence, LeBel ranks third on the team in runs batted in (RBI) and earlier this season she knocked in the winning run against local rival Yale University.

Running For American Liver Foundation

Three Quincy Residents To Run Boston Marathon

Quincy residents Amanda Fowle, 25, Courtney Madden, 27, and Ryan Zimmerman, 29, will be running the 114th Boston Marathon in support of the American Liver Foundation's Run for Research Team (RFR).

All three runners have put in hours of rigorous training and have risen, through fundraising, thousands of dollars for children and adults stricken with liver disease. The Boston Marathon will be run on Monday, April 19.

This year, 239 runners from 26 states, Washington, D.C. and Canada, comprise the American Liver Foundation's Run for Research Team. These individuals will be running the 26.2-mile course to help the 30 million Americans (one in ten) who are affected by liver disease.

Fowle, Madden and Zimmerman have been paired with individuals who are afflicted with liver disease in the Patient Match Program, further emphasizing a strong tie between the runners and the American Liver Foundation's mission.

The 2010 RFR team hopes to raise $1.3 million this year.

To make a donation to Fowle, Madden or Zimmerman, visit www.liverteam.org and click on 'sponsor a runner' and choose their name.

QUINCY RESIDENT BARBARA MURPHY CHRISTLE displays her new running attire at the American Stroke Association's Train to End Stroke Marathon Kickoff held Feb. 17. Christle is currently training to complete the Nashville Marathon in April. She is passionate about raising awareness for the number three cause of death: stroke. The American Heart Association and the American Stroke Association encourage everyone to support Train to End Stroke, a marathon training and fundraising program that helps support vital research, education programs, and services to fight stroke, reduce disability and save lives. To Be Held May 1 & 2 at QYA

1st Annual NQ/Quincy Alumni Hockey Tournament

The first annual North Quincy vs. Quincy Alumni Hockey Tournament will be held May 1 and 2 at the Quincy Youth Arena.

The tournament, which will give old friends and teammates an opportunity to play with each other as well as against each other, will be set up in a round robin (two-game elimination) format with two divisions: North Quincy and Quincy.

The Quincy Division and North Quincy Division will battle it out to see which alumni team is the best from each high school. The winner of each division will then represent their respective teams and fellow alumni in the North Quincy versus Quincy Alumni Championship game.

The cost of the event is $50 per player. Each participant will receive a jersey and will be guaranteed at least two games. You may sign up individually and will be placed on a team or you may also submit an entire team with a minimum of ten players per team.

For additional information regarding the tournament, whether you want to play, submit an entire team, volunteer or become a sponsor, visit www.quincynorthquincyalumnhockey.com or email Matt Gibbons at nqhockey@hotmail.com with your name, school, graduation year and your email address.

Fundraising Event April 10

Atty. Tracy Wilson To Run Boston Marathon

Quincy resident and Attorney Tracy Wilson will run in her third consecutive Boston Marathon on April 19 to benefit Children's Hospital Boston. She is running as a member of Children's Miles for Miracles Team, which is committed to raising critical funds to benefit Children's Hospital Boston's areas of greatest need: patient care, medical research, recruitment and training, as well as community health initiatives. Runners meet this fundraising goal through sponsorships, personal donations, and pledges from their families, friends, communities and colleagues.

This year, Wilson has the honor of running for nine-year old Maureen Walsh of Quincy and her siblings Lauren and Gregory, all who have benefited from the compassionate care offered at Children's Hospital.

"Children's Hospital Boston has provided the Walsh family with compassionate staff, unparalleled expertise, and so much more," said Wilson. "There are thousands of kids who wouldn't be here today without Children's. This is why I once again joined the hospital's marathon team, and I am committed to raising funds to help save kids' lives through its phenomenal research and care."

Wilson, to help raise the necessary funds, will be hosting her 3rd Annual Miles for Miracles fundraising event at the Greater Quincy Knights of Columbus on Saturday, April 10 at 7:30 p.m.

The evening will feature, beginning at 7:30 p.m., a raffle and silent auction, with entertainment by DJ Glen McAuliffe, comedy featuring local comedian/impersonator Graig Murphy and a special musical performance by BarRoom Heroes.

If you would like to sponsor and/or purchase tickets to the event, call Wilson at 617-847-6993 or to donate online, go to <http://howtohelp.childrenshospital.org/bostonmarathon>

At Fitness Unlimited April 11

NQHS Baseball Fundraiser

The North Quincy High School Boosters will be holding a ZUMBA Fundraiser on Sunday, April 11 at 3 p.m. at Fitness Unlimited in East Milton Square.

Tickets are $10 and may be purchased at the door or by call Sandy at 617-839-0523.

Dee O'Conner will be instructing the class.

Registration Open for Quincy Lions Club Run/Walk for Sight

Online registration is currently underway for the 13th Annual Quincy Lions Run/Walk for Sight. The event will take place on Saturday, April 17 at Pageant Field in Quincy.

To register online, visit www.quincylionsclub.org.

Day-of-race registration will begin at 9 a.m., followed by the start of the children's 1K race at 10:30 a.m. The adult 5K run/walk — on a course certified by US Track & Field — begins at 11 a.m. Prizes will be awarded to race winners in a number of categories, and the first 200 registrants will receive a free race t-shirt and runner's giveaway bag.

The registration fee is $20 for adults and $5 for the children's 1K race, and includes a buffet lunch following the race. There will also be entertainment and prize raffles featuring Red Sox tickets, restaurant gift certificates and more.

"The Run/Walk for Sight is a fun event for the whole family," said Quincy Lions Club President Michelle Lydon. "The local community has been very supportive of the Lions Club's efforts to help blind and visually impaired individuals, and we hope everyone will come out and enjoy this fun and worthwhile event."

Sponsors for this year's race include Eastern Bank, Blue Cross/Blue Shield of MA, South Shore Savings Bank, Bank of Canton, Cerebral Palsy of MA, Lydon Chapel for Funerals, Danvers Bank, ASAP Environmental, Mansfield and Nolan, PC, and Keezer Sportswear.

Proceeds from the Run/Walk benefit eye research and the Quincy Lions Club's community service activities, including providing free eye exams and free eyeglasses for local residents in need, offering free vision and health screenings, providing college scholarships to local high school students and more.

Kids Need 'Growing' Food For Bodies, Brains And Behavior

(NAPSA)-Registered dietitian Tara Dellolaco-Thies says kids' bodies aren't the only things that need good food for healthy growth. Their brains are hungry for nutritious foods too.

Recent reports from the Journal of the American Dietetic Association express concerns that kids are not getting the nutrients they need for physical and cognitive development.

Kids' bodies require a tremendous amount of energy to maintain a healthy growth rate. The best foods for growth include whole grains, fruit, beans, some meat and vegetables. All of these foods provide "growing" nutrients, such as folic acid, calcium, zinc, vitamin B6, vitamin B12, fiber, protein and carbohydrates.

Intellectual growth happens as kids' brains develop with the help of powerful nutrients found in grains, dairy and fish. Nutrients important for their cognitive development include iron, omega-3s, vitamin D, protein and whole grain carbohydrates.

"GROWING" FOOD can be found in packages. Look for packaged snack foods made with organic ingredients and the right mix of carbohydrates, protein, fiber, vitamins and minerals.

Finding "growing" foods is easiest while shopping the perimeter of the grocery store, where the fruits, vegetables, meats and dairy are located. Here are some important tips that all parents should know when making food choices for kids:

- Iron: Research at Penn State University found that a lack of iron can affect thinking. Low iron is associated with fatigue, depression, anxiety and decreased attention, responsiveness and memory. Foods rich in iron include lean red meat, dark leafy greens and fortified cereals.

- Artificial colors and preservatives: Kids are eating more foods filled with artificial ingredients and few nutrients, which contributes to increased rates of malnutrition. Read the ingredient label and avoid foods with artificial ingredients.

- DHA/Omega-3: A diet lacking in these healthy fatty acids can cause symptoms similar to iron deficiency. Foods rich in omega-3 include fish and fortified milk.

- Calcium: A calcium deficiency can stunt growth now and increase risk of osteoporosis later. Foods rich in calcium include cheese, yogurt, milk and fortified orange juice.

- Trans Fat and High Fructose Corn Syrup: Partially hydrogenated oil (trans fat is a by-product) and high fructose corn syrup are used in many popular kids foods and offer no nutritional value. Look for foods without trans fat and highly processed sugars.

As a general rule, developing healthy eating habits—such as eating breakfast each day and satisfying a sweet tooth with fruit—can have a major positive effect on a child's physical growth and behavior. In addition, spreading foods out into three small meals and two small snacks throughout the day will give kids the energy to keep moods on a more even keel.

If fresh fruits and vegetables aren't readily available, the nutrients needed for growth can be found in certain packaged, healthy snack foods.

Parents should note that most packaged food labels are based on adult recommended daily allowances and a 2,000-calorie meal plan—often not correlated with a child's needs. As the registered dietitian for CLIF Kid, Dellolaco-Thies offers a chart to help parents "digest" food labels to better meet their kids' needs at www.clifbar.com/clifikidra.

Milton Hospital 'Swing Into Spring' Fundraising Gala May 20

Milton Hospital will host its "Swing Into Spring" fundraising gala Thursday, May 20 at Lombardo's in Randolph.

This year's event will include both a silent and live auction, featuring lots of fantastic items. Attendees can bid on gift certificates from various local restaurants and businesses, hot air balloon rides and an exciting all-inclusive trip to Africa.

Several ballroom dance pairs will perform throughout the night including, Director of Business Development for Beth Israel Deaconess Healthcare Brian Connolly and Audrey Jean Samara from the In Step Dance Center located in Hingham.

"The Swing into Spring event provides the community with many different ways to support the hospital," said Joseph V. Morrissey, president of Milton Hospital. "It promises to be a fun event and everyone is looking forward to the performances."

Net proceeds from this year's fundraiser will go toward purchasing IntelliVue portable networked patient monitors. IntelliVue monitors aid in treatment by collecting, combining, and cross-referencing vital data to provide a complete picture of a patient's status.

Sponsorships, advertising and donations are still being accepted. Tickets are $125, or $175 for the "Backstage Pass", and can be purchased online at www.miltonhospital.org, or by calling Stephanie Shunda, Development Associate, at 617-313-1194.

Milton Hospital provides community-based health care to people of all ages in Milton, Quincy, Braintree, Randolph, Canton, Hyde Park, Dorchester and other local communities. Services include general medical and surgical inpatient care, a complete complement of outpatient health services and 24-hour emergency services.

The hospital is a clinical affiliate of Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center, and has more than 250 physicians on staff, representing primary care and 22 different medical specialties.

SHAPE UP!

An estimated one in four American adults is almost completely sedentary. However, it is never too late to start exercising, as long as first-time exercisers get medical clearance to embark on a vigorous physical program if they are men over 45 or women over 55. A chiropractic evaluation can also provide a biomechanical evaluation of the body. It is not necessary (or even a good idea) for out-of-shape adults to return to the exercise routines of their youth to get back into shape. Because overly aggressive 50-year-old adults can hurt themselves, they are advised to give themselves six months to shape up rather than the eight weeks that younger adults in their 20s would need to get fit.

We commonly prescribe specific strengthening exercises for our patients with back, neck, and extremity problems. At the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we have carefully developed a staff that genuinely cares and listens to the patient. Please call us at 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. Whether your visit to us is for initial intensive care to treat acute pain, rehabilitative care to manage an ongoing problem, or maintenance care to keep you at a healthy and optimal level, we have the services you require. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy, where we offer the most innovative chiropractic techniques and technologies to give the best possible outcome to all of our patients. Give chiropractic a try! No matter where you live in Eastern Mass., we can offer you exceptional chiropractic service.

A Job Well Done

On Saturday, March 20, at approximately 4:15 p.m., Drug Unit Detectives' Duran, Keenan, Coen and Barkas were conducting surveillance in the area of Furnace Brook Parkway near Copeland Street. At this time, Detective Keenan observed a Trailblazer, occupied by one male suspect (#1), on Cross Street near Crescent Street.

LT. DAN MINTON

The male was talking on his cellular phone and appeared to be looking around out his window as if he was waiting for someone. Detective Keenan then notified other members of the DCU of his observations.

After a few minutes, the male drove his vehicle from Cross Street, turned right on Crescent Street, right on Furnace Brook Parkway, and then right on Miller Street. Once on Miller Street, the male pulled over to the side of the road and again spoke on his cellular phone while looking out his driver's side window. After about five minutes, the male drove down Miller Street and made a right turn on Cross Street. He parked on the side of the road at the intersection of Cross Street and Copeland Street.

Detective O'Brien observed the male again talking on his cellular phone and looking intently at passing cars as they traversed Copeland Street. After about ten minutes, the male drove back to the original location that Detective Keenan saw him. The male again spoke on the phone as he scanned for a vehicle to arrive at his location. After about ten minutes parked there, detectives observed a blue Ford (suspect #2) slow down as it passed suspect #1's vehicle. Once suspect #2's Ford drove by, suspect #1 pulled out and drove behind the Ford. Both vehicles ended up at on Barry Street, where they pulled to the side of the road and parked. Suspect #1 exited his vehicle and walked over to vehicle #2, where he leaned inside the passenger side door briefly, then walked back to his vehicle.

Detectives had reason to believe that a drug transaction had just occurred, so they planned to follow and then stop both vehicles. As the vehicles neared the intersection of Barry and Harris Streets, Detective O'Brien emerged in front of the suspect #2 in the Ford. Vehicle/suspect #1 was behind the Ford.

At the intersection, as Detective O'Brien stopped his vehicle at the stop sign and started to exit his unmarked cruiser, suspect #2 accelerated rapidly, drove around Detective O'Brien's vehicle, up on the sidewalk, through the stop sign and left onto Harris Street. Detectives' Duran and Keenan approached suspect #1, identified themselves as Police Officers and ordered suspect #1 to shut off his vehicle. As Detective Keenan removed suspect #1 from his vehicle, the suspect immediately put his right hand in his right shorts pocket. When asked what was in his pocket, suspect #1 stated, "Cocaine." Detective Duran removed six individually wrapped glassine baggies of Cocaine from the suspect's pocket, along with several prescription pills. Suspect #1 waived his Miranda rights and told Detectives that he just purchased the six bags of Cocaine from the "Hispanic" male (suspect #2) in the Ford. He said that he paid $200 for the Cocaine, with four $50 bills.

Detective Keenan then notified Detective O'Brien of their findings. Detectives' O'Brien and Barkas followed behind the Ford as it fled Barry Street. Once the Ford turned onto Harris Street, it sped towards Reardon Street, driving down the wrong side of the street and around another motorist. Officer Mark Millane responded to the call and stopped the suspect vehicle on Furnace Brook Parkway. Detective O'Brien pulled his vehicle in front of the Ford while Detectives O'Brien, Barkas, and Officer Millane approached the driver's side of the Ford and removed the suspect. As the suspect was led from his vehicle, he dropped four $50.00 dollar bills from his right hand onto the ground. It is believed that suspect #2 fed the police until he was able to destroy any evidence he may had.

Officer Millane transported suspect #2 to the Quincy Police Station where he was charged with Distribution of Class B Drug, Conspiracy to Violate Drug Laws, School Zone Violation, Failing to Stop for Police, Operating Recklessly so as to Endanger, and Stop Sign Violation. Suspect #1 was charged with Possession of Class B Drug and Conspiracy to Violate Drug Laws.

HOLY WEEK and EASTER SERVICES

Passover Seder Supper Thursday Night At Quincy Community United Methodist

The Quincy Community United Methodist Church will hold a Passover Seder Supper April 1, starting with the reading of the Hagadah at 6:30 p.m.

The Rev. Susan F. Jarek-Glidden, pastor said. "Because Passover and Holy Week coincide this year, the Quincy Community thought holding a Seder would be a way to honor Christianity's Jewish roots."

The meal will be potluck, so everyone is asked to bring a salad, main course, or dessert to share. To ensure that the table is set properly, reservations are required, and can be made by calling 617-773-3319. Deadline is Palm Sunday, March 28.

The church is located at 40 Beale St. The building is handicapped accessible through its front entrance at the door nearest the flagpole.

Bethany Congregational Church

Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Center will have Easter Sunday Worship and Church School at 10 a.m.

The Rev. William C. Harding will conduct the service and preach a sermon entitled "The Risen and Living Savior."

The beautifully decorated sanctuary is inspiring and adds to the celebration of the resurrection of Jesus, our savior. A time of Fellowship with light refreshments will follow the worship service.

Food items will be collected for the I.S.S. Food Pantry. The Youth Group will meet at 6 p.m.

All are welcome to attend Bethany Church Worship Services and its numerous group activities.

Bethany has Women Groups meeting daytime and evening, a Youth Group, a Men's Group, an Outreach Mission Group doing various charity works and a Friday morning Bible Study Class.

The church office is open from 8:30 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m.

For those unable to attend worship service on Sundays, the Bethany Church Service is broadcast on Quincy Access Television at 6 p.m. on Thursday evenings on Channel 8.

Childcare will be available for infants and toddlers during worship service on Sundays.

The church is wheelchair accessible.

Evangelical Clergy Association Special Holy Week Services

The South Shore Evangelical Clergy Association invites the Quincy community to join together for special Holy Week services.

On Good Friday, April 2, at noon, a worship service with a simple soup lunch following will be held at The Covenant Church of Quincy, 315 Whitwell St.

Local pastors and church musicians will take part in leading the worship which commemorates the death of Jesus Christ on the cross.

On Easter Sunday, April 4, the annual Easter Sunrise Worship Service will be held at Wollaston Beach between the Wollaston and Squantum Yacht Clubs. In case of rain the service will be held at Evangelical Congregational Church of Atlantic, 65 Newbury Ave., in Quincy. The service will begin at 6:30 a.m. and will be led by members of the South Shore Evangelical Clergy Association with music from the brass band of the Quincy Corps of The Salvation Army.

All are welcome to attend both of these services.

A THOUGHT
FOR THE WEEK

Easter, with its promise of life everlasting, dawns of Sunday and the Christian world needs that promise today perhaps more than it has ever needed. We need so much the love God gave. We need it in our homes, our communities, in our nation and throughout the world.

Of all the festivals in the Christian calendar, none has a deeper meaning than Easter. Here we learn the true meaning of that faith, that life is eternal; that from a seemingly dead winter slumber, life is renewed. We are aware that this is a new season, one revived from the drabness of winter. Nature herself is the example we are given. The sun shines more, plants begin to peek through the brown of the earth. Trees, which stood starkly bare for months, begin to live again.

This is Easter. This is the sun which comes after the most sorrowing hours of death. This is our hope. In our daily lives, Christianity and its promises are the strength which hold us in time of sadness; which we recognize as gifts during joy and which sustain us in every effort.

For the Christian, Easter comes as a continuation of God's great promise...

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You might be upset about having to deal with problems that are no fault of your own. But you can turn the annoyance into an asset by showing how quickly and how well you can resolve them.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) The Bovine's fondness for tidiness pays off when you untangle a situation that seems hopelessly snarled. You might later be surprised to learn who will be expressing his or her gratitude.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Although you can tackle your assignment the way you prefer, it might be a good idea to at least ask for suggestions. Who knows? One or two might even turn out to be helpful.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Make all the changes in your plans or proposals that you feel are necessary before -- repeat, before -- you submit them to your colleagues. You'll come off looking more decisive that way.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You might feel a mite intimidated in a new environment, be it a job, a classroom or meeting the future in-laws. But enter with a big smile, and everyone will see you as a real take-charge Cat.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) This could be a romantic time for you if you can set aside your cynicism and let yourself believe that someone really cares. If you're already in a relationship, expect your partner to be extra-loving.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) It's a good time to shed any doubts about your ability.

You've proved yourself in the past, so why not accept that you'll do just as well, or better, in dealing with the new challenge ahead?

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your suspicions might be on the mark, but unless you can prove what you assume, you need to exercise that Scorpion discretion and let events unfold without your assistance.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Be careful not to go over the top this week. Avoid overeating (especially of the wrong foods), or drinking too much, or working too hard. You can do it all, but in moderation.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A family matter is given to you to resolve because you have the gift for bringing quarrels some kinfolk together. But while you're playing Dr. Phil, don't neglect your career obligations.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Someone of importance shares your goals but disagrees with your plan to achieve them. Never mind. Defending your methods with logic and facts earns you admiration and respect.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Consider getting away, perhaps for the weekend, despite all the demands made on your time and energies. You'll return refreshed and ready to tackle it all with your usual finesse.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a sense of honesty that makes people believe and trust in you.

MWRA Chief To Meet With Councillors On Sewage Release

Raymondi questioned City Solicitor James Timmins who, not only suggested there might be a basis for civil action but, also, described his experience on Willard Street.

Timmins said his private practice office is on Willard Street and has previously been flooded because I-93 is below grade and the water is re-directed.

"There are photographs," said Palmucci who reported that "members of the Department of Public Works reached out to (state workers) and asked them to stop...."

"We'll take a look at this. It's absolutely outrageous if it's true," said Timmins.

However, Councillor Michael McFarland pointed out that MassHighway is required, by law, to keep interstate highways open and Councillor John Keenan described the "territorial battle (of agencies) at the state level."

"Everybody points fingers everywhere else," said Keenan of the DOT (Department of Transportation), the DCR (Department of Conservation and Reservation), and MassHighway.

Palmucci introduced a resolution asking that state legislators review the practices of MassHighway in such emergencies and report to the council.

At the same meeting, Raymondi and Ward 1 Councillor Laforest co-sponsored a resolve seeking answers from the MWRA which released 14.5 million gallons of untreated sewage into Quincy Bay on March 15.

Laforest said that MWRA officials told her that 90% of the 14.5 million gallons of untreated waste was actually storm water and all the councillors acknowledged that the action saved the Nut Island facility and many homes.

However, both Laforest and Raymondi said issues still remain as to paying for the Quincy Bay cleanup.

"Why is it that the city's on the hook for those claims?" asked City Council President Kevin Coughlin.

"There has to be a violation of law (regarding) dumping raw sewage," said Raymondi.

Laforest, also, noted that Quincy Bay has been declared a "No Discharge Zone," for all sewage including boats.

Councillors passed both resolutions.

Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee voted against the MWRA resolution after noting that the agency is authorized to act by the state's Environmental Protection Agency during catastrophic events.

McNamee reminded the council that the MWRA had little choice but to send the sewage into the bay or into city homes and destroy the Nut Island treatment plant.

"Is it up to the City of Quincy to clean up the Bay?" asked Laforest who noted that MWRA treats sewage from as far away as Framingham.

TOM LAITINEN will close his business, TAJ Coin, Stamp Company on Maple Street in Quincy Center this summer. The 91-year-old building his business has been located in for 42 years will be razed to make way for open green space. Quincy Sun Photo/Robert Bosworth

Won't Relocate After Building Is Razed TAJ Coin, Stamp Co. Closing After 42 Years In Business

By JOE REARDON

Tom Laitinen sat behind the counter of his Maple Street, TAJ Coin & Stamp Company store, assessing the price of a small collection of coins for a long-time customer.

Around him, years of inventory were in view for collectors, young and old. Display cases, neatly filled with rows of coins, lined the wall of the store. Stamps from all parts of the globe, dating back decades, were protected under thin plastic sheets in dozens of books. Unopened packs of baseball cards, from as far back as the 1980s, lined a shelf above the coins.

Within 20 minutes of opening, there were already a half-dozen customers in the store, some scanning the display cases, others with lists of coins and stamps they needed to complete sets. Laitinen juggled helping his customers to politely explaining to a woman on the phone, who was trying to sell him coins, that he already had three sets and didn't need a fourth.

After 42 years at TAJ, the days of dealing with hobbyists are numbered. The Bradford Building — a longtime city fixture at the corner of Maple and Chestnut Streets in Quincy Center — is scheduled to be razed in August, making way for open green space. Laitinen's store, a Quincy landmark for four decades, is one of the businesses that will be coming down.

Just up the street at Hair Place One Russell Edwards, owner Ron Afssa has his sights set on a new location. "We're not going out of business," he said. "We'll be a stone's throw away and we'll have plenty of parking."

For Laitinen, the time has come to retire from a job he has enjoyed passionately for four decades.

"I was fortunate being able to turn my hobby into money," the Quincy resident said. "I would have hung around forever. Where they're tearing down the building, we had to go."

"I got into the business because I like it. It's turning a hobby into pleasure."

Intermittent Off-Peak Lane Restrictions

MassDOT crews are conducting survey work in preparation of the first phase of construction on the Neponset River Bridge Phase II, between Boston and Quincy, through Friday April 9.

During the work, the right-hand, southbound (outbound) lane will be restricted from 7 a.m. to noon, and the right-hand, northbound (inbound) lane will be restricted from noon to 4 p.m.

On Monday, April 12 it is anticipated that MassDOT crews will begin installing barriers in preparation for the first phase of construction.

5% Cut In State Aid, Legislators Warn Fiscal Forecast Gloomy, 2012 Worse?

By LAURA GRIFFIN

State legislators warned Monday that the city could face a 5% cut in state aid this year and level funding for the school department as state resources dry up in the current economic squeeze.

The only good news that they offered is that 2011 is better than the 2012 forecasts and it's likely the state has already hit bottom. Improvements will be slow to come.

"We're treading water," Senator Michael Morrissey said of the state's finances.

That news is hard to take as the city's finances already suggest a $12 million gap projected for 2011 and major cutbacks across city departments.

Rep. Ron Mariano and Rep. Stephen Tobin joined Morrissey for the annual legislators' meeting with councillors at City Hall.

Councillors and legislators reviewed employment and state revenue projections, local aid, gaming proposals, as well as the reconstruction of Fore River and Neponset Bridges. Rep.

Bruce Ayers was out of town.

STATE REVENUE

Morrissey offered details on the state finances, but said the legislature has not voted the 2011 budget.

According to data supplied by Morrissey, the state's finances stayed fairly steady until September 2008 when "the full force of the global financial crisis came crashing down on top of the ongoing business recession, finally dragging Massachusetts into its depths with tax

First One April 26 At Fore River Clubhouse Koch To Detail City Finances At Community Meetings

Mayor Thomas Koch will hold a series of nine community meetings in neighborhoods across Quincy to detail local finances and answer questions from residents as the city continues to confront an historic economic crisis.

"We are going to show our residents exactly how we spend money, how we raise money, what our obligations are, and what is going to be required to maintain our core services," Koch said Tuesday. "These are incredibly difficult times, and we are going to work through them by having an open and honest conversation, answering hard questions and making tough choices."

A first-of-its-kind financial report that will outline in easy-to-read detail the full scope of city spending, revenues, and historic and future trends will be made

Census Rallies Saturday At Three Quincy Locations

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Three rallies Saturday in spots across the city will cap Census Week in Quincy as local and federal officials and volunteers urge every resident to mail back the 2010 census form by April 19.

Every new resident represents money in the bank for the city, according to City Clerk Joseph Shea who kicked off the final census campaign Monday at City Council. "This is Census Week."

"For every percentage,

United States Census 2010

we save millions in tax dollars," said Shea who said the flow of federal dollars is tied directly to the census count. Those federal dollars flow to boost the city's schools, infrastructure and agencies

'We'll Still Be A Full-Service Hospital,' Says Interim Chairman Of The Board Of Trustees

QMC: Cutting Costs, Bolstering Its Services

By TOM HENSHAW

Struggling Quincy Medical Center has embarked on a plan to cut costs while at the same time bolstering its services through affiliation with other hospitals in the eastern Massachusetts area.

"We'll still be a full service hospital," said Grace Murphy-McAuliffe, the interim chairman of the Board of Trustees. "We're taking a deep breath and looking at the changing environment in health care. We're looking at everything to find the right structure and partners."

"There are things we do extremely well. But what we can't do, our partners can."

As part of the shakeup

DR. GARY GIBBONS
Stepping Down As QMC President, CEO

at QMC, Dr. Gary Gibbons last week stepped down as president and CEO, a post he has held for five years. He will continue his clinical practice in vascular surgery and wound care. He has been at Quincy Medical for 10 years.

GRACE MURPHY-McAULIFFE
Interim Chairman
Board Of Trustees

"Dr. Gibbons has demonstrated a passionate commitment to the Medical Center and its goal of providing high quality, personalized patient care to our community," said the trustees in a letter to the staff.

An outside administrator is expected to fill the position until a new president-CEO is chosen.

QMC and South Shore Hospital in Weymouth have agreed to end their exclusive clinical affiliation, which had only just begun. "It's not a complete severance," said Murphy-McAuliffe, "just an exclusive one."

Also on the drawing board is the Center for Healthy Aging, an expansion of the current Adams Geriatric Center, that will handle health care for the burgeoning elderly population.

Murphy-McAuliffe disclosed that Quincy's affiliation with Boston Medical Center, a move that saved Quincy Hospital from closing 10 years ago, has been dissolved for about a year.

"It was a result of their financial situation," she said. "Their reimbursements are down."

A month ago, the Medical Center announced plans to trim 14 management jobs and ask the hospital staff to take a 3 per cent cut in pay and pick up more of their health care insurance payments.

"Those I have talked to feel it has to happen," said

Murphy-McAuliffe. "They are strong to it."

"A strong future for Quincy Medical Center is the paramount goal for the QMC Board of Trustees," said the letter to the staff. "Our continued success is dependent upon the good work of the leadership team and each of you."

Dr. Tom Fitzgerald, president of the medical staff said the physicians "stand right beside the board and management team as we all work to implement the bold action we need to take to make sure we are here to continue to serve out patients and the community today and the future."

Koch To Detail City Finances At Community Meetings

available to residents at the meeting, which will begin April 26 and run through the first half of May.

The goal of the report, said Municipal Finance Director Nicholas Puleo, is not only to be fully transparent, but "transparent in a way that that's not an index of numbers, costs, and abbreviations."

After making $5 million in spending cuts in the current fiscal year, the Koch administration is developing a budget that will reflect substantial cutbacks, the mayor's office said Tuesday. Koch has said that as the national and state economies begin to show signs of recovery, local governments still face the worst of the worst downturn.

The city faces roughly $12 million in increased costs when the new fiscal year begins July 1, a number that includes contracted pay increases for employees, an expected five percent cut in state aid, increased health insurance rates, and revenues that continue to remain stagnant.

The administration is currently negotiating with city unions to find potential savings, including the possibility of another round of wage deferrals, which most city unions accepted last year. The move saved more than $1.5 million, the Koch administration said.

"There will not be any easy solutions, but everyone is at the table working together and working hard with the knowledge that we must do everything possible to protect our core services," Koch said.

While the community meetings will be focused on finances, Koch said residents are welcome to attend with any questions they may have.

"We'll stay to answer every single question," the mayor said.

The meeting schedule is - with all times at 6:30 p.m. unless otherwise specified:

- April 26, Fore River Club House;
- April 28, Kennedy Center;
- April 29, Sons of Italy Social Center;
- May 3, Merrymount School;
- May 4, Montclair School;
- May 5, Beechwood Knoll School;
- May 11, 1000 Southern Artery;
- May 18, Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 7 p.m.;

FLOWER POWER

Floral motifs have never gone out of style, and they are showing up with increasing frequency among jewelry designers' current diamond collections. These enduring symbols of love and beauty come in a wide variety of settings that appeal to women of all ages. A popular earring or pendant design revolves around a central diamond set in gold or platinum, surrounded by smaller diamonds that form the flower petals. While yellow gold is the most popular choice of precious metal for diamond flower jewelry, gold, platinum, and silver are also popular selections. To replicate nature, flower jewelry features diamonds in combination with colored gemstones such as rubies, sapphires, and emeralds. Other designs use nature as inspiration for imaginative and unique designs.

Jewelry designs reminiscent of the past and vanguards of the future can be found in abundance here at 1402 Hancock Street, Quincy Center, where you'll find the qualities of beauty, excitement, and timelessness infused in every piece we create. From floral designs of particular beauty to simple yet simply gorgeous gold jewelry, you are sure to view with pleasure our eye-catching displays, which are filled with this month's birthstone, the incomparable diamond. We also offer custom pieces from your design or ours, as well as resettings of outdated jewelry. PH: 617-773-3636.

Councillors Outraged Over 'Big Box' Look Of New B.J.'s

By LAURA GRIFFIN
City Councillors Monday expressed outrage over the 'Big Box' look of the new B.J.'s Warehouse constructed at the entrance to Crown Colony Office Park.

"That building does not look like what was shown to us," said Councillor John Keenan who blasted the structure now located at "the city's premier office park."

Keenan showed one drawing of the building as presented to councillors when they approved the B.J.'s project in April, 2009, and noted the lack of "decorative panels."

"It does not look like the renderings," charged Council President Kevin Coughlin, later stating, "All I saw was a big box."

The office park and the new B.J.'s are located in Ward 4 where Councillor Brian Palmucci said he's had dozens of calls from residents, the tenants at Crown Colony, and the business association, "all of whom are just in disbelief."

"It's been a disappointment," said Palmucci, adding, "The residents in South Quincy are very unhappy with it. It was not going to be a typical B.J.'s."

Councillors recalled being promised that the structure would not have the 'big box' look of other B.J.'s and would be 30% smaller than the typical warehouse with exceptional landscaping and a granite marker.

"The landscaping is a tenth of a tenth of (what was promised). The landscaping is terrible..." said Palmucci. "The entire project is nothing like the plan."

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi asked "whether or not B.J.'s has a right to occupy the premises" as the building does not conform to the plans issued with the building's Special Permit.

"There's no expectation they're going to have an occupancy permit," said Raymondi who questioned City

THIS 'BIG BOX' built for B.J.'s Warehouse store in South Quincy is a 'joke,' according to Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi who said Monday, "If this whole thing is a joke, hocus-pocus, we need to know that" while Councillor Joseph Finn said, "The game isn't over" as B.J.'s is not in compliance.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

- On April 12, 1633, physicist and astronomer Galileo Galilei is ordered to turn himself in to begin trial for the second time for holding the belief that the Earth revolves around the Sun. It took more than 300 years for the Church to admit that Galileo was right and to clear his name of heresy.
- On April 13, 1742, George Friedrich Handel's "Messiah" premieres in Dublin. Although singing the oratorio has become a Christmas tradition, the "Messiah" made its world premiere during the Christian season of Lent. Handel composed the score for "Messiah" in just 24 days.
- On April 15, 1865, President Abraham Lincoln succumbs to a gunshot wound inflicted by an assassin the night before, and he is pronounced dead at 7:22 a.m. During the autopsy, Mary Lincoln sent the surgeons a note requesting they cut a lock of Lincoln's hair for her.
- On April 14, 1912, just before midnight in the North Atlantic, the RMS Titanic fails to divert its course from an iceberg, ruptures its hull and begins to sink. The Titanic's hull was divided into 16 compartments that were presumed to be watertight, and the ship was considered unsinkable.

- On April 16, 1947, in Texas City's port on Galveston Bay, a fire aboard the French freighter Grandcamp ignites ammonium nitrate, causing a massive blast that destroys much of the city and takes nearly 600 lives. The fire department tried to douse the flames, but the ship was so hot that the water from their fire hoses instantly vaporized.

- On April 17, 1964, the Ford Mustang is officially unveiled by Henry Ford II at the World's Fair in Flushing Meadows, N.Y. The car debuted that same day, and almost 22,000 Mustangs were immediately snapped up by buyers. Named for a World War II fighter plane, the first models carried a starting price tag of around $2,300.

- On April 18, 1983, Joan Benoit wins her second Boston Marathon in the women's division with a time of 2:22:43. The inaugural Boston Marathon was run on April 19, 1897, and was a men-only event until 1972, when women were officially allowed to compete.

Meeting Wednesday On Proposed Cellular Panels Atop 290 Quarry St.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci hosted a community meeting Wednesday at 6 p.m. at the Quincy Lodge of Elks, 254 Quarry St., to discuss a proposal by T-Mobile to install six cellular panels atop 290 Quarry St.

All neighbors were invited to attend the meeting.

T-Mobile seeks a zoning variance to construct the cellular panels on top of the multi-unit resident at 290 Quarry St.

Representatives from the cell phone company were expected to attend the meeting and discuss their proposal.

Koch, Coughlin: No For Congress

There were some political "heavy hitters" who tried to nudge him into the ring but in the end, Mayor Tom Koch decided he is exactly what he wants to be: the city's chief executive.

So, you can cross the Koch name off any speculation list for Congress. He is not a candidate to succeed William Delahunt as U.S. representative in the 10th District.

However, a potential "Koch for Congress" candidacy did, initially, "cross my mind," the mayor admitted. And there were plenty factors that made a Congressional bid enticing.

Among them: an open seat, no other elected Quincy city official in the race, and the Koch name with family ties throughout the district, especially on the Cape. His brother, Richard Koch, Jr., a former Quincy city councillor, serves as the police chief of Brewster. Dick, Jr. is also a former School Committeeman in that Cape town.

But being mayor is what Koch wants to be. And so he'll remain. For now, anyway.

"I ran for mayor because I wanted to serve this city as the mayor. Right now we're in the worst economic crisis this city has seen in years and I couldn't just walk away from my responsibilities as mayor to run for Congress. We're at a crucial time with our finances as well as our goal to revitalize Quincy Center," he says.

Another factor: Koch prefers an executive position in government compared to the legislative side.

"Being mayor is the best political job in Quincy because it is a strong form of government (Plan A). You can get things done. It is rewarding in many ways," Koch said.

Compare that to the next Congressman from the 10th District who will become one of the lowest ranking U.S. representatives because the 435-member House is based much on seniority.

Another factor that Koch considered is Quincy is the largest city in the 10th District that spans the South Shore to the Cape. The City of Presidents has a lot of clout since it has the largest voting bloc within the district. As such, Koch may be called upon to publicly endorse whoever the Democratic nominee is in the final election Nov. 2.

But will Koch stump for a Congressional candidate? "I don't know. I'd probably stay neutral (in the Congressional race). I'd have to weigh it on how it affects the people I serve."

Endorsements can potentially back-fire for public officials if the candidate they're supporting fails at the ballot box. Those elected tend to remember who's with them and who's against them. And if you're on the wrong side, the political favors from those in power tend to be few and far between.

The public can also take exception to endorsements from public officials. Voters can get angry – and resentful – if they feel someone is telling them to support a certain candidate.

There are some political observers who think had Koch been mid-way through his last term (and not his second term as he is now), he would have jumped at the opportunity to run for Congress. And he'd be considered a very viable candidate.

But Koch has only one thing on his mind right now: serving as mayor. A job he will campaign again for next year.

As for other political jobs he may be interested in after his tenure as mayor is over, Koch said "I would never say never (to serving in another elected position). If there was another way to serve the city in a different capacity, I'd look into it."

ANOTHER POTENTIAL CANDIDATE for Congress has decided it's also a no-go.

COUGHLIN

City Council President Kevin Coughlin told The Sun he will not be a Democratic candidate for the open Congressional seat. But, he added, he welcomes the opportunity to serve in a greater capacity and remains open to future possibilities.

"The reality of being required by the Massachusetts Trial Court to step down from my position which I have held for 31 years with the attendant loss of income and health benefits for my family simply to become a candidate coupled with my mother's recent and ongoing hospitalization and serious health concerns and my responsibilities to provide care for her which my wife and I have shouldered for the last six years when added to my duties and obligations to the people I am elected and have the honor of serving here in Quincy; when all combined these considerations have dictated a difficult decision," Coughlin said.

The council president added he looks forward "to my continued public service and to working with my colleagues in government to confront the very serious challenges we face as a city."

THE RACE FOR State Senate in the Norfolk-Plymouth District long represented by Michael Morrissey (who is running for Norfolk County district attorney) will be at least at three-man race with a contest in the final election.

Already, well-known Democrats Steve Tobin and John Keenan are in the race. Tobin is vacating his state representative seat in the 2nd Norfolk District to campaign for the Senate seat which includes Quincy, Rockland, Holbrook, Abington and parts of Braintree.

Keenan, a city councillor at-large and executive director of the Norfolk County Retirement System, officially launched his campaign March 30 in an announcement in The Quincy Sun.

But there is another candidate well-known in City Hall and in veterans' circles who appears ready to make run as a Republican.

Daniel M. Dewey of Squantum, a member of the Quincy Board of Registrars since September, 2008 and a former chairman of the Quincy Republican City Committee, has taken papers out for the Senate seat. He has already filed some of the necessary 300 signatures with the Quincy Election Department.

A former Marine, Dewey is also active in veterans organizations, notably the Quincy Veterans Council. The retired parole officer also served on the five-member State Parole Board appointed by then Governor William Weld.

Dewey would not be a first-time candidate. He was a Republican candidate for Norfolk County Superior Court clerk in 2000, bowing to Walter Timilty.

The primary election will be held Sept. 14. So far, it appears it will be two Democratic contenders – Tobin and Keenan – with the winner advancing to the final.

Dewey's entry into the Senate race means there will be a contested final election set for Tuesday, Nov. 2. But there's still plenty of time for other candidates – Republican, Democrat and perhaps Independent – to crowd the field. And another GOP contender means there would also be a Republican primary Sept. 14.

Nomination papers with at least 300 signatures are due in less than three weeks: Tuesday, April 27.

However, the Democratic field of candidates for State Senate will not include School Committee Vice Chairwoman Anne Mahoney. Mahoney, who topped the school committee ballot in winning a second four-year term last November, was also the top vote getter city-wide. Political observers believe she will launch a mayoral campaign next year and challenge Koch who's up for re-election in 2011.

A mayoral bid would not jeopardize Mahoney's school committee seat. She would be half-way through her four-year term next year and would not have to vacate her school seat to run for mayor.

Governor: Address Neponset Bridge Traffic Issues

(A copy of the following letter sent to Gov. Deval Patrick was submitted to The Quincy Sun by the author for publication.)

Dear Governor Patrick, I am writing to you as President of the Quincy City Council to seek your assistance and engagement in addressing the predictable regional impacts resulting from the necessary reconstruction of the Neponset River Bridge. As the City Councillor representing the locus of this project I have sought to be involved in the process as appropriate from its inception and throughout Phase I which commenced in August 2006.

Anticipating the greatest adverse impacts to occur during the 36 to 42 month timeframe constituting the impending Phase 2 set to commence April 12, I have suggested individually and joined with elected colleagues and constituents in proposing measures to plausibly mitigate some of those impacts. These measures have included my call for utilization of a State Police detail or a MassDOT vehicle with a directional arrow at the top of the on-ramp from Neponset Circle onto Route 93 north. The concept, previously utilized at other Boston area Route 93 work sites, would be employed to clear the right hand lane on 93 northbound to facilitate the movement of traffic from Neponset Circle up the ramp and onto the highway. This expedited flow is, I would suggest, essential to lessen backups on the bridge and back onto Quincy streets in light of the bridge lane reductions to occur during the project. Other suggestions have included additional MBTA Redline train service during peak commuter hours, a temporary reduction in parking fees at underutilized MBTA Red line parking facilities and the creation of commuter boat service out of Squantum Point Park where there is an unutilized 1000 car parking lot and a reconstructed docking system.

Although these and other suggestions have been made at various junctures and reaffirmed at meetings, there has been no positive response from any state agency involved. Therefore I am requesting your assistance and intervention on behalf of the citizens of Quincy and by extension all those 70000 plus south shore commuters who use the bridge on a daily basis. I understand that you face many challenges as the Commonwealth's Chief Executive, but I respectfully submit that the impacts in terms of public safety, quality of life and economics require full attention of your office and the implementation of every reasonable measure to ensure the least possible disruption. I would welcome the opportunity to meet with you on-site, if feasible, along with Secretary Jeff Mullan and MBTA General Manager Richard Davey to highlight the concerns and explore the solutions that I have referenced and others.

I thank you for your time and attention and look forward to your response.

Souther Tide Mill: Now Or Never

In last week's Quincy Sun there was a press release from the Friends of Souther Tide Mill announcing its next meeting date later this month. I lived in Quincy for almost a quarter century and growing up had Irish family members from three generations who I visited many times.

Since the early 1980s, I started looking at the Souther Tide Mill and have watched it decay over the years. Driving past the site on Southern Artery, I feel like I am part of a death-watch.

The "Friends" group is to be commended for its dedication in trying to preserve this important part of Quincy's historical past but many more friends are needed and most of them are holders of public office. Quincy needs some political clout here or we might as well wave the white flag and go shopping at the CVS Pharmacy next to the mill.

More people need to be aware of saving our history from the history books. It is one thing to read about something but another to actually see it upfront and close. Right now, the mill looks as if it is being held up by popsicle sticks. Another strong wind and it's really history.

Maybe, it is already too late to save the place. Neglect made the place what it is today. More meetings aren't the answer; action is.

The time for words is over. It literally is now or never.

Reardon: Develop Broad Meadows

By FRANK McCAULEY

Use of Broad Meadows' 115 acres of marshland for industrial development was urged by George D. Reardon of the Quincy-South Shore Development Corporation at Monday's City Council meeting.

He said it has tax possibility of $1.5 million per year for the citizens of Quincy.

Attending with Reardon was Robert M. Faxon also representing the Quincy-South Shore Development Corporation.

The marsh area between Sea Street and Sothorn Artery was sold several years ago for $80,800 to Mass Electric Co. for future development. They have held it for about 12 years.

Recently, Mayor James R. McIntyre secured approval of the area as the site for a community junior college.

Councillor John J. Quinn suggested that a junior college be built near an MBTA terminal for easy access.

MUSICAL CHAIRS GOES ON AT CITY HALL

The Quincy Sun "Sunbeams" column reported that a Summit Meeting was held at Quincy City Hall behind closed doors in the mayor's office.

Attending were Mayor-State Senator James McIntyre, Council President Arthur Tobin and Ward Five Councillor Walter Hannon.

The Speculation Corps has been kicking around a three-way move fro three weeks. If McIntyre accepts a state position and retires from active politics, Hannon will run for mayor and Tobin for his honor's senate seat.

If McIntyre decides to seek term number four, Hannon and Tobin will have to wait.

(Editor's Note: The move happened.)

'A Midsummer Night's Dream' At ENC Fine Arts Center

The Eastern Nazarene College Theatre Department will present William Shakespeare's comic fantasy, A Midsummer Night's Dream, Thursday, April 29 through Saturday, May 1 at 7:30 p.m. at the Cove Fine Arts Center on the college's main campus in Wollaston.

Directed by ENC alumna Tara Brooke Watkins, the production will feature an all-student cast performing the Bard's lighthearted romp involving star-crossed lovers, woodland fairies and unrequited love.

Set and lighting design will be supervised by ENC Professor Michael W. Ballard. "One of the elements I'm most excited about is the set," said Watkins, noting that much of Midsummer's action takes place in the woods.

Costumes for the production will be designed by award-winning designer Stacey Stephens. "Stacey worked with Julie Taymor on Broadway doing costumes for The Lion King," Watkins said, "so we're really excited to have him on board."

EASTERN NAZARENE COLLEGE students Mike Amaral and Liz Curry rehearse for the college's upcoming production of A Midsummer Night's Dream. Amaral and Curry portray Oberon and Titania, king and queen of the fairies in Shakespeare's classic comedy.

A 2002 graduate of Eastern Nazarene, Watkins has served as artistic director at Riverside Theatre Works in Boston for the past six years. Her directing credits include The Importance of Being Earnest, No Exit, Big River, The Music Man, Peter Pan, The Trojan Women, 42nd Street and more. She has also worked at Plimoth Plantation, where she portrayed a pilgrim.

Tickets for A Midsummer Night's Dream are $10 general admission, $7 for ENC faculty/staff and $5 for ENC students and children 12 and under. For tickets or more information, call the Cove box office at 617-745-3715.

Quincy Symphony Orchestra Concert Sunday At NQHS

The Quincy Symphony Orchestra, conducted by maestro Yoichi Udagawa, will feature the winner of its annual concerto competition in concert Sunday, April 11, at 2:30 p.m. in the Performing Arts Center in North Quincy.

The young and talented Rainer Crosett will perform the Saint-Saens Cello Concerto #1 in A Minor with the Quincy Symphony to attain this season's Robert E. Brown Scholarship award.

The program opens with the venerable Overture to the Barber of Seville and concludes with the Brahms 4th Symphony.

Tickets are $17 for adults, $12 for seniors and students, and $5 for children under 12 (which must be accompanied by a parent); and may be purchased at the door.

(In the unlikely event of inclement snow, the concert will be performed at the same location Tuesday, April 13 at 8 p.m.).

The Quincy Symphony's final concert for the season will be held Thursday, May 6, in the main ballroom of the Boston Marriott Quincy Hotel. Produced collaboratively with the City of Quincy's Public Schools, proceeds from this concert, in part, will benefit music programs within the Quincy Public School system.

For more information, call 800-579-1618.

The Quincy Symphony Orchestra is a member of the League of American Orchestras and is partially funded by a grant from the Quincy Arts Council, a local agency supported by the Massachusetts Arts Council.

Montclair/Wollaston Assn. Meets Tonight

The Montclair/Wollaston Neighborhood Association will meet tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. at the Church of the Good Shepherd, corner of Harvard and West Squantum Sts.

Guest speaker will be Mark Carey, co-director of the newly founded Quincy Chamber of Commerce. He will discuss the Chamber's concept, its function within the community and how it creates "one business voice" for the city's merchants.

The Chamber was created earlier this year when the Quincy 2000 Collaborative and the Discover Quincy, non-profit organizations that promote the city and its business community, voted to merge.

The agencies' directors, Dean Rizzo and Mark Carey, are co-directors of the new venture.

Tonight's meeting - rescheduled from March - is open to the public.

There will be an open exhibit of the artwork of North Quincy High School's photography students today (Thursday).

The exhibit will be open from 8 a.m. until 2 p.m. in the North Quincy High School Art Room (room #226A). Throughout the day, staff, faculty, students and parents will be invited to bring their classes to the room to view the work.

The exhibit will display a huge quantity of work from each of the over 100 photography students at the high school. Work ranges from traditional black and white film photography to full color digital photography and digital/computer generated art.

ENC To Host Harlem Superstars Basketball Game

The Harlem Superstars, an entertainment basketball team, will take on the faculty and staff of Eastern Nazarene College Friday, April 16 at 7 p.m. in the Lahue Gymnasium located on the college's main campus at 23 East Elm Ave., in Wollaston.

The public is invited to attend.

Members of the ENC faculty and staff will tip off against the Superstars, a "show team" of athletes bearing monikers such as "Showboat," "Super Chick-en," "7-Footer," "Rock-It," "Hollywood" and "White Shadow."

Not to be confused with the pioneering Harlem Globetrotters, the Superstars travel the country entertaining kids and families through fundraising games, special events and school visits.

Admission to the Harlem Superstars game is $5 for adults and $3 for children 12 and under, with a maximum price of $15 per family.

ENC students, faculty, staff and families receive free admission.

For more information, call 617-745-3886 or visit www.enc.edu.

Sean Naughton On Dean's List

Sean Naughton, son of John and Patricia Naughton of Quincy, has been named to the Dean's List for the fall semester at the University of New England.

A 2009 graduate of Boston College High School,

Naughton is majoring in medical biology - pre-physics assistant.

He is also involved in the University in The U-Lead Program, Pre-Pa Club and the Snowboarding Club.

Shakespeare Comes To Life At Merrymount School

Over 40 fourth and fifth graders at Merrymount School recently took to the stage to perform Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet.

Under the direction of two fabulous 4th grade teachers, Mrs. Dawn Ciardi and Mrs. Karin Lanham, the 40 actors split up into four casts. Each group put on a flawless performance for their parents, siblings and fellow students and teachers at Merrymount School.

The students worked hard since November perfecting their lines, dramatizing their scenes and practicing their sword fights.

Mrs. Ciardi and Mrs. Lanham, with the tremendous support of the school's principal Ann Pegg, have brought Shakespeare alive for the past five years at Merrymount School. Some 4th and 5th graders put on a performance through an afterschool program in early spring.

Additionally, 4th graders perform Julius Caesar as part of their curriculum in the spring. Mrs. Ciardi's and Mrs. Lanham's enthusiasm and commitment to the Shakespeare's plays are second-to-none. The Shakespeare program seems to be gaining more and more popularity each year among the students.

The scenery and the costumes were as impressive as the students' abilities and acting.

Jonathan Boughton, Merrymount School's beloved art teacher, and some of his talented art students, created magical scenery for the show. The art club met afterschool on Fridays for several months.

This year, Mr. Boughton was even able to build a balcony for Juliet! Claire Fitzmaurice, even though her kids have graduated from Merrymount School, still came back to dress the actors and actresses with custom-made costumes.

The children were also treated to a Cast Pizza Party and a slideshow compiled of a collection of captivating pictures taken throughout the year and at each performance by Jo-Anne Hurley.

A special thanks goes out

MERRYMOUNT SCHOOL fourth and fifth graders recently performed Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet." to Lee Page for producing a creative program for the show, as well as Ann Ryan, Denise Bausemer, Celia Mokalled, Kay McLoughney and Kathy Bell for their efforts along the way.

The school community is proud of the teachers and future actors and actresses and anticipate the next performance.

Healthcare, Delahunt And His Successor

Rep. Delahunt and his cohorts rammed the disastrous health-care bill through the congress against the will of the people.

Shortly thereafter, (The Quincy Sun, March 25), Mr. Delahunt recites "talking points" provided by his Washington, D.C. leadership.

Rep. Delahunt recites the first talking point, "The health care bill reduces the federal deficit." This is gobbledegook!

Mr. Delahunt's leadership in Washington (the Obama Administration, Sen. Reid and Speaker Pelosi) rigged the health-care bill to initiate its revenue-producing processes (fees, premiums, penalties, new taxes) years before its cost-incurring elements commence. Thus, the early years of operation woefully underestimates the ongoing annual costs when both revenue and cost processes are fully in operation. The Congressional Budget office estimates a bill's cost based only on its perceived first decade of operation, implying that the ongoing cost will remain reasonably in line.

However, as above, the Congressional Budget Office process has been willfully abused to produce an erroneous cost underestimation to the advantage of that political party, but to the detriment of the people.

Rep. Delahunt recites the second talking point: "The health care bill offers big saving to small businesses." The gobbledegook continues.

This bill raises taxes by $569 billion on small businesses.

Rep. Delahunt recites the third talking point, "The health-care bill saves Medicare." Still more gobbledegook!

This bill cuts Medicare by $523 billion. The mechanism for cutting Medicare is included in the so-called health-care bill, Section 3403 establishes "The Independent Medicare Advisory Board."

Its purpose is to ration health care; it is not "independent" as all members are appointed by one person-the President-King. Its recommendations are codified therein; the Board's permanence is also codified, as it is the foundation of "socialized medicine."

Also, the health care bill provides billions of dollars to hire 16,000 new IRS agents to ensure individuals and businesses are in compliance with all the new taxes established by this "health care" abomination.

How many pages of the more than 2,500 pages contained in the health-care bill do you suppose Mr. Delahunt actually read?

A question to ponder- Is it in the best interest of the constituency of the 10th Congressional District of Massachusetts to send another person of the same political party to Washington?

Such a same political party person would be welcomed with open arms by the Obama Administration. Sen. Reid, and Speaker Pelosi. To whom would our same party "Representative" have his/her allegiance fixated?

At Quincy Medical Center, we are taking bold and aggressive action to ensure the Hospital's success. We have launched a comprehensive Transformation Plan to secure our Hospital's future. The Medical Center is working to achieve this while maintaining the core values of quality, safety, access and compassion.

We recognize that this rapidly changing health care environment demands new and different expertise and the Medical Center is embarking on a new direction. Dr. Gary Gibbons, after 10 years of service to Quincy Medical Center, will leave his position as President and Chief Executive Officer, which he has held since 2005. The Board and Staff of QMC have the highest regard for Dr. Gibbons and we ask you to join us in thanking him for his commitment to the Medical Center and passion for the provision of the highest quality care to our community.

Quincy Medical Center is in good hands during this interim period and we promise to keep the community informed of our progress as we recruit new leadership. The QMC Medical Staff is behind our efforts and we want to publicly thank these excellent physicians who have been so loyal and supportive of our work.

Our community's health is in good hands

In this very challenging national healthcare environment, Quincy Medical Center must take the necessary steps to secure a successful future and to sustain its financial viability. We need to explore every opportunity to ensure our growth and success. Because of that we mutually agreed with South Shore Hospital that it was in the best interest of Quincy Medical Center to end our exclusive clinical affiliation. This allows QMC to evaluate the potential benefits of additional alignments and partnerships with other providers.

Our Transformation Plan is focused on growth strategies and efficiencies to secure our future but does require short-term sacrifices, specifically pay or contract reductions by every stakeholder - administrators, employees, physicians and vendors. For the sake of our community, we hope our unionized employees share our goals and will agree to our savings initiatives. We have had positive interactions with most of the bargaining units representing three different labor unions and look forward to them joining our cause.

We firmly believe our nurses want Quincy Medical Center to survive and thrive, and we also know that they are very committed to our patients. They have the opportunity to join other key stakeholders to ensure the success of our Transformation Plan. Together, we will ensure that our patients continue to receive the highest level of nursing and other care from the Hospital, just as they presently do from our highly trained staff of nurses and other professionals.

The fact is that Quincy Medical Center is at a turning point and heading in a positive direction. We want to assure our community that Quincy Medical Center is taking the action we need in order to ensure that we are here now and in the future providing care to you and your families.

Quincy Medical Center has a promising future providing the highest quality care for you and your family. We know. We are the Board of Trustees of Quincy Medical Center and represent both the region and city's business and civic leaders who believe in Quincy Medical Center and its outstanding staff of nurses, physicians, clinicians, service and administrative workers, and volunteers.

Sincerely,

The Quincy Medical Center Board of Trustees

Tackey Chan Candidate For State Representative

Tackey Chan of Quincy announces his candidacy for State Representative of the Second Norfolk District. He will be running as a Democratic candidate.

Chan, lifelong Quincy resident, will be making his first run for public office.

He recently resigned from the Massachusetts Attorney General's Office of Rate Payer Advocacy to pursue the State Representative seat. He was an Assistant Attorney General for three years.

In this capacity, he represented the customer interest against utility company's rate increase before the Department of Public Utilities.

Prior to being an assistant attorney general, he worked for State Sen. Michael W. Morrissey for nearly 12 years.

Chan is also a long time community activist. He serves on the boards of Quincy Asian Resources, Inc., Quincy Community Action Program, and Work, Inc.

TACKEY CHAN

On a municipal and state level, he served on the Quincy Zoning Board of Appeals and is a member of the Massachusetts Asian American Commission. In his home neighborhood of Wollaston, he is a member of the Ward 5 Executive Committee. He also is a member of the Ward 5 Democratic City Committee.

He is a graduate of Saint Ann's School and Boston College High School, while he also had attended Beechwood Knoll School. He received his bachelor degree from Brandeis University and his law degree from New England School of Law.

The Second Norfolk's State Representative's seat is in the City of Quincy and is composed of all the precincts in Ward 1, precincts 1, 2 and 5 of Ward 3, precincts 2 and 4 of Ward 4, precincts 1, 3 and 4 of Ward 5.

The Democratic Primary is Tuesday Sept. 14.

Chan will make his formal announcement Saturday April 10, at 2 p.m. at the Five Spices Restaurant located at Presidents Place, 1250 Hancock St. The public is welcome to attend.

Library Suspends Sunday Hours

By JOE REARDON

Due to the ongoing economic downturn and a year-end budget shortfall, the Board of Trustees of the Thomas Crane Public Library recently voted to suspend Sunday hours as of April 4.

"I regret to announce that a reduced budget for this year has made it necessary for us to suspend Sunday hours at the Main Library beginning April 4," Director of Libraries Ann McLaughlin said in the library's newsletter, which was emailed to more than 10,000 people.

The other option to reduce library costs would have been to cut back on hours at the branch libraries. McLaughlin said the main branch library would still be open on Saturdays and believes it will be utilized more than ever.

"The mayor told all the departments that we had to end the year in the black," McLaughlin said. "We want to sustain the branches. Nobody wants the libraries closed."

The cost of Sunday operations is $75,000 for the fiscal year and is a different line item from the budget because it is voluntary overtime work. "Basically it's the cost of two employees," McLaughlin said. "Many other communities have been forced to cut or restrict their times."

Of the emails she received back from people who get the newsletter, McLaughlin found it split down the middle of those who understood the situation and others who were upset by the closing.

"Half of the people understood," McLaughlin said. "People love Sundays. It's often the busiest day of the week. We know that Sunday hours are important, and are sorry that we cannot sustain these hours when the library budget is reduced. It is our plan to restore Sunday hours as soon as the fiscal situation allows."

McLaughlin was hoping that the city's fiscal situation would improve enough to request a transfer of funds into the library budget to maintain the Sunday hours. The library trustees voted to close on Sundays through at least June when it became apparent that the financial climate hadn't improved.

"Choices like this are always difficult because someone is always unsatisfied," said McLaughlin. "Next year's budget is going to be a challenge too."

For updated hours and other library information, call 617-376-1301.

Zumba Fundraiser April 16 At Germantown Neighborhood Center

The Germantown Neighborhood Center/YMCA Food Pantry will host a Zumba fundraiser Friday,

All proceeds will directly benefit the pantry.

Beach Commission Seeks Photos, Memories

Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission is looking for photos, pictures and snap shots of local residents and families "On the Beaches of Quincy" for inclusion in the 2010 Beach Guide.

The commission is also seeking memories of "On the Beaches of Quincy."

"We are designing our 2010 Beach Guide and thought pictures and memories which residents of Quincy submit would be a nice touch," said Leo Kelly.

Photos and written memories should be mailed to Leo Kelly, 143 Spring St., Quincy, MA 02169.

"We will scan any pictures submitted and return to the owner. Written memories will not be returned," Kelly said.

For more information, call 617-773-1534.

The Beach Guide will be published in early May. Deadline to submit photos and written memories is April 15.

MORE FOR YOU HERE AT HOME

Captain Fishbones Restaurant

Captain Fishbones Restaurant is a family owned and operated restaurant located at Marina Bay in Quincy and offers both traditional and modern seafood specialties in addition to a well-rounded, all-American cuisine. Offering indoor and outdoor seating along Marina Bay's scenic boardwalk, the restaurant provides skyline views of Boston as well as a relaxing harbor side ambiance.

Chef Joe Armstrong leads his staff with innovative recipes for seafood, steaks and more, bringing new flavors and trends to the marina. Armstrong was recently spotlighted at the New England Home Show where he served his delightful crab cake dish to the enjoyment of many.

Upcoming events at Captain Fishbones include the annual grand opening of the Tiki Bar, and the opening of the newly renovated patio and function facility, as well as the unveiling of the raw bar which will all take place on Patriots Day Weekend. The raw bar will be serving fresh local oysters, clams, and the fantastic "Seafood Tower" which will consist of: oysters, mussels, clams, crab legs, and an assortment of seafood paired for sharing at your table. During the week of April 11th-April 16th CFB will be participating in Quincy Restaurant Week offering a three-course dinner for two for $30. CFB is also proudly participating in a cooking demonstration for the benefit of Elizabeth Seton Academy's annual spring fundraiser, "TASTE", held at Granite Links on April 29th, where Armstrong will be featuring a tuna tartare with a citrus soy vinaigrette, pickled cucumbers and ginger, served with a wasabi crème fraîche.

Whether you prefer outside dining, entertainment, picturesque views or traditional entrees, Captain Fishbones has something to offer everyone with a touch of positive attitude and exciting atmosphere.

Captain Fishbones is located at 332 Victory Road in Marina Bay. Telephone: 617-471-3511. Visit them at www.captainfishbones.com.

FIRE SAFETY

by Captain Tom Lyons
Fire Prevention Bureau
Quincy Fire Department

New Smoke Detector Initiative In Effect

Do you remember the article I wrote on the new smoke detector initiative that was effective Jan. 1ST of 2010?

It was postponed until April 5TH and has now taken effect.

This regulation will be enforced as individuals sell their homes when they are required to obtain a smoke detector certificate from us. That certificate confirms compliance with Mass. General Law Chapter 148, Section 26F. That law is now being modified by the introduction of 527CMR Section 32.

I'm writing now to convey that the state fire marshal's office has modified the initial regulation since postponement and I hope to clarify the differences here.

The modified regulation applies to those one and two family homes built prior to 1975 that have not been substantially renovated through the building department permitting process since then. If an older home was modified and required to update their smoke detectors with a hard-wired, interconnected system, the new regulation does not apply.

Confused yet? There's more!

To review for the moment, it is no longer enough to have working, properly placed smoke detectors within your home to comply with this regulation. You must now have specific types within specific locations as well.

Within 20-feet of an entryway to a kitchen or bathroom, the smoke detector must now be of the photoelectric technology.

A bathroom is defined as one having a bathtub or shower. Beyond 20-feet from an entryway to a bathroom or kitchen, you must have a dual ionization/photoelectric smoke detector, or two separate units, one photoelectric and one ionization detector side by side. The 20-foot measurement is made horizontally and shall include and extend into common areas of multi-family dwellings, if applicable.

Example: The smoke detector at the base of the cellar stairs in a single family home must now be a dual detector, photoelectric/ionization, even if the bath or kitchen is located up the stairs well within 20 feet. Remember the measurement is made horizontally, meaning the determination is made on the same living level.

Placement requirements have not changed. Within a residence, smoke detectors must be installed, "...on the ceiling of each stairway leading to the floor above, near the base of, but not within each stairway, and an approved smoke detector shall be installed outside each separate sleeping area."

This modification does not affect the requirement or placement of carbon monoxide detectors either.

Historically, it has been an uphill battle for us to keep working well placed smoke detectors within residences. We're grateful when batteries aren't removed, and when they're replaced when needed.

While the state fire marshal's office has deemed it necessary to complicate our pursuits with the distinction of technology, we hope that this complication will not distract from their importance. Early notification of smoke within a residence is essential.

We will get through this!

Fiscal Forecast Gloomy, 2012 Worse?

collections that were $188 million below estimates."

Little has improved since then, according to statistics on job and income loss prepared for the senate Ways and Means Committee. According to that data, Massachusetts ranks fifth in the country for job loss between 2000 and 2009.

As examples, the trades lost over 19,000 jobs in 2009 and construction workers reported a 15% drop or the loss of 18,400 jobs.

State aid is derived from revenue and Morrissey's data reveals a $3.1 billion decline in fiscal year 2009 and another $1.5 billion dollar decline in the 2010 revenue estimates. Capital gains income dropped by 75%; income tax collections are down and sales tax income is stagnant.

Despite the economic setbacks, the state has maintained an AA bond rating with three agencies.

Legislators expect a gradual increase in the years ahead and will use one-time revenues to glue the 2011 budget but those won't be available until 2012.

NEW TAXES

Councillors questioned the legislators on state initiatives on new taxes and gaming proposals.

All three legislators indicated that some type of gaming initiatives will pass.

The legislators will support slots at the empty greyhound racetracks.

"The dogs may be gone, but the tracks are still there," said Morrissey citing the 600 people who lost jobs when the greyhound-racing ban passed.

"It's the best opportunity to generate revenues immediately," said Mariano who, also, predicted that casino gaming bills will pass. "The House is going to pass it."

"It's about jobs," said Tobin. "There are an awful lot of people in the trades hurting."

Marino also called the casino proposals an employment opportunity. "You can see the economy collapse even further. We have to do something. This is a jobs bill."

Mariano, also, plugged the tax credits for movie productions. "We will continue to take a firm stand on creating jobs. It's the only way out of this."

Morrissey said that Governor Deval Patrick has proposed a candy and sales tax which would raise $51 million a year, but legislators have not acted on it.

As for the potential $20 million from expanding the bottle return bill, Morrissey said, "The bottle bill is a toss-up."

He did warn that two November ballot referendums could play havoc with the state's finances.

"That would send the budget into a tailspin," said Morrissey of any reversal of the state's tax on alcohol which is expected to raise $100 million for the state.

Voters will be asked in November to vote on Question 1 which would reduce the sales tax from 6.25% to 3% and Question 2 which would eliminate the sales tax on alcohol.

BRIDGE PROJECTS

Morrissey and Tobin agreed with councillors that the Neponset River Bridge project should have a strong police presence as the construction gets underway.

"I think we need a very strong presence," said Tobin, adding, "It's going to be a zoo."

The legislators agreed with several councillors who have criticized the state agencies in recent weeks.

In addition, Morrissey said he would like to see a ferry service underway from Marina Bay in an effort to lessen the traffic congestion by even a small amount.

An estimated 70,000 commuter cars cross over the Neponset River Bridge at peak hours.

It's a necessary project, according to Morrissey who said the bridge is 40-years-old and in need of work.

Morrissey said the state transferred the project from the Department of Conservation and Recreation (DCR) to the Department of Transportation (DOT) in an effort to improve efficiency. "It's all been catch-up by the DOT," said Morrissey.

Of the DCR, Morrissey said, "They turned out to be incompetent. I thought they couldn't top the MDC, but they did."

Morrissey said there would be a meeting at City Hall within the next ten days to discuss the bridge project.

Councillors wished Morrissey and Tobin well after noting that neither will run for re-election for their current political office. Morrissey is a candidate for Norfolk County District Attorney and Tobin for the state senate seat.

Palmucci Seeks Fees For Ambulance Services, False Alarms, Accidents

The City Council's Public Safety Committee will consider two proposals submitted by Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci for establishing fees for ambulance service and false alarms.

Palmucci recommended Monday that the fire department establish procedures and policies for recovering costs associated with frequent false alarms at multi-unit apartment buildings and for motor vehicle incidents.

"With an already overburdened taxpayer and a projected budget shortfall, we need new ideas to generate revenue," Palmucci said. "We owe it to the taxpayer to come up with workable solutions to the financial issues facing the city."

BRIAN PALMUCCI

sues facing the city.

"There are private companies that handle the billing with no up-front costs," said Palmucci. "A recovery fee needs to be explored as more and more of the Fire Department's calls are motor vehicle related and are false alarms."

Palmucci estimated that such recovery fees could recoup hundreds of thousands of dollars in city costs.

In addition, Palmucci is seeking a review of the city's contract with Fallon Ambulance with an eye to raising funds by sharing in the ambulance's city call revenue.

Palmucci sought a comprehensive review of the contract for two purposes. One is to ensure that residents are receiving the best service possible and the second whether "monetary compensation can or should be paid to the City for such an agreement."

Money To Assist Local Veterans

Neighborhood Club Donates $5,600 To Father Bill's Place And MainSpring

Father Bill's & Main Spring (FBMS), a non-profit organization dedicated to ending homelessness on the South Shore, has been awarded $5,600 by Quincy's Neighborhood Club in support of its work with veterans experiencing homelessness.

In the presence of several veterans from the Quincy area and FBMS staff, Neighborhood Club board members presented a check to FBMS President & CEO, John Yazwinski.

The Neighborhood Club, in lieu of their traditional Thanksgiving celebration, held a "Night of Thanksgiving," on Veterans' Day 2009 to honor local veterans. Club General Manager Marty McGovern, parent of an active serviceman, and his staff auctioned a complete in-home dinner for 6, prepared by Executive Chef Joel Hathaway and Wendy McEachern, club function manager.

As the auction price rose to $1,000, McGovern and his team offered an additional two dining opportunities, raising the proceeds to $3,000. The club's members provided additional auction items, which helped the total results reach $5,600. About 125 members joined the celebration.

"Each year, we try to select a local charity consistent with our family-friendly values, and many of our members are either parents of current service members or veterans themselves. Hosting the event on Veteran's Day was really meaningful to the membership and the response was incredible. We plan to do it again for Father Bill's & MainSpring this year."

CEO John Yazwinski said the money will be used to support its work with veterans from the Quincy area.

"We are seeing an increase in the number of veterans returning from recent conflicts seeking our assistance. These dollars will support our efforts at helping these men and women who have served us selflessly to reacclimate to civilian life. It's important work and we so appreciate the Neighborhood Club's efforts on behalf of the veterans we serve."

In addition, FBMS is working diligently to provide training, job placement, housing assistance and other supportive services to more than 100 eligible veterans from the South Shore.

Through a US Department of Labor Homeless Veterans Reintegration Program (HVRP) Grant of $175,000, FBMS has helped 48 veterans find housing since August, and plans to place an additional 80 into employment in the 2010.

Father Bill's & MainSpring, founded in 1982, has become the leading provider of services to manage, prevent and end homelessness in Southeastern Massachusetts. The organization helps 2,500 people annually who are homeless, or at risk of homelessness, to achieve self-sufficiency. This assistance includes an immediate solution of shelter-based services, a short-term solution of transitional housing and a long-term solution of permanent supportive housing.

Census Rallies Saturday At Three Quincy Locations

dents this year, up from the 2000 count of 88,125.

"I'm going to be awfully disappointed if we don't get to 93,000 or 94,000," said Shea. "It means money to the city at the end of the day."

"Uncle Sam has gone hi-tech," said Shea, referring to the census website that's tracking local response which recently registered only a 54% Quincy response in contrast to a national 57% response.

Still, there will be plenty of old-fashioned campaigning Saturday as volunteers wave signs, and sport T-shirts and caps and knock on doors to urge residents to fill out the simple form and drop it in a mailbox by April 19.

The rallies will be held Saturday from 1 to 3 p.m. at these locations:

- Kam Man Plaza, Quincy Avenue
- Corner of Hancock and Billings Streets, North Quincy
- Corner of Sea Sand Palmer Streets, Germantown.

Shea said he's been working closely with Tram Nguyen, Partnership Specialist for the United States Department of Commerce and Wollaston resident who has been assigned to the city's program.

Nguyen joined Shea at Monday's Census Week kick-off as did the city's Census Liaison Nicky Crispo and William Draicchio, a member of the Board of Registrars and retired Quincy police officer.

Nguyen said the census team is still looking for volunteers for Saturday's rallies scheduled from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m.

"Quincy did very well in 2000," said Nguyen who provided a breakdown of current neighborhood response, indicating that North Quincy, Wollaston and West Quincy are below the average at this time.

JOSEPH SHEA

Tram said she's been tapping local agencies, schools and churches in efforts to increase the volunteers for Saturday's pep rallies.

"I'm pretty confident Quincy will do fine," said City Council president Kevin Coughlin, Ward 3, who noted that census information is available in 59 languages for those with limited English.

All information is kept confidential for 72 years, according to Tram who said that neither the president nor any agency or person has access to the forms which do not ask for Social Security numbers or citizenship status.

In the past, the census department has sent out short and long forms, but this year, all census forms ask only minimal information on residency, race and age.

For more information, call 1-888-861-6868 or visit the official website, www.2010census.gov. The website includes a list of local churches and agencies where residents may get help, aid in translations, or pick up additional forms.

The federal agency this week cautioned residents across the country to be sure to identify any person claiming to represent the bureau.

All employees wear official badges, stating their name, the US DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE, and the words, US CENSUS BUREAU.

A legitimate census worker will offer a supervisor contact number and only ask questions that appear on the official form.

Census workers will not ask about citizenship information or for donations, bank account numbers, the value of your home, your Social Security number or credit cards.

In addition, census workers do not contact individuals by e-mail. They may call you to verify basic information.

Quincy's Complete Census Committee includes the following local leaders:

Mayor Thomas Koch and the city councillors along with Draicchio, Kathy Quigley, Germantown Neighborhood Center, Peter Foreman, Bethann Strollo, QCAP, Edward Keohane, Chairman of Quincy 2000 Board, Daniel Dewey, Patricia Small, David Zou, Lola Tom, John Yazwinski, CEO, Father Bill's & MainSpring, Robert Bosworth, Publisher, The Quincy Sun, Rev. John Swanson, Union Congregational Church; Sean Glennon, Planning Department; Kathryn Hobin, Law Department; John Brothers, Quincy Asian Resources, Robert Quinn and Adrianna Cillo, Quincy Housing Authority and Jack Encarnacao, The Patriot Ledger.

Insurance STRATEGIES
by Jim Sullivan

ARE YOU PAYING TOO MUCH FOR AUTO INSURANCE?
Running a business can be personally rewarding and profitable. Whether you own a dental practice, a restaurant, or a hair salon, it's important to protect your business by having the right type and level of insurance. Please call JAMES J. SULLIVAN INSURANCE AGENCY at 617-328-8600 to schedule a consultation. We can design an individualized insurance plan based on the needs of your specific business. Our office is located at 151 Hancock Street.

Malpractice policies come in either the form of "claims made" or "occurrence" policies. Claims made policies cover only claims that are made while the policy was in effect. That is, as long as the policyholder pays premiums on the initial policy and subsequent renewals, his or her work or services is protected from claims. Once the policy period lapses, the professional or business owner is not protected from unknown or unreported claims made outside the coverage period unless a "tail" coverage, which continues coverage after the coverage period, is purchased. Occurrence coverage is insurance that provides coverage regardless of when a claim is made. While occurrence coverage costs more, many feel that it is well worth it.

NOTE: With an occurrence policy, coverage is limited to the amount specified by the policy in the year of the occurrence.

Happy Birthday, Dr. Seuss

REP. BRUCE AYERS reads "Who Cares About Disabled People" by Paul Adams to Mrs. Karen MacLean's second grade class at the Montclair School recently. This was the seventh annual celebration of Dr. Seuss's birthday, which is held during Read Across America Week. Some 50-community members, including parents of Montclair students and local politicians, read to students at the event.

TAJ Coin, Stamp Co. Closing After 42 Years In Business

Laitinen prides himself in keeping his fees modest and not outpricing his customer base. A small box in the store window was filled with 100 international coins for a paltry $6. Numerous packs of baseball cards sold for $1.

He enjoys the one-on-one, hands-on approach with the customers. One hobbyist was looking to have several coins appraised. Laitinen took out a price guide and showed him the coins' value.

"I'll save them for my great-grandchildren," the customer said.

Laitinen found it important to cater to the young hobby customers as well as the more savvy, older consumers.

"We try to keep the coins at a modest price," Laitinen said. "That way a kid can walk in with a dollar and be able to leave with a handful of coins."

Ken Prescott of South Boston has been frequenting TAJ two to three times a month for the past year. A collector of Canadian stamps, Prescott said he'll miss the store. "I'm a very short income person," he said. "I come out here and spend what I can. It's a shame Tom's going out of business."

And then there were the items that sold for much more. Laitinen stumbled across a Ty Cobb rookie card from early 1900s that is worth well more than $2,000. "That stuck in my mind because I bought a bunch of cards and it was right in the middle," he said.

Laitinen doesn't consider himself a hobbyist of cards, stamps or coins. He realized years ago it's impossible to be both and make a living at the same time. "If you're a real dealer you can't do it," he said. "If someone comes in and asks for something specific you can't say, 'I have it but it's not for sale.' You can't fall in love with your inventory."

Ironically, Laitinen frequented the store under the previous owner and, along with Agnes Gidley and John Salvucci put their coins and stamps up for consignment. "We were putting stuff in here on consignment and pretty soon we had more of our stuff in there than they had," Laitinen said.

The trio went into business together (TAJ stands for Tom, Agnes and John) and it was successful from the start. Salvucci passed away 20 years ago and Gidley retired soon after. She has since passed away.

Laitinen's main interest was in stamps, but soon learned he had to develop an expertise in coins because the two were synonymous. The baseball cards end of the business peaked in the late 1980s, but the store did a great business during the hobby's "hey day."

"You couldn't get in here," Laitinen said with a laugh. "There were kids in here holding up dollar bills to buy packs of cards. I felt like Gulliver and the Lilliputians."

The baseball market dipped soon after because of the costly demand of keeping up with so many different companies manufacturing cards. "It used to be Topps, Fleer and Donruss," said Laitinen. "They went from mass producing a million cards to a billion cards. To buy a case of all the new issues it would have cost me $100,000 a year."

With the closing of TAJ, the number of stamp stores in Massachusetts will number just a half dozen. And while there is still a healthy number of collectors, Laitinen doesn't see that number increasing at a noticeable rate any time soon.

"The new generation is not a generation of hobbyists," he said. "They want to play the video games."

The economy, too, has put a dent in the hobby and new stores opening up across the country. "When you start any business, you have to put money into it," Laitinen said. "With the economy the way it is, people aren't going to do that."

The Internet has made a little dent in the hobby with online auctions, but Laitinen said it hasn't had as much of an affect as people think. "It's not practical," he said. "I don't know too many people who have been very successful on it."

Laitinen expects to sell his inventory to smaller dealers who work the New England flea market circuit.

Laitinen admitted he'll miss the store, particularly the customers he's known for years. But Laitinen has plenty to keep him busy in retirement. "I don't plan on opening a store," he said. "I have a pile of grandchildren to spend time with."

Quincy Chamber Receives $25,000 State Grant

State Senator Michael W. Morrissey and State Representatives A. Stephen Tobin, Ronald Mariano, and Bruce Ayers announce the Quincy Chamber of Commerce will receive $25,000 as part of a Massachusetts Office of Small Business and Entrepreneurship (OSBE) award of $600,000 in grants to community-based, non-profit organizations throughout the state that provide assistance and advisory services to small businesses.

"We are grateful that Quincy continues to be an important part of the Commonwealth's overall small business creation and retention agenda," Morrissey said. "At 85 percent of all Massachusetts businesses, our small businesses continue to be the backbone of our economic strength."

The Small Business Technical Assistance Grant Program was established in 2005 as part of a statewide effort to stimulate and support entrepreneurial business growth in the state. These programs typically assist businesses with 20 or fewer employees. Through the Executive Office of Housing and Economic Development's partnership with MassDevelopment a quasi-public lending institution, the Technical Assistance program was able to secure funds for fiscal year 2010, enabling non-profit organizations to preserve and strengthen their technical assistance programs.

"We are told that high consideration was given to applications that sought to address key areas such as: job creation and retention, and attaining and maintaining financial viability," said Representative Tobin. "We applaud the continued hard work and dedication Dean Rizzo and all those at the Quincy Chamber of Commerce," Ayers added.

"The Quincy Chamber of Commerce is one in only 25 non-profits that received grant money in this round," Mariano said. "Since 1992, the Quincy Chamber (formerly Quincy 2000) has played a vital role in attracting and growing business in the City."

According to the Executive Office of Housing and Economic Development, historically, these grantees have provided training and consultation to over 12,000 small business and entrepreneurs and helped secure close to $50 million in new loans to small businesses.

Feet can be compared to the foundation under a building. If the foundation sags, so does the building. As we age and gain more body mass, the force that is applied to our skeletal structure increases. That force must be supported by our lower extremities, including the ankles and feet. Posture is the position in which you hold your body upright against gravity. Keeping the feet in good, healthy condition is critical to achieving and maintaining good posture. If good posture is not maintained, stress is placed on the body just from standing and walking. In time, damage is done to joints, ligaments, and muscles. Good posture also helps prevent backaches, muscular pain, and fatigue.

When foot problems do occur to your body's foundation, correcting them early on leads to the correction of aches, pains, and problems in other parts of the body. For instance, if you are the victim of hyperpronation, you might want to know that I am one of only two podiatrists in this state with the advanced training necessary to perform HyProCure™, a surgical procedure used to eliminate the excessive, abnormal motion of the foot and ankle. Keep your body's foundation in the best of health — call us at 781-986-3668, for a consultation at QUINCY MEDICAL CENTER. Office hours are also available at 999 North Main St., in the Randolph Medical Office Building, and Milton Medical Building in Suite 221.

HINT: Good posture helps decrease the abnormal wearing of joint surfaces that can result in arthritis.

Expanded Tax Credit For Homebuyers – Up To $8,000 – Ends May 1

The U.S. Department of the Treasury today reminds potential homeowners that they have until the end of April to take advantage of the First Time Homebuyer (FTHB) tax credit before it expires.

The FTHB credit provides qualifying taxpayers with up to $8,000 to buy a new home and is available for home purchases under contract before May 1.

In Massachusetts, more than 29,500 people have already collected $206,601,776 in First-Time Homebuyer Credits.

"The First Time Homebuyer credit has helped nearly two million families achieve the American dream of owning their own home," said Deputy Treasury Secretary Neal S. Wolin. "The expanded tax credit has been one of the great successes of the Recovery Act. Potential homeowners across the country should know about it and should take advantage of it."

Last year, more than 700,000 taxpayers were able to buy their first home with assistance from the Recovery Act expansion of the First Time Homebuyer Credit. Overall, nearly 1.8 million taxpayers have collected $12.6 billion in tax credits to buy a home, due largely to the Recovery Act.

The Recovery Act expanded the First Time Homebuyer credit by increasing the credit amount to $8,000 for purchases made before Dec. 1, 2009.

The Worker, Homeownership and Business Assistance Act, which became law on Nov. 6, 2009, extended the deadline and expanded eligibility to help more American taxpayers.

The new deadline extended eligibility to taxpayers who have a binding contract to purchase a home before May 1 and who close on the home before July 1.

Taxpayers who are long-time residents of the same home are also eligible for a credit of up to $6,500 if they purchase a new principal residence by this deadline.

"This tax credit has helped put money back into the pockets of Americans at a time when they need it most, and it has played a significant role in the Administration's efforts to stabilize the housing market and the economy as a whole," Deputy Secretary Wolin added.

The FTHB credit is fully refundable, meaning the credit will be paid out to eligible taxpayers, even if they owe no tax or the credit is more than the tax owed.

For qualifying purchases in 2010, taxpayers have the option of claiming the credit on either their 2009 tax return, due April 15, 2010, or their 2010 tax return, due April 15, 2011.

First-time homebuyers who purchased a home in 2009 could claim the credit on either a 2008 tax return, due April 15, 2009, or a 2009 tax return, due April 15, 2010.

Disaster Officials Offer Tips To Speed Assistance

Disaster recovery officials urge residents and businesses dealing with severe storm damage and loss to adopt a take-charge action plan to help speed the possibility of obtaining state and federal disaster aid:

Register Now:

Don't wait. Homeowners, renters and business owners who suffered disaster-related damage or loss should call the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) registration line at 800-621-FEMA (3362) or 800-462-7585 for the hearing- or speech-impaired. Online registration is available at www.DisasterAssistance.gov. Multilingual operators are available.

Register, even if you are insured. Your insurance coverage may not be adequate and some foundation damage may not appear until later. Anyone who suffered any damage or loss should register for assistance.

Disaster assistance covers a wide range of losses. Structural damage or repair is covered, as is damage or loss of essential personal property, such as a major appliance or medical equipment (wheelchairs, etc.).

After Registering:

- Keep critical appointments. A FEMA-contracted inspector will make an appointment to visit your home, usually within a week. Make every effort to be at home or you can authorize an agent to be present. Use the Helpline option at the FEMA registration toll-free numbers for contact updates, including your agent's name, a new phone number, or to change appointment times.

- Return all forms promptly. After registering, you may receive a U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) disaster loan application package in the mail. Fill out and return these forms promptly since they are an essential part of the disaster-assistance process.

- Stay in touch. Use the Helpline for answers to your questions about federal assistance, the same number you called to register for aid.

- Have realistic expectations. You should not expect disaster assistance to restore you to pre-disaster conditions. It is intended to help you get safe and sanitary housing and meet other critical needs so you can begin your long-term recovery.

- Read all FEMA letters and documents. Applicants deemed eligible for disaster assistance will receive a letter from FEMA providing guidance on their disaster relief grant. It will tell you about ways the money can be spent in your recovery. Be advised that federal assistance may have to be repaid if it is duplicated by insurance or other assistance received.

- Talk to FEMA if you have questions, especially about insurance. If you receive a FEMA letter saying your application has been denied, it often means that one or more aspects of your application require further information or correction. An "INS-Insured" denial does not necessarily mean "case closed," it means you must first settle with your insurer to prevent any duplication of payments.

- Keep FEMA in mind after your insurance settlement. You may have been underinsured and some uncompensated losses may be eligible for some form of disaster aid. Call the Helpline if your insurance settlement is delayed, if it does not cover all of your loss, if you can't find rental housing in your area, or if your additional living expense benefits are exhausted. Remember, failure to file a claim with your insurer within 12 months can affect your eligibility for FEMA assistance.

- Rebuild with disaster prevention in mind. Before starting any repairs or reconstruction, check with local building officials on required permits and inspections. If you were displaced from your home and incurred hotel or motel expenses, save your receipts and check with FEMA on possible reimbursement.

FEMA's mission is to support citizens and first responders and to ensure that as a nation we work together to build, sustain, and improve our capability to prepare for, protect against, respond to, recover from, and mitigate all hazards.

A Job Well Done

On Saturday, March 27, at approximately 11:50 p.m., Officers Mike Powers and Dave Zupkofska, along with multiple units, were dispatched to Fratelli's Bakery on Broad Street for a breaking and entering in progress.

Since the break was occurring during shift change, numerous officers responded from the neighboring Police Station within seconds. Officer Zupkofska made contact with the caller, who is an employee of Fratelli's, who said that the suspect ran after he confronted him. The suspect was last seen running between the car wash and McDonald's restaurant on South-ern Artery.

LT. DAN MINTON

Officer Zupkofska obtained a description of the suspect and provided information to responding units. The employee said that he was sitting in his car preparing to go into the building when he observed the suspect walk behind his car in the loading dock area and approach the entrance.

The employee ducked down in his seat to watch the suspect, who began "yanking with both hands the loading dock door and banging on it" trying to gain entry by prying it open.

The employee startled the suspect by exiting his car and asking the suspect what he was doing. The suspect nervously responded, "I thought this was a cut through." The employee said, "You know this isn't a cut through. It's on the corner of the street... there is nowhere to cut through to." The employee told the suspect to stay while he called the Police and it was then that the suspect fled.

Officer Matt Patten heard the transmission on the description and spotted the suspect behind the Gulf gas station and car wash hopping a fence into the thick brush between the car wash and the YMCA field. Officer Patten broadcasted the location of the suspect as he ran, highlighted by the spotlight of the cruiser. Numerous officers surrounded the marshy area behind the local businesses.

The suspect jumped a fence and entered the side alley of Roxie's, where Officers' William O'Neil and Mike Powers grabbed hold of the suspect when he hopped down from the fence and out of the brush. The suspect was breathing heavily, bleeding from his hands, with clothes torn and dirty from grass stains. At this time, the employee made a positive identification of the suspect, but did add that the suspect was wearing a black jacket at the time. The suspect provided a false name and date of birth, but a quick search of the suspect's clothing revealed his driver's license and actual identity.

The black jacket was found nearby and it held a cell phone, a steak knife and a note written in red marker, on a small piece of cardboard that read, "I have a gun! Money from register now!"

A criminal record showed that the suspect had 7 outstanding warrants (4 default 3 straight) issued for his arrest. It was soon learned that the 36 year old suspect is from Falmouth, however 3 weeks ago he came to Quincy to live in a "sober house" in Wollaston.

The suspect has 103 arraignments on his Board of Probation consisting of larceny, uttering, forgery, breaking and entering, etc. Due to the suspect's admission that he has been in Quincy for three weeks, it was determined that he may be a suspect in the Wollaston Hill area break-ins.

The suspect was charged with "Attempt to Commit a crime: Breaking and Entering, Misleading a Police Officer, along with numerous warrants. Detectives will be examining the note the suspect possessed, investigating possible past crimes that the suspect may have been involved in, especially bank and store robberies.

NQ Softball Expecting To Be A Contender

By SEAN BRENNAN

The gray and wet weather that has flooded local fields and limited outdoor practice times and scrimmages has thrown a wrench in the pre-season schedule of the North Quincy Red Raider softball program, but despite the inconvenience, the outlook for the 2010 season is bright.

North Quincy, which is coming off a 10-10 record in 2009, a season that ended prematurely following a Division I preliminary round defeat to Wellesley High School, should, again, be one of the better teams in the competitive Patriot League. This season, the Red Raiders, will compete in the Keenan Division, a change from last year when the program played in the Fisher Division.

"We are going to be a strong team," said NQHS head coach Kerry Ginty on Monday. "We should be able to hit the ball. I expect us to be solid defensively and our pitching is lining up to be very good as well. However, right now, it is tough to tell. We have had a difficult time with the weather.

"Last week we had three scrimmages canceled, so without playing those games, I do not really know where we are at. We have been doing our best to get ready for the season. It isn't the same, but, we have held a number of intra-squad games to try and get ourselves ready for the start of the season."

As is the case with every high school softball program, starting pitching is key. Returning this spring to pitch for the Raiders is senior Sammi Bonanni; Bonanni will see the majority of time in the circle for North Quincy this year. Senior Lindsey Repucci and sophomore Jackie Hughes will also be asked to throw important innings for NQHS as well.

"The team is really excited to get started and having Sammi as our top pitcher should give us the chance to be in every game we play," said Ginty. "She is a tough little player and I am excited to see what she can do in her final go-around playing high school softball.

"Repucci and Hughes are also capable of giving us some innings, so we should be OK in that department."

With the pitching staff assembled, the Raiders' offense should also be dynamic and productive this spring. At the top of the batting order will be Bonanni and senior catcher Katie Sheridan. These two will be followed (but not necessarily in this order) by senior centerfielder Jessica Ainsley, Repucci (P/OF), senior leftfielder Sarah Minton, senior Christina Doherty (third base), sophomore second baseman Emma Ainsley, senior first baseman Carolyn Ainsley, freshman shortstop Liz Kelly, sophomore Taylor McKay (catcher/OF), juniors Emily Gray (3B), Tenley McKee (3B/SS) and Montana McBirney (1B), and sophomore Jackie Hughes.

This combination of seasoned upperclassmen and talented underclassmen should allow Ginty to position her lineup and defense, each game, to give NQHS the best possible chance at winning games.

"Bonanni and Sheridan are both strong offensively, and Sheridan, especially, can really get a bat on the ball," said Ginty. "Jess Ainsley is a great player, and her younger sister, Emma, really started to hit the ball well at the end of last season. Players such as Emily Gray, Tenley McKee, and Carolyn Ainsley should provide some big hits for us this season as well."

One player that has quickly made an impression on Ginty is freshman Liz Kelly. Kelly, who should see plenty of playing time at shortstop for the Raiders, has the potential to be a standout for years to come.

"We are extremely excited about what Liz can bring to the program," said Ginty. "She is only a freshman, so she has a lot to learn, but from what I have seen in practice, she really has a chance to be great.

"We have a nice mix of young talent and senior leadership and I know everyone is ready to get started and we are all looking forward to seeing what this team can do."

The Red Raiders, if they want a shot at a Keenan Division championship, will have to withstand and triumph over some very strong programs including Duxbury, Hingham, Silver Lake, Scituate and Whitman-Hanson. Not an easy task, but not something Ginty expects her team to back down from at all.

"The Patriot League is tough no matter how you slice it," she said. "The Keenan Division may be a little be stronger with teams such as Duxbury and Silver Lake, but if we play the way we can we should be fighting to be in every game.

"This team wants to be better. We want to advance even further in the tournament and I really like our potential to accomplish some great things this season."

Notes: NQHS will host Whitman-Hanson HS on Friday at Mitchell/McCoy Field at 3:30 p.m. The team will travel to Silver Lake HS on April 12 and to Duxbury on April 14 before hosting Scituate HS on April 15. After the school vacation week, North Quincy is scheduled to host Hanover HS at Mitchell/McCoy Field at 3:30 p.m. The Raiders will play against Quincy HS on April 30 (time to be announced). The two teams will meet on May 25, as well.

QHS Softball Should Challenge For Patriot League Supremacy

New season, but same result.

The Quincy High School softball team, behind seven shutout innings from junior hurler Kori Sorensen (eight strikeouts), defeated non-league opponent Milton High School, 1-0, on Monday afternoon to open the 2010 season on a high note.

Quincy, which last spring advanced to the Division I

South Sectional tournament and defeated Silver Lake High School in the first round, returns the majority of its roster this year. That fact makes the Presidents an early-season favorite to be at or near the top of the Patriot League standings come playoff time this June.

of the guard at head coach. QHS teacher Roger Bacchieri took over for Mike Sedar this off-season. Bacchieri, who has coached both freshmen boys and girls basketball, inherits a team that is littered with senior leadership and experienced underclassmen.

"The game against Milton was a pitcher's duel through six innings," said Bacchieri on Tuesday. "We scored in the bottom of the sixth as senior Olivia Berry knocked in senior Julia Yee with a RBI hit. Kori was outstanding for us. She finished with eight strikeouts and shutout Milton."

Senior co-captains Berry and Yee lead a strong senior class that also includes Jessica Drago, Kylie Kozlowski (1B) and Erin Curran (OF). An impressive underclassmen core headlined by juniors Kori Sorensen (Patriot League All-Star), Lisa Lam (OF), and Jamie Shaughnessy (2B) compliments the senior class. Not to be forgotten are a number of sophomores who will see plenty of time on the diamond this spring including Christine Farnworth, Caitlyn Lowry (CF), Erin Chiochio (RF), Kiley McDonald and Nicole Parry (SS/P).

Freshmen Devon Varahmoodi and Devin McMahon will also gain valuable varsity experience in 2010.

The Presidents will have plenty of strengths this year, not the least of which is the return of Sorensen to the mound. But it is the return of every starter in the infield that should give Quincy an advantage over most opponents on its schedule.

Returning this year is Olivia Berry at catcher; Kylie Kozlowski at first base; Jamie Shaughnessy at second base; Nicole Parry at shortstop, and Julia Yee at third base.

"Our infield will be a strength for us this season," added Bacchieri. "We return every starter off last year's team and all of them have been playing varsity softball for at least two years. They should be good. In the outfield, a number of players will get playing time."

The Presidents, a team that has been successful the last two seasons, have high hopes for this season. For a team that has been to the post-season the last two years, the goal is to get there again, and, advance even further.

"I have high hopes for this team," said Bacchieri. "I have a strong senior class and very talented underclassmen. We want to win our division and make a run in the tournament."

"These girls have put in a lot of work. They are excited to get the season started and realize their goals."

The path to a division championship, this spring, will go through the Patriot League's Fisher Division. Last season, Quincy battled for the league's Keenan Division title. Quincy will play Rockland, Hanover, Pembroke, Middleboro and Randolph High School twice this season.

"The Fisher Division will be tough," added Bacchieri. "Hanover is one of the top teams and Middleboro is also very good. It looks like the entire Patriot League will be a challenge."

Quincy was set to play Pembroke HS on Wednesday in the team's Patriot League opener. The Presidents play on the road at Hanover HS today at 3:30 p.m.

Notes: Tony Chiochio, David Parry and Doug Sorensen, parents of current QHS softball players will assist Coach Bacchieri this season... Ashley Lippert (catcher and pitchers) and Greg Sommers will also be part of the QHS coaching staff in 2010.

CONGRATULATIONS HAYLEY!: Hayley Parrish, of Quincy, a third grader at the Clifford Marshall School, helped lead the Charles River U8 Girls Hockey Team to a first place finish in their division. Parrish also backstopped her team to a 1-0 victory over the Walpole Lady Junior Rebels in the Middlesex Youth Conference Championship Game on March 28. Her team finished with a 12-5-4 record.

Presidents Looking To Improve This Season

By SEAN BRENNAN
The Quincy High School varsity baseball program opened its regular season schedule on Wednesday with an away game at Pembroke

High School. This year's team, under the direction of second-year head coach Tim

Daley, will be looking to improve on last season's final overall record of 5-15.

The Presidents, who struggled last season playing in the Patriot League's Keenan Division, will be playing this spring for a shot at the league's Fisher Division title. To get to that point, Quincy is going to rely on a strong pitching staff of returning players.

"This year's team returns most of the pitching staff," said Daley on Monday. "We should be in good shape in that area, and if we produce like I believe that we can with our pitching we should be in most of our games."

At the top of the pitching rotation are senior Kevin Keith and junior Lukas McDonough. Both players, according to their coach, possess an arsenal of pitches that can be used to get opposing batters out.

"With Kevin Keith and Lukas McDonough as the team's top pitchers, we should be able to remain competitive in any game that they pitch," said Daley. "Both of them throw hard and both have a lot of movement on their pitches. With our offense still progressing, it will have to be our pitching that keeps us in games."

With the 1-2 punch of Keith and McDonough at the top of the rotation, the Presidents will also need pitchers like senior David Muollo and junior Austin Tobin to pick up the slack in the later innings.

"I expect David to throw some important innings for us this year," added Daley. "Austin Tobin will also have the chance to pitch for us. We should be in good shape when it comes to remaining competitive on the mound."

On offense, the Presidents return two starters at the top of their lineup card. Seniors Leroy Wallace (catcher) and Collin McCarthy (centerfield) will be looked at to provide that offensive spark to this year's team. Other players to watch for include junior Derek Murphy (third base) and senior Lance Peterson.

"With the addition of Lance Peterson and the return of players like Wallace, McCarthy and Murphy, we have the chance to be a much better offensive team this spring."

"But it is a player like Lance that really is an asset. He brings with him some more senior leadership, and

Tri-Meet On Friday With Duxbury & Hanover Girls Track Is Off & Running

By JOE REARDON

It's pretty much a given in high school track circles on the South Shore that teams in the rock-solid Patriot League are better than their records would indicate. So when Quincy/North Quincy coach Geoff Hennessy says that this year's girls spring squad has more talent and depth than the 2009 team, chances are its record should be better than the 3-5 mark of a year ago.

"I think we're a little stronger and there's a good amount of depth," said Hennessy on Monday. "We have a large group of hardworking youngsters led by some solid upperclassmen. Our coaching staff continues to put in the time and the results will come."

The team not only has the potential to make waves in the Patriot League, but with 18 freshmen, there's a young core to build on over the next few years. Assistant coaches Kim Delaney and Casey DeaGuero join Hennessy outdoors.

The biggest pickup this season is senior Leslie Campbell. A standout basketball player, Campbell has fit right into the outdoor campaign. With just a week under her belt, she's already getting a feel for the javelin and has reached 85 feet. Campbell has plenty of speed and could be worth several points in the sprints.

Along with her talent, Hennessy is pleased with her work ethic and focus during workouts. "She's one of the most dedicated kids on the team," he said. "Leslie's a real athlete."

Junior Erica Brady heads a perennially strong distance corps and has the most experience in big meet competition. Brady, who has a personal best of 5:25 in the mile, moved up to the two-mile during the indoor season and found the longer race to her liking. A savvy cross-country runner in the fall, Brady clocked a swift 11:50 indoors and should be able to lower that time in the eight-lap race.

Hennessy was able to get a look at his crew in competition during a preseason meet with Milton, Hingham and Notre Dame Academy. Sprinter Amber Jones captured the 200-meter dash, while freshman Rose Bennett won both the 400 hurdles and high jump. Freshman Sam McNally took first in the javelin and junior Talia Hampton bulled her way to a shot put win. Senior Mary Schwartz turned away the competition in the 800-meters in what was an encouraging precursor to the duel-meet season.

Hennessy has a wealth of talent in freshmen twins Danielle and Brianna Mulaney, Jackie Suzzarella, Kelsey Fischer, and Elaine Chan. In the throwing events, a young pack of freshmen jostling for open spots include Emily Nguyen, Si-Han Huang, and Vanessa Bolden. Sophomore Erin Renken and junior Danielle Denien are also strong in the throwing events.

Quincy/North Quincy was slated to open its no-rest-for-the-weary spring campaign on Tuesday against Middleboro and Scituate High Schools, followed by a Friday date with Duxbury and Hanover High Schools.

Hennessy has seen the addition of several events at the middle school level having a big affect on the freshmen and where they are at on the track and in the field events.

"We added the hurdles, turbo javelin, standing broad jump, and the 50-meter dash," Hennessy said. "It's starting to pay off some dividends."

QHS Looking To Improve

even after taking last year off, he looks like he hasn't missed a beat. He is great to have as a team leader."

To be a successful high school baseball team, Quincy will be relying on pitching and defense, and unlike last year when Daley and his staff brought new ideas and concepts to the field, this year's team should be better adjusted to what is being asked of them and what is expected.

That difference, according to Daley, has been more evident this preseason than last.

"This team is going to work hard for everything we get," Daley said. "We are doing a better job this spring of executing, including on defense, and with our base running. It is easy to say you want to come out and hit, but it really comes down to what else you can do on the field to help your team win.

"We went 5-15 last season. Already this year you can sense a change in our practices. Last year it would take 40 minutes to explain something, now that same drill takes 20 minutes. These kids have been in this system now for two years, and I am looking forward to that transition going smoothly this season."

Having played last season in the Patriot League's Keenan Division, Quincy, this season, will play teams such as Rockland, Hanover, Pembroke, Middleboro and Randolph twice. Not to say that the Fisher Division is any easier than the Keenan Division, but according to Daley, the competition for the Fisher Division crown should be fairly equal.

"We actually had more success against teams from the Fisher Division last season, and now we get to play them twice this year," Daley said. "So, playing teams that we know we can compete with should help us in our goal to reach the post-season."

Notes: QHS will play Hanover HS at Adams Field today (Thursday) at 3:30 p.m.... The Presidents are scheduled to play at Randolph HS on April 12 and at Rockland HS on April 14.

Invite-Only Event To Be Held April 15 Morrisette Legion Baseball To Honor Ray Cattaneo

Morrisette Legion Baseball will honor longtime manager Raymond Cattaneo on April 15 with an evening of memories, special guests and recognition for his contributions to the baseball team that he has managed since 1970.

The event will take place in the Tirrell Room at the Quincy Lodge of Elks. The evening will start with a 6-7 p.m. cocktail hour, followed by a 7-8:30 dinner and finally a presentation from 8:30-10 p.m.

This is not an open event for the public. If you played with Ray Cattaneo on Morrisette Legion, played for Cattaneo (1970-present), or worked with Cattaneo in another capacity, you should have received an invitation in the mail. If you have not RSVP'd, please do so now. Checks can be made payable to Morrisette Legion Baseball, attn: Nancy Connolly, 65 Smith St., Quincy, MA 02169.

Women's Fitness Classes At Fore River Clubhouse

The Quincy Recreation Department and Barry J. Welch, Director of Recreation, announced Tuesday that the QRD in cooperation with the Mayor's Commission on Women will be conducting registration on Friday, April 9 for two Women's Fitness classes, which will be held at the Fore River Clubhouse.

Both classes will be held on Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings at 8:15 a.m. and 9:15 a.m. Mrs. Karen Gaughan will instruct the classes.

Each class includes exercises to improve and strengthen flexibility, endurance and overall fitness. Adaptations in the exercises allow each participant to work out at their own pace.

The cost of the program is $70 for 12 weeks. The session begins on April 9 and will conclude on June 25. Registration is on a first-come-first-serve basis and will be taken at the first class.

Participants who cannot make the registration period (April 9) may also register weekdays at the QRD Main Office, One Merrymount Parkway, or online at QuincyRec.com.

NQHS Baseball To Hold Clinic April 17

The North Quincy High School Baseball program, in an effort to raise funds for the upcoming season, will conduct a Spring Training Clinic on Saturday, April 17 at O'Rourke Field on Quarry Street.

The clinic is open to all kids ages 6-12 that are looking to get a head start on their spring baseball season.

The clinic will run from 9 a.m. until Noon, with registration starting at 8:30 p.m. The cost is $30 and that includes a hot dog and drink for all participants.

The first 30 kids to sign up will receive a NQHS baseball hat.

This clinic will offer instruction in all areas of the game including pitching, hitting, fielding (both infield and outfield), base running, throwing techniques, and stretching. Instructors will include the NQHS coaching staff along with current NQHS players and several college players.

For additional information, call 617-471-7695.

Raiders Open Season With Double-Header Sweep

The North Quincy Red Raiders opened the 2010 baseball season with a double-header sweep of Brockton High School last Friday at Campanelli Stadium.

The Raiders took Game One, 2-0, behind seven strong innings from starting pitcher Ryan Louis (one hit, 12 strikeouts), and a two-hit game from junior Mike Stille.

Junior centerfielder Greg Nelson (who was inadvertently left out of last week's team preview) finished with a hit and a RBI. Devin Hudson, Joe Alibrandi and Colin Ryan played well defensively for North Quincy in the win.

North Quincy def.

Brockton, 8-7

North Quincy, trailing 7-3 going into the bottom of the seventh inning, scored five runs in the seventh to rally back for the win.

Junior Colin Ryan's two-run walk off single with two out in the inning was the difference. Junior Ricky Long and senior Brian Donaghey had RBI hits in the seventh inning and junior Mike Stille (two hits), senior John Ainsley (two hits), senior Devin Hudson (RBI), and junior Paul Gould (three walks) all had strong games at the plate for NQHS.

On the mound, senior Ryan O'Connell, sophomore Timmy Liuzzo, and senior Mike Medeiros (win) combined to give NQHS strong pitching performances against the Boxers.

Weymouth def.

North Quincy, 6-0

The Raiders (2-1 overall) lost on the road Monday afternoon to Weymouth High School, 6-0. This was a non-league affair.

Sophomore Joe Alibrandi, pitching in his first varsity game, went four innings, struck out four batters and allowed two earned runs.

Offensively, North Quincy found it difficult putting together hits all afternoon. Colin Ryan finished with two hits and John Ainsley, Devin Hudson, Joe Alibrandi, and Mike Stille all finished with a hit each.

Ricky Long played a strong game for NQHS on defense.

Note: NQHS was scheduled to play at Adams Field yesterday (Wednesday) against Hingham HS. This game started the team's Patriot League schedule... The team has an away game scheduled for Friday at Whitman-Hanson HS (4 p.m.).

Quincy's Kathy Keough Government Relations Manager For Atrius Health

Atrius Health, an alliance of five nonprofit multi-specialty medical groups with practice sites throughout eastern Massachusetts, announces Quincy resident Kathy Keough has been appointed to the newly-created position of Government Relations Manager.

"Kathy brings terrific experience in health policy and a broad knowledge of legislative issues," said Dr. Gene Lindsey, president and CEO of Atrius Health and Harvard Vanguard Medical Associates. "Her impressive background in government affairs will further our efforts to reach and respond to the communities we serve."

In her new role, Keough assumes responsibility for public policy and government relations. Keough will focus her efforts on increasing visibility at both the state and federal levels, and keeping the Atrius Health's leadership informed about key legislation that affects the organization.

Prior to Atrius Health, Keough spent six years as Executive Director, Government Affairs at Massachusetts College of Pharmacy and Health Sciences. Among her many accomplishments, Keough's work in passing significant legislation led to an award as 2008 Pharmacist of the Year from the Massachusetts Pharmacists Association. This was the first time this award was granted to an individual outside of the field of pharmacy.

Keough is currently the Legislative Chair of the Massachusetts Health Council Pharmacy Committee and the Executive Director of the National Association of State Controlled Substances Authorities. She received her Bachelor of Arts in Journalism from Suffolk University, and holds a Master of Science in Public Policy from the John W. McCormack Graduate School of Policy Studies at the University of Massachusetts, Boston.

Milton Hospital Health Walk June 12

Milton Hospital, a clinical affiliate of Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center providing community-based health care, announces its "Community Health Walk," will take place Saturday, June 12, beginning at 10 a.m.

The 5k Community Health Walk will begin and end at Milton Hospital at the Highland Parking Lot located at 199 Reedsdale Rd., Milton.

The event will raise awareness and funds to support good health initiatives throughout the local community.

Registration for the walk is $15 per person, and children 12 and under are free. All proceeds from the event will be distributed in the form of mini-grants to organizations planning health projects, such as wellness activities for seniors or health programming at local schools.

The one-time grants are available from $500 to $1,500. A total of approximately $5,000 will be awarded.

Local organizations seeking financial assistance for community health projects may apply.

Applications for grants must be received by Friday, April 30 at 1 p.m. Funded projects must be completed no later than Dec. 31.

"We are looking forward to giving back to the local communities with funds raised as part of the walk," said Joseph V. Morrissey, president of Milton Hospital.

tal.

Following the walk, Milton Hospital will also host its Third Annual Community Health Day on the hospital grounds. The fair will include "behind-the-scenes" tours of the operating rooms, emergency department, laboratory and endoscopy departments – a great experience for kids of all ages.

Attendees may also take advantage of the many health screenings and other exhibits at the fair, donate blood, interact with Milton Hospital's da Vinci surgical robot and more.

To register for the walk, call 617-313-1588.

Warts Often Fade on Their Own

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Would you address plantar warts? I've been told they're from a virus in the body and that nothing can be done for them or keep them from recurring. Is this so? – D.W.

ANSWER: All warts, wherever they are, come from an infection with one of the more than 100 human papillomaviruses – HPV. Individual members of the HPV family have a preference for particular body sites. Some head for the soles of the feet to cause plantar warts. "Plantar" is derived from a Latin word meaning "sole of the foot."

If a plantar wart isn't kicking up a fuss, it can be left alone. It's not going to do any harm. Many such warts disappear without any treatment. Some can return, and there is not a whole lot to do about preventing a second visit.

However, there is much to do about a plantar wart that hurts. The method chosen for wart removal must not leave a scar. A scar on the bottom of the foot causes more trouble than does a wart.

Look on the shelves of any drugstore for wart-removal products that contain salicylic acid, and follow the directions for application carefully. Be patient. It takes more than one application to get rid of the wart.

Duct tape sometimes works. That's right – duct tape, the tape you buy in a hardware store. Cover the wart with a piece of it for six days. Remove the tape, soak the foot and then gently rub the wart with a pumice stone, obtainable in drugstores. Reapply the tape after 12 hours. You might have to repeat this procedure for two months before the wart leaves.

If home remedies bring no success, the family doctor can step in with more involved treatments.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: For the past six months, I have had no energy. I teach third grade. My doctor checked my thyroid gland, and it turns out it's not working well. I am now taking replacement thyroid hormone. How long does it take for me to recover my former energy? Also, my cholesterol was high. Is that part of this deal? – M.O.

ANSWER: It can take three to six months for your hormone level to reach a normal plateau. That's when you'll feel like your old self again. A person with low thyroid hormone often has a rise in blood cholesterol. The level will fall as soon as the replacement hormone is working.

The booklet on thyroid problems discusses both under- and overactive thyroid glands. Readers can order a copy by writing: Dr. Donohue – No. 401W, Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. Enclose a check or money order (no cash) for $4.75 U.S./$6 Canada with the recipient's printed name and address. Please allow four weeks for delivery.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: What causes skin tags? They hang from my neck and under my arms. – D.H.

ANSWER: Their cause isn't known. Your doctor can clip them off without any fuss. By age 69, 60 percent of us have one or more of them.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him or request an order form of available health newsletters at P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

Tips To Get The Sleep Your Body Needs

(NAPSA)–Here's a wake-up call for your well-being and longevity: You need your sleep.

Unfortunately, many people are shortchanging themselves by averaging a mere 6.7 hours of sleep nightly as opposed to the seven to nine hours recommended by health professionals. Poor sleeping habits impact our mood, mental acuity, health, productivity and public safety.

Improving your sleep quality and quantity may be as easy as making your bedroom a place where you can truly rest and relax. The ideal sleeping conditions are calm, cool and dark. Here are some hints to make your room a place for a great night's sleep:

CALM: Make your bedroom a sanctuary. Eliminate clutter so your mind can relax. Regularly dust and vacuum to rid your room of dust and allergens so you can breathe easily. Choose a calming color palette. Add plants, like peace lily and spider plant, to clean the air naturally. Add drapery panels and area rugs to visually soften edges and dampen sounds.

COOL: We sleep better in cooler rooms, so turn down the thermostat a bit before retiring for the night. This signals the body to prepare for sleep. Window treatments add insulation to your windows, helping maintain your room's temperature with less energy use.

DARK: Light disrupts sleep. When our bodies recognize increasing light, like sunrise, they begin the waking cycle. Controlling light sources is one key for better sleep and better health. Some light sources—e.g., lamps, clocks—are easy to control. Others aren't. Your window coverings can help you block light from streetlamps and the moon. Shift workers and urban residents may find that adding room-darkening liners to their window coverings will help them get more restful sleep.

If light seeps through the gap between your window treatment and window frame, decorative elements become functional elements. Layer drapery panels and cornice boxes over existing window treatments. If you're purchasing blinds, ask about routless louvers or cloth tapes to block light.

When it's time to rise and shine, use light to wake from sleep more gently than a clanging alarm clock. Add programmable motorization to your window treatments and set them to open about 15-30 minutes before your alarm clock rings.

DENTISTRY for the 21st Century

CORROSIVE EFFECT OF EATING DISORDER

The eating disorder known as bulimia poses a problem for the teeth that may be overlooked. Repeated purging of stomach acids can cause significant loss of tooth enamel. In one such case, a person with a history of bulimia began treatment to correct a closed bite, characterized by decreased vertical tooth dimension and an abnormal overbite in which the lower jaw protrudes. Due to stomach acid-induced enamel loss, the patient's incisors lost one-third to one-half of their original length. The closed bite was caused by over-eruption of the lower incisors into the space created by eroded teeth. Fortunately, treatment of the eating problem led to aesthetic correction involving porcelain veneer crowns that could be used to restore the damaged teeth.

Many people suffering from bulimia are able to hide the disorder from others but it is more difficult to keep it a secret from their dentists. Changes inside the mouth of a bulimic can be detected during the course of a routine dental examination. A good experience with dentistry is based on making the right choice in a family dentist. If you don't have a dentist at this time, we're currently accepting new patients. Please call 617-479-6220 to schedule an appointment. We're located at 44 Greenleaf Street. We offer the services of anesthesiology with a fully trained and qualified anesthesiologist. Visit us on the web at www.quincydentist.com.

P.S. People who habitually drink high-acid citrus beverages have also been known to experience significant loss of tooth enamel.

VOICE FOR HEALTH

NARROW ESCAPE

"Spinal stenosis" is a narrowing of one or more areas of the spinal canal, usually in the upper and lower back, that results in pressure being exerted on the nerves that branch out from the compressed areas. As a result, those suffering from this arthritis-induced change of the spine often experience cramping/pain/numbness in their legs, back, neck, shoulders, or arms. The condition causes pain in one or both legs that is triggered by walking or even standing, motions that require straightening of the spine, which compresses the nerves. Oftentimes, the legs feel "rubbery" while walking, as if they might collapse. The goal of chiropractic treatment is to relieve pressure on the nerves by realigning the spine.

Spinal stenosis is most common in men and women over 50 years of age. However, it may occur in younger people who are born with a narrowing of the spinal canal or who suffer an injury to the spine. At the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, we are trained to restore the health of your spine and joints. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy, where we work to restore your health and guide you in a personalized approach to overall wellness. Please call 617-472-4220 to schedule an appointment. Let us help you live life without pain. We offer computerized spinal scans. We are able to adjust patients sitting, standing, or lying down to accommodate any level of discomfort. If your problem is a chiropractic condition, we can offer you exceptional service.

P.S. In severe cases of spinal stenosis, bowel and bladder function may be compromised.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

"Whatever you do, you need courage. Whatever course you decide upon, there is always someone to tell you you are wrong. There are always difficulties arising which tempt you to believe that your critics are right. To map a course of action and follow it to an end, requires some of the same courage which a soldier needs. Peace has its victories, but it takes brave men to win them."

DON MCCARTHY
Managing Director

—Ralph Waldo Emerson

Each of us, as we go through life, strives to be a winner in our own way. But it takes courage to be a winner, a winner at responding to live. It takes courage to accept friendship and intimacy with other persons. It takes courage to take a stand in an unpopular cause. It takes courage to choose reality over approval. It takes courage to accept the responsibility for your own choices and dare to be yourself. New ways are often uncertain ways and as Robert Frost expressed it: "Courage is the human virtue that counts most — courage to act on limited knowledge and insufficient evidence. That's all any of us have."

The great thing about courage is that, when we get the hang of it, it becomes character. And character, after all, is the referee of our success as a human being...

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A problem in getting a workplace project up and moving might upset the Lamb, who likes things done on time. But be patient. The delay could turn out to be a blessing in disguise.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your instincts are usually on the mark, so if you feel uneasy about being asked for advice on a certain matter, it's probably a good idea that you opt not to comply with the request.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You might have two minds about a proposed change (which often happens with the Twins), but once all the facts are in, you'll be able to make a definitive decision. Good luck.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) The Crab's frugal aspect dominates, so while you might be reluctant to pay for technical repairs, the time you save in getting things back on track could be well worth the expense.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) While you Leos and Leonas continue to concentrate on doing well in your work-related ventures this week, consider reserving the weekend for sharing good times with family and friends.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) This is a good week to take stock of the important personal, professional or familial relationships in your life and see where you might need to do some intense shoring up.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your sense of justice makes you the likely person to help deal with a work- or family-related grievance. But you need to have any doubts about anyone's true agenda resolved first.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) The Scorpio passion for getting things done right and on time might rattle some folks. Never mind them. Others will be impressed, and they're the ones you want in your corner.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Finances could be a mite tight this week. And, while things will ease up soon enough, your savvy Sagittarians will want to keep a prudent eye on your expenses at this time.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Although a technical malfunction could cause a temporary delay in getting things up and running, you could use the time to recheck your operation and make changes where necessary.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You might find it difficult to resist making a snap judgment about a colleague's behavior. But stick with your usual way of assessing situations and wait for the facts to come out.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Asking for help with a family situation might be the wisest course to take right now. Just be sure you turn to someone you can trust to do and say the right thing for the right reasons.

BORN THIS WEEK: People see in you a born leader whom they can follow and put their trust in.

Third Quarter Real Estate Activity In Norfolk County

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell has issued a report on real estate activity in Norfolk County for the quarter ending March 31.

In January, 2010 the Registry launched its electronic recording division. By the end of March the Registry had received 323 electronically transmitted recordings generating a total Registry revenue of $40,568.

The Registry has received E-File Submitter Agreements from both the local and national real estate communities.

Register William P. O'Donnell said, "I am pleased to report that 40 different firms submitted an electronic document in the quarter. This was made possible only through a concerted effort with our in-house recording and IT personnel working closely with the recording community. I look forward to further expanding this program."

Total dollar volume of real estate sales in Norfolk County for the quarter period from January to March, 2010 settled at just under $887 million, an increase of $11.7 million over the same 2009 quarter. This translates to an increase in total value of 1%.

The total number of 3,008 deeds recorded during the January to March, 2010 quarter was also up slightly by 2%. The average sale price of deeds over $1,000 (both residential and commercial properties) increased countywide by 3% over the same quarter in 2009 to $618,724. This increase might signify an upward trend in prices, although foreclosures continue to trouble the market with 208 foreclosure deeds recorded from January to March, 2010 compared to 133 recorded in the same period for 2009.

Mortgage recording activity saw a positive run slowed with 7,041 mortgages recorded, a falloff of 20% from 2009. Total mortgage value for the quarter stood at $4.7 billion, a steep decline from the 2009 numbers which were bolstered by some larger commercial loans last year. It is important to note that this total mortgage value amount does not necessarily represent the true increase in indebtedness as some mortgages may be recorded multiple times against different parcels of land, are refinances simply replacing existing debt, or are recorded to secure equity credit lines which may not be drawn to their capacity.

The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds, located at 649 High Street, Dedham, is the principal office for real property in Norfolk County. The Registry is the basic resource for homeowners, title examiners, mortgage lenders, municipalities and others with a need for secure, accurate, accessible land record information. Registry of Deeds can be contacted via telephone at 781-461-6101, or on the internet at www.norfolkdeeds.org.

Don't Let Storms Hurt You Twice

Beware Of Fraudulent Contractors, Scam Artists

The Federal Emergency Management Agency is working closely with several New England states to rapidly determine the extent of damages in recent storms and subsequent flooding.

FEMA has longstanding partnerships with state and local emergency management agencies and teams to evaluate disaster damages and issues.

Unfortunately, there are unscrupulous people and criminals who prey on people in their time of distress. Most recently, there have been reports of people approaching home and business owners who have experienced flood related losses and claiming they are from FEMA and need to inspect their homes and businesses.

FEMA inspectors and FEMA contractors performing their work wear distinctive photo identification cards. The FEMA shirt by itself is not sufficient proof. The laminated card, always with the identifying picture, is the ultimate validity check. The same is true for the U.S. Small Business Administration regarding photo identification.

During preliminary damage assessments, FEMA personnel will usually travel in the field as part of a team consisting of federal, state and local officials. If a disaster is declared and individuals or businesses seek FEMA assistance, FEMA inspectors will come to the home or business to conduct an inspection. These inspectors only visit a home or business after the owner requests FEMA assistance in person, by phone or at the website.

Disaster officials also urge applicants to ask for proper identification before allowing unfamiliar persons claiming to be inspectors into their homes.

These inspectors will have specific agency identification showing that they are in fact authorized to do an inspection. Official inspectors will not be charging any fees to perform this service.

If an inspector asking for access to your home cannot show you a photo ID, call your local law enforcement agency immediately. Take the time to write down the inspector's name, agency and the date of their visit.

FEMA's mission is to support our citizens and first responders to ensure that as a nation we work together to build, sustain, and improve our capability to prepare for, protect against, respond to, recover from, and mitigate all hazards.

Councillors Outraged Over 'Big Box' Look Of New B.J.'s

solicitor Jim Timmins on the procedure.

If Building Inspector Jay Duca does not approve the structure then, "He doesn't sign the certificate of occupancy," said Timmins. Duca is charged with issuing permits.

At Monday's meeting, Palmucci raised the first is-ssues regarding B.J.'s when he questioned the company's application for lottery at the outlet. The application apparently includes the sale of Keno tickets.

The Lottery application raised other issues for councillors, particularly the designation of space for Keno players.

Neither Duca nor a spokesperson for B.J.'s Warehouse, Inc. could be reached by deadline for this report.

B.J.'s has announced an April 23 opening date for the store.

City Council, acting as the city's Special Permit Granting Authority, approved the B.J.'s project by an 8-1 vote after midnight on April 21, 2009. Keenan voted against the project, suggesting the property could have a higher use. Palmucci was not on the council at the time.

The building is located at the 7.5-acre site of the former Patriot Ledger printing plant.

Developers were expected to spend $20 million on the project which also included $350,000 in traffic mitigation funds for the city.

The permit process in-

The heavy rain and ensuing flooding of late March did more than ruin basements and entire homes in involved months of meetings and a court case. The court decision allowed the SPGA to regulate the project.

Norfolk County. An advanced development of spring mosquito larvae has emerged as a result of the wet conditions and warm temperatures.

The Norfolk County Mosquito Control Project will be conducting helicopter applications of the bio-rational larvicide to control the mosquito larvae. The applications will be conducted over large wetlands of Quincy and the rest of the 25 towns in Norfolk County.

The spraying will run from Monday, April 12 through Friday, April 23.

The NCMCP will continue to monitor larval development and, if conditions warrant it, may have to extend these applications into the third week of April. Every effort will be made to keep the public informed as a clear picture develops. The NCMCP will be forwarding maps of the areas to be treated and notify local and state police and fire departments on the morning of each application.

Hi, neighbor!

Come by and say hello at our new Quincy branch at 77 Granite Street.

You'll find the same smiling faces waiting to greet you...but now in a bigger, nicer space - with free parking and drive-thru banking, too.

Come by, say hello. While you're here, let's talk about what we can do for you.

Unlike other banks, South Coastal Bank has money to lend for residential mortgages and businesses. And our mission is to lend that money right here, in the communities where we live and work.

Because that's what good neighbors do.

Residents Fear Noise From New FR Bridge Construction

By JOE REARDON
 Quincy and North Weymouth citizens told Mass Department of Transportation officials Monday night they don't want a repeat of the constant noise they endured during construction at the Fore River Basin when work on the new bridge begins sometime in late 2011.

The bridge connects Weymouth and Quincy on Route 3A and is an important piece of road for commuters heading into Boston from the South Shore. It will replace the temporary ACROW span bridge that is now in place. The original

Mayor, BJs Reach Deal

The city expects to reach a formal agreement with BJs Wholesale Club on design changes to its new South Quincy store within a few days following a "very positive, very productive" meeting between Mayor Thomas Koch and company officials, the mayor said Tuesday.

One design change, under the new agreement, will be a glass façade to the store. BJs will also be allowed to open within the next several weeks, city officials said.

The BJs development sparked outcry last week when city inspectors and city councillors questioned whether the structure at the entrance to the Crown Colony Office Park was being built in accordance with promises made by the developer, Michael DiGuseppe, during months of hearings at the council and planning board last year.

Teachers Reject Pay Freeze

City, Teachers At Contact Impasse

City officials confirmed Tuesday that leaders of the city's teachers union refused to defer contracted pay raises for a year in a plan pitched by Mayor Thomas Koch as a way the mayor said would save millions of dollars and dozens of jobs.

Koch did not divulge many details of negotiations, but confirmed that the union declined to accept a wage deferral in its existing contract that would have pushed off a scheduled four percent pay raise in the upcoming fiscal year. Most other city unions agreed to an identical proposal last year, Koch said.

"I'm deeply disappointed by the union's decision, but we will continue to work in good faith with our teachers and all of our employees to get through this crisis," Koch said. "We have been abundantly clear: We simply can no longer afford the status quo, there will be substantial cuts, and we must work together to protect our core services."

Register Claims With FEMA At Koch Center March Flood Mop-Up Costs $1 Million And Mounting

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Mopping up the March floods cost an estimated $1 million, according to Public Works Commissioner Larry Prendeville who Monday outlined the city's response to the three mid-month 100-year rainstorms that battered the city.

Federal funds will slash the city's cost but the payments through FEMA (Federal Emergency Management Agency) will take some time.

"The cost is just phenomenal," Prendeville told the City Council's Public Safety Committee chaired by Councillor Joseph Finn.

"We finished up last week," said Prendeville who commended park and cemetery workers as well as public works employees, the fire and police departments and city councillors for 24-hour efforts.

"They worked tirelessly," said Prendeville, adding the whole city came together in the crisis.

Prendeville said the bills are still coming in but as examples, he cited overtime at $200,000, equipment rentals at $60,000, outside contractors, $200,000 and added

Capital Waste trash pick-ups at $100,000.

"We tried our very best to keep our costs down," said Prendeville who was REMEMBERING A HERO - A wreath is placed at the monument honoring Marine Private First Class William R. Caddy at Caddy Park on Quincy Shore Drive across from Wollaston Beach. Pfc. Caddy was killed by Japanese enemy forces during the seizure of Iwo Jima in the Volcano Islands on March 3, 1945. Caddy was killed after he threw himself upon a deadly missile, absorbing the exploding charge in his own body and protecting others from serious injury. He received the Medal of Honor posthumously for his dauntless courage and valiant spirit of self-sacrifice in the face of certain death by President Harry S. Truman. Placing the wreath at the granite memorial are Sherri Holleran, Caddy's niece, and Donald W. Sharp, commandant of the William R. Caddy, Marine Corps League. Other photos on Page 17. praised for his leadership by committee members.

"The mayor said to do whatever we had to do," said Prendeville who purchased and leased new pumps during the emergency, later adding, "I was given a green light to do what I had to do to help these people."

When the water receded,

Capital Waste collected an estimated 1000 tons of flood debris, ranging from ruined furniture to appliances to soggy carpeting and wall-board.

As the tons added up, Prendeville said the state's Department of Environment Protection issued a warning, "The DEP was going to start fining us."

As for the hazardous waste collected, Prendeville said that will be stored in a DPW waste facility until the city's regular HazMat disposal in June.

"We will get reimbursed," said Prendeville but added, "One of the problems is when our fiscal year ends, we will be running deficits."

Prendeville also said that federal reimbursement is tied to residents' losses as well as municipal costs. He encouraged residents to register their claims with FEMA at the Koch Park and Recreation Center within the next two weeks.

Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci said he understood that FEMA sets aside 15% of the total flood costs for infrastructure improvements and residents' claims are part of that total.

While the cleanup and repair costs can be measured in dollars and cents, the cost to residents was immeasurable as Prendeville described homes in ruins and lives disrupted.

In West Quincy, Sheldon Street residents endured 24 inches of water on their first floors and in homes on Alrick Road, 18 inches of water drenched first floors from already flooded basements.

Prendeville reported 600 calls to the DPW during the three storms and their aftermath, but said many in the hardest hit areas never called.

While the disaster brought out the best in most residents and city workers, officials also had to deal with panic, high emotions, and several instances of crime, such as the theft of a pump and arson at a pump storage shed.

Prendeville, also, said one resident attempted to set fire to his home. "If we're not out there watching, things happen. The people were devastated. Their lives were turned upside down."

Remediation Plans

With sunshine drying the fields and brooks and rivers receding, Prendeville said the city will look to dusting off remedial plans and preventive measures.

Jim Fatseas, chief of staff for Mayor Thomas Koch, said the administration plans a "total analysis of need" and potential solutions.

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi said he experienced flooding first-hand "both as a youngster and now as a homeowner. It's satisfying that this mayor has decided to take on flood control management."

City Engineer Sean Hardy told councillors there are studies dating from 1956 right through to 2000.

"That's what we're going to start looking at on Wednesday," Prendeville said of a meeting planned with officials from the city, the state, and the emergency response agencies, MEMA and FEMA.

"What's realistic in what we can expect in remedial plans?" Finn asked.

Hardy said each project must be evaluated. "The biggest piece is benefit versus cost."

"A lot of these projects are very, very costly," said Prendeville.

On the plus side, Hardy reported that the federal government is currently considering several of the city's grant applications and there has been success in several of the city's completed drainage projects.

As for future grants, Prendeville cautioned, "It takes a long time when we ask for these grants."

Koch Center Open For Disaster Claims

FEMA's Disaster Recovery Center located at Koch Recreation Center, 1 Merrymount Parkway will offer residents and business owners service on claims for flood damage starting Monday.

FEMA officials ask that claimants first register by calling 1-800-621-FEMA (3362). The toll free numbers are staffed 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. seven days a week until further notice. Multilingual assistance is available.

The hours at the Koch Center are Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m. to 7 p.m., Friday and Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday, 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.

This temporary center will close May 7.

Once a claim is completed, the staff at the center will review claims and update applicant information and provide specific answers to individual questions and concerns.

Center specialists will also identify other agencies and provide disaster-related information to reduce further damage risks. Registration may also be on online at www.DisasterAssistance.gov.

For business owners, representatives from the Small Business Administration

(SBA) will answer questions regarding SBA's low interest disaster loan program for homeowners, renters, business and non-profit organizations of all sizes.

Such loans can be used to repair or replace real estate and/or personal property damaged by the storms and flooding.

Those business persons unable to visit the DRC center may call the SBA Customer Service Center from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday, or 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday or visit the SBA website, www.sba.gov/services/disasterassistance or send an email to disastercustomerservice@sba.gov.

Quincy Lions Distribute Gift Cards To West Quincy Flood Victims Wednesday

The Quincy Lions Club planned to distribute $5,000 in emergency assistant grant funds to Quincy flood victims yesterday (Wednesday) from 5:30 to 7 p.m. at O'Rourke Field, 500 Quarry

St., at the intersection of Furnace Brook Parkway.

Quincy Lions Club received the $5,000 grant from Lions Club International Foundation to help local residents impacted by the recent flooding.

Quincy Lions Club President Michelle Lydon and Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci led volunteers through one of the hardest hit neighborhoods, going door-to-door to distribute $100 Shaw's gift cards to those families identified as having been most negatively impacted by the flooding.

The gift cards will enable families to purchase food, water, blankets, first aid supplies, personal hygiene items, cleaning supplies and other items related to the flooding emergency.

Mayor, BJs Reach Deal

The building appeared not to include a glass façade, roof features and landscaping designs that had been part of the developer's proposal to city officials. That prompted city inspectors to say they would not issue an occupancy permit and a request from Koch to meet with BJs corporate officials directly, outside of the developer.

"We had a very positive, and every productive meeting, and I appreciate BJs' willingness to work with the city," Koch said. "Our issues are solely with the developer, not BJs the company. The folks from BJs clearly understood the city's expectations, and we are all on the same page right now."

City Solicitor James Timmins is leading the city's legal efforts, working with the BJs team to develop a formal agreement that will detail the work to be done to the building and property and the milestones that will be required for BJs to open its Quincy store within the next several weeks.

Timmins said the city has been shown "nothing but good faith" from the company allowing the city to be open to a temporary occupancy permit that will allow BJs to meet its opening schedule.

The City Council approved a special permit for a new BJs store last year, while the Planning Board initially rejected the proposal but later approved conditions on the project after a court ordered the board to revisit the project.

TAKEN AWAY WITH CUFFS

Cuff bracelets, which have been worn for millennia, continue to be as bold and sexy as ever. What other piece of jewelry better shows off wrists and beautifully manicured hands, in everything from sleeveless dresses to blouses with three-quarter-length sleeves? Styles range from smooth, polished, and contemporary designs to complexly textured patterns. Moreover, cuffs are worn beautifully on the wrist and forearm as well as the upper arm. What better way to show off gym-toned upper arms than to encircle them in bands of precious metal? This versatile piece of jewelry reflects the confidence of the woman who chooses to wear it. Very often, a cuff bracelet can be worn as a stand-alone piece that requires no jewelry complement.

Cuff bracelets are as popular today as they were in years gone by, much like . . . We have been serving the Quincy area since 1944 with integrity, personal attention, and fine quality jewelry of unique design and exquisite gemstones. Over 3% Wage Cut, 5% Increase In Health Insurance Costs, Pension Freezes

QMC Nurses Hold Informational Picket

By JOE REARDON

Paula Ryan was busy handing out buttons and greeting nurses Tuesday afternoon outside the Quincy Medical Center. On the sidewalk, more than a hundred nurses walked slowly in a straight line that stretched for 50 yards. Passersby in vehicles beeped their horns in encouragement.

Wearing sandwich board signs that read "Our Priority Is Our Patients" and "United We Stand," the nurses were staging an informational picket over a unilateral imposition 3% wage cut, 5% increase in health insurance costs and pension freezes because of the medical center's financial difficulties. The plan was implemented on April 4. The nurses were also up in arms over the medical center's refusal to address the nurses' concerns for safer staffing levels.

"Our issue is this is the fifth time in 11 years that the hospital has come to the nurses," said Ryan a resident nurse of 42 years and chair of the local bargaining unit of the Massachusetts Nurses Association. "Our priority is staffing and it has lessened. We have language in the contract and they're not honoring it."

The picket came on the heels of an emergency meeting held on April 1 where the nurses expressed overwhelming support for their union's position. They then authorized the negotiating committee to issue the 10-day required notice for informational picketing outside the medical center.

The nurses entered into negotiations with the medical center on Feb. 18 but they lasted just six sessions before the medical center declared the two sides were at an impasse. The MNA filed an unfair labor practice charge against the medical center with the National Labor Relations Board for their decision to cease the negotiations.

"They are demanding that nurses make significant sacrifices, without providing us the opportunity to negotiate over those changes," said Ryan. "For them, it's take it or leave it. They are stomping on our legal rights and we will not be bullied."

we will not be intimidated."

Stacey McEachern, an emergency room RN from Hanover, said the nurses were looking for a date when the cutbacks would stop and stressed the need for ancillary staff. "We felt we could have continued negotiating," said McEachern.

But according to the medical center, it was the nurses who were unwilling to budge.

"We have made good faith efforts to gain the nurses' support for a short-term contract to address these urgent financial needs," said Quincy Medical Center spokesperson Janice Sullivan. "Unfortunately, after numerous bargaining sessions, it became clear, especially after the involvement of a federal mediator that the parties were at an impasse on even the limited number of items up for discussion in this short-term contract. We hope the nurses will come to understand the need to join their fellow workers and other stakeholders in making temporary sacrifices for the good of the hospital.

"Quincy Medical Center provides high quality care and meets strict standards for safety as reflected in the recent award of the Gold Seal of Approval from the Joint Commission, a national health care accreditation body. We have been transparent with our staff and our community regarding the financial challenges that Quincy Medical Center must take decisive action now to ensure the stability and survivability of the hospital and its mission. The union has a right to express its opinions regarding its contract status and we expect it will do so in a respectful way without disrupting patients, service at the hospital and our neighbors."

Ryan, though, said just one of the meetings was federally mediated. She wasn't surprised by the medical center's swift end to negotiations. "We felt at the first session they were going to declare and impasse," Ryan said.

The nurses, though, have stated they could agree to some concessions, providing the hospital makes staffing improvements promised in the last round of contract negotiations. They're also looking to add an ex officio (non-voting) seat on the medical center's board of trustees, allowing the nurses to provide input in the hospital's "transformation" plan," according to Ryan.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

- On April 24, 1800, President John Adams approves legislation to appropriate $5,000 to establish the Library of Congress. The first books, ordered from London, consisted of 964 volumes. Today the collection, housed in three enormous buildings in Washington, contains more than 17 million books.
- On April 23, 1859, William Byers distributes the first newspaper ever published in the frontier boomtown of Denver. Working with a hand press in the attic of a local saloon, Byers printed and distributed the first edition of The Rocky Mountain News, beating the first release of competitor The Cherry Creek Pioneer by only 20 minutes.
- On April 19, 1876, a Wichita, Kan., commission votes not to rehire policeman Wyatt Earp (of O.K. Corral fame) after he beats up a candidate for county sheriff. For much of his life, Earp worked in law enforcement, but his own allegiance to the rule of law was conditional at best.
- On April 21, 1930, a fire at an Ohio prison kills 320 inmates, some of whom burn to death when they are not unlocked from their cells. The prison, built to hold 1,500 people, was almost always overcrowded. At the time of the 1930 fire, there were 4,300 prisoners living in the jail.
- On April 25, 1947, President Harry S. Truman officially opens the first White House two-lane bowling alley. President Eisenhower closed the alley in 1955 and turned it into a mimeograph room, while President Nixon had a one-lane alley installed underground directly beneath the North Portico entrance of the White House.
- On April 22, 1970, Earth Day, an event to increase public awareness of the world's environmental problems, is celebrated in the United States for the first time. Millions of Americans, including students from thousands of colleges and universities, participated in rallies, marches and educational programs.
- On April 20, 1986, the Chicago Bulls' Michael Jordan scores 63 points in an NBA playoff game against the Boston Celtics, setting a post-season scoring record. Jordan remains the NBA's highest regular season scorer, with an average of 30.1 points per game.

Leo W. Keenan, Jr.: Squantum's Weather Observer

There's a saying all politics are local but the same can be said about the weather.

Just ask Leo W. Keenan, Jr., of Squantum. The 72-year-old custom remodeler has been an avid weather observer for most of his life and has recorded weather observations for 50 years, including the last 22 from his home in Squantum.

A discerning eye can detect Keenan's weather enthusiasm just by looking at his Sycamore Road home.

From atop his roof stands an anemometer that measures wind speed. In the front yard there are two rain gauges — one facing east, the other west — 60 feet apart. There are also two outdoor thermometers — one hung from a shrub and the other inside a weather shack.

Inside his home are five other weather instruments — fastened on a wall neatly in a row. They measure relative humidity, tides, anemometer gauge (wind), an accurized barometer and a 24-hour clock. Explaining the instruments, he points out one recent wind gust measured 69 miles per hour (during one those heavy rain days in March.)

But there's a lot more to weather watching than just reading a gauge or sticking a ruler in freshly fallen snow.

Experience is a huge factor and Keenan has more of that than most.

He grew up in Hull near Nantasket Beach and attended the Weymouth branch of the Norfolk County Agricultural School. During his high school days, he worked at a greenhouse before and after classes. In his younger days, he also worked at dairy farms and was a lumberjack in Vermont. Later, he worked 17 years on a lobster fishing boat and served 32 years in the Coast Guard.

"Weather is more than just a hobby, it's been a life passion. It's played an important part — either directly or indirectly — to my work," says the affable Keenan who's as comfortable explaining sea breezes as he is just shooting the breeze.

"For me, it's enjoyable. I have many hobbies and interests and this is one here is because every day it can be a little different. It's not boring, it's interesting."

He rises daily at 4 a.m. and takes his weather readings around 5 a.m. At 5:20 a.m., he calls in his observations to Meteorologist Rob Gilman and New England Weather Service.

"I give Rob the current temperature and whether it's up or down since midnight, sky conditions, if there's been any precipitation like rain or snow, how much precipitation we've had since midnight. Midnight is the break-even point — even if it's been snowing for three days straight, we use midnight-to-midnight for one day's accumulation and then at the end you total it up and we call that an event," Keenan explains.

Gilman keeps an ongoing record of Keenan's observations and reports weather forecasts to local media including several area radio stations.

Keenan says being near the ocean — his home is about 300 feet from the water's edge — can be dramatically alter weather readings from as close as two miles inland.

"In the spring, if we have an on-shore breeze . . . the temperature here can be 10 degrees cooler (than a few miles inland). In the winter, where we're right here on the water on the east slope of Squantum, the snow that I get here may be different than the snow that falls just on the other side of the hill."

It's not unusual to have snowfall totals different just a few streets away.

"I've seen anywhere from a half-inch to two-inch difference between here to just on the other side of the hill because the snow here comes in wetter and you go over the hill and it's coming from a different height and sometimes it's lighter and fluffier," he says.

Keenan says measuring snowfall accurately can be a challenge.

"When it comes to measuring snowfall, I envy the people who live out in Weston and Wellesley because they don't have (to contend) with wind. The snow just falls down; it's very easy to measure.

"Here, we usually have a snowfall that comes with a north or a northeast wind and it causes drifting. I have to take snowfall measurements from probably 10 different areas. I put down snowboards that are painted white. I know when I take a measurement, my measuring stick is hitting something solid. That at least gives me a little bit of a heads-up trying to measure in a snowstorm with wind because sometimes you can have a drift that's waist-high and in other areas it can be down to the ground.

"That's where years of experience come in. You know what to look for, where to measure. You take a look at the wind direction — going from north to northeast could mean LEO W. KEENAN, Jr. checks the temperature from a thermometer located inside a weather shack located outside his Squantum home.

a different measuring technique."

Unlike years ago, Keenan also says people are more aware of the snow compression which can throw off accurate readings.

"Before it would snow all day and then you'd go out the next day and measure it. Of course, there's been some compressing. Now, people are much more aware of snowfall so they run out every hour and they take measurements so the compression hasn't taken place. Maybe it's a more accurate reading of what actually fell as compared to measuring it 24 hours after it fell."

Recording rainfall can also be affected — by the wind — but it's seldom a factor.

"I have two rain gauges in the front yard: one faces east, the other west, 60 feet apart. The rain has to fall somewhere and I find very little difference — if any — in the rain gauges," he notes.

Keenan can rattle off some of the highs and lows of his record-keeping since moving from North Weymouth to Squantum in 1988. Since that time, the highest temperature he's recorded is 98 degrees; the lowest minus 4. And of course, the most rainfall during March just occurred last month — a total of 13.89 inches.

Keenan can also break down the lion's share of that rain total: March 13 — 1.78 inches; March 14 — 3.94 inches; March 15 — 1.76 inches; March 22 — .18 of an inch; March 23 — 1.97 inches; March 29 — 2.21 inches; March 30 — 2.34 inches and March 31 — .08 of an inch.

The 13.89 inches of rain in March is less than the record rainfall of 14.87 inches measured at Boston's Logan Airport. But it underscores the "all weather is local" premise.

"Even though I can look out and see Logan Airport, they had a different rain total than I did," Keenan says. "But there's a saying that all weather is local. So local is being here in Squantum."

March was also a meteorological anomaly due to the lack of snow, Keenan points out.

"In terms of snowfall, this was an average year. The part that was not average was in March we sometimes have a heavy snowfall. Here in Squantum, we only had two-tenths of an inch of snow for the entire month which is quite unusual."

Does he get excited when bad weather is forecast or does he prefer tranquil skies?

"The weather is the weather and so if you know there's an event coming, oh sure, I get excited about the weather. People like myself are into the weather because there's nothing you can do about it anyway so you might as well be excited about it."

But his heart goes out to all those residents who were affected by the flooding caused by those heavy March rains. "There's no joy in that whatsoever," he says, his grin disappearing.

In fact, given a choice, Keenan would take a string of peaceful, tranquil days with warm sunshine and cool sea breezes. "It's beautiful today," he says smiling widely on a recent sunny Saturday morning.

"There's not much wind, there's a lot of bare ground and as the sun hits the ground, even though it's still in the spring it creates warm air. As the warm air rises, the cool air from the ocean comes in to fill that spot. That's why we have so many sea breezes in the spring."

For the budding weather enthusiast, Keenan recommends an anemometer. "It's a very good instrument because it produces an instant reading of what the wind is actually doing."

Or perhaps an outdoor thermometer but Keenan says to be accurate, make sure it's in a spot with free air flow, shade and five feet about the ground.

Then again, you could just ask Leo J. Keenan, Jr. He'll give you a weather reading . . . and a warm smile, too.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1922 real photo postcard view of Billings Road in Norfolk Downs looking east from Hancock Street which crosses in the foreground. The building on the left is now two stories; at the time it was A.R. Mackay's variety store. It became a drug store for many years and is now once again a variety store. On the right was a real estate office now the home of Balducci's Sub Shop. The Park Land Company, who developed what was known as the Massachusetts Fields coastal plain into Norfolk Downs, laid out Billings Road through their subdivision. The road, one of the widest in Quincy, originally had grassy green islands down the middle much like Elm Avenue does today, except it was an unpaved dirt road. Down the middle of the islands they laid trolley tracks from here to West Elm Avenue then onto Elm Avenue rejoining Hancock Street in Wollaston. Electric trolleys ran for almost 30 years on this route until they were discontinued in 1920. Demands from the local residents led the Eastern Mass Street Railway Company to start using motor coach busses on the route in 1924. They were the first busses used in Quincy. Today, MBTA busses still run along this road, but only to Beach Street and then on to Wollaston Center. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

High Patient Satisfaction Levels At Hancock Park

Welch Healthcare & Retirement Group thanks and congratulates the nursing and support staff at Hancock Park Rehabilitation & Nursing Center for its commitment to quality care and patient satisfaction.

The recently released results of the Massachusetts Department of Health and Human Services Division of Healthcare Quality 2009 Nursing Home Satisfaction survey reflect a high level of satisfaction with Hancock Park.

Statewide, an average of 89% of respondents would recommend their loved ones' nursing home to a family member or friend. At Hancock Park Rehabilitation and Nursing Center in Quincy, 98% of survey respondents said they would recommend the center. In fact, all of the Welch owned and/or managed centers scored above the 93rd percentile in this category.

This mandatory survey included 430 nursing facilities in the state. It was mailed to nearly 35,000 people in Massachusetts. Respondents were the parties responsible for the nursing centers' residents such as daughters, sons and spouses. Satisfaction was measured in six domains: staff and administration; physical aspects of the home; activities provided to residents; personal care; food and meals; and residents' personal rights.

Hancock Park also scored above the state averages in all six of the domains measured in the survey. In fact, the staff at Hancock Park produced statistically better results in almost all of the survey domains than similarly-sized facilities or facilities in the same geographic region.

Richard Welch, president of Welch Healthcare & Retirement Group, said, "Because ours is a family owned and operated organization, it is particularly gratifying to know that the family members of our rehabilitation and nursing center residents are pleased with the care their loved ones are receiving.

"Our commitment is to care for all of the residents as if they were members of our own family. Our staff is to be commended for delivering on that commitment."

Beach Commission Seeks Photos, Memories

Today (Thursday) is the last day to submit photos, pictures and snapshots of local residents and families "on the beaches of Quincy" to the Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission for inclusion in the city's 2010 Beach Guide.

The commission is also seeking memories of "On the Beaches of Quincy."

Photos and written memories should be mailed to

Additionally, Hancock Park had a deficiency-free survey for 2010 from the Massachusetts Department of Public Health. This achievement was reached by only 19.5% of all Massachusetts skilled nursing facilities last year.

For more information about Welch Healthcare & Retirement Group, visit www.welchhrg.com.

Leo Kelly, 143 Spring St., Quincy, MA 02169.

"We will scan any pictures submitted and return to the owner. Written memories will not be returned," Kelly said.

For more information, call 617-773-1534.

The Beach Guide will be published in early May. Today (Thursday) is also the deadline to submit written memories.

Gov. Calls For Action On Transportation Problem

By FRANK McCAULEY

Gov. Foster Furcolo called upon the Old Colony Area Transportation Advisory Council to make recommendations to maintain commuter service in the Old Colony Transportation area, and he warned that the present operating agreement with the railroad expires June 30.

In a letter to each mayor and chairman of the boards of selectmen in the cities and town of the South Shore and the Cape, the governor said that they have a duty to make recommendations for continuation of commuter service.

He also wrote to Boston Mayor John B. Hynes, chairman of the Advisory Council, requesting he call a meeting to act on this matter.

"This is a matter which vitally concerns the residents of your areas and should receive your most serious considerations," Gov. Furcolo concluded.

30 HOMES PERILED BY MARSH FIRE

More than 30 homes were endangered by a marsh fire, which swept across a wide area in the vicinity of Marine Street and Rock Island Road in Houghs Neck.

Using chemical lines and brooms, Quincy firemen brought the blaze under control within a short distance of a dozen homes on Rock Island Road.

The blaze is believed to have been started by boys and was fanned by a strong wind. Deputy Fire Chief Russell Barry called for additional aid when the blaze threatened homes.

DREDGING, SHIPBUILDING, ROADS DISCUSSION

Dredging, shipbuilding, highways and historical shrines are subjects on the agenda when Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa, along with William A. O'Connell and Fred E. Bergfors, Sr., of the Quincy South Shore Chamber of Commerce, visit the Nation's Capitol.

The men were to appear before the Public Works subcommittee seeking a $10,000 grant to study and review the need for further deepening of the channel in Town River.

QHS Students Featured At Boston University's Gallery 5

Art is in bloom this spring at Quincy High School.

In addition to participating in an art show at Quincy's Kennedy Center (opening May 25 at 5:30 p.m.), Quincy High School student work is being showcased at Boston University, part of the MFA Graduate Exhibition art show.

As part of the Boston University Art Education program in studio teaching, Master of Fine Arts candidates are placed in local schools, to work with art students.

Boston University's Angela Maki worked with Quincy High School students in Andy Bell's art classes, and helped to prepare them for the show. The experience was beneficial to both students and teachers.

Gallery 5 is located on the fourth floor of Boston University's College of Fine Arts, 855 Commonwealth Ave., Boston.

The opening reception is Friday, April 23 from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m.

The gallery hours are Monday through Friday, from 7:30 a.m. to 8:30 p.m., and weekends 9 a.m. to 8:30 p.m.

Evening Will Benefit QMC Asian Service Fund Green Brush Art Reception At Quincy Medical Center April 27

The second annual Quincy Medical Center (QMC) Green Brush Art Reception will be held Tuesday, April 27 from 6 to 9 p.m. in the QMC McCauley Building Lobby, 114 Whitwell St., Quincy.

A number of generous supporters are sponsoring the reception, including local business owners, physicians, civic leaders and community residents.

"Last's year first Green Brush Art Reception was very successfully organized and carried out, introducing Chinese arts like painting, calligraphy, photography and music to the hundreds of people who attended, while also raising money for QMC," says Dr. Wan Wu, owner of Kam Man Food.

"In this financially difficult time for Quincy Medical Center, it is important for the Asian community to continue to support events such as this and QMC's outreach efforts to Quincy's growing Asian Community so that they will continue and grow. It is an honor for Kam Man Food to be a Green Brush Stroke Level (the highest) Sponsor again for the event this year."

In addition to a silent auction of artwork by internationally renowned artists of the Chinese American Fine Art Society, participants will enjoy a Chinese lion dance by the Wah Lum Kung Fu and Tai Chi Academy; an Asian Couture Fashion Show with fashions by Drea Designs Couture and Grandasia Bridal and Fashions of Quincy and models from Boston's Tonn Model Management; live traditional Chinese music by the talented musicians of the Foundation for Chinese Performing Arts, brush painting and calligraphy demonstrations, raffle drawings, wine, beverages and hors d'oeuvres.

This evening of Asian culture benefits the QMC Asian Service Fund, which provides free health education, screenings and publications to the South Shore's growing Asian community and enhances Asian services at QMC. All members of the public and business community are welcome.

Event tickets are $68 each and many levels of sponsorship opportunities are available. For more information and details, call Lola Tom, Asian Services Manager, (617) 376-5493, e-mail ltom@quincymc.org or visit www.quincymc.org. Green Brush tickets may also be purchased at Grandasia Bridal and Fashions, 663 Hancock St., Quincy, and at Kam Man Food, 219 Quincy Ave., Quincy.

Quincy College Drama Club's 'Moving Forward'

The Quincy College Drama Society will present "Moving Forward," an original play by Chris Cutler, Thursday, April 22 through Saturday, April 24 at the North Quincy High School Auditorium, 316 Hancock

St., North Quincy.

The play will be presented at 7 p.m.

Admission is free; a $5 cash donation is requested.

Cutler is the president of the Quincy College Drama Society. The play follows a young man who struggles to grow up without a father figure after his father abandons the family. As time goes on, the question becomes: can the son and the father ever reconcile? In addition, a short, one-act comedy will be presented.

Sinatra, Davis Dinner Show At Common Market

The Common Market Restaurants is offering a Frank Sinatra & Sammy Davis Dinner Show Saturday, April 24 at its function facility and restaurant at 97 Willard St. in West Quincy.

Last year, the restaurant ran four Sinatra shows and they all sold out.

A $50 ticket includes dinner, tax, gratuity, show and dancing.

Seating begins at 6:30 p.m. for a 7 p.m. and four-course dinner. The dinner features a portabella ravioli appetizer, a chopped salad course, a dinner choice of either Haddock Florentine, Chicken Milanese or Italian Pork Tenderloin. The meal also includes a tiramisu dessert.

There is a dance floor for dancing during the evening.

Entertainment features Michael Dutra who performs more than 300 nights per year with his renditions of Frank Sinatra classics.

Dutra performs in venues from Maine to Florida all year long. His high energy show, wonderful mannerisms and song phrases present a tremendously accurate portrayal of Sinatra, according to entertainment reviewers.

GARRETT QUINN and JILL CLARK

Jill Clark Engaged To Garrett Quinn

Mr. and Mrs. Garrett Quinn of Hanover announce the engagement of their son Garrett M. Quinn to Jill Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Clark of Gilford, N.H.

Miss Clark graduated from Suffolk University and is a production editor with Cengage Learning in Boston.

Mr. Quinn graduated from Suffolk University and is an environmental site contractor with Trident Environmental Group.

He is the grandson of Lorraine and the late John J. Quinn, former long-time Quincy city councillor.

An Aug. 21 wedding is planned.

'East Of Eden' Free Screening At Houghs Neck Church

Houghs Neck Congregational Church will present a free screening of the classic film East of Eden Friday, April 16 at 6:30 p.m. in the church's Fellowship Hall, 310 Manet Ave., Quincy.

All are welcome to attend.

Elia Kazan's adaptation of John Steinbeck's classic novel offers a contemporary take on the biblical tale of Cain and Abel. Set in California's Salinas Valley between the Civil War and the end of World War I, the film recounts the conflicts between two brothers, Cal and Aron, as they vie to win the affections of their stern father, Adam.

Starring James Dean, Julie Harris and Raymond Massey, East of Eden is being shown as part of Houghs Neck Congregational Church's Faith in Film Fridays, a series of free monthly screenings of popular films that explore issues of faith and spirituality.

Faith in Film Friday screenings are held at 6:30 p.m. on the third Friday of each month downstairs in the church's Fellowship Hall.

Admission is free; a snack bar offering homemade soups, sandwiches, snacks and drinks opens at 6 p.m.

For more information, call 617-479-8778.

NQHS Class Of 1950 Reunion June 25

The North Quincy High School Class of 1950 will have its 60th reunion Friday, June 25 from 12 noon to 7 p.m. at the Best Western Adams Inn, 29 Hancock St., North Quincy.

Free Walking Tour Of Town Brook Saturday

The Quincy Park Department and the Quincy Environmental Network will sponsor a free walking tour of Town Brook Saturday, April 17 at 10:30 a.m.

Brad Chase of the Mass. Division of Marine Fisheries and Steve Perdios of the QEN will look for smelts in the Brook and discuss efforts to restore the Brook as part of the downtown redevelopment.

Participants should meet in the parking lot of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, 36 Miller St. Rd.

For more information, call 617-472-0799.

Fashion Show To Benefit Maria Droste May 7

The Maria Droste benefit Fashion Show will be held Friday, May 7 at Lantana's in Randolph.

The evening will feature cocktails, dinner, music, a silent auction and "frugal" chic. Chairpersons for this year's event are Edward and Joan Keohane of Quincy.

The fifth annual gala has been dedicated in named in honor of Darlene Sheehan. For the past four years the event has been a very successful collaboration, combining the Maria Droste Fundraising Committee and "friends of Darlene Sheehan."

Friends of Darlene's, as well as several local trend setters, both male and female, will take to the runway to model spring ensembles. Wardrobe choices will feature fashions from Glory Daze in Milton as well as men's clothing from Hajjar's in Quincy.

The show will benefit Maria Droste Services, a counseling agency staffed and operated by the sisters of the Good Shepherd and several clinically trained professionals who serve as volunteers.

For ticket and sponsorship information, call Sister Lorraine Bernier at the agency, 617-471-5686.

Zumba Fundraiser

The Germantown Neighborhood Center/YMCA Food Pantry will host a Zumba fundraiser Friday, April 16 at the center, 366 Palmer St., Quincy.

The two-hour Zumba party will begin at 6:30 p.m. and end at 8:30 p.m.

Cost is $15 at the door. All proceeds will directly benefit the pantry.

READERS FORUMCourse Change Needed

According to last week's Quincy Sun article, "QMC: Cutting Costs, Bolstering Its Services," interim QMC board chairwoman Grace Murphy-McAuliffe stated, "Those that I have talked to feel it (3% cut in pay, cost shifting of health insurance and other actions) has to happen."

The nurses' contract has expired and there have been six negotiating sessions, the last one assisted by a federal mediator. The nurses' committee is certainly willing to discuss cutbacks, but expect a give and take that will include the safe staffing needs that had been promised by the prior administration and are necessary to provided needed care.

The elected leaders of the nurses have asked four times to meet with Murphy-McAuliffe without success. The hospital's email communication with the staff points out that the healthcare scene is quite complicated. Then why in heaven's name did the Quincy Medical Center's board entrust the transformation of the hospital to a corporate raider who admits he has no healthcare experience whatsoever? The current state of affairs, a unilaterally-declared "im-passe" with unilateral imposition of the cuts, clearly indicates that he has just about as little knowledge of workers' rights and collective bargaining.

The current business model of health care has failed. We need to reshape the way we approach health care both here in Quincy, statewide and nationally if we are to restore it as a valued public resource, not a vehicle for individual and corporate aggrandizement. In the market place, there are winners and losers. We cannot afford any more losers. We cannot afford to lose Quincy Medical Center.

Proposed Cell Phone Antenna Protest Saturday

Citing health concerns and possible decreased real estate value, West Squantum Street neighbors will be out in full force Saturday, picketing the Archstone building's plan to install a cell phone antenna on its roof.

"We're asking people to make the time to protest," said West Squantum Street resident Erlinda McGinty. "It (antenna) could have a long-term effect on our health."

McGinty said there will be up to 100 people picketing on West Squantum Street from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Based in Milton, FL, Clearwire submitted a request for a variance to the zoning board of appeals allowing them to install the antenna on Jan. 5. Residents of the adjacent Montclair condominiums were not notified of the meeting. The board recommended to Clearwire that it do a study to assure the antenna posed no health risks to people in the neighborhood. The Archstone building is the ideal height for an antenna, which would convert the building to wireless.

"This Clearwire company is invading our neighborhood," McGinty said. "It's very frightening what can happen to our neighborhood if a cell phone tower is put there."

Marie's Kitchen
BY MARIE D'OLIMPIOLauren's Oat, Nut, Dried Fruit Cookie

It was a scrumptious Easter Sunday buffet at my daughter Suzie and husband Anthony's home, and of course with the beautiful weather, we could all eat outdoors.

The buffet was virtually a "soup to nuts" one from turkey, ham and many sides. And you would think there would be no room for dessert. But one of the desserts was the best cookie ever. If I'm going to eat a cookie, I happen to love a thick one. This one was the best and baked by my granddaughter Lauren.

It's also pretty healthy as there are no eggs or milk in this recipe, and Lauren used oat flour. But other flour can certainly be used. She also used dried cherries and pecans, but any dried fruit or nut will do.

Oat, Nut, Dried Fruit Cookie
1cup quick cooking rolled oats

¾ cup flour
1/3 cup brown sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
1-teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon sea salt
1/3-cup maple syrup
½ cup safflower oil
1-teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon molasses
¼ cup chopped pecans
¼ cup dried cherries

Preheat oven to 350 degrees.
Line a cookie sheet with parchment paper. In a bowl, mix the dry ingredients together. Combine all other ingredients in another bowl and blend the two together. Fold in the fruit and nuts and make a roll out of the dough. Make a tablespoon size of the dough for each one and then flatten each top slightly. Bake for 8 to 10 minutes until done.

Rabies Clinic Saturday At Animal Shelter

The Quincy Health Department will sponsor a Rabies Clinic Saturday, April 17 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Quincy Animal Shelter, 56 Broad St. (behind the George F. Bryan VFW Post and Father Bill's Place.)
Fee is $10 for dogs and cats.

Pet owners are asked to bring proof of rabies vaccination with the last year.

The clinic is for dogs and cats age 3 months and older.

Residents Fear Noise From New FR Bridge Construction

bridge was built in 1936 and the ACROW structure was completed in 2003. More than 30,000 vehicles cross the bridge daily.

"We can not put that community in the position it was in, in the past," said Gary Peters, the co-director of the Fore River Bridge Neighborhood Association.

Peters played a video of a television news feature of the noise problems that put North Weymouth neighborhoods under siege during MWRA work and construction of the Fore River power plant. The construction brought with it constant noise from pile drivers and other machinery that went past the hours work was supposed to take place.

Mass DOT Highway Division Project Manager Michael O'Dowd told Peters and the nearly 100 citizens who attended the informational meeting at the Fore River Club House that the residents' concerns would be taken into account before the bridge is built.

"I've been before you about six or seven times," O'Dowd said. "We're here. Mass DOT is here. We're not racing away."

The construction of the $250 million bridge is high up on the list under Governor Deval Patrick's Accelerated Bridge Program. Mass DOT believes a Vertical Lift Bridge would be a better alternative than a Bascule Bridge.

Mass Highway put in place a consultant team led by PTV Incorporated to provide a bridge study type and design plans along with a 25-percent design-build procurement package for the project.

PTV Vice-President Mark Pelletier told those in attendance that the project is in the early stages at the 10-percent level of design and a number of permits must still be acquired. The 25-percent level would be reached by the end of 2010. Pelletier went on to say the engineering firm would like to design a bridge that was aesthetically pleasing as well as practical for the location. "We don't want to show you a tower we can't build," he said.

The bridge would include four lanes for traffic along with a bicycle lane and pedestrian walkway on both sides of the structure. Traffic back-up would be reduced with a Vertical Lift Bridge because of the rapid 13-minute time frame it would be open to allow oil tankers into the Citgo Terminal port in East Braintree. The bridge would also be opened for recreational sailboats. Bridge construction is slated to begin in late 2010 or early 2011. It will have a design life of 75 years.

The original bridge, which was built in 1936, was a bascule-type structure. Serious deterioration was found in the late 1990s. The temporary structure over the Fore River was built in 2003 and the original bridge was demolished a year later.

Mass DOT met with Coast Guard officials who say a 250-foot wide channel under the bridge would make navigating vessels in and out of the Fore River Basin quicker and safer. Other factors include environmental impacts and the expense to tax payers.

The Vertical Lift Bridge is an easier bridge to maintain than the Bascule structures and more innovative construction can be used. The bridge would also be less affected by high winds and seismic events.

"The design seeks to minimize the number of required bridge openings by maximizing the number of required bridge openings by maximizing the available vertical clearance for the navigation channel without significant impacts to the rotary on the Quincy side of the bridge or the homes and businesses adjacent to the state highway layout line on the Weymouth side of the bridge," it said in the project package for citizens.

Weymouth Councilor Bob Connors said the overall look of the bridge is important to residents in North Weymouth, as well the times the bridge would be opened to allow oil tankers through. "Aesthetics are very important," Connors said. "For the people of Weymouth, it's very important. It's not the number of bridge openings, it's the time of the bridge openings."

State Rep. Ron Mariano said his office has been getting phone calls from citizens regarding the project.

"I was getting a lot of questions of the status of construction of the Fore River Bridge," he said. "The primary focus has been how do we reduce the numbers of openings without creating some sort of monstrosity."

Ward 1 Drug, Alcohol Abuse Awareness Night April 25

The Adams Shore Civic Organization, Merrymount Association, Houghs Neck Community Council and End Drug Abuse Now (EDAN) will host a Ward 1 Drug and Alcohol Abuse Awareness Night Sunday, April 25 from 5 to 7 p.m. at the Broad Meadows Middle School.

The night will feature testimonials from those who have been affected by this epidemic and information about drug and alcohol abuse.

This is a repeat program that was first presented in Houghs Neck last February to 275 people. The night is for the entire family with a supervised toddler playgroup, a supervised movie room for young adolescents and an awareness program suitable for fifth graders to adults.

There will be free pizza and raffle prizes.

Those attending will hear stories of mothers, fathers, brothers, sisters, EMTs, ER nurses who have been affected by drug and alcohol abuse.

"Please come and help us as we begin to understand how common and wide spread this problem is," said

HNCC President Brian Laroche. "Through awareness, we feel we can beat the odds and make sure that our community is not going to be another statewide statistic."

Laroche also said, "This is a case where 'an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.' Awareness costs the taxpayer little; the alternative of corrections, courts, police, treatment are very expensive. . . . Everyone in our community needs to work at this problem together."

For more information, contact Laroche at 617-786-1637.

21 FRANKLIN ST., QUINCY

Thank You, Henry Bosworth

I was quite fortunate having recently attended The Quincy Sun's Citizen of the Year Award presentation. The award was bestowed upon Henry Bosworth, the founder of The Quincy Sun.

Listening to so many people speaking so highly of him, it appears that back in 1968, he took courageous steps creating a local newspaper, serving Quincy exclusively, while contributing in his own special way toward a functioning community. He found that niche, the means to contribute, and served the community in his own unique way. I hung onto every word spoken on his behalf; it was inspirational to listen to it all.

Some 170 articles ago I approached Henry asking whether he could print three essays that I was anxious to share with the public on various fire prevention topics. He graciously agreed and thus began this column.

At the time, however, my focus was on those three articles and those articles only. There was no intent to obtain a bi-line or continue this written effort. Henry however, saw something I didn't see in myself and encouraged me to submit a photograph. That then followed with Henry suggesting that I submit whatever essays I deemed necessary for the welfare of the public. He was good enough to embrace the spirit of this effort and print what I submitted.

Many, many times, I've thought that the most recent article is my last. However, typically, something prompts me to write another hoping that spreading the word can help another individual or a family gain awareness and avoid the devastation of fire.

But doing so helps to satisfy my own needs as well. A fire inspector can implement code, enforce it and gain compliance. Afterwards, much remains out of his control. I recall having a landlord install up-to-date smoke and CO detectors. He did and the tenant had the batteries removed 2 days later. It can be infuriating and worrisome. We can't be everywhere, everyday. Therefore education becomes imperative to close the gap between, "It can't happen to me" to "In fact it can, but this is all I have to do to either prevent it, or prepare for it."

So I thank Henry for helping me find my own little niche, as I continue to thank Bob, his family and the rest of The Sun's staff for helping me attempt to help others through this column. It's been a genuine attempt at raising the fire safety consciousness of its readers, while assisting me accept what's out of my control.

Without Henry's foresight and commitment back in 1968, my efforts would never have come to fruition. His vision of service to the public has given me the opportunity to serve in my own way, to find my niche, while I'm quite grateful for the opportunity he afforded me.

Thank you Henry!

'The Age Of Innocence' Movie Screening April 22 At Crane Library

A free screening of the Academy Award-winning movie "The Age of Innocence" will be shown Thursday, April 22 at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

Daniel Day-Lewis and Michelle Pfeiffer star in a ravishing romance about three wealthy 1870s New Yorkers caught in a tragic love triangle, based on the classic novel by Edith Wharton.

Directed by Martin Scorsese, the 139-minute film released in 1993 is rated PG.

The screening is sponsored by the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library. For more information, call 617-376-1301.

Joseph Keegan Candidate For State Representative

Joseph P. Keegan announces his candidacy for state representative in the Second Norfolk District.

Keegan, a Democrat, is a homeowner and lives in Quincy with his wife Michelle (Sylvia) and their two young sons, Bobby, age 6, who attends Merrymount Elementary School, and Luke, age 4, who attends Cornerstone Campus, both in Quincy.

Keegan, 38, is a 1989 graduate of the Quincy Public School System. He served as a member of the United States Army, 18th Airborne Corps, as an infantryman during Operation Desert Shield and Operation Desert Storm. He was later awarded the Combat Infantry Badge for his service in Iraq and Kuwait.

After completing active duty, he enlisted in the Massachusetts National Guard as an infantryman. Before being promoted to sergeant, Keegan attended the Primary Leadership Development Course in Indian Town Gap, Pennsylvania, and graduated as the Honor Graduate. In 1999 he enlisted in the U.S. Army Reserves as a member of the Army JAG Unit. As a member of the JAG Unit, he attended Air Assault School, where he successfully completed and was awarded his "Wings," an award for having mastered the difficult maneuver of repelling from a hovering helicopter.

After leaving active duty service in the Army, Keegan enrolled in Quincy College and then transferred to UMass Boston, where he played college hockey. He took the police exam in 1993 and was hired by the MBTA Police in 1994. He attended the Boston Police Academy in 1994 and joined the Quincy Police in 1996, serving nearly eight years. He attended and graduated from Curry College in 1997 with a Bachelor of Arts in Criminal Justice.

JOSEPH KEEGAN

During his time with the Quincy Police he was awarded a City Council Commendation for having saved a woman from drowning in Quincy Bay. Keegan left the Quincy Police voluntarily, without retiring, to pursue his legal career in 2004.

In 2003 he graduated from the New England School of Law. He is a founding member of the law firm Keegan and Flanagan LLP headquartered in Quincy and also has an office in Boston on State Street. Joe serves as the managing partner in the firm, which employs four attorneys as a well as a support staff.

Keegan said the major issues facing citizens are the economy, public safety, and taxes.

"As a business owner, I face budget issues on a daily basis. I have helped my business grow even in these tough economic times. The way that I have been able to do that is through hard work and innovation.

"I am eager to bring my vast life experiences and strong work ethic to Beacon Hill and find solutions to the problems facing our city."

Joe maintains that the way to get through this recession is job growth. He also fervently believes that a part of the solution is to hold the line on taxes.

"One of the worst things to do in a recession is to raise taxes, which nearly guarantees to prolong a recession and could potentially make it worse. With an unemployment rate hovering around ten percent, it is essential to get people back to work. I believe the way to do that is by cutting spending, making smart and well-informed investments, innovative thinking and entrepreneurialism."

Regarding public safety concerns, Keegan said, "We need the expertise of the people on Beacon Hill to help us to solve these issues and ensure our safety. I have many years of experience fighting crime and will bring my experience with me to help ensure that Quincy is a safe city to live and raise our families. I am resolute and steadfast in my desire to see that Quincy continually evolves in positive ways for the residents of this city. The State needs to do its part by ensuring that our city receives necessary local aid so that our schools can excel in providing for our children so that we can maintain adequate staffing in our police and fire departments and proper funding for the maintenance of our streets and roadways.

Keegan said he enjoys spending time with his family and he participates in many of the neighborhood's festivities. He is a youth hockey coach and former assistant hockey coach of the Quincy High School Boys Hockey Team.

Keegan is also a member of the George Bryan VFW Post in Quincy and the American Legion Post in Houghs Neck.

An avid runner, he plans to run the Boston Marathon April 19th for the 12th time.

The Committee to Elect Joe Keegan will hold a "Campaign Kickoff" Thursday, April 29, from 6-8 p.m. at the Commonwealth Restaurant (Formerly Pat Flanagan's) at 79 Parkway in Quincy.

The suggested donation is $20.

Coffee Break Café: The Perfect Escape

Coffee Break Café in Quincy Center is the perfect escape from the revitalization madness of Quincy Center. Located at 77 Parkway, it runs parallel to Hancock Street, bypassing the congestion. There is always parking, and almost always a comfy seat. There are a few outdoor seats and a bench in front of an herb garden (during the season of course). Most of CBC's staff has been there for a very long time and quickly remember faces and drink orders so you will quickly become a member of Coffee Break's family. Coffee Break purchases all of its baked goods from a local bakery in Quincy and the bagels are from Finagle a Bagel in Boston. CBC recycles, composts and purchases everything locally, organic and fair trade wherever possible. As a company we provide 50 plus jobs at any given time, offer health insurance, and passionately contribute to the community.

Coffee Break is quickly becoming known for its homemade cream cheeses. Check out spinach and artichoke, buffalo chicken (seasonal), garlic and herb, chive and onion, black olive and feta, and veggie made with real veggies.

If none of this matters, and you just want a darn good cup of coffee, Coffee Break is the place for you.

Coffee Break Café has convenient locations at: 77 Parkway, Quincy Center, 617-786-8888; 12 Old Colony Ave., Wollaston, 617-773-9420; 254 Atlantic St., N. Quincy, 617-328-8090; 131 Pearl St., Braintree, 781-849-9433. The CBC website is www.coffeebreakcafe.net

Pier Plan Draws Criticism From Boaters, History Buffs

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Councillors, boaters and history buffs Monday forecast major problems with the Park Department's agreement to share waterfront property off Southern Artery with Thayer Academy.

Boaters estimated that the city could lose considerable tax income from businesses along Town River and create a dangerous situation in the waterway for crew teams, while history buffs cited the potential tourist value of the Souther Tide Mill.

At the same meeting of the Library and Historic Places Committee, councillors challenged the legality of the agreement and the absence of a master plan for the entire property which includes Souther Tide Mill and a commercial fishing area.

Not all committee members challenged the Thayer Academy plan.

Ward 6 Councillor Brian McNamee described the waterfront area as dangerous, attracting homeless and addicted and said it's been called, "Needle Park" and "the Bum's Shangri La."

McNamee supported the project, "I think this is a good deal for the city."

However, other speakers charged there had been no public input from the public or interested parties during the negotiations.

Finally, all agreed that the Thayer agreements will be moot if the Department of Environmental Protection maintains the area is a "Designated Port Area" or DPA where crew teams could not operate.

The agreement allows the Thayer Academy crew program permanent access rights to the city's waterfront property off Southern Artery in exchange for $250,000 in site improvements and construction of a pier for sculls, boats and canoe, as well as establishing a rowing program for Quincy High School students.

At the outset of Monday's meeting, City Solicitor James Timmins agreed to submit the Memo of Understanding between the Park Department and Thayer Academy to a third party, the Inspector General's office, for review at Committee Chairman Joseph Finn's request.

"We could go back and forth on this," said Finn before asking for outside review. He likened the pact to the Native American's barter of Manhattan with the Dutch settlers and concluded, "And the Dutch said, 'What a deal.'"

Timmins described the pact as simply a licensing agreement, not subject to state law regarding public property. "We didn't convey interest in real property."

Finn maintained the city was granting an "irrevocable usage right that runs with the property. For all intents and purposes, it is irrevocable."

Finn believes the agreement on the property should adhere to the state's Chapter 30B which requires an appraisal, a notice of intent and an advertised Request for Proposals.

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi asked that the agreement be "suspended or vacated for the time being" so that all the "stakeholders can sit down, discuss all these aspects and develop a master plan for the entire property."

"We have three different components that have to work together," said Raymondi, describing the Souther Tide Mill, the waterfront in the middle and the commercial element.

"Who's putting it all together?" asked Raymondi, later noting, "We need to start planning today."

Committee members voted to allow observers to speak on the issue and the first was John Stewart of Edgewater Drive who warned that the pact will affect the nearby properties valued at $40 million.

John Iredale Candidate For State Representative

John Iredale, a community activist and small business owner, announces his candidacy for state representative in the Second Norfolk District.

Iredale, 53, a Republican, is running for the legislative seat currently held by Rep. A. Stephen Tobin. This is his first campaign for elective office.

"I'm not a professional politician - I'm just an average citizen, taxpayer and small business owner who's had enough of the 'business as usual' mentality on Beacon Hill," Iredale said. "And I think a lot of other voters have had enough, too."

"It's time to restore accountability and fiscal responsibility to the State House," he continued. "As a business owner, I'll bring a practical, common sense approach to Beacon Hill and work to promote policies that will get our economy moving again."

Iredale is president of The Karsten Company, a construction company he founded 23 years ago out of the basement of his home in Houghs Neck. In the past two decades, the company has been involved in thousands of construction projects in all major sectors of the economy, including education, health care, retail, manufacturing and residential.

And, like many Massachusetts residents, Iredale said his business has suffered during the current economic recession.

JOHN IREDALE

conomic recession.

"I had 17 people working with me and now we're down to five, so I know firsthand how this economy has hurt working families," said Iredale. "And the policies currently being promoted on Beacon Hill aren't helping."

If elected, Iredale said he would fight to cut government spending and reduce taxes.

"In the real world, when businesses or families have financial difficulties, they have to cut spending and tighten their belts a bit," Iredale said. "But at the State House, their answer to every fiscal crisis is to hire more government workers and raise taxes and fees, like when they raised the sales tax 25 percent last year. That just hurt families and small businesses at a time when they were already struggling."

To help jumpstart the Massachusetts economy, Iredale said he supports reducing the overall size of state government and reforming the current pension system that allows some public employees to retire in their fifties with six-figure pensions and overly generous benefits packages.

"Simply put, Beacon Hill has put Massachusetts on a financial path that is unsustainable and will likely lead to even greater economic disaster," he said.

Iredale said he plans to run an old-fashioned, grassroots campaign focused on knocking on doors and making his case to Quincy voters in person, one voter at a time.

"I'm running for state rep. to be a voice for the average citizen," he said, "and in the coming months I'm going to be out there every day, working hard to introduce myself to Quincy voters and to earn their trust."

A Pennsylvania native, Iredale helped pay his way through the University of Delaware with the earnings he made from a small painting company he started while still in high school. He moved to Quincy in 1984 and founded The Karsten Company in 1987.

A longtime community activist, he has served as a coach for both Quincy Youth Baseball and Quincy Youth Soccer, for which he served on the board of directors. He also served on the board of directors for St. Chrysostom's Church in Wollaston. In 2009, he received the Hough's Neck Community Council's Good Neighbor Award.

Iredale is married to Tina Iredale, a reading teacher at the Montclair Elementary School. They are the parents of one son, Christopher, a junior at Skidmore College.

Academic Associates READING TEACHER

What should I do to get my child on track in reading?

Leading educators agree that students who can't read well by third grade are severely handicapped for the rest of their lives. In fact, by the end of first grade every child should be able to read nearly every word in our language. At Academic Associates students typically become excellent readers in only 30 - 60 hours and read on or above grade level in that short time. Our method is a simple, effective, natural method that works with the brain rather than against it. From years of experience we know there is only one reading method that works every time, with every student. No other method even comes close. If a child in your family needs to read better call today and give them the skill they so desperately need.

Insurance STRATEGIES
by Jim Sullivan
ARE YOU PAYING TOO MUCH FOR AUTO INSURANCE?
Is your home located near a river or other source of water? We've all seen news reports of flooding problems during winter or spring storms. Enjoy peace of mind by having the right type of insurance based on the location of your home. Please call JAMES J. SULLIVAN INSURANCE AGENCY at 617-328-8600 to learn about our policies for homes, condos, and rental apartments. We have served the North Quincy community for 53 years and look forward to addressing your insurance questions. Our office is located at 151 Hancock Street. Smarter Choice! Smarter Move!
When homeowners suffer damage to their homes caused by water, they can tell if they are covered by tracing the water's source. For the most part, homeowner's and renter's policies typically cover water damage that comes from above such as a rainfall, a burst pipe, or an ice dam. However, most policies do not cover damage resulting from rising water from any source. The National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP) provides eligible homeowners with the opportunity to purchase federally sponsored flood insurance coverage. The average policy costs $540 a year. As far as damage resulting from a drain or sewer backup, it is usually possible to purchase a rider to a homeowner's policy that provides coverage.
NOTE: The Insurance Information Institute reports that water damage accounted for about 20 percent of all insurance claims during the most recent year for which statistics are available.

Girl Scouts Honored For Leadership, Service

City Council recently commended Girl Scout Leader Michelle Theberge and six local scouts for community service projects ranging from a salt marsh cleanup to improving literacy and aiding underprivileged babies and tots.

"They are leaders of their peers," said City Council President Kevin Coughlin before introducing Theberge and four of the six Girl Scouts. There are currently 31 troops and 350 Girl Scouts in the City of Quincy.

Councillors recognized Theberge for her six years' service as a scout leader and five years on the Scouts' Service Team and cited her work organizing and completing last September's clean-up and restoration of the Salt Marsh Nature Trail at Soldiers' Home Cemetery.

Last September, Theberge and her team worked with 60 Girl Scouts, Cub Scouts and other volunteers to restore and clean up the Quincy Salt Marsh Nature Trail at Soldiers' Home Cemetery.

On hand for the ceremony were Girl Scouts Silver Award recipients Megan Morrill, and Joanna McGroarty, both 16 and members of Troop 74203. Megan was cited for her work promoting unity in her church community. Joanna was honored for her crocheting project through which she taught others to crochet and donated baby hats and small baby blankets to St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

Recipients of the Girls Scouts' Bronze Awards Ashleigh Wilson, 13, Troop and Lauren Lo, 11, also received commendations. Both are members of Troop 74109.

Ashleigh acquired donated fleece, then organized "blanket-making" parties at her home. Through her efforts, the Scouts completed and donated 31 blankets. Lauren planned and hosted a large baby showers for Cradles 2 Crayons.

Also honored were Girl Scout Silver Award recipients Shannon Leary, 16, and Catherine Ashur, 16, who were not able to attend the council session. Both are members of Troop 74203.

Shannon's project promoted literacy awareness for teenagers. The project donated 365 books for a holiday give drive and another 965 books for a reading room at one of Project Hope's Transitional Housing facilities.

City, Teachers At Impasse

passe, Paul Phillips, the president of the Quincy Education Association, said, "The QEA wants Quincy's citizens to know that we have made a bona fide offer to the city that would save Quincy millions of dollars over the next two years. To this point," Phillips said, "the city has chosen to refuse our offer. We are still hopeful that an agreement can be reached."

The contract for the roughly 900-member QEA calls for a four percent rate increase to take effect Sept. 1, costing a total of $2.3 million. That increase does not include contract raises many teachers will receive for years of service and education levels, which will total another $2.5 million in the fiscal year beginning July 1.

The total $4.8 million increase will raise the average teacher salary by $5,400, according to city officials. Roughly 200 teachers will receive more than 15 percent pay hikes in the upcoming year, officials said. Human Resources Director Stephen McGrath acknowledged that the union's negotiating team informed him that it would not bring the city's proposal to its full membership for a formal vote.

Phillips told The Sun that scenario is still under consideration.

According to the mayor's office, the pay increases for teachers amount to a major part of the overall $12 million deficit faced by the administration as it works through a budget plan that will be delivered to the City Council May 3.

Koch is planning a series of nine community meetings across the city in coming weeks to detail the city's financial situation for residents, answer questions, and distribute a first-of-its-kind financial report. For a schedule of meetings, residents can visit www.quincymag.org.

Koch said the administration's negotiating team is continuing to work with all other city unions on wage deferrals, but acknowledged that the teachers' decision will make those talks tougher. Especially, he said, because most other unions accepted a wage deferral last year that the teachers union has now rejected twice.

the value of property," said Stewart.

Those properties bring the city some $1.2 million in taxes, according to Stewart who said, he knocked on doors and "No one was notified," prior to the signing of the Memo of Understanding.

"They would all look forward to being part of a discussion," said Stewart.

Not only could the city impact the boating community but the city would also lose Homeland Security funding if the DPA designation is lifted, according to John Fagerland, a member of Town River Yacht Club.

Steve Beckwith described the 50 to 60 junior sailors who learn sailing at the Town River Yacht Club and said 1000 boats traverse the area at times.

At the meeting's conclusion, Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest sought a report on the city's work on the Souther Tide Mill after the recent storms.

□

BIKE THEFT PREVENTION: Consider engraving your last name and a driver's license number in an obvious place, such as the straddle bar. Since many stolen bicycles are used for temporary transportation, Police Departments recover many bicycles but are unable to locate an owner, often because the bicycle was stolen in another town or was not reported stolen. Do not put your social security number on the bicycle - use a driver's license number, which is easily traced back to the owner.

A Job Well Done

On Saturday, April 3, at approximately 1:18 a.m., Officer Ken Wood and Sergeant Mark Kennedy were dispatched to Rodman Street for a report of a woman breaking a window at that house.

Sergeant Kennedy arrived on scene and learned that the female suspect fled the area in the direction of Centre Street. Officer Wood, after a brief search, followed by a short foot chase, apprehended the suspect behind a house on Trafford Street. The suspect said that she had an argument with her boyfriend, but nothing else occurred. She denied breaking any windows or causing any other physical damage. When asked why she ran, the suspect could not give a reason. After interviewing the victim and a witness, Sergeant Kennedy met with Officer Wood to inform him that the suspect had damaged the front door.

LT. DAN MINTON

The suspect became excited and was screaming, "Fine - I did it - I broke the window - but he #$$%^@ deserved it." The suspect was handcuffed and placed into a cruiser. Officer Wood interviewed the victim and was shown a storm glass door, shattered by a large rock. The victim said that he and the suspect (his girlfriend) went out drinking until about 11:00 P.M., when the victim told the suspect that he had enough and was going home. The suspect initiated a verbal argument, walked away and got into a car with an unknown male.

The victim went home, fell asleep but was awakened at 1 a.m. by banging on the back door. The victim opened the door, to find the suspect with a brick in her hand. After letting her in, another verbal argument ensued and he was able to get her to leave briefly. The suspect then started screaming as she banged on the back door, the bedroom window and kicked the front door. The victim then heard the storm door window break and he called "911" to report the incident. When told that the Police were on the way, the suspect fled.

The victim was informed of his rights under the domestic violence laws and was offered a restraining order, but he said that he was not in fear of the victim. The suspect was transported to the station and booked on the charge of "Malicious destruction of property over $250." Photos of the door were taken as evidence.

At approximately 5:18 a.m., Officer Wood and Officer Ron McKim were again dispatched to the same Rodman Street address on a call of "unwanted girlfriend." Upon arrival, it was learned that the suspect fled the area. Officer Wood again spoke with the same victim, who stated that he went to the Quincy Police Station and bailed out his girlfriend at 3 a.m. and brought her back to his apartment.

The suspect promised the victim that she would be good and sleep on the couch. Once in the apartment, the suspect started yelling at the victim for having her arrested. At approximately 5 a.m., the suspect began trashing the apartment, throwing the microwave on the ground, smashing a coffee pot and over-turning the coffee table. The victim attempted to stop her, but she responded by punching and scratching him. At this point, the victim got her out of the apartment and called "911" again.

The apartment was in disarray and the victim had fresh scratches on the left side of his neck, with a welt on his left cheek. He did not have a shirt on and there were more scratches and welts on his chest. On the first visit, the apartment was clean and the victim was unharmed. Officer McKim located the suspect at the Quincy Adams Train Station and asked her what happened.

She stated, "I don't know what you're talking about." When told about the physical damage and assault to her boyfriend, the suspect said she did it because he had her arrested.

The suspect was arrested again and during the ride to the station, she told the officer, "I can't wait to get you @#$$%^&* name - you're going to catch a @#$$%^&* bullet for this." The suspect was advised that the statement is a criminal offense of "Intimidation of a Police Officer", to which she stated, "I don't give a @#$$%."

Officer McKim returned to the apartment to take photos of the damage. The victim then became agitated and stated he did not want pictures taken of his apartment or him, and no longer wanted to press charges. He only wanted the suspect to stay away.

Advised again of his protection rights under the domestic violence law, he reiterated that he did not wish to seek a restraining order and refused literature on his rights.

The suspect, a 30 year old Quincy resident, was charged with "Assault & Battery (domestic) and Intimidation of a Police Officer." Nice work!

A RECENT EXHIBIT at North Quincy High School featured the photography of more than 100 students, including this image created by Leah Glennon. The exhibit was viewed by nearly 600 students and parents.

THIS IMAGE of the coin on the ground was photographed by North Quincy High School photography student Juliette Callahan.

NQHS Photography Students See Life Through Many Lenses

600 Students, Parents Attend Exhibit Featuring The Talent, Skills Of More Than 100 Students

By JOE REARDON

The photo evokes sadness, loneliness and melancholy, the woman with her head lowered, silhouetted against a grey winter sky.

Titled "Waiting," the photo was taken by North Quincy High senior Leah Glennon at the Hingham Cemetery this past winter. Glennon, who is looking to double major in graphic design and photography at Northeastern, especially liked the haunting photo because of the various emotions it conjures up.

"It has a bleak feeling to it," said Glennon, who also drew notice from Boston University and the Museum of Fine Arts School with her provocative work. "My photos aren't portraits and they're not landscapes. I like to capture regular things in an interesting way."

Glennon's "Waiting" photo was in direct contrast to her bright Sunflower piece. The photo is one of the favorites because those who view it are drawn to the large off-centered flower before any of the others.

She also had a unique photo on display of different colored hay bales in the background with a rowboat and dock in the foreground. She kept the color on the hay bales and made the rest of the photo black and white, to accentuate the color even more.

Glennon's photos were just a few of the dozens on display at last Thursday's open exhibit of the school's more than 100 photography students. Nearly 600 students and parents viewed the array of photos, slide shows, book and CD covers, and websites that Michael Hanson's students have made during the school year.

Hanson, a 1998 graduate of North Quincy High, pointed squarely at Glennon as one of the enormous talents in the photography program. "You give someone like Leah a very loose framework to work with and she comes back with exceptional stuff," he said. "The seed has already been planted and she's taken off."

The photography program has become the most popular at the school with six classes. The worst part of Hanson's job is having to turn students away because of the large numbers of kids signing up.

As a teacher, though, the positives are very fulfilling. "The best part is that you see such a variety of work and how they express themselves," he said. "You're watching a whole world opening up to them. It's really an incredible process. You want to give the kids 45 minutes where they're having fun.

"They make it easy for me. They're the best. The kids are extremely talented. They're phenomenal. They're very driven."

Glennon believes the key to being a great photographer is a combination of talent and luck. "I think being in the right place at the right time is part of it," she said.

Hanson said the parents are extremely supportive of the program and that many showed up to view the exhibit during the day. "The parents are great," he said. "They love it. One parent said he likes seeing how the kids are learning on a different level."

Sophomore Juliette Callahan was drawn to the program because it allows her to express her personality. "I like how you can use your imagination and your own perspective," said Callahan.

Callahan's favorite piece is of an old coin she found on the ground. It wasn't shiny, but dull with dirt on it. She thought the coins detail would look unique photographed up close.

"I saw a really old coin on the ground and it had dirt and leaves," she said. "It had a lot of texture."

Taylor Dickey's piece was also receiving positive comments on its unique look. The sophomore took a photo of an electric guitar when her friend was playing it. The view is from the very end of the neck, down to the body of the instrument. The angle Dickey shot at makes the strings look as though they're far longer than they actually are.

"I like the freedom of taking a photo and making it look cool," said Dickey.

Freshman Emma Murphy took the advice of her older sister Jordan, who took Hanson's class, and immediately fell in love with the freedom of expressing her ideas through a camera.

"My sister took the class and that made me want to take it," she said. "I'd be her model for her portrait projects."

Murphy's specialty is "macro" photography, otherwise known as extreme close ups. One piece she had on display was of her sister Julia holding a fluorescent softball. Murphy lay on her back and took the shot with Julia gripping the ball by her side. The color of the ball presents a stark contrast to the blue sky.

Murphy decided to move the shot in order to keep the trees out of the background. "I took the photo in the middle of the street because I didn't want to get any trees in the way," she said.

She also has several photos taken on Boston Common during the winter and provocative photos of a bench in front of the high school. Murphy said she is pleased with the work but is never truly satisfied and is looking to improve her skills with the camera. "Everyone's their own hardest critic," she said.

Remembering World War II Hero Marine Pfc. William R. Caddy

THE CADDY DETACHMENT Marine Corps League held a 65th anniversary observance in memory of Marine Pfc. William R. Caddy Sunday at Caddy Memorial Park, Quincy Shore Drive. Caddy, who was killed in action against Japanese forces during the seizure of Iwo Jima in World War II on March 3, 1945, received the Congressional Medal of Honor posthumously. Above, Master of Ceremony Marc Connolly, along with the Caddy Detachment and Morrisette American Legion Post Color Guards present arms during the playing of taps at the conclusion of the memorial service.

VETERANS, CITY OFFICIALS, FAMILY, friends and local citizens gather at Caddy Memorial Park on Quincy Shore Drive in solemn remembrance of Marine Pfc. William R. Caddy who died March 3, 1945 during World War II. In the foreground are Donald Sharp, commandant of the William R. Caddy Detachment, and Sherri Holleran, niece of William R. Caddy, a Medal of Honor recipient. In 1946, local Marines from Quincy and some members from the old South Shore Detachment, created a new Marine Corps League Detachment in Quincy. The Marines named the new detachment for Caddy, who attended North Quincy High School prior to joining the Marines at the age of 19. Pfc. Caddy was assigned to the 5th Marine Division and was presented the Medal of Honor posthumously for his heroic actions against Japanese Forces on Iwo Jima. In the early 1960s, detachment member James R. McIntyre, then a state representative from Quincy, was instrumental in getting legislation passed that renamed Treasure Island Park, a local recreation area on Quincy Shore Drive, in honor of Pfc. Caddy. The park was officially dedicated the Pfc. William R. Caddy Memorial Park in October, 1963. Participating in the dedication parade was General Rockne, the Commanding General of the 5th Marine Division during the Battle of Iwo Jima.

Recliner Woes

Q: My grandson wrote all over the back of my leather recliner chair with a pen. I've tried everything I can think of to get the ink off. Do you have any suggestions for cleaning the chair? Thanks - Lily M., Willard, Ohio

A: Most leather recliners have cleaning instructions from the manufacturer that recommend only wiping down the surface with a mild solution of soap and water. Ink can be a particularly nasty problem, though, and it's not an uncommon one, either. Just ask my mother.

You've probably tried the first solution, wiping down with soap and water. Avoid attempting home remedies from this point, as putting mineral oil (baby oil) or vinegar onto the surface is not recommended.

The cleaning section of your home-improvement store or supermarket should have some upholstery cleaning products. Look for spot cleaners that are specifically for leather upholstery. Before using the cleaner on the chair, test it in an inconspicuous area to make sure it won't stain, bleach out or otherwise damage the leather. Then, work on small sections of the inked-up area at a time, following the directions on the cleaner bottle.

If cleaning remedies don't work, contact the chair's manufacturer for additional information. There may be another method to try. If not, replacing the back piece of upholstery on the chair may be an option. Again, check with the manufacturer about this possibility, and pricing (or the name of a repair service in your area).

HOME TIP: Leather furniture can be maintained by vacuuming under the cushions and base, and wiping down the surface with a damp cloth.

Protect Your Family From Carbon Monoxide

(NAPSA)-When people think of unintentional poisonings, the toxic products stashed under the kitchen sink often come to mind. But there is one life-threatening poison that parents may not think about-carbon monoxide (CO).

Carbon monoxide is the leading cause of accidental poisoning deaths in America, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), claiming 400 lives and injuring another 20,000 each year.

Colorless, odorless and tasteless, it is often called "the Silent Killer." The most common symptoms of CO poisoning are headache, nausea and dizziness. Since these symptoms are similar to those of the flu, CO poisoning may be dismissed as a virus. Unfortunately, the consequences of doing so may be tragic.

"Young children are especially vulnerable to the effects of CO. Due to their smaller bodies, children process CO differently than adults and may be more severely affected by carbon monoxide in their blood," said Alan Korn, executive director for Safe Kids USA.

CDC reports show that from 2004 to 2006, children age 5 and younger had the highest estimated rate of CO-related emergency department visits among all age groups.

Common household appliances, such as a furnace or water heater, are potential CO poisoning sources. When these or other fuel-burning devices malfunction or are used improperly, carbon monoxide can quickly build up inside a home, causing injury or even death.

So how can families be sure the silent killer isn't lurking in their home? Install a carbon monoxide alarm. It's the only safe way to detect this poisonous gas.

In fact, many state leaders have recognized the importance of having a working carbon monoxide alarm. Currently, 24 states require CO alarms in certain residences. In addition, families can take these simple steps to reduce the chance of having a CO incident:

- Install a carbon monoxide alarm outside every sleeping area and on every level of your home.

- Place CO alarms at least 15 feet away from fuel-burning appliances to reduce nuisance alarms.

- Test alarms each month and replace them every seven years.

- Have all gas-, oil- or coal-burning appliances inspected by a technician every year to ensure they are working properly.

- Never use a stove to heat your home.

- Do not use a grill, generator or camping stove inside your home or garage or near a window.

- Never leave a car, SUV or motorcycle engine running inside a garage, even if the garage door is open.

State/Federal Aid May Help Uninsured, Underinsured Flood Damage

If the recent March flooding did more damage to your personal or business property than your insurance will cover, or if you had no insurance at all, don't panic; you may be eligible for a variety of state and federal disaster aid programs.

As recovery efforts continue, many residents in the seven disaster-declared counties are discovering that the cost of cleanup and repair may be more than they originally estimated. Insurance settlements may not cover all the repair costs or provide for damaged contents, and homeowners insurance doesn't cover floods.

By registering with FEMA, applicants with insurance preserve the option to talk to FEMA about possible assistance if coverage shortfalls occur when claims are settled.

To keep your potential state-federal assistance options open, recovery specialists recommend a simple action plan:

- If you have insurance call your insurance provider to start the claim process;

- Call FEMA toll-free at 800-621-FEMA (3362). Those with speech or hearing impairment may call TTY 800-462-7585 to apply from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily until further notice. Multi-lingual assistance is available. For online registration, go to www.DisasterAssistance.gov; and

- If your insurance claim was denied or some damages were not covered, notify FEMA to update your application. Choose the Helpline option at the toll-free registration number and request FEMA review the application to determine if some form of aid is possible.

Available disaster aid includes financial assistance to pay for temporary housing, emergency repairs or rebuilding, rental costs, and individual and household grants to cover serious unmet needs. Low-interest disaster loans are available from the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) for uninsured damages to homes, personal property, and businesses.

Registered applicants can talk face-to-face with FEMA recovery specialists at any of the five Disaster Recovery Centers (DRCs) currently operating in Eastern and Central Massachusetts about any disaster-related issue. At the DRCs, SBA representatives are on-hand to answer questions about SBA's disaster loan program; help complete SBA disaster loan applications and accept completed disaster loan applications.

The seven federally declared counties are Bristol, Essex, Middlesex, Norfolk, Plymouth, Suffolk and Worcester counties. Quincy is located in Norfolk County.

Mold Can Be A Serious Health Problem For Flood Victims

Mold in a damaged home can create serious health problems for residents following the severe storms and flooding in March, warn Commonwealth/ FEMA officials overseeing the Massachusetts recovery effort.

Mold flourishes in moist environments in water-damaged homes. Mold often appears as a fuzzy growth or a discoloration of surfaces, and may be accompanied by a musty, earthy odor or a foul stench. Residents are advised to use care when cleaning up the mold.

Hazards Of

Mold Infestation

Do not spend time in houses with mold. Nasal stuffiness, throat irritation, coughing or wheezing, eye irritation, or, in some cases, skin irritation may occur. People with mold allergies may have more severe reactions. Immune-compromised people and people with chronic lung illnesses, such as obstructive lung disease, may get serious infections in their lungs when they are exposed to mold. These people should stay away from areas that are likely to have mold.

Recommended Actions

Use fans at open windows or doors to dry a flooded residence, but be sure they blow outward, not inward, to avoid spreading the mold.

Accelerate the drying process by using a dehumidifier to extract moisture from the air and the contents of your home.

Do not use an air conditioning system until it has been checked by a professional. Using a system contaminated by mold will spread the mold throughout the house. Instead, open windows and doors to provide fresh air.

Discard porous materials such as carpet, mattresses, upholstered furniture insulation and ceiling tiles which are infected by mold. Wallboard, drywall and particle board are also porous and should be discarded. Workers should wear masks, pro-TECTIVE eyewear and non-porous gloves while handling anything that is suspected of containing mold.

If the area to be cleaned is more than 10 square feet, consult the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

Immediate actions the homeowner can take include:

- Clean the area to remove, as much as possible, the mold and the material on which it is growing;
- Clean with a non-ammonia detergent in hot water;
- Scrub the entire area affected by the moisture;
- Use a stiff brush or cleaning pad on block walls or uneven surfaces;
- Rinse the area with clean water;
- Thoroughly dry the area as quickly as possible;
- Repeat cleaning as necessary to remove mold;
- Disinfect with a 10% bleach solution (1 cup of bleach to 1 gallon of water), by applying a thin coat of bleach solution to the entire area, ensuring that the entire area is cleaned, not just the area where the moisture problem occurred. Use a sprayer or a sponge to apply the solution liberally, but avoid excessive amounts of runoff or standing pools;

• Allow the area to dry naturally. Drying time is important for the disinfectant to be effective at killing mold and bacteria; and

• WARNING! Never mix bleach and ammonia. The fumes are toxic!

For more information on mold or mold clean-up, visit the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) website at <http://www.cdc.gov/mold/cleanup.htm>. For more information on Massachusetts disaster recovery, visit www.DisasterAssistance.gov or www.mass.gov.

St. Mary School Students Going Green, Earning Cash For Their Trash

St. Mary School in Quincy is collecting the waste wrappers from their lunch (such as juice pouches and chip bags) and sending them to TerraCycle which pays the school two cents for each piece they send in.

TerraCycle, in turn, uses the waste wrappers to make new products including backpacks, lunch boxes and pencil cases.

The program has been very successful at the school because the kids love how easy it is for them to be more eco-friendly and they get excited when they can bring a lunch box to school made out of the same juice pouches they drink with their lunch.

"The children are very enthusiastic about this great recycling program so we signed up," said Maria Baylis, program coordinator for St. Mary School. "To see the look on the children's faces when they see how many juice bags they have collected and all the great products that are made from them. They truly feel like they are making a difference."

St. Mary School is part of a free, nationwide program called the "Brigades" that pays schools and non-profits to collect non-recyclable waste that would otherwise go to a landfill.

TerraCycle uses waste material to make a wide range of products like Seed Starter kits made from yogurt cups and pencil cases made from drink pouches. During April, Walmart is selling TerraCycle's "Up-cycled" products next to the original items. This will help educate consumers about resource conservation and drive participation in TerraCycle's program.

Treating The Pain Of Gout Flares

(NAPSA) - If you ever suffer from gout, you'll know that the disease is characterized by sudden, intense, burning pain as well as swelling, redness, warmth and joint stiffness, most often in the big toe. Gout sufferers usually experience pain from two sources: the formation of uric acid crystals inside the joint that cause pain when the joint is moved; and inflammation of tissues around the joint, which often causes the skin to be swollen, tender and sore at even the slightest touch. In fact, for some patients, a blanket or a light sheet draped over the affected area can cause excruciating pain.

Gout Treatments

Dietary changes, including avoiding protein-rich foods such as meat and shellfish and limiting alcohol intake, can be helpful to reduce the occurrence of gout attacks. Sometimes, your doctor may feel that prescription drugs are necessary to relieve the pain of gout flares and prevent future attacks. So how do you know what treatment is best? Your doctor will be aware of the various treatment options that exist for gout. Current prescription treatments include medicines that can relieve or prevent gout flares and drugs that lower the body's uric acid levels (high levels are known to cause gout attacks). While your doctor is the best judge of the right treatments for you, options include:

- Colchicine: The fact that colchicine has been a cornerstone of gout treatment for hundreds of years is testament to its effectiveness. High doses, however, can be toxic. A new form of colchicine, known as COLCRYS(r) (colchicine, USP), was recently approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) for the prevention and treatment of acute gout flares. COLCRYS marks a major improvement over older forms of colchicine that never received FDA approval. COLCRYS was evaluated in clinical trials and was shown to be effective at relieving acute gout flares within a 24-hour period with significantly fewer side effects than unapproved, high-dose colchicine regimens.

- NSAIDs (nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory drugs): NSAIDs help control inflammation and pain. NSAIDs such as ibuprofen are available over the counter. Aspirin is not indicated for gout, as it may raise the level of uric acid in your blood.

- Corticosteroids: These drugs may provide rapid relief of gout symptoms and may be given intravenously, orally or as an injection. Corticosteroids are often used in patients who cannot take colchicine or NSAIDs and are usually prescribed only for a short time.

Other medications may be prescribed by your doctor to keep gout attacks at bay. Uric acid-lowering (UAL) agents, for instance, are often prescribed as a preventive treatment for gout. These treatments control the buildup of uric acid levels in your blood.

Side Effects Of Gout Drugs

It is important to always alert your doctor to any side effects you may be experiencing with your current treatments. Keep in mind that no treatments are without side effects. Gastrointestinal conditions such as stomachache, vomiting and diarrhea are possible with NSAIDs and colchicine. Uric acid-lowering agents such as allopurinol may lower blood cell counts and cause drowsiness. Probenecid, a drug that helps the body eliminate uric acid, may cause stomachache, headache or sore gums. You may experience other side effects, depending on your treatment regimen.

Important Safety Information: COLCRYS (colchicine, USP) tablets are indicated for the prophylaxis and treatment of acute gout flares in adults.

COLCRYS is contraindicated in patients with renal or hepatic impairment who are concurrently prescribed P-gp inhibitors or strong inhibitors of CYP3A4, as life-threatening or fatal toxicity has been reported. The most common adverse events in clinical trials for the prophylaxis and treatment of gout were diarrhea and pharyngolaryngeal pain. Rarely, myelosuppression, thrombocytopenia and leukopenia have been reported in patients taking colchicine. Rhabdomyolysis has been occasionally observed, especially when colchicine is prescribed in combination with other drugs known to cause this effect. Monitoring is recommended for patients with a history of blood dyscrasias or rhabdomyolysis.

You are encouraged to report negative side effects of prescription drugs to the FDA. Visit www.fda.gov/medwatch or call (800) FDA-1088.

Orthopedic Surgeon George Whitelaw Receives Annual Award
Milton Hospital Doctor Honored
For Physician Excellence

Milton Hospital, a clinical affiliate of Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center, announces George Whitelaw, M.D., has been honored with the 2010 Lira Family Award for Physician Excellence.

Dr. Whitelaw has served as an orthopedic surgeon at Milton Hospital since 2002 and is also the founder of Children without Borders, a non-profit organization that provides life saving medical care to children and preventative health education for families in underserved countries.

The Lira Family Award was established by the late Hugo "Baron" Lira in his Last Will and Testament in 1994. A hospital volunteer and local bandleader, Lira contributed more than 6,000 volunteer hours to Milton Hospital.

The Lira Award recognizes Dr. Whitelaw for what is now a career of providing volunteer medical care in developing nations throughout the world.

At his Milton Hospital practice, Dr. Whitelaw offers orthopedic care, primarily performing knee and shoulder scopes. But it was during an Oxford fellowship that a professor guided him toward international volunteerism. He first volunteered his surgical abilities during a mission to Nepal in 1979. Most recently, he established Children without Borders, which operates three health clinics in Costa Rica to provide medical care and health education to young people.

"We first wanted to form a group that could facilitate the transport of patients in need of advanced care to the U.S.," Dr. Whitelaw explained. "Ultimately, we established the clinics to try to prevent kids from developing diseases that would require advanced care."

Through this preventative approach to medicine, Children without Borders has taken on the challenge of providing education to parents and children alike on teen pregnancy, family

Overactive
Bladder Ruins Life

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have to run to the bathroom all day long. If I don't make it in time, I have an accident. This has made me so nervous that I have given up on all thoughts of a social life. It's ruining my life. If we go to a restaurant, I must have a table near the restrooms, or I won't sit down. What can be done? I'll try anything. - P.G.

ANSWER: Your condition is an overactive bladder. Sudden, inappropriate and forceful contractions of the bladder wall muscles make it imperative for you to rush to the bathroom or you lose control of urine. Such bladder muscle contractions shouldn't occur until the bladder is full or nearly full. For some reason, your bladder reacts violently when it's only partially full. Conditions like a bladder infection can be a cause. Often, however, muscle contractions take place without any cause ever being found. You have to see a doctor who can look for things that are easily treated, like an infection.

If no cause is discovered, then you can reprogram your bladder to not react like this when it's only partially filled. For two days, time the intervals between bathroom visits. Add 5 minutes to the shortest interval and hold off on urinating for that time interval for a week. On week two, increase the interval by 15 minutes. Keep this up for a month, and then increase the interval by half an hour. Every two weeks, add another half hour to the interval between bathroom visits. When you reach three hours, you can stop.

You also can ask your doctor for prescription medicines that quiet bladder muscles. Detrol, Sanctura, Vesicare and ling work, and I have had the opportunity to work with many good people in Costa Rica," said Dr. Whitelaw. Enablex are names of some of these medicines.

Another technique involves injecting the bladder muscles with Botox. Botox weakens the force of bladder muscle contractions and allows you to hold urine for more-normal intervals.

In extreme circumstances, a gynecologic urologist can advise you if a battery-operated device attached to the bladder is something you could consider. It stops frequent, unwanted and unneeded bladder contractions.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: What causes hangnails? I have a crop of them. I know this isn't a pressing medical question, but what can you recommend to prevent them? - L.B.

ANSWER: Hangnails form when the skin dries. Dry skin at the borders of the nails cracks to form a hangnail. Prevention comes from the daily use of moisturizers.

Even though it's tempting to pull a hangnail off, don't. Cut it with small, sharp scissors.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Please explain what complex carbohydrates are. I see this term on all diet instructions. I don't have a clear idea of what it means. What makes them complex, and how are they healthier than other carbs? - W.L.

ANSWER: Carbohydrates are starches and sugars. Fruits, vegetables and most grains (flours) are carbohydrates.

Complex carbohydrates are long chains of carbon molecules. Starches are complex carbohydrates. Sugars are simple carbohydrates. Complex carbohydrates don't raise blood sugar as quickly as do simple carbohydrates, so they don't provoke a great demand for insulin. That's what makes them more desirable.

Dr. Donohue regrets that he is unable to answer individual letters, but he will incorporate them in his column whenever possible. Readers may write him or request an order form of available health newsletters at P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.

AT THE MOMENT OF IMPACT

While it was once largely believed that the impact injury commonly referred to as "whiplash" involves violent back-and-forth snaps of the head and neck, recent research sheds new light. High-speed cameras reveal that there is a critical moment before the back-and-forth motion. As an automobile is hit from behind, the trunks of the passengers' bodies are pushed forward, which causes their heads to move both back and down. This motion bends the vertebrae of the upper neck back while those in the lower neck move forward, forcing the neck into an S-shaped profile. It is during this critical moment that injury is most likely to occur, as muscles, ligaments, and joints strain to hold the vertebrae together against opposing forces.

The symptoms of whiplash usually take awhile to develop. You may feel pain and other symptoms starting about two hours after the initial injury, or it may take days, weeks, or months before you feel anything. At the FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC, our diagnostic capabilities enable us to pinpoint structural problems that are causing nerve interference. We're located at 112 McGrath Hwy., Quincy, where we will only accept you as a patient if we sincerely feel we can help you. We provide safe and gentle chiropractic care for the entire family. Please call 617.472.4220 to schedule an appointment. We offer computerized spinal scans. If your problem is a chiropractic condition, we can offer you exceptional service.

P.S. While studies show that cervical collars may actually interfere with recovery from a "whiplash" injury, gentle stretching exercises including turning the head from side to side and other directions help relieve strain on vertebrae and discs.

Danielle & Taryn Urbanus, Kendra Johnston Leave Their Mark On Q/NQ Swimming & Diving

Houghs Neck Residents Excelled In Pool

By SEAN BRENNAN

Three childhood friends from the Houghs Neck section of Quincy, including two sisters, were instrumental this past winter in bringing the Quincy/North Quincy girls swimming team back into the local spotlight.

Danielle and Taryn Urbanus and Kendra Johnston, a senior, sophomore, and junior, respectively, at Quincy High School, helped Q/NQ (3-7 overall) to a 21st place finish (out of 39 schools) at the Division I State Swimming and Diving Championships held Feb. 20 at the Blodgett Pool on the Harvard University campus. Danielle Urbanus and Johnston swam for Q/NQ while Taryn Urbanus is the team's lone diver. All three finished the swimming and diving season with personal bests times and results.

Taryn Urbanus, one of the best divers on the South Shore, took third place at the DI Championships after accumulating 404.8 points in the 11-dive competition. She also won both the Central/South Sectional championships, amassing a then season-best 377.154 points and she also won the Patriot League championship and was named an all-league diver. She is a member of the South Shore Diving Club and will participate in the 2010 Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) Diving National Championships later this year.

Danielle Urbanus, who returned to competitive swimming this season after a year off due to health problems, had a personal-best time of 2:28.35 in the 200-freestyle on Jan. 5; swam a time of 28.13 in the 50-freestyle on Jan. 21, and racked up a time of 1:05.90 in the 100-freestyle on Jan. 21. She is graduating from QHS this June.

Kendra Johnston, a team co-captain as a junior, swam the 200-Individual Medley in a school record time of 2:25.63 on Dec. 15. She also posted a time of 1:13.13 on Jan. 21 in the 100-fly event, and times of 5:56.69 in the 500-freestyle (Jan. 5) and 1:08.16 in the 100-backstroke event on Jan. 12.

"We all grew up together in Houghs Neck and have been friends since we were babies," said Danielle Urbanus last week. "Our parents are best friends. We live six houses from each other. It has been fun doing all this with one of my best friends and my sister."

Added Johnston:

"Our record this year was good. It can be hard getting everyone to come to practice and meets because swimming is a tough sport and demands a lot of your time, but all three of us love to compete and I think that we did well this year."

For Johnston and Danielle Urbanus, both have a number of other swimmers to help carry the load and garner points at meets, but for Taryn Urbanus, the onus for earning points in the diving competition lies solely on her shoulders.

"I am the only diver on the team. Sometimes I wish we had some other people diving, and hopefully next year there will be more divers, but I compete year-round and I love to dive."

According to first-year head coach Bob McGillicuddy, these three competitors gave the team everything they had, and with Taryn Urbanus and Kendra Johnston returning next winter, he expects his team to be even better next season.

"All three of them love the sport and had that inner desire to improve daily," he said last week. "They trusted my judgment and I trusted them. We had a good ride this season and we should be even better next year."

"They were three of 50 or so swimmers that swam (and dove) well this season. I expect that we will be better next year and I am confident that all three of them will be successful in whatever they do once they get out of high school."

Danielle, Kendra and Taryn all brought unique qualities to the Q/NQ team. Although each was dedicated to their respective craft, they all brought something different to the table, according to their coach.

On Danielle Urbanus:

"Danielle just has an infectious attitude," said McGillicuddy. "She is laughing all the time and is fearless in the water. She really improved by year's end. She will be missed."

On Johnston:

"Kendra is a coach's dream. She is willing to swim any race and won almost every race. She is a nice chess piece to have at a meet, and she always has a smile on her face. Kendra just loves to swim and the younger kids watch how she goes about it and they recognize her talent and the amount of work she puts into being great."

On Taryn Urbanus:

"I am just in awe every time I see her dive. Quincy's has one of the best divers in the state in Taryn, she is a very humble girl, and she is just amazing. If you haven't seen her, I would recommend coming to watch her compete because she is that good."

Despite the loss to graduation of Danielle Urbanus later this spring, the Urbanus legacy will continue for the next two years with Taryn's diving. The Johnston swimming legacy is also on solid footing. Kendra will return next winter and her younger sister, McKayla Johnston (eighth grader at Broad Meadows MS), is an up-and-coming swimming star.

All of this is great news for high school swimming in Quincy and recognition does (and should) go out to every student-athlete who competed this season for Q/NQ, but because of these three longtime friends, high school swimming/diving in Quincy is not treading water, it is now moving full speed ahead.

Eyeglass Collection, Run/Walk for Sight Highlight "Lions Week" April 11-17: 'Lions Week' in Quincy

Free vision and health screenings, the annual Lions Run/Walk for Sight and a citywide collection of used eyeglasses to help those in need are just a few of the activities that have been occurring this week in Quincy.

Mayor Thomas Koch recently signed a proclamation designating April 11-17 as "Lions Week" in Quincy in recognition of the club's 69-year history of serving the community.

To mark "Lions Week," the Quincy Lions Club scheduled a series of events aimed at helping blind and visually impaired persons. Throughout the week, the Lions Club will conduct its annual citywide collection of used eyeglasses and sunglasses. Residents can drop off their used eyeglasses and sunglasses in special collection boxes at participating businesses through the city (see below).

Quincy Lions Club President Michelle Lydon said the annual eyeglass collection regularly generates an average of 1,000 pairs of glasses being donated for repair and distribution to people in developing nations.

"Thanks to the generosity of local residents, thousands of people who needed glasses but either couldn't afford them or didn't have access to them will be able to see," said Lydon, who noted that a quarter of the world's population have eyesight that could benefit from corrective lenses. "Many people have old pairs of eyeglasses laying around that they don't know what to do with them. By donating them to the Lions Club, people can make a tremendous difference in the life of someone in need."

"Lions Week" in Quincy will culminate with the 13th Annual Run/Walk for Sight, to be held on Saturday, April 17 at Pageant Field. Registration begins at 9 a.m., with a children's 1K Run/Walk starting at 10 a.m. The 5K Run/Walk will begin at 11 a.m.

Registration fee is $5 for children and $20 for adults; all proceeds benefit eye research and the Quincy Lions Club's service activities in the local community.

A special highlight of this year's Run/Walk will be the presence of the Lions Club Eyemobile, which will provide free vision and basic health screenings to attendees. Following the race, participants will enjoy a buffet lunch and the presentation of medals to the race winners. The event will also feature entertainment and raffles for Red Sox tickets and other prizes.

"The Run/Walk is really a terrific family event," said Lydon. "We encourage everyone to come down, participate in the Run/Walk and help support a worthy cause."

Drop off your used eyeglasses and sunglasses during "Lions Week" at the following Quincy locations. Each location will have a specially marked Lions eyeglass collection box. Eyeglasses may also be dropped off at the Run/Walk on April 17 at Pageant Field.

ARCHBISHOP WILLIAMS HIGH SCHOOL'S Basketball Cheer Team was recently named Division IV State Champions and then placed first in the Small Varsity Division at the US Spirit National Championships at Universal Studios in Orlando, Florida. "Winning States was a surreal feeling; I am so proud of my girls," said cheer coach Kathie Lewis. "Competing at Nationals was an honor and bringing home the championship was the exclamation point on an already amazing season." Members of the team included: seniors Corinna Farrell (Weymouth) and Lindsay Joyce (Braintree); sophomores Melissa Barosy (Milton), Bridget Durkin (Quincy), Alexandra Fareri (Quincy), Rachael Fienberg (East Bridgewater), Alexandria Grasso (East Bridgewater), Anna Kirwan (Scituate), Amanda Newcomb (Rockland), and Jamie Sheehan (Rockland), and freshmen Victoria Galvin (Quincy), Jacqueline Grasso (East Bridgewater), Alexandra Hansen (Canton), Catalina Kirk (Weymouth), and Lindsey Sayers (Weymouth).

4th Annual Charity Hockey Game Held In Support Of QHS Freshman Trung Le

QFD, QPD Faceoff For A Worthy Cause

By JOE REARDON

Quincy High freshman Trung Le walked out on the ice of the Quincy Youth Arena and dropped the puck for the ceremonial faceoff shortly before the start of the fundraiser game between the Quincy Fire and Police Departments last Friday night.

The two teams were playing to raise money for Le, who is suffering from muscle and bone cancer. It was the fourth time in as many years that the squads have taken to the ice for a cause.

"It was a good night and there were a lot of laughs," said Quincy Firefighter Kevin Ferent, who founded the yearly hockey game. "We try and help out a different charity every year."

The Police Department rolled to a 10-4 victory, but the night wasn't so much about winning a game as it was gathering for a good cause and putting smiles on faces. In all, more than $4,500 was raised for Le.

"It's $4,500 he didn't have before today," said

Ferent.

Le was presented with a game puck and a plaque for his bravery during his ordeal.

Ferent downplayed his role in putting the game on, instead crediting his wife, Marie, for the majority of the hard work to bring the event together.

"Without her help, it wouldn't even happen," said Ferent. "She's the driving force. On game night I'm on the ice and once it starts it's her who does the work."

William Hutchinson Memorial Golf Tourney June 22

The annual "Hutch" Memorial Golf Tournament will be held on Tuesday, June 22 at the Furnace Brook Golf Course in Quincy. Proceeds from the tournament goes into the William Hutchinson

Event To Be Held April 20 & 22 At Adams Field Wood Bat Baseball Tourney Comes To Quincy

Local high school baseball players will get a rare opportunity to compete with wood bats in the 1st Annual Quincy Wood Bat Baseball Tournament scheduled for April 20 and 22 at Adams Field. This tournament will feature Quincy and North Quincy High School, Milton High School, and Oliver Ames High School.

Zorian Sport has been named the exclusive sponsor of the event.

"This is a great opportunity to use wood bats," said John Fidalgo, NQHS head coach and tournament organizer. "We play with aluminum bats and don't have many opportunities to play with wood bats where you can really improve your offensive and defensive skills. In addition, with the cost of wood bats going up, we wouldn't have been able to do this tournament if it wasn't for Zorian Sport."

The schedule for this inaugural event is as follows:

April 20: Oliver Ames

JV vs. Milton JV at 10 a.m.; Quincy JV vs. NQ JV at 1 p.m.; Oliver Ames Varsity vs. Milton Varsity at 4 p.m., and Quincy Varsity vs. NQ Varsity at 7 p.m.

April 22: Oliver Ames JV vs. Quincy JV at 10 a.m.; NQ JV vs. Milton JV at 1 p.m.; Varsity consolation game at 4 p.m., and Varsity championship game at 7 p.m.

"We're proud to sponsor the Quincy tournament," said Robert Zorian, president of Zorian Sport. "The South Shore has some of the best high school baseball players in the state, and this tournament provides college coaches and professional scouts the opportunity to evaluate that talent more effectively because wood is the ultimate equalizer. Hitters, pitchers, and defensive players alike are easier to set apart in wood bat play."

April 10 At Lincoln-Hancock Pool

Central Earns Middle School Swim Title

The Central Middle School boys and girls swim teams combined for a meet-best total of 782.50 points to win the Quincy Intra-City Middle School swimming championships held April 10 at the Lincoln-Hancock Pool.

Broad Meadows Middle School finished second with 383 points followed by Sterling MS (296 points), Atlantic MS (232), and Point Webster MS (122.5).

Eighth grader Sarah Tran led the Central MS girls' team. She finished in the 25-yard backstroke (16.35 seconds) and second in the 50-yard freestyle (28.07); Tran also paced the first-place, 100-yard freestyle relay squad (1:07.36).

Despite taking second in the combined team totals, Broad Meadows MS edged Central MS, 343-337, in the girls' competition. Eighth grader McKayla Johnston tallied three wins, swimming the 100-yard Medley Relay (1:12.03), 25-yard butterfly (13.56), and 100-yard freestyle (58.78) events. Johnston's teammate and classmate in the medley relay, Marlene Forrester, also won the 50-yard breaststroke with a time of 42.53 and was followed by Kaitlin Bell, who clocked a time of 44.44.

Bell, the only sixth grader to win an individual event, triumphed in half the distance, swimming 20.00 seconds flat in the 25-yard breaststroke. Fellow Broad Meadows swimmers Meghan Caggiano and Brandi Parker each won the 50-yard backstroke (40.66) and the 25-yard freestyle (15.75) events, respectively.

Seventh grader Sabrina Rauch of Sterling MS won the 50-yard freestyle event (27.37) and finished second in the meet's 25-yard butterfly (13.78).

In the boys' meet, Gordon Feng and Nick Burt collaborated for the first-place 100-yard freestyle relay; and each student notched a first and second to pace Central MS. Feng placed first in the 25-yard version of the freestyle and second in the 100-yard freestyle while Burt touched the wall first in the 25-yard breaststroke (20.07) and was second in the 50-yard breaststroke (46.25).

Seventh grader Michael Mullaney led the charge with a meet-best effort of 19.06 in the 25-yard butterfly. His classmate Nicholas Pham earned second place in both the 25-yard breaststroke (22.78) and 100-yard freestyle (1:08.84) events.

Eighth grader Elio Daci led Sterling MS, which finished second in the boys' competition with three victories: 50-yard freestyle (28.44), 100-yard freestyle (1:04.28), and 100-yard Medley Relay (1:18.18). Also participating in the first-place, 100-yard medley relay team were Alex Chamness and Aaron Ha, who each took second in the 25-yard backstroke (21.31) and 25-yard freestyle (16.75) events, respectively.

Broad Meadows MS student Liam Baston won the 50-yard breaststroke; fellow seventh grader MJ Alexander from Atlantic MS finished second in the 25-yard butterfly (20.43) and third in the 100-yard freestyle.

Girls Team Scores

Broad Meadows MS (343); Central MS (337); Sterling MS (136); Atlantic MS (125), and Point Webster MS (69).

Boys Team Scores

Central MS (445.50); Sterling MS (160); Atlantic MS (107); Point Webster MS (53.50), and Broad Meadows MS (40).

Combined Team Scores

Central MS (782.50); Broad Meadows MS (383); Sterling MS (296); Atlantic MS (232), and Point Webster MS (122.50).

THE QHS GIRLS SOFTBALL TEAM held a softball clinic last weekend at the Lincoln Hancock Elementary School. Over 25 girls, ranging in ages from 10-13, attended the clinic, which was sponsored by Quincy High School with all proceeds going toward the QHS softball program. The youngsters worked on a variety of skills from hitting to bunting to fielding and catching. All in attendance were given a QHS athletic t-shirt as well as a chance to come out and see the QHS team play two games this week. A special thanks goes out to varsity parents Elaine Berry and Susan Wade who organized the clinic. The Quincy Recreation Department and Barry J. Welch, Director of Recreation, announced Tuesday that applications are now available for the 28th Annual Senior Olympics.

The Senior Games, which are open to Men and Women age 55 and over, begins on Monday, May 10 and conclude on May 19. The City of Quincy and Bay State Community Services sponsor the Olympics. Applications are available at the Mayor's Office, the Kennedy Center and at the Recreation Department Main Office.

Applications will also be mailed on request by calling 617-376-1394 or 617-376-1244. Participants do not need to live in Quincy.

The Senior Olympics' full schedule of events can also be viewed on QuincyRec.com. All events are conducted at sites in Quincy and are supported by the River Bay Club and the Quincy Rotary Club.

Quincy Redstockings Baseball Results

The Quincy Redstockings Blue 12-year old AAU baseball team hosted a double-header against the Hanover Indians last Saturday at Labreque Field in Houghs Neck.

Quincy lost a close Game One, 6-4.

Brendan McDonald (2-for-3, double), Jake Burchill, Richie Ryan, Billy Roach and Kyle Peterson all had hits. Nick Kelly played well at catcher.

Quincy, in Game Two, trailed by six runs in the fourth inning but came back to tie Hanover in the sixth inning and won the game in the seventh inning.

Adam McCormack, Jake Burchill, Matt McDonald,

Cam White, Richie Ryan, Brendan McDonald, Scott Mele, Nick Kelly, James Hussey, and Billy Roach played well.

On Sunday, Quincy visited Cape Cod to play the Cape Cod Eagles. Quincy, behind a four-hit, complete game from Jake Burchill, won Game One, 2-1. He finished with nine strikeouts.

Richie Ryan had the game-winning RBI.

In Game Two, Quincy lost, 13-10.

The Quincy Redstockings Blue 12-year old AAU baseball team opened their spring season with a double-header split against Duxbury.

In the first game, Quincy won 16-4. The game was called because of the slaughter rule. Brendan McDonald had a no-hitter through three innings, and Richie Ryan finished with five RBI. Scott Mele, Kyle Peterson, Matt McDonald, Nick Kelly and James Hussey played well.

In the second game, Quincy lost 6-5.

Richie Ryan pitched three innings, allowing just one hit. Quincy allowed several walks and a couple of throwing errors in the late innings that allowed Duxbury to earn the win.

Ryan, Brendan McDonald, Jake Burchill, Billy Roach and Adam McCormack played well for Quincy.

NQHS Baseball To Hold Clinic April 17

The North Quincy High School Baseball program, in an effort to raise funds for the upcoming season, will conduct a Spring Training Clinic on Saturday, April 17 at O'Rourke Field on Quarry Street.

The clinic is open to all kids ages 6-12 that are looking to get a head start on their spring baseball season.

The clinic will run from 9 a.m. until Noon, with registration starting at 8:30 p.m. The cost is $30 and that includes a hot dog and drink for all participants.

The first 30 kids to sign up will receive a NQHS baseball hat.

This clinic will offer instruction in all areas of the game including pitching, hitting, fielding (both infield and outfield), base running, throwing techniques, and stretching. Instructors will include the NQHS coaching staff along with current NQHS players and several college players.

For additional information, call 617-471-7695.

Quincy's LeBel & Salvucci Meet On Diamond

Quincy High School graduates Ricky Salvucci and Michael LeBel met on the college baseball diamond last week. Salvucci played second base for Northeastern University and LeBel played shortstop for the University of Rhode Island.

URI defeated Northeastern, 15-5. Salvucci, a red-shirt freshman, collected his first collegiate hit, and LeBel finished the game with three hits, two runs scored, two RBI and a stolen base.

Both LeBels On

Offensive Teams

Kim and Michael LeBel, sister and brother, both completed a successful week of action.

Kim LeBel, who plays softball for Quinnipiac University batted .364, with four hits and three runs scored. Her younger brother, Mike, continued his torrid hitting last week by batting .500 with nine hits, seven runs scored and three RBI. Mike LeBel is currently batting .379 and leads URI in five offensive categories: runs (32), hits (44), triples (3), home runs (4) and slugging percentage (.586).

Other Quincy Residents Making Contributions

Division I

Quincy's Tom Conley continues his "iron horse" play for the University of Massachusetts as he has started as catcher in 18 of his team's 21 games.

He is batting .250 and a .392 on-base average.

Glen Misho (relief pitcher at UMass) and Scott Warwick (pitcher at Fairfield University) continue to chew up innings for their respective teams.

Division II & III

Dean Sandonato continues to be Bentley University's most consistent relief pitcher. Last week he pitched a scoreless 12th and 13th inning in Bentley's win over Stonehill College.

Kevin Bossart, a catcher for the University of Southern New Hampshire banged out his first hit against St. Michael's College.

Matt Rodriguez, a catcher for Curry College, continues to play flawlessly in the field and is making significant offensive contributions as he is batting .296 with a .387 on-base average.

Lasell College has three Quincy residents making contributions. Conor Cavanaugh is batting .305 with a team second-best 12 RBI; Brian McQuinn (OF) and Joe Reggiannini (catcher) are key reserves.

Lamonte Tombs is making contributions for the Roxbury Community College baseball team

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Thinking and thanking are two words that belong together... Think about this! If you think enough about what you have, instead of complaining about what you don't have; if you think enough about the good that has happened to you, instead of feeling sorry for yourself about all the 'bad luck' you have had, you will thank God for His goodness and mercy.

Couldn't it be said that it's not so much what happens to us, but how we react and respond? The trouble is that most of us don't do enough positive thinking... We moan and groan about the bad things, and take the good things for granted... We complain that the cup is half empty, instead of thanking God that it is half full.

Years ago there was a popular ballad entitled: "Aren't You Glad You're You?" It went something like this: "Every time you're near a rose, aren't you glad you've got a nose... When the meadow lark appears, aren't you glad you've got two ears... And when the dawn is fresh with dew, aren't you glad you're you?"

We think this is a pretty good philosophy... What do you think?

Science, Religion Meditations

"How the World Works," a series of meditations on science and religion and God's purpose for us will be presented by Ward Smith beginning Wednesday, April 21 at 7 p.m. in the roof level meeting room at 77 Adams Place on Adams St., in Quincy.

Other meetings will follow on alternate Wednesdays.

Smith is a scientist and a committed Christian and has lectured extensively on the relationship between religion and science.

Commenting on this series, Smith said, "If God created our world, then the natural systems and processes by which our world works are God's systems and processes. They fulfill God's purpose.

"We will discuss how God's creation, its systems and processes, work both for and against us in pursuing God's purpose for us."

Smith presents his subject with a power point introduction followed by discussion.

The series is sponsored by Promise Church, a newly forming church on the South Shore associated with the United Church of Christ.

It is free and open to all.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Don't be put off by a seemingly too-tangled situation. Sometimes a simple procedure will unsnarl all the knots and get you in the clear fast and easy, just the way the Lamb likes it.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) It's a good time to go through your work space -- wherever it is -- and see what needs to be replaced and what can be tossed (or at least given away) without a second thought.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Someone who disagrees with your position might try to intimidate you. But continue to present a fair argument, regardless of how petty someone else might be while trying to make a point.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You might find yourself exceptionally sensitive to family matters this week. An issue could come to light that you had overlooked. Ask other kinkfolk to discuss it with you.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You might have more questions about a project (or perhaps someone you're dealing with on some level) than you feel comfortable with. If so, see which can be answered, which cannot, and why.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) It's a good time to clean up and clear out what you don't need before your tidy self is overwhelmed by "stuff." Then go celebrate the Virgo victory over clutter with someone special.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You might feel a mite confused about why something you were sure couldn't go wrong didn't go all right either. Be patient. Things soon move into balance, exactly as you like it.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) At this decision point, you could be moving from side to side, just to say you're in motion. Or you could be considering making a move straight up. What you choose is up to you.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Although your finances should be in an improved situation at this time, thrift is still the savvy Sagittarian's smart move. Advice from a spouse or partner could be worth heeding.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Taking on a new challenge brings out the Goat's skills in maneuvering over and around difficult spots. Best of all, the Goat does it one careful step after another. (Got the idea, Kid?)

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Your well-known patience might be wearing thin because of a disturbing (and seemingly unending) problem with someone close to you. This could be a time to ask for help. Good luck.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Be careful about a new venture that lures you into a "just-look-and-see" mode. Be sure that what you're being given to see isn't hiding what you should be seeing instead.

BORN THIS WEEK: Aries and Taurus give you the gift of leadership and the blessings of care and concern for all creatures.

Sheriff Bellotti Initiates On-Site Court Hearings At Jail Via Video Link

the region.

In a move that officials say should save taxpayers tens of thousands of dollars, Norfolk County Sheriff Michael G. Bellotti has begun conducting court bail hearings through a remote video link at the Norfolk County Correctional Center in Dedham.

Normally, inmates must be transported to the court-houses where their hearings are to be held, but by working in conjunction with the state's trial courts and conducting the hearings on-site, the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office is able to save on the cost of transporting inmates to and from the various court locations throughout

"We continue to look for innovative ways to use technology to carry out our mission in the most cost-efficient manner," Sheriff Bellotti said. "The courts have been eager to use this system whenever possible, and we are just as eager to use our existing video equipment to save on man-hours and motor vehicle fuel costs associated with transporting inmates."

The video hearing system employs cameras in the courtroom and a camera at the jail to allow an inmate to see and hear the lawyers and the judge while they simultaneously can see and hear him.

The initial hearings conducted earlier this month involved Norfolk Superior Court hearings for petitions of bail reviews.

As the system is used more frequently, it promises to save tens of thousands - if not hundreds of thousands - of dollars in costs associated with employee overtime, motor vehicle fuel and vehicle depreciation over the course of time.

"The potential for cost savings is obvious, and we want to take advantage of that," Sheriff Bellotti said. "Massachusetts has always been known as a technology leader. This is an example of technology working to update procedures that have gone largely unchanged for nearly a century."

THIS ENTRY BY Alissa Tam, a fifth grader at the Bernazzani School, placed second the Quincy Beach Guide Cover Contest. Alissa was also a semi-finalist in last year's Beach Guide Cover Contest. "This is the second year we've had the contest and the children of Quincy are very talented," said Contest Organizer Laura Innis.

THIS ENTRY by Cindy Trac, a third grader at the Clifford Marshall School, received third place in the Quincy Beach Guide Cover Contest. "It is clear from all the entries that the kids have an appreciation for Quincy's coast," said Contest Organizer Laura Innis. "They really 'get it' that the water is clean again."

Family Trivia Night At Houghs Neck Church April 20

A Family Trivia Night will be held Tuesday, April 20 at 6:30 p.m. at the Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 310 Manet Ave., Quincy.

The event is free and all are welcome to attend.

There will be a free pasta dinner with salad, dessert and beverages, followed by a family trivia contest. Trivia questions will be suitable for both children and adult players; prizes will be awarded to the winners.

Quincy Parent Advisory Council To Special Ed Workshop On Basic Rights April 28

The Quincy Parent Advisory Council to Special Education will offer a workshop entitled "Basic Rights" Wednesday, April 28 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Broad Meadows Middle School, 50 Calvin Rd.

The workshop, presented by the Federation for Children with Special Needs, will provide an introduction to families' rights and responsibilities under state and federal special education laws.

It is designed to help parents learn how to be effective partners with school districts to determine eligibility of their child for special education services.

The workshop will also teach parents how to plan, make decisions, and monitor their child's progress in school.

The event is free and open to the public.

Light refreshments will be served.

For more information, contact Lindsay Perry, QPAC president, at 617-773-1385.

LOOKING AT HISTORY - A letter written by President John Quincy Adams dated Sept. 8, 1826 was recently found in a bound volume of "The Town of Quincy Archives, Volume I - 1792 to 1872." Looking at the letter (from left) are Assistant City Solicitor Paul Hines, who found the letter; City Clerk Joseph Shea, Mayor Thomas Koch, Dr. Edward Fitzgerald, executive director of the Quincy Historical Society; and James Edwards, president of the Quincy Historical Society.

184-Year-Old Letter Written By President John Quincy Adams Request Tomb Be Built For His Father's 'Mortal Remains'

By JOE REARDON

An assistant city solicitor, rummaging through old documents in the basement of City Hall, came across a letter that gives insight into one of the city's favorite son's love for his father.

Dated September 8, 1826 and addressed to Thomas Greenleaf, Josiah Quincy, Thomas Boylston Adams, Edward Miller and George W. Beale, the supervisors of the Temple and School fund given by John Adams late deceased to the Town of Quincy, the letter from President John Quincy Adams requested that a vault or tomb be constructed under United First Parish Church to hold the mortal remains of his late father, John Adams, and ing upon me to erect a plain and modest monument to his memory; and my wish is that divested all ostentation it may yet be as durable as the walls of the Temple to the erection of which he has contributed, as the Rocks of his native Town which are to supply the materials for it," John Quincy Adams wrote in the opening paragraph.

Police Chief Keenan Reports: Arrests Up, Manpower Down

By LAURA GRIFFIN

Arrests are up 18% over the past six years with an average 3% increase each year from 2004 to 2009, while the Quincy Police Department is operating with 15% fewer officers than in 2000, according to Police Chief Paul Keenan.

Those arrests run the gamut from assault charges, drug offenses, and burglary suspicion to illegal possession of firearms but most alarming, according to Chief Keenan, is the spike in domestic reports.

"It is trending up. A lot of it is economy driven," said Keenan of the spurt in 'shaken baby' reports, elder abuse and juvenile cases and violations of restraining orders.

In the first three months of 2010, there were 198 reports of child abuse while 652 incidents were reported

Cleaner, Greener Work Sites By Ward

Cleaner, Greener Quincy is the city's annual beautification event where residents, youth groups and employees from local businesses join together along side work crews from the Park Department and the Department of Public Works to spruce up school yards, playgrounds, beaches marshes, ball fields, parks and other public open spaces.

This year, the citywide event will take place Saturday, May 1 from 9 a.m. to noon.

Work sites for this year's Cleaner, Greener Quincy event are listed below by city Ward.

Ward 1: Gull Point neighborhood, Brill Field, Merrymount Elementary School, Wollaston Beach (Caddy Park), Edgewater Drive Beach, and the Souther Tide Mill.

Ward 2: Point Webster School, Avalon Beach, and Mound Street Beach.

Ward 3: The Bog, Bishop Field, Wollaston Elementary School, and the Bernazani Elementary School.

Ward 4: Sterling Middle School, Lincoln Hancock School, and The Granite Incline.

Ward 5: Butler Pond, The Quincy Homestead, Beechwood Knoll School, Sailors' Home Pond, and Freedom Park (Burgin Parkway).

Ward 6: Parker School, Atlantic Middle School, Cavanaugh Field, Squantum Elementary School, North Quincy High School, Orchard Beach, Nickerson Beach, and Squaw Rock.

Volunteers are urged to contact the Park Department to join an existing work site and/or establish a new cleanup site. The Park Department will provide assistance with gloves, trash bags, rakes and shovels.

All Cleaner, Greener Quincy Participants are invited to attend Mayor Koch's volunteer appreciation cookout, which is sponsored for the fifth year in a row, by Hannaford Supermarkets, at Pageant Field at 12:30 p.m. immediately following the event. All volunteers receive a Cleaner, Greener Quincy t-shirt.

Anyone interested in finding out more information about Cleaner, Greener Quincy can call the Park Department at (617) 376-1251 or email jconso@quincyma.gov.

Three Unions Agree To Contract Concessions

Three city unions have accepted contract deferrals in an effort to save money and jobs as the city grapples with a looming $12 million deficit for the upcoming budget, Mayor Thomas Koch said Tuesday.

The Police Superior Officers union and city crossing guards both agreed to defer contracted pay raises for the second straight year, and City Hall workers voted to accept a furlough package that includes the contracted raises in pay rates, but cuts hours in a way that workers in the 150-member union will see their salaries remain the same.

Some city offices will close an hour early on Fridays to make up for the decrease in staffing hours.

"I am grateful to all of our employees who have worked together with us and clearly understand the historic nature of the times we are in," Koch said. "There is a clear understanding that we simply can no longer afford the status quo, and we are continuing to work with all of our unions in an effort to protect the core services based on the reality that there will be substantial spending cuts."

A number of unions, both large and small, have yet to vote on deferral proposals made by the administration. Koch would not divulge status of those negotiations, but acknowledged last week that talks with city teachers, the largest union, have broken down.

Teachers are slated to receive 4 percent pay raise in their contract and many teachers will receive additional raises based on longevity, education levels and other factors. In total, raises for teachers will cost the city $4.8 million in the upcoming year.

The administration will deliver its Fiscal Year 2011 budget on May 3, and the mayor will host a series of community meetings on city finances together with Municipal Finance Director Nicholas Puleo beginning next week.

A complete schedule of meetings is listed on Page 17 in this issue of The Quincy Sun. They are also available on the city's website: www.quincyma.gov.

Superior Officers Vote To Defer Wage Increase

The police department's superior officers voted Friday to postpone their wage increase for a second year, climaxing several weeks of discussion with the administration, according to Lt. Tim Sorgi, President of Quincy Police Superior Officers' Association.

It was a close vote, according to Sorgi who said the majority voted with the hope "the money we defer will help to retain some positions."

"We're already down five positions in our union that have not been filled," said Sorgi, adding that officers are concerned the economy is stressed and, "The city is struggling."

Through that vote, Sorgi's union foregoes a scheduled 2% raise in July and a 1% increase in January, providing the city with a potential $110,000 savings in the next budget.

"This $110,000 could translate into a couple of jobs," said Sorgi. The union agreed to a salary deferral last year.

Under the current plan, the raises will not go into effect until a 2% increase in July, 2011 and a 1% increase in January, 2012. There will be no retroactive payouts. The contract ends in June of 2012.

Sorgi said the administration offered no concessions or contract changes in return for the agreement.

In February, union officials had hoped to discuss contract changes, but learned that Mayor Thomas Koch would not re-open any contract.

"The mayor was not going to entertain any kind of changes in any contract," said Sorgi, adding that the mayor and Human Resource Director Steve McGrath had time constraints on budget planning.

Sorgi said his union will seek changes during the next contract negotiations.

In the past year, the department has left unfilled two captains' positions, one lieutenant's spot and two openings for sergeant.

NOT-SO-BASIC BLACK

One of the most subtle yet eye-catching trends in men's wristwatches is the all-black watch. This look goes far beyond black faces and straps to include black numerals, black hands, and black stems. The preferred finish for this black-on-black-on-black look is matte. The result is an elegant, monochromatic (or non-chromatic, actually) piece of sculptural beauty that looks as much at home on a wrist dressed with cufflinks as on the golf links. While there is nary a hint of white (some black-on-black wristwatches feature minute bits of white on the hands, numerals, or date), black wristwatches seem to draw as much attention as a French impressionist painting on a museum wall. These muted timepieces speak loudly.

Just like other pieces of fine jewelry, choosing watches is a matter of personal taste. What's your style? Black on black? Sporty or fun? Casual or dressy? Watches are very popular gifts for special occasions, and we have a distinctive collection of unique ones that we'd like to show you. assistant city solicitor Paul Hines a couple of weeks ago in the Town of Quincy Archives Vol. 1, which is dated 1792-1827.

"We are steeped in history in this great city and the Adams family comes alive frequently," said Mayor Thomas Koch.

Ed Fitzgerald, the executive director of the Quincy Historical Society, said the letter was particularly unique because it deals on a personal level at a time when Quincy Adams was mourning his father's death. It also comes from a time period where Quincy Adams makes a connection with the city as his home.

"It's very early on that John Quincy Adams is determined to build a monument for his father," said Fitzgerald. "We knew he was a pretty prolific writer. He's very busy at the time. He's writing like the dickens. It provides an insight into the mind of John Quincy Adams. You sense the emotional depth behind his words. You see his love for his father."

Both Adams and his wife Abigail Adams were originally laid to rest in the Old Town Burial Ground, which is now the site of the Hancock Cemetery. Their remains were later transferred to the tombs in the crypt of the United First Parish Church.

In 1852, the bodies of John Quincy Adams and his wife, Louisa, joined them.

The "Church of Presidents" is the only church in the United States in which two U.S. Presidents are buried.

The several dozen books filled with documents have been moved out of the city hall basement since. Koch said they were previously kept in the old town hall. The current city hall was built in 1844.

"You could spend weeks and weeks going through the boxes, probably months," Koch said.

One of the books was recently sent to the Browns River Marotti Company in Vermont, which specializes in preserving old documents. The volume that contains the John Quincy Adams letter is in extremely good shape according to City Clerk Joe Shea. The cost to preserve a book runs from $7,000-$8,000 which is paid through the Community Preservation Act.

"It's quite a difficult book to be preserved," said Shea. "This one is in very good shape."

Transcript Of president John Quincy Adams Letter

To Thomas Greenleaf, Josiah Quincy, Thomas Boylston Adams, Edward Miller, and George W. Beale, Supervisors of the Temple and School Fund given by John Adams late deceased to the Town of Quincy.

Quincy 8th September 1826.

Gentlemen — Upon the decease of my late honored Father I have considered it a duty devolving upon me to erect a plain and modest monument to his memory; and my wish is that divested all ostentation it may yet be as durable as the walls of the Temple to the erection of which he contributed, and as the Rocks of his native Town which are to supply the materials for it.

This purpose may be most advantageously effected, if the inhabitants in their corporate capacity should accord to the proposition which I know make to them through you and upon which I request you to take their sense, as speedily as may be convenient.

I proposed when the Congregational Society in this town, shall determine to commence the erection of the Temple they should adopt a resolution authorizing you to conclude with me an agreement, whereby, at my expense a vault or tomb may be constructed, under the Temple, wherein may be deposited, the mortal remains of the late John Adams and of Abigail his beloved and only wife, and that within the walls of the Temple at a suitable place to be approved by me, a tablet or tables of marble or other stone may be adapted to the side of the wall with a view to durability and with such obituary inspection or inspections as I shall deem proper.

The assent of the Town to this modification in the construction of the Temple, I suppose to be necessary or at least expedient; but the time when the Temple itself should be built, must I conceive depend upon the Congregational Society and the Church under the Pastoral care of the Reverend Peter Whitney.

In proceeding to carry into effect the objects of the donations to the Town, I believe great attention will be due to keeping these distinctions in mind The Town and the Parish (by which I mean the Congregational Society and the Church) are distinct Corporations, and consist of persons partly the same and partly different. The Temple when erected will doubtless be the property of the Parish subject to that of the individual pew holders; but the donations being to the Town, their assent seems to be necessary even to fix the time for the erection of the edifice.

I have many reasons for desiring that this may be undertaken without delay and among the rest that both my parents may not remain for an indefinite time without a stone to tell where they lie. Should the Town and Parish both assent to my present proposal: I shall be anxious to know when the latter would propose to commence building? Should they approve my desire I shall take no other measures for erecting a monument elsewhere which I propose to do should they see any inconvenience in the acceptance of my offer. It will be necessary that the agreement be in writing; perhaps by indenture to fix the property of the Vault or Tomb and of the Tablets.

I am very respectfully your friend
(signed) John Quincy Adams

The case for consolidating your mortgage and equity line into one loan right now

You had a great rate on your mortgage and didn't want to touch that. But there was something you needed or wanted money for. And adjustable home equity line rates were low-low-low. So you took one out. Now that line keeps adjusting up-up-up. You're feeling the squeeze and suffering with the squeeze. You are not alone. If you're worrying about where rates are going next and simply want to have the same mortgage payment every single month, consider consolidating your original mortgage and that home equity line into one new, locked-in fixed-rate 30-year loan while those rates are still near historic lows. Come see us and we'll help you figure out if consolidating is right for you. Or call Richard Coleman or Angela Blanchard at 617-471-0750.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

- On April 30, 1789, George Washington is sworn in as the first American president and delivers the first inaugural speech, at Federal Hall in New York City. Observers noted that Washington fidgeted while he reiterated the mixed emotions of anxiety and honor he felt in assuming the role of president.

- On April 28, 1897, the Chickasaw and Choctaw, two of the Five Civilized Tribes, become the first to agree to abolish tribal government and communal ownership of land. The other tribes soon followed, finally throwing open all of Indian Territory to white settlement.

- On May 1, 1926, Ford Motor Company becomes one of the first companies in America to adopt a five-day, 40-hour week for workers. Manufacturers all over the country soon followed Ford's lead, and the Monday-to-Friday workweek became standard practice.

- On May 2, 1933, the modern legend of the Loch Ness Monster is born when a sighting makes local news in the Scottish Highlands. The Inverness Courier newspaper related an account of a local couple who claimed to have seen "an enormous animal rolling and plunging on the surface." Scholars of the Loch Ness Monster find a dozen references to "Nessie" in Scottish history, dating back to around 500 A.D.

- On April 26, 1954, the Salk polio vaccine field trials, involving 1.8 million children, begin in McLean, Va. On Apr. 12, 1955, researchers announced the vaccine was safe and effective, and it quickly became a standard part of childhood immunizations in America.

- On April 27, 1963, Margaret Annemarie Battavio's very first single, "I Will Follow Him," reached No. 1 on the U.S. pop charts. The 15-year-old singer, better known as Little Peggy March, became the youngest female performer ever to top the Billboard Hot 100.

- On April 29, 1986, in a game against the Seattle Mariners at Fenway Park, Roger Clemens of the Boston Red Sox becomes the first pitcher in Major League Baseball to strike out 20 batters in a nine-inning game. Ten years later, Clemens repeated the feat, the only player in baseball history to do so.

Two Out Of Four For Local GOP?

I'm a little surprised.

And if you're a Republican in Quincy, maybe you're a little disappointed, too.

With only five days remaining until nomination papers are due for district and county offices, it appears only two of the four legislative seats in Quincy will field a Republican candidate.

And those are in races where the seat is vacant.

Considering Republican Sen. Scott Brown's impressive - and historic - victory in the special U.S. Senate race in January and the apparent revitalized state GOP, I figured there would be a local Republican running in every legislative race this fall. Strike while the Republican-iron is hot so to speak.

And it hasn't been hot for quite some time when you look at Republicans representing Quincy on Beacon Hill. The last time a Republican served as a state legislator in Quincy was 38 years ago. That footnote belongs to Walter Hannon who before being elected mayor served three terms as state representative from 1966 to 1972.

The GOP is fielding candidates for the two open legislative seats this fall. But it doesn't seem the Democrat incumbents will have Republican challengers in the other two state representative races.

State Rep. Bruce Ayers appears headed for re-election without opposition in the 1st Norfolk District. Rep. Ron Mariano may have an independent challenger in his re-election bid in the 3rd Norfolk District. Gary M. Lowell, 21, of Weymouth, an unenrolled voter, has taken out nomination papers. (Besides Quincy, Mariano's district includes parts of Holbrook and Weymouth. Ayers' district includes parts of Quincy and Randolph.)

But as of Tuesday, no Republican challengers had taken out nomination papers in the 1st and 3rd Norfolk Districts, according to the Secretary of State's Election Office.

And time is running out. Nomination papers - with the required 150 signatures for state representative - must be submitted to local Election Departments by 5 p.m. on Tuesday, April 27.

The city's other two legislative seats - state senate in the Norfolk-Plymouth District and state representative in the 2nd Norfolk District - have attracted at least eight local candidates combined because - in large part - those seats are open this fall.

There are two Quincy Democrats and a local Republican seeking the state senate seat being vacated by Democrat Michael Morrissey, who is running for Norfolk County district attorney. They are Democrat Stephen Tobin - who is vacating his state representative seat in the 2nd Norfolk District; fellow Democrat Councillor John Keenan, the executive director of the Norfolk County Retirement System; and Republican Dan Dewey, a member of the Quincy Board of Registrars and former chairman of the Quincy GOP City Committee.

All three have submitted nomination papers to City Hall; 300 valid signatures are required to run for state senate. The Norfolk-Plymouth seat represents Quincy, Rockland, Holbrook, Abington and parts of Braintree.

But the most crowded field appears to be one shaping up to succeed Tobin as state representative in the 2nd Norfolk District. As of Tuesday, there were five candidates - and the potential for at least one more.

Moreover, there will be a Democrat, Republican and an "Independent" on the final ballot, the first time that's happened in a local state race since the "unenrolled" voter registration designation was introduced in 1993.

That's because Karl Roos, who lost a bid for a school committee seat last November by 11 votes after a recount reversed an apparent one-vote win on Election Night, is running for state rep as an unenrolled (independent) candidate. Roos, who works as a salesman and has been active in youth sports, changed his party affiliation from Republican to unenrolled last December.

HANNON

But Roos, who lives on Wollaston Hill, will not be the only Independent Quincy candidate on the state ballot. Former city councillor and current state treasurer Tim Cahill is running as an Independent for governor.

Roos, if he files the required 150 signatures, will go straight to the ballot for the final election Nov. 2.

Another candidate apparently headed for the Nov. 2 ballot is Republican John Iredale of Houghs Neck. As of Tuesday, the small business owner was the only Republican to file papers for state representative in the 2nd Norfolk District. No other Republican has taken out papers for the seat, meaning Iredale will avoid a primary.

But there will be a Democratic primary for state representative in the 2nd Norfolk District which comprises 13 city precincts: all five precincts in Ward 1; Ward 3 Precincts 1, 2 and 5; Ward 4 Precincts 2, 4; and Ward 5 Precincts 1, 3 and 4.

Democrats who have filed papers at City Hall are:

Tackey Chan, a former state assistant attorney general and past member of the Quincy Zoning Board of Appeals who lives in the Wollaston/Beechwood Knoll area; Elaine Dwyer of Merrymount who has served nine years on the School Committee and is a small business owner in the travel industry; and Joseph Keegan, also of Merrymount, a local attorney and former Quincy police officer who ran unsuccessfully for Ward 1 councillor in 2003, bowing to Leo Kelly by 268 votes.

The fourth Democrat who has taken papers out is Kelly. The former Ward 1 councillor from Houghs Neck did not seek re-election last fall. But he's taken out nomination papers and has been out collecting signatures. If Kelly files his nomination papers, the four Democrats would square off in the state primary Tuesday, Sept. 14. The winner would meet Iredale and Roos Nov. 2.

We won't know how the entire line-up of candidates until after next Tuesday's filing deadline. Stay tuned.

HOW WILL THE Boston Bruins fare in the National League Hockey playoffs this spring?

One avid local hockey fan sees the B's winning the first round but getting bounced in the second. And his first-round upset prediction looked spot-on as Boston took a 2-1 series lead heading into Wednesday's Game 4.

"I really like (goaltender Tuukka) Rask and can see him backstopping the Bruins to an upset win over Buffalo," says Larry Kelly, a 1981 graduate of North Quincy High School who has his name inscribed on the Stanley Cup. Kelly served nine years as the Dallas Stars' director of media relations, including the Stars championship season in 1999.

After Dallas won the Cup, Kelly brought the cup to Quincy to show his family including his father, Larry, Sr., a devoted hockey fan and longtime Quincy police officer. Mr. Kelly passed away in September, 2000.

Kelly always roots for a Dallas-Boston Stanley Cup final but that won't happen this year. The Stars didn't make the playoffs.

Instead, Kelly likes New Jersey to win the Eastern Conference and Chicago in the West with the Blackhawks winning their first Cup since 1961.

As for the Bruins' securing the second overall pick in June's NHL Entry Draft, Kelly thinks either Leftwing Taylor Hall or Center Tyler Seguin - the top-two highly touted prospects - will be an impact player for the Bruins. "I'm looking forward to seeing either on Causeway Street next season," says the full-time hockey dad and is now an advertising and marketing consultant.

NEXT WEEK is the last week for residents to fill out and mail their 2010 Federal Census form to City Hall, City Clerk Joseph Shea reminds residents.

As of May 1, federal enumerators will take to local streets to collect Census information from uncollected areas. So, residents who don't fill out the form and mail it back by Friday, April 30, can expect a knock on the door by a federal census taker.

Trolley car service was available just a few blocks away on Washington Street. The Town River Yacht Club is located just behind the hill beyond the bathhouse. To contact Tom Galvin, e-mail tmgalvin@verizon.net.

Budget Becomes Law Without Mayor's Signature

By FRANK McCAULEY

Mayor Thomas S. Burgin permitted the annual city budget to become law without his signature, a precedent-making situation in Quincy.

The mayor declared that he strongly opposes some of the "drastic" cuts in certain appropriations made in the city council.

"Because I disagree with some of those cuts," he explained, "I will not sign the budget order so that it could not be said, later in the year, that I approve the reductions."

Under the law, an order passed by the council becomes effective when the mayor signs it or within 10 days of the time the order is placed in the hands of the mayor, if he doesn't sign it.

It is believed the chief objection the mayor had to cuts made by the Council was in respect to the salaries of department heads, the appropriations of which were slashed by the Council by 10 percent.

$506,000 TO BE SOUGHT FOR NEW CITY HALL

An attempt to erect a new City Hall in Quincy will be made if President Roosevelt's multi-billion dollar "lending spending" program is approved by Congress, Mayor Thomas S. Burgin announced today.

The mayor declared he would make every effort to get as large a part of the proposed federal gratuities for Quincy as possible.

He said that he will issue a call this week for the former city hall commission to reassemble and keep in constant touch with federal authorities over the matter of applying for a loan and grant for the project.

(Editor's note: This proposed project never came to fruition. However, in 1976, the city received several million dollars in "anti-recession funds, which then Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia committed to building a modern addition to City Hall. The project was completed and opened in September 1979.)

KEEPING UP WITH THE RED SOX

Manager Joe Cronin of the Boston Red Sox announced that his youngest rookie pitcher, Jim Bagby, Jr., would be starting pitcher as the Red Sox opened the 1938 season at home, hosting the World Champion New York Yankees. The Red Sox won, 8-4.

Meanwhile, the Boston Bees opened their season in New York facing the National League Champion New York Giants. Bees Manager Casey Stengel nominated Dan MacFayden as his starting pitcher. (Editor's note: For a few years the Boston Braves were known as the Boston Bees.)

Morrissey, Ayers Request More Ferry Service

With the Neponset Bridge construction underway, Quincy state legislators Sen. Michael W. Morrissey and Rep. Bruce J. Ayers have contacted Secretary Jeff Mullan of the Executive Office of Transportation to address alternate transportation options.

"I want EOT to strongly consider ferry service from the newly renovated Squantum Point Pier," stated Senator Morrissey.

In the past year, approximately $370,000 has been spent on upgrades to the Pier, adjacent to Marina Bay in Quincy. The pier is now structurally sound, ADA compliant, with an adjacent parking lot that can accommodate 1,000 vehicles.

"Squantum Point Pier would be ideal for adding ferry service from Quincy to UMASS Boston and Boston Long Wharf," Ayers added.

The new construction-related traffic congestion on the Neponset Bridge could encourage ferry ridership.

Morrissey's office is scheduling meetings with the Massachusetts Department of Transportation, MBTA, and the Department of Conservation and Recreation to work together toward establishing ferry service as soon as possible.

In the past, Morrissey has suggested that a ferry option could help reduce vehicle traffic, and provide another alternative in addition to redline and commuter rail services into Boston.

"It is imperative to concentrate on traffic integration plans and proposals during this time," Morrissey said.

Firefighters: Another Reason To Be Proud In Quincy

During the recent flooding disaster, visitors and staff of the Kennedy Center and Quincy Council on Aging were privileged to witness a group of Quincy firefighters making preparations to provide emergency shelter for those citizens who may have needed evacuation.

The group, led by Lt. Sean Darcey worked many hours setting up cots and blankets, arranging for meals if necessary.

The compassion and concern of these firefighters was admirable, and this feeling was transmitted to all present.

Another great reason for us to be proud of the City of Quincy.

Thanks TAJ Coin For Being A Faithful Advertiser

Have we noticed something missing in The Quincy Sun lately?

The advertisement of TAJ Coin & Stamp Company located on Maple Street in Quincy. Tom Laitinen, owner (who is closing his business) has been doing business at his location for 42 years; The Quincy Sun has been publishing since 1968. I would imagine TAJ Coin has been advertising in the "Sun" for most of these years.

So many newspapers throughout the United States have gone out of business due to lack of advertisements. We as readers of the "Sun" have been very fortunate having Mr. Laitinen place his ad weekly. Because of him (and many other dependable advertisers) readers of the "Sun" are able to enjoy this wonderful newspaper. Each week I look forward to receiving my edition via the U.S. Mail.

Thank you, TAJ Coins for being so faithful not only to the "Sun" but to its readers. If it were not for companies such as yours, the weekly edition of the "Sun" perhaps would not be available.

All are welcome to attend.

The program will feature a variety of the choir's favorite anthems, including Advent, Christmas, Lent and Easter selections as well as anthems of faith, worship and service. Refreshments will be served following the performance.

Attendees are encouraged to bring a non-perishable food item for donation to the Interfaith Social Services food pantry.

Featuring Symphonic Winds, Jazz Ensembles Eastern Nazarene College Free Spring Concert May 5

Eastern Nazarene College's Symphonic Winds and 4 O'Clock Jazz ensembles will present a free spring concert Wednesday May 5 at 7:30 p.m. in the Cove Fine Arts Center on the college's main campus in Wollaston.

Comprised of both ENC students, adults and selected area high school students, the 35-member Symphonic Winds will perform a number of musical selections before turning the stage over to the 4 O'Clock Jazz Ensemble, which will present a jazz program featuring "big band" instrumentation.

The program will be conducted by Prof. Stephen Bell.

An ENC graduate, Bell has been directing ENC's Symphonic Winds and 4 O'Clock Jazz ensembles for nearly a decade. He recently retired after 33 years of teaching music in the Rockland Public Schools, where he was the middle- and high-school band director and the director of music. Eastern Nazarene College is located at 23 E. Elm Ave., Quincy.

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Rigatoni & Eggplant Bake

I have always loved anything with tomato sauce, from pasta, mixed with eggs, and any vegetable. And so it was last week, when instead of just having pasta, I cooked it with eggplant and the combination of the two was the best.

And I made it a day ahead, which is always a good thing. The eggplant isn't hard to make as I always bake it on a cookie sheet rather than frying.

RIGATONI, EGG PLANT BAKE

1-pound wheat rigatoni (or a favorite)
1-quart tomato sauce (or more if needed)
1-pound ricotta cheese
1 package of shredded mozzarella (or a favorite)
1 medium sized eggplant
Bread crumbs for topping
1 egg and milk mixed for topping
Grated Romano or Parmesan cheese

First prepare the eggplant. I don't skin them, but you can if you prefer. Cut in quarter inch slices. Place each slice in the egg and milk mixture and then the breadcrumbs. Place on a greased cookie sheet and bake in a 350-degree oven until they are par cooked.

Boil the pasta as directed. After it is drained place it in the same pan and add some of the tomato sauce and half of the ricotta. Blend well.

Ricotta can be mixed with an egg, grated cheese, and parsley if desired. But plain ricotta can be used also.

In a slightly greased baking dish, add some tomato sauce, some of the pasta, and then a layer of the eggplant. On top of that, add tomato sauce, some of the ricotta and mozzarella cheese as you would lasagna, and add in layers until done topping it with the pasta. Sprinkle some of the mozzarella cheese on top and some grated cheese.

Bake covered in a 375-degree oven for about half an hour or until bubbly. Take the cover off and bake for another five minutes or so. And then cut in squares.

'Quincy - 1865-1915' Topic At Historical Society

Quincy Historical Society executive director Edward Fitzgerald will present "A Look at Quincy, 1865-1915," an illustrated talk and display, at the next meeting of Quincy Historical Society, Thursday, April 29 at 7:30 p.m. at the Adams Academy in Quincy Center.

The April 29 program is intended as a companion to the Historical Society's upcoming Annual Meeting program, on May 17, at which best-selling author Stephen Puleo will discuss his new book, A City So Grand, Boston 1850-1900.

For "A Look at Quincy, 1865-1915," Dr. Fitzgerald will draw upon the Historical Society's extensive collection of photographs and artifacts to present an array of images and to display objects from the period.

"The years from 1865 to 1915 are in many respects a 'lost' period in Quincy history," Fitzgerald said. "They receive less attention than the earlier eras of John Adams and John Quincy Adams and the opening of the quarries and less attention than the later eras of Howard Johnson and the shipbuilding of World War II. Yet it's during this half century that many aspects of the Quincy we live in took shape."

Among the topics the program will look at are the aftermath of the Civil War, the changing nature of the Granite industry, the beginning of the Fore River shipyard, the establishment of cultural institutions like the Thomas Crane Library, the change from town to city government, and the transforming waves of European immigration.

The public is welcome to attend this free program.

DOROTHY QUINCY HOMESTEAD

Open House Saturday At Dorothy Quincy Homestead

The Dorothy Quincy Homestead, a National Historic Landmark located at the corner of Hancock Street and Butler Road, will offer its first public open house this season Saturday, April 24, from 1 to 4 p.m.

Docent-led tours will start on the hour and half hour beginning at 1 p.m. The last tour begins at 3:30 p.m.

All tours are free of charge, but a voluntary contribution is suggested.

Dating from 1686, the house is now 324 years old. During the 17th and 18th centuries, this mansion was considered the grandest estate in Quincy.

During the Revolutionary War era, it was a meeting place for such patriots as Josiah Quincy, John Hancock and John Adams. It was a childhood home of Dorothy Quincy Hancock, the wife of John Hancock.

The Homestead recently received a new cedar shake roof, and thanks for a generous grant from the city of Quincy's Preservation Committee, a donation of carpentry by the North Bennet Street School, a new balustrade will be installed soon on this stately mansion.

Cub, Boy Scouts To Help Clean, Plant Trees At Faxon Park Saturday

Cub Scout Pack 42 and Boy Scout Troop 42 both of Quincy will gather at Faxon Park Saturday, April 24 to join Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymond to clean up the Park.

This clean up for the Scouts is part of a Centennial Day of Service. Scouts from all over the Boston area will be out on April 24 in their local communities, or at State or National Park sites lending a hand in service to improve our communities.

This is part of the Boy Scouts of America 100 Year Anniversary Celebration that is continuing throughout 2010. Scouts will be helping clean up Faxon Park for another season in service to the community as part of the Centennial Day of Service.

Scouts from the Pack and Troop will be planting Trees as another part of their Centennial Celebration Saturday. The Boys Scouts of America and the Arbor Day foundation have partnered as part of a program called Generations Connection.

"Both groups recognize the tree is an important symbol of the family and generations, and the belief that a tree will continue to provide, long after we're gone," said Diane Trubiano, Cubmaster of Pack 42 in Quincy.

"Just as the seeds of Scouting have and will continue to influence the youth of America for generations past, present and future. Because of that symbolism and a shared mission for service and environmental stewardship there is no better Generations Connection partner than the Arbor Day Foundation.

Trubiano said Arbor Day has designated official BSA

100th Anniversary trees for anyone to enjoy. For every BSA 100th Anniversary tree purchased from the Arbor Day foundation, another will be planted in Montana at the newly created Boy Scouts of America Centennial Forest. The Centennial Forest will aid replanting of the Flathead National Forest following recent fires.

After completing their service at Faxon Park both groups will continue their day of service at separate projects at different Scout camps used by the groups. Cub Scout Pack 42 will end their day of service by Sleeping out to End Malaria and pitch tents either in their own back yards or at Camp Massasoit, contributing money for every tent pitched towards, Nothing but Nets and organization that provides mosquito nets to those in need in Africa.

'Friends Fighting Autism' Present $700 To Squantum School

PTO Match Brings Total To $1400
To Help Children With Autism, Sensory Issues

By JOE REARDON

The kindergarten students at the Squantum School barreled over to the desks, with an array of new learning tools on each. For more than 20 minutes, earlier this month, they familiarized themselves with the vibrating pens and weighted vests, laughing with excitement.

Only minutes before, Paula Glynn and Erin Nickerson, co-presidents of the group "Friends Fighting Autism" presented a $700 check to principal Steve Sylvia and occupational therapist Tara McCloud. The Squantum School's PTO matched the amount, making it a grand total of $1,400 to be used towards tools for children with autism and sensory issues.

"We're starting at the elementary schools and working our way up," said Glynn, whose 5-year-old son Brendan is autistic. "Quincy is a wonderful framework for the rest of the state. These kids are not easy to deal with."

Today, it is estimated that one in every 110 children is diagnosed with autism, making it more common than childhood cancer, juvenile diabetes and pediatric AIDS combined. An estimated 1.5 million individuals in the U.S. and tens of millions worldwide are affected by autism. Government statistics suggest the prevalence rate of autism is increasing 10-17 percent annually. There is not established explanation for this increase, although improved diagnosis and environmental influences are two reasons often considered. Studies suggest boys are more likely than girls to develop autism and receive the diagnosis three to four times more frequently. Current estimates are that in the United States alone, one out of 70 boys are diagnosed with autism.

Sylvia believes the learning tools are key in working with the autistic children. "We were able to buy all this equipment for different learning styles," he said. "I'm the most thankful guy in the world."

The previous day, Glynn and Nickerson presented the staff of the Amelio Della Chiesa Early Childhood Center with a check for $700. "The main goal is to raise as much money as we can and give out as much money as we can," said Nickerson, whose 7-year-old nephew Andrew is autistic. "It's ongoing as the money comes in."

Nickerson said the group wants to acquire funding for all the schools in Quincy that offer special needs and autistic learning. The Snug Harbor School, Point Webster and Quincy High School have been earmarked for funds in the near future.

She said the special need funds through "Friends Fighting Autism" has been met with overwhelming gratitude. "The schools are more than grateful," Nickerson said. "They've been shocked because we went to them. They didn't seek us out."

Next up for the group is the Third Annual Friends Fighting Autism Softball Games, slated for Aug. 28 with a rain date set for the 29th. The event, which has raised nearly $6,000 total the past two years, will consist of four teams be held at the Squantum School field.

"They've been great," Nickerson said of the past two fundraisers. "We usually have it Labor Day weekend but we moved it up this year."

To help the program, send donations to "Friends Fighting Autism" 76 Shoreham St., Squantum, MA.

'FRIENDS FIGHTING AUTISM' present a $700 check to the Squantum Elementary School. The school's PTO matched the donation to bring the total to $1400. Funds will be used for tools for children with autism and sensory issues. Holding the check are Enzo (left) and Vito Guarino. Looking on are (first row, from left): Vincent, Angelo, Kelli and Vincent Guarino and Paula Glynn. Second row: School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro, Erin Nickerson and Judith Todd.

City Celebrates Community Development Week

Mayor Thomas P. Koch and Planning Director Dennis E. Harrington announce the City of Quincy's participation in National Community Development Week 2010 was another great success.

The weeklong celebration was held across the country from April 5-10.

Community Development Week provides an opportunity for Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) communities to showcase CDBG-funded projects and programs, and involve the local community, including local businesses, citizens, and community groups.

The CDBG program is a flexible program, administered by the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), that provides communities, such as Quincy, with resources to address a wide range of unique community development needs.

"We are a strong community of great neighborhoods and the CDBG program continues to strengthen our city by channeling Federal funds directly through our Department of Planning and Community Development to address crucial neighborhood issues," said Mayor Koch.

"From community center funding to street and sidewalk repair, the CDBG program is a vital and effective tool to assist us in meeting the needs in our community."

Eleven events were held during Community Development Week to celebrate the positive impacts CDBG and other HUD resources have had in Quincy.

Highlights of the weeklong celebration included the ribbon cutting of the "Emerge Boutique" at the MAYOR TOM KOCH greets residents during an open house at the Houghs Neck Community Center. The open house was one of the events marking Community Development Week in Quincy.

Germantown Neighborhood Center and an open house at the newly renovated Houghs Neck Community Center.

The "Emerge Boutique" is part of a new women's program at the Germantown Neighborhood Center. The boutique offers free clothing to local women who are in need of appropriate attire for job training and job placement activities. The clothing has been donated by J. Jill, and women will access the boutique by making an appointment to meet with a fashion consultant on site. The boutique is the newest feature of the center's women's initiative programs, which seeks to help local women gain better skills, assist them in becoming more self-sufficient, and increase self-esteem.

"Today is a day for celebration," Delahunt said. "What you are witnessing here today is evidence that government can work when it works with community groups."

"Invariably, these kinds of programs really can deliver. This is a day where we can embrace the fact that here in Germantown, there is a community that comes together, that works together -- especially when it comes to the issue of empowerment of women."

"The different programs here at the Germantown Neighborhood Center really help empower women to step up and I'm glad to represent this area," said Ward 1 Councillor Margaret Laforest.

"I would really like to tell members of the City Council and Dennis Harrington how delightful it is to work with the staff of the community development office," said Paula Newcomb, Senior Community Planning and Development Representative from HUD.

"You have a group of people that are dedicated and capable. We are very proud of the work that Quincy has done consistently...and they really need to be recognized for their work with all of the other community groups in the city. They do a wonderful job and we really can't say enough about them and we enjoy working with them."

This event was also used as an opportunity for the city's Department of Planning and Community Development to present outstanding achievement awards to some local individuals, including Congressman Delahunt, who was presented with a lifetime achievement award for his commitment to community and his drive to serve low and moderate income individuals.

"I'm pleased to say that over the course of my tenure as your Congressman, over $35 million have come to the city through this particular grant program," said

Congressman Delahunt, "and I'm confident it has made a serious contribution to impacting the lives of the people here in my hometown."

Certificates of Recognition were presented to Elizabeth Campbell and Staff of Quincy Access Television; Dennis E. Harrington, City of Quincy Planning Director; and Mary Hurley, former Senior Vice-President of the South Shore YMCA. Stephen Buckley, Director of the North Quincy Community Center, was presented with the Mayor's Fourth Annual Community Service Award.

Others in attendance at the Germantown event included Norfolk County District Attorney William Keating, State Senator Michael W. Morrissey, State Representative A. Stephen Tobin, former Ward One City Councillor Leo J. Kelly, and an estimated 100 individuals, including local community and business leaders.

The other main event of Community Development Week was an open house at the Houghs Neck Community Center, to celebrate the recent and substantial renovation of the center, made possible, in part, through the CDBG program.

"Our Planning Department does a phenomenal job overseeing the various programs which are funded by the federal government, including the Community Development Block Grant program," Koch said at the Houghs Neck event. "Our Planning Department has received several national awards for their work in the city, so I'm grateful to them."

Other events during Community Development Week included the ribbon cutting of a new affordable housing project called "Safe Homes"; the premier of "Welcome Home", which is an infomercial produced by the City of Quincy Fair Housing Committee; senior line dancing at the Ward Two Community Center; a senior luncheon at the North Quincy Community Center; a playgroup at the Ward Four Neighborhood Center; a Chi Gong class hosted by the Asian American Service Association; Bingo at the Squantum Community Center; and Yoga at the Kennedy Center.

"I would like to thank all of the community center directors for their participation in Community Development Week," said Nancy A. Callanan, Director of Community Development in the City of Quincy. "These directors give tirelessly of themselves to improve the quality of life for all Quincy residents, and we are grateful for their efforts."

Community Development

Week ended with the city's participation at the "Opportunity Knocks Homebuyer Fair" at the South Shore Plaza. Quincy's Affordable Housing Trust Fund sponsored an information booth regarding the "At Home in Quincy" program, which may provide homebuyers living or working in Quincy with help to make the purchase of their first home more affordable with up to 2% down-payment assistance and Private Mortgage Insurance (PMI) paid for through the Trust.

"Community Development Week was another great success," Harrington said. "Our weeklong celebration brought together representatives from every level of government, and most importantly, included opportunities for every Quincy resident to experience the benefits of the community development programs first hand. I wish to express my gratitude to Nancy Callanan for her efforts in organizing another extraordinary Community Development Week."

The City of Quincy has been designated as a model community for participation in Community Development Week, having received the John A. Sasso National Community Development Week Award each year that is has been nominated for the honor.

Having a Party? Four Star Paper Is The Place To Go!

Four Star Paper provides a unique shopping experience. If you're having a party, it's the place to go to find all you need! If you're a retail customer, you'll find everyday paper supplies in addition to party supplies. If you're a member of a church, parent group or club, you'll find products for functions, fundraisers or stocking your facility. If you're a wholesale customer, you'll find products in quantity as well as small items you may need. No matter why you come to Four Star, you will find quality products at reasonable prices.

Entering its twentieth year in business in Quincy, Four Star Paper is a family owned business. Named in honor of the owners' four children, you can usually find a family member in the store. We have recently moved from our original location on Penn Street around the corner to 84 Liberty Street. We are open to the public Monday-Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. and on Saturday from 8:30 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. The spacious new location remains staffed by the same knowledgeable people who actually enjoy helping customers. "There aren't many stores whose employees still greet people and ask them if they need help. There are still fewer who help them to their cars with their purchases when they need help," says owner Jackie Pescatore.

Four Star Paper offers retail customers basic party needs-plates, napkins, cups, cutlery, table covers. It also stocks a wide variety of paper party and seasonal products. We offer birthday, luau, baby shower, religious celebration, graduation, patriotic and other special occasion paper products. In addition, we offer disposable trays, utensils and canned foods to help you with your event. Add fun to any party with our balloon centerpieces and bouquets.

Four Star Paper services wholesale customers including coffee and sub shops, restaurants, caterers, and management companies. We offer delivery to these customers and pride ourselves on our speedy and efficient service. As a testimony to that service and competitive pricing, we still retain many of our original customers.

Four Star Paper is a member of both the Quincy and South Shore Chambers of Commerce and the National Federation of Independent Business. For more information on available products, please visit us at www.fourstarpaper.com.

Police Chief Reports Arrests Up, Manpower Down in all 12 months of 2009. In addition, there were 75 juvenile court cases from January through March, just three months, in contrast to a total of 189 in 2009.

Also alarming are the number of firearms seized most recently. As of March 16, officers seized 15 firearms while 16 were seized in all of 2009, only 12 in 2008 and seven in 2007.

Despite the crime statistics, Chief Keenan stressed Quincy is a very safe city experiencing the problems of the urban scene, due to drugs, a transient population in Quincy Center, unemployment and hardship.

"I think we're in good shape," said Chief Keenan, citing federal resources, a lot of surveillance after tips, and a working relationship with federal drug agents and the Boston police gang unit.

Most significantly, Chief Keenan said the city has an alert citizen base and, in many instances, the initial call on drug activity, "... usually, it comes from tips from citizens."

In addition, police officers themselves are stepping up to the plate literally and filling in at playground programs such as those at Feno and Kincaide Parks.

"I think it's been successful," Chief Keenan said of the program designed to help youngsters avoid trouble.

Now that the grant money is severely limited, Chief Keenan said, "A lot of the officers volunteer their time."

In addition, Bay State Community Services is training all Quincy police officers in the use and administering of Narcan.

"All of our officers are trained or will be trained," according to Chief Keenan who noted that Narcan is used to prevent death from drug overdoses. He credited local residents for their efforts in helping establish the program in Quincy.

$21.5M Police Budget

Chief Keenan last week summarized police statistics, programs and progress in the past year for the Finance Committee's annual pre-budget scrutiny of city departments. Councilor John Keenan chairs the committee.

At over $21.5 million, the police department budget ranks second only in expenditures to the school department. Of that sum, $20.9 million or roughly 97% is allocated for salaries.

"We're very lean," Chief Keenan said, referring to the diminished numbers with patrol and superior officer positions left unfilled.

As examples, Chief Keenan noted there were 176 patrol officers in 2000 in contrast to today's 141 patrol officers. At the same time, there are five fewer superior officers.

Despite a drop in reported sources, Keenan said, "We plan to finish the year in the black. We will come in on budget."

Chief Keenan said that grants which previously helped to offset budget cuts are now drying up and cited reductions in training and in the replacement of vehicles.

"The fleet is aging as we speak. We're replacing a lot of the transmissions." Said Chief Keenan who also noted that the officers' firearms training and certification has been delayed.

In the first three months of 2010, the department seized $153,606 during drug investigations while officers seized $178,062 in all 12 months of 2009. Unfortunately, those funds are now harder for the city to access, according to Chief Keenan who said the courts ordered that all cash must now be forensically tested and "The state's not sending out a chemist (to test the cash)."

If the officers on the street, in courts and undercover are busier than ever so, too, are their four-footed friends in the K-9 Unit which responded to 507 calls in 2009.

According to the reports, the K-9 unit undertook challenges in 10 categories. As examples, there were 123 searches for fleeing suspects, 88 for drugs in schools, 76 building searches, 54 searches for guns or explosive devices and 34 vehicle searches.

Chief Keenan also reported the department's Marine Unit hit the seas last week with a solid 2009 record which included 30 boat rescues, three 'man overboard' rescues, two missing children searches and 24 fuel tanker escorts.

DRUGS AND DOLLARS

After the statistics were reviewed, councilors questioned Chief Keenan regarding specific areas and potential sources of revenues.

Ward 5 Councilor Douglas Gutro asked about drug activity at Quincy Center T Station and suggested that patrols be stepped up at that location.

"Quincy Center T has always been a hot spot," said Chief Keenan, noting an officer is assigned there day and night.

Ward 2 Councilor Dan Raymondi asked about drug and gang problems in Quincy.

Chief Keenan replied, "We don't have organized gangs. We have a youth problem."

However, Chief Keenan described several gang-related individuals who live in Quincy as "splash-over."

"We work with the Boston Gang Unit," he added that Boston periodically sends a photo of a gang member heading south to Quincy and Quincy police will circulate 'Wanted' posters.

As for being a drug headquarters for dealers, Quincy is "not host city," according to Chief Keenan who said that, for the most part, dealers "come here to sell, not buy."

Councillor Mike McFarland asked how successful the city is in collecting payments for police details from private entities.

"We take in $300,000 a year," said Chief Keenan, adding, "The collect rate is 100%."

Nick Puleo, Director of Municipal Finance, said that no police details are allowed for any company or agency with a past due bill of 60 days or more.

As for old bills which are past due, Puleo said the administration is currently considering solutions.

Last May, Puleo's predecessor Warren Sproul outlined overdue bills due the city and estimated that the police department was owed as much as $900,000 over the past ten years by private parties for special detail assignments.

At the time, Sproul offered to e-mail the 1300 pages listing decade-old deadbeat accounts of up to $9 million owed to the city for everything from old parking tickets to motor vehicle excise taxes. There were no takers among the city councilors.

A Simple Plea To The QEA Leadership

I am writing today to respectfully ask the QEA President, Mr. Paul Phillips, and his leadership team to bring the discussion of wage deferral to the QEA members. The realities of not accepting a wage deferral will have a great impact on the Quincy Public School System and their membership and this topic needs a serious discussion.

Growing up in a union household where my father was a union president, I know firsthand the importance that collective bargaining can have on a family's livelihood. Currently, I have two brothers, a brother-in-law and a nephew who are union members, so this is something that I do not take lightly.

But I also know the devastating effects of being laid off with no prospects for work in the near future. With the job market in its current state, union members losing their positions would have a very hard time entering the job market.

These are indeed difficult times for community budgets throughout our state. Serious deliberation and hard decisions must be made and everything and everyone is on the table. Even for the Quincy Public School teachers who may feel that their jobs are safe, there will be a new reality. Classroom sizes could swell to 30-35 students per classroom if we do not find a compromise and defer salaries. Teacher's livelihoods and day-to-day stress will now require standards to be met with 10 - 15 more students in their classrooms. These are not conditions that benefit the teachers or the students. Inevitably programs will be lost. History tells us that very few programs, teachers or conditions are ever restored in the future.

It is important to understand what we are talking about here. A 4% raise in teacher salary will cost the city $4.8 million. This is something that the city simply cannot afford at this time. Additionally, Quincy would lose $800K in Chapter 70 local aid funding. If a fair agreement is not reached, I worry that our schools will become unrecognizable to the parents, teachers and students of our great city. The original number of teachers losing their jobs was quoted as 100, but I believe it could be significantly higher. What has not been taken into account is the cost of unemployment. For every 2 teachers that are laid off, a third is needed to be let go to cover the costs of unemployment, and I am actually being conservative. Additionally, we are facing a 4% cut in funding from the state. This will lead to more lay-offs and the numbers could just keep growing.

The numbers are extremely important, but not as important as what these cuts really translate into. Just so you can tangibly wrap your mind around what this may mean, here are some examples of what we are looking at: Small classroom sizes will be a thing of the past. Additional program cuts could include full-day kindergarten, literacy programs, foreign languages, health, art, music, technology education, media, theater, and athletics. Programmatic cuts could also impact Chapter 70 certificate programs, advanced placement, as well as deans, guidance, security, para-professionals and administrative personnel. Also, transportation for public school students may only exist if you live more than 2 miles away from your school district or more than 2 miles from your home for Parochial School students. This is all just the tip of the iceberg. We are no longer talking about a rippling effect to our programs. We are talking about a tsunami of catastrophic cuts that could destroy our school system. All of the national recognition for merit that our school system has earned will fade into distant memories. The teachers, who I admire greatly and work so hard on the behalf of students, may be met with anger and resentment over an outcome that could have been prevented. When our schools and teachers have needed help, it is our families and the community that have always been there for them. We are not asking you to give back your hard earned increases, we are only asking for them to be deferred. I view our proud school system as the true catalyst for securing a bright future for Quincy. So now we are asking you for help. We need you to stand alongside of us and hold our system together.

Mr. Phillips, a decision of this magnitude should not lie in the hands of a leadership team of five. My only request is that the leadership team brings this topic to its membership where a full and frank discussion can take place. The future of our school system and the realities of the job market for so many of your members is what is at stake. I believe that your union brothers and sisters would like to have their say.

Please let the final decision rest with your membership.

Anne Mahoney,
Vice Chair of the Quincy School Committee, and more importantly, the mother of 3 children currently enrolled in the Quincy Public School System.

At Framingham High School

Quincy's Kristen Kelley Named Teacher Of The Year

Quincy's Kristen Kelley was named one of three "Teachers of the Year" recently at a ceremony celebrating her accomplishments at Framingham High School.

Kelley, a graduate of North Quincy High School and Assumption College, is the daughter of Jim and Joanne Kelley, Quincy. Her three brothers are Brian, James and Stephen.

Friends, relatives and fellow educators saluted Kristen at the 18th annual "Salute To Framingham" celebration at the Framingham Sheraton.

The event honors the accomplishments of teachers who are selected for outstanding work and Kristen was one of the 11 chosen for the 2009-2010 year as "You Are Special."

Ten years ago, Kristen began teaching Spanish at Framingham High School right after her graduation from Assumption college. After five years, Kristen joined the Resiliency for Life Program and coordinated the Grades 9 and 11 sections. During this period, she earned her Masters' degree in education.

The official commendation cites her work as a teacher inspiring at-risk students. Kristen teaches 30 students "who aren't sure they want to be in school at all. These kids are part of a highly specialized program that works with students in serious academic peril."

"Ms. Kelley has earned the reputation (for) being a talented and challenging teacher, a teacher who, above all else, is called to advocate for the kid who needs a second chance to do better.

"Without her commitment to their academic success, many of the students Ms. Kelley works with would not have graduated from Framingham High School and for this we can all be deeply grateful."

Framingham High School, the sixth largest high school in the state, enrolls over 2100 students of diversified ethnic and economic backgrounds.

Street Intersections To Be Named In Memory Of 3 Quincy Vietnam Veterans

By TOM HENSHAW

Three Quincy youths, two teenagers and another barely out of his teens, who died more than 40 years ago in the jungles of southeast Asia, will be honored Thursday (April 29) by the Vietnam Combat Veterans Combined Armed Forces (VCVCAF).

Streets intersections in their home neighborhoods will be renamed for Army SP4 Richard S. Davis Jr. of West Quincy, Marine Lance Cpl. John W. Granahan of Germantown and Marine Pfc Gary J. Webb of Wollaston.

Retired Marine Col. Francis J. "Bing" West, an author and former Assistant Secretary of State for International Security Affairs, will be the guest speaker at the annual Vietnam Veterans Memorial Service at 2 p.m. at the Memorial Clock Tower in Marina Bay.

The junction of Granite and Copeland Streets will become the Richard S. Davis Jr. Square at 10:30 a.m. in memory of the 21-year-old Green Beret who was fatally wounded in action June 6, 1968, near the Cambodian border.

His patrol was sent to rescue another patrol that was pinned down. He was wounded twice but remained on the radio, coordinating air cover. He was wounded again, this time mortally. He was awarded the Silver Star for his heroism.

Davis was "an Army brat" living in many places until he was 12 when his father, a master sergeant, died and the family moved to West Quincy. He was a 1966 graduate of Quincy Trade School.

The rotary at Shed and Palmer Streets will be dedicated at 12:30 p.m. to Lance Cpl. John W. Granahan, 19, who was fatally wounded by mortar fire July 5, 1967, at a Marine outpost while attempting to rescue several wounded comrades.

He graduated from Quincy High School in 1965 and joined the Marines the following February. He attended the Armed Forces Language School and went to Vietnam as a language expert on Easter Sunday, 1967.

The intersection of Fenno Street and Estabrooke Road will be renamed at 1:30 p.m. for Pfc Gary J. Webb, 18, a rifleman, had only been in Vietnam for 16 days on June 22, 1969, when he was killed while on a scouting mission 15 miles outside of Da Nang.

A 1968 graduate of North Quincy High School who briefly attended the University of Massachusetts, he enlisted in the Marine Corps in November and was selected as the recruit "who most nearly attains the characteristics of an ideal Marine" at Parris Island boot camp.

Guest speaker West is the author of the 2004 book, The March Up: Taking Baghdad With the First Marine Division, written with Marine Gen. Ray L. Smith, that was awarded the Marine Corps Heritage Prize for non-fiction.

He was an infantry officer in the Marine Corps during the Vietnam War and once with a Combined Action Platoon that fought for 485 days in a remote village. He was assistant Secretary of State in the Reagan administration.

West will be introduced by retired Marine Lt. Col. Orson Swindle, a former prisoner of war.

Other speakers will include Mayor Thomas Koch, State Sen. Michael Morrissey, State Rep. Bruce Ayers and retired Air Force Capt. Edward "Ned" Ramm. They will be introduced by Lawrence M. Norton, president of the Quincy VCVCAF chapter.

Retired Marine Sgt Thomas A. Bolinder will introduce the Vietnam veterans and their families; Joseph H. Brooker, past president of the VCVCAF, will place a wreath; and Lawrence A. Connors and David Lawson will read the Memorial Roll Call.

Quincy Police Officer Donald Sautter will sing the national anthem and Steven Kring, a retired Quincy police sergeant, will sound Taps. Naseeb "Moe" Morad of the Morrisette Post will be the soloist.

The Rev. John Carl Swanson, pastor of the Union Congregational Church of Wollaston and a former Navy lieutenant himself, will deliver the invocation and the benediction.

Tanglewood Marionettes At Wollaston Church April 23

Tanglewood Marionettes will present "Sleeping Beauty" Friday, April 23 at 10:30 a.m. at Wollaston Congregational Church, 48

Winthrop Ave. Tickets are $7 per person. Seating is limited to the first 150 people. To reserve a seat, call 617-773-7432.

OBITUARY

Rev. John D. Banks, 95
Pastor Emeritus, Bethany Congregational Church

Rev. JOHN D. BANKS

The Rev. John Dundas Banks, 95, pastor emeritus at Bethany Congregational Church, died April 14 at Carolina Meadows in Chapel Hill, North Carolina.

Rev. Banks, who became minister of Bethany Church in September, 1954, terminated his 26-year pastorate June 30, 1980, the longest pastorate in the history of Bethany. His retirement also concluded 40 years of ministry in the Congregational Church.

Rev. Banks became pastor emeritus on retirement in 1980.

During his pastorate, 1,099 new members were received into the church. Eighty-two new members, the largest group to be received at one time, entered into the fellowship of the church on April 18, 1957.

During Rev. Banks's pastorate, 710 children received baptism; 288 weddings took place of which 70 percent involved at least one Bethany member; 848 funerals were conducted, the majority for nonmembers.

He preached 1,100 morning sermons at Bethany.

Church members fondly remembered his enthusiastic participation in all Bethany activities from Sunday School picnics and artistic pageants by Bethany Players during Advent and Lent. He participated in all aspects of Bethany life.

He was also known for his care of Bee Hives on the retirement to Chapel Hill in 1980, and settled in at Carolina Meadows in 1997.

Rev. Banks was the son of Scottish immigrants, Peter and Grace (Dundas) Banks. He developed a lasting interest in the land of his ancestors, serving as president of the Scots' Charitable Society of Boston.

In Chapel Hill, he was noted for recitations of the poetry of Robert Burns, complete and in full Scottish braid enunciation. Avocations included beekeeping, bagpiping and golf.

Rev. Banks was a regular contributor to the local community newsletter the Meadowlark and served as co-editor for five years.

Since arriving in North Carolina the Bankses have been members of the United Church of Chapel Hill. A member of the Tar Heel Golden K Kiwanis Club, Mr. Banks had earlier served as president of the Chapel Hill-Carrboro Club. He also carried out volunteer work in patient education at UNC Hospitals for 13 years.

In addition to his wife, "Billie," Mr. Banks is survived by daughter, Heather Banks of Montgomery Village, MD and son Peter Banks with wife Susan in Charlotte, N.C. He was the father of the late Tamsen Webb, also of Chapel Hill.

Mr. Banks is also survived by seven grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Cremation Society of the Carolinas.

Memorial donations may be made to UNC Hospice, P.O. Box 1077, Pittsboro, NC 27312 or to the United Church of Chapel Hill.

PSORIASIS

Psoriasis is a chronic and recurrent inflammatory disease of the skin. It can adversely affect the feet and toenails, and it bears an appearance similar to athlete's foot and fungal infections of the toenails. Psoriasis manifests as round, reddish, dry patches that are covered by silvery white or grayish white scales. When the scales are brushed off, pinpoint bleeding occurs. In some cases, small blisters filled with clear or cloudy fluid appear. Affected toenails have a pitted appearance. Treatment for this condition may include anti-inflammatory medications, steroids, topical medications, and fish oil supplements. In addition, lowering the consumption of protein-rich meat and dairy products in the diet may help reduce flare-ups.

Self-diagnosis and treatment for skin problems such as psoriasis may not always be in your best interest. Whatever problems your feet encounter, give them professional attention while the problems are still in their minor stages. It's much better, easier, and less costly to deal with problems early on than to face major treatment at a later date. Remember, foot problems don't usually don't just disappear on their own. Remember, too, that we are here at QUINCY MEDICAL CENTER to help when your feet hurt. Call us for an appointment at 781-966-3668. Office hours are also available at 999 North Main St., in the Randolph Medical Office Building, and Milton Medical Building in Suite 221. I am affiliated with the Brockton and Good Samaritan Hospitals.

Academic Associates READING TEACHER

What should I do to get my child on track in reading?

Leading educators agree that students who can't read well by third grade are severely handicapped for the rest of their lives. In fact, by the end of first grade every child should be able to read nearly every word in our language. At Academic Associates students typically become excellent readers in only 30 - 60 hours and read on or above grade level in that short time. Our method is a simple, effective, natural method that works with the brain rather than against it. From years of experience we know there is only one reading method that works every time, with every student. No other method even comes close. If a child in your family needs to read better call today and give them the skill they so desperately need.

Raise Five-Year Total To $8,247

Sterling Middle School Students Take A Pie In The Face For Cancer

Over the past five years Sterling Middle School students have collected pennies and raised over $8,247 for the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society's Pennies for Patient's campaign.

Leukemia is the leading cause of disease related death among children. Once again, during these uncertain economic times, Sterling Middle School students did a great job reaching deep into their pockets and selflessly raising $1,056.

Committed to helping find a cure and raise awareness about leukemia and other blood cancers is Sterling's goal each year.

"Our students love doing this campaign every year," said Mrs. Gina Joyce, Helping Hands Youth Council facilitator.

"The classroom challenges are competitive, creative and fun. The race for first place gets very serious. This service learning campaign brings the whole school together.

"Faculty members and the Helping Hands Youth Council work together and educate our students about leukemia, lymphoma and other blood cancers. This campaign build's character as well as teach compassion."

Mrs. Joyce also stated that the lunch activities raised a lot of money as well.

At one lunch two sixth grade students, Jillian Mulvaney and Katrina Nee created their own birthday campaign; if their class reached $50, they would take a pie in the face! Their teachers enjoyed the honors!

At other lunches over $250 was raised, when students paid $2 to listen to their iPod at lunch.

"These students serve as an example to all of us through their commitment to helping others," said Sharon Klein, executive director, of the Massachusetts Chapter. "Their efforts will help local patients and their families along with funding blood cancer research at the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute, Boston's Childrens Hospital, New England Medical center and Massachusetts General Hospital along with 13 other institutions throughout Massachusetts."

A special thank you to each classroom and Quincy Credit Union for counting all the coins.

Give Your Home A Fresh Look For Spring

(NAPSA) - Spring cleaning has become a ritual in homes across America. But, as families focus on decluttering closets and revitalizing their indoor spaces, many overlook simple, inexpensive outdoor projects that can give a home a real "facelift" and make it look and feel like new.

Clean the exterior. It's amazing how much better, and how much newer, a home can look after a good cleaning. And with the availability of cleaners that can be applied with pump sprayers and hose mount applicators, it's never been easier to give a house a "facelift" without power washing or costly repainting. If your house is wearing a coat of mold, mildew, dirt and grime, try a cleaner like Jomax(r) House Cleaner and Mildew Killer. It removes the most stubborn stains without scrubbing and is safe to use near plants, grass and shrubs.

Refresh the driveway. Thanks to the evolution of new water-based technologies, restoring a driveway to its "like new" appearance is easy for even inexperienced do-it-yourselfers. EPOXY SHIELD Blacktop Coating, with its advanced acrylic formula, brings asphalt back to its original jet black color and makes it look brand new again. The low-odor formula rolls on like paint and lasts longer than traditional asphalt-based sealers to enhance the first, and last, impression your home gives visitors.

Spruce up your deck. Both wood and composite decks need to be cleaned regularly to prevent deterioration and look their best. Biodegradable deck cleaners like Wolman(tm) DeckBrite(tm) excel at removing ground-in dirt and mildew stains without whitening or damaging the surface like chlorine bleach can-and they're easy to use. Wolman has a full line of transparent, semi-transparent and opaque stains and finishes in a wide array of colors, so you can achieve any look you desire.

"Upcycle" your outdoor furniture. You'd be surprised how easy and inexpensive it is to make an old, tired patio set better with just a few cans of spray paint. Today's spray paints come in a full palette of colors so you can personalize your outdoor space while saving your old furniture from the landfill.

Natural Stone: Affordable Luxury

(NAPSA) - After a year of belt tightening and just "making do," Americans are again investing in their homes-redecorating, remodeling and generally sprucing up.

The reason is simple: With mortgage money still restricted, consumers are "improving up" rather than moving up. In the past, many families would trade up to homes that offered appealing amenities like nicer kitchens or baths. This year, consumers are looking for ways to get the appealing kitchen or bath upgrade without the expense of moving.

And homeowners are finding that luxury enhancements like natural stone countertops can be very affordable. The timeless stone is unsurpassed in bringing warmth and richness to any room, immediately becoming a focal point. And, while the makers of synthetic countertops have tried to convince consumers that their manufactured products are as good as granite, natural stone remains unbeatable for enhancing the value of a home.

Consider what the experts advise. Each month, HGTV's FrontDoor.com, in partnership with DIYnetwork.com, identifies "maximum value projects" for improving different areas of the home. The partnership recently offered tips "for getting the most value out of kitchen and bath renovations." The recommendation? "To add beauty, value and buyer appeal to a kitchen, consider upgrading countertops to natural stone. Granite, marble, limestone and soapstone are popular options." The recommendation for bathroom improvement was simpler: "Upgrade to granite countertops."

THIS LOVELY, natural stone countertop is 3cm Copper Can-granite from Brazil, finished with a Dupont edge.

Stone countertops have become more affordable as demand has increased and as new technology has made it easier to cut and polish the stone. And the selection is unparalleled-greater than any other countertop surface.

"Granite countertops are becoming all the rage," writes KitchenKool.com, an online consumer information guide that does not sell products directly and is not affiliated with any individual manufacturer. "They're almost as hard as diamond, easy to maintain, heat resistant and come in a range of over 3,000 colors to enhance the beauty and usefulness of your kitchen or bath forever."

Studies show that consumers overwhelmingly prefer natural stone over synthetic materials. And it remains the gold standard for real estate resale. Why? Because natural stone looks good forever, while some countertop materials look old and tired within a few years. And the artificial dyes in many synthetic stone counters can look dated quickly.

Plus, natural granite countertops are absolutely unique, made by Mother Nature-not in a factory that manufactures the same material over and over all day long.

There are some options that can help you get the most bang for your buck for granite countertops:

- Color-Select a more popular variety of granite and it can be more affordable. Select a more exotic and rare variety and it can cost a bit more.
- Edge Profile-More intricate profiles require more work and can increase the cost of the stone. A simpler style still looks elegant but will cost less.
- Thickness of Slab-The most popular is the 1 1/4-inch slab, but check on the availability of 3/4-inch slabs that provide the same beauty and durability but will likely cost less.

A Job Well Done

On Sunday, April 11, at approximately 10:40 p.m., Officers William O'Neil and William Lanergan were dispatched to a Hancock Street apartment complex to meet with a male caller, who kept calling "911."

Officer Lanergan knew the caller from an incident a few days earlier in which the caller claimed that an unknown party had used rope to enter his fourth floor apartment and steal his testosterone. He also claimed that his ex-girlfriend was making deals with foreign agents to sell rocket launchers and AK-47s. On that prior call, the caller was checked by Fallon Ambulance EMTs, who determined that he was on heavy narcotic medication and needed to meet with his own doctor.

While enroute to the call, the officers were advised by dispatch that the caller/suspect had phoned the State Police 911 center several times and made threats that he was going to harm a Quincy police officer when they arrived.

The suspect stated, "The lead is going to fly."

Based on this new information, Officers James Parisi and Matt Tobin also were sent to the call as well as Fallon ambulance. Upon arrival, the officers walked up to the fourth floor and surprised the suspect, who was standing at the elevator door. The suspect appeared to be intoxicated and was very agitated as he pointed towards his apartment and stated angrily, "Let's go inside and talk."

Officer Lanergan walked into the apartment first to check if it was a safe place to speak to the subject. The suspect started yelling in the hallway, claiming that the police were there only "to blow off another important call." Officer Lanergan found a female inside the apartment, who stated she was the suspect's girlfriend, so he spoke with her in the hallway and asked if she still had an active restraining order against the suspect. (There was an active order on the last occasion).

At that point, the suspect came out to the hallway and became totally enraged, screaming "it's my apartment and you are not coming in here to bust her @$$%&." After being advised again the calm down, the suspect refused and screamed out, "the Quincy Police don't do @$$%& for me - I hope I have a heart attack and die and she can own you all." Other tenants began opening their doors to see what the disturbance was about.

After one final warning to calm down or be arrest, the suspect started waving his finger in the face of Officer Lanergan as he continued screaming. Officers Parisi and Lanergan handcuffed the suspect as he continued to yell and scream to his girlfriend, "call the @$$%&* State Police so they can come down here and arrest these @$$%&*."

The suspect, a 54-year-old Quincy resident, was transported to the police station for booking on the charge of disturbing the peace. A check of the suspect's criminal record showed that he has 72 entries, including numerous charges for assault and battery on police officers, assault and battery and assault and battery with a dangerous weapon charges. He also has 11 open cases in Norfolk County Superior that include charges of arson, possession of explosive devices, B&E nighttime, and larceny of a controlled substance.

Based on the suspect's actions, statements, previous actions with the police, his mixing prescription narcotics with alcohol, his altered state of mind and his extensive criminal history, Officer Lanergan believed that the suspect was a clear and present danger to the public, so he requested no bail until the suspect could be examined by a doctor at the court house.

Nice work!

Over 150 People Attended Night of Recognition for 40 Years of Coaching Morrisette Legion Baseball

An Evening For Raymond Cattaneo, Quincy's "Mr. Baseball"

By SEAN BRENNAN
Quincy's "Mr. Baseball" was honored the right way last Thursday night at a packed reception in the Tirrell Room of the Quincy Lodge of Elks.

Former teammates, players, and local politicians recognized Raymond Cattaneo, the longtime manager of the Morrisette Legion Post American Legion baseball team, for his 40 years of dedication to the team. Cattaneo coached his last Morrisette Legion Post team in 2009 and he finished his distinguished coaching career with a sterling 609-300 overall record. His first game as manager was on June 14, 1970, an 11-5 win over Franklin American Legion.

Highlights of Cattaneo's legendary run included four trips to the Northeast Regional Finals (1975, 1978, 1992, and 1998) a trip to the American Legion World Series (1975), two 30-win teams (1975 and 1992), and 32 straight winning seasons.

"It was so nice to see everyone," said Cattaneo. "I didn't think most of those there would be able to make it. It was a wonderful night and it felt so good to know that so many people wanted to come out and attend the dinner."

"I really enjoyed coaching for those 40 years. If I changed one kid's life and helped them become a better person, not just as a ball-player that is really all I can ask for. It was an emotional night for me."

Cattaneo, before becoming manager of Morrisette Legion Post, played for the program between 1945-1947. He, according to his former teammates, was destined to become a coach. He was a phenomenal ballplayer in his own right (having played professionally with the Atlanta Braves organization after being drafted out of Boston College High School), but it was his leadership qualities that made him stand out amongst his peers.

"He was an outstanding player and probably was the best shortstop I have ever seen," said Al Halloran, a former teammate of Ray's back in the 1940s. "I think he was a coach before he even became a coach. He was a leader. Ray was a great teammate and an even better guy."

Among the folks who took the time to come and honor Cattaneo, current Morrisette Legion Post manager Steve Maze may have been the most humble. Maze, having the honor of taking over for the legendary coach, spoke eloquently about what Ray meant to him as a player and now as a coaching mentor.

"I played for Ray in '96, '97, and '98, which was the Regional team," said Maze who emceed the evening's festivities. "When I came back (to Quincy), I was an assistant coach for two years, and then it just happened to be that the head coach position opened up, and he asked me to do it, and there wasn't even a question, I was so honored. I am going to put my best foot forward everyday for the kids, for Morrisette, and for Mr. Cattaneo."

"The thing that he instills in every kids, regardless if they are a bench player, or if they are the best player on the team is a first-class attitude. Ray knows what it takes to get there. Morrisette has always been an exceptional team because we take everything to the top and that is because of Mr. Cattaneo."

"Just being nice, just being classy, just being the top of everything you do, it makes a difference," continued Maze. "Does that interpret into a game-winning hit, maybe not, but what it does do is get you to the next level. We are this way because of Ray."

"I tell you what, the best way to describe Ray is that he carried the Olympic torch, you know what I mean?" said Maze. "There are people in this city that people admire, that people think are great, that do tons of things for the city, but he brought more. That is what he means to this city, you do not mention baseball without mentioning Ray Cattaneo; in the next sentence, people just speak the world of him."

A line of local politicians honored Cattaneo, after a cocktail hour and a sit-down dinner, beginning with State Representative Bruce Ayers, who presented the long-time coach with a House of Representative citation. Following Ayers, State Senator Michael Morrissey honored Cattaneo with a resolution from the MA State Senate recognizing his achievements for his 40 years of coaching Morrisette Legion Post Baseball.

Mayor Thomas Koch took to the podium next and proclaimed April 15, 2010 as "Ray Cattaneo Day" in Quincy. Koch spoke about Coach Cattaneo's influence on his path into local politics, saying:

"Ray was one of my mentors in government. He really taught me how to talk to people and listen to people; there is no better gentleman that I dealt with in government. I didn't know Ray on the field, politics was my game, but we had some great times together. We prayed together, we laughed together, we cried together. I am grateful for all of his fatherly advice, sometimes unsolicited. When I told him I was thinking of running for mayor he told me I was nuts; today I agree with him (laugh). I didn't listen."

"Ray is a special person to me and particularly my family. There is not a better guy than Ray Cattaneo."

Quincy is a special place, as we all know, and I am truly honored and privileged to be mayor, but what makes it so special are the Ray Cattaneos of the this city that make this world a much better place."

A United States Army veteran of the Korean War, Cattaneo was also recognized by Charles Tower, Commander of the American Legion Post 294. Tower presented him with a commemorative, inscribed Louisville Slugger bat for his 40 years of dedication to the C.P. Morrisette American Legion Baseball program.

Mark Avis, National Vice Commander (Palmer, MA), a representative from the American Legion National Headquarters, presented Cattaneo with a "Baseball Citation" for all of his accomplishments coaching Morrisette Legion baseball.

Following Tower and Avis, Kristen Powers, Director of the Quincy Park Department, took the microphone and announced that June 18 would be "Ray Cattaneo Night" at Adams Field.

"In 2003, Adams Field received a $1 million renovation primarily in preparation for the Babe Ruth World Series," said Powers. "When we completed the field, many of you know that the third base dugout was dedicated to Ray. The signs never made it back; I am not sure if that was a protest because he continued to smoke in the dugout (laugh)."

"All kidding aside, I am here to announce that on June 18 will be 'Ray Cattaneo Night' at Adams Field where Morrisette will take on Quincy Legion and that night we will rededicate the dugout to Ray for his devotion to Morrisette and his dedication to the City of Quincy."

Former Morrisette players Ricky Salvucci and Joe Vailpando, following Powers, presented their former coach with a framed Morrisette jersey. The team officially retired his #21 in his honor.

"The atmosphere that Mr. C creates makes you want to go to the field every day," said Salvucci, "and not only win a baseball game for yourself, but win one for him because that is how good of a guy he is. Mr. C would do anything for us. Everyone loves him for that."

"Mr. C, I was lucky enough to play for you for four years," said Vailpando. "I have all the respect in the world for you, congratulations on a great career, you deserve tonight. Thank you."

The evening concluded with a presentation from Joe Brill, President of the Quincy High School Baseball Hall of Fame. Brill announced that the Hall of Fame would induct Cattaneo as an honorary member, making him just the fourth non-QHS player to receive this honor. He will join George Burke, Sam Mele, and Jim Sheets in that exclusive class.

For the honored guest this evening meant so much and more. Cattaneo is the type of man who has helped make Quincy the great city it is today. He is a lifer and last Thursday was just a way for those people he has touched through his dedication to baseball to say thank you. Speaking with him the next morning, he said:

"I have been here in Quincy for 80 years. I never contemplated moving away. I love this city. I coached for the kids. I coached in the name of Morrisette. It was a special night for me and my family, and I always said that if I helped someone become a better person then I did my job."

NQHS LAX Shooting For Post-Season

By SEAN BRENNAN
Seven seasons since it began and the North Quincy High School boys' lacrosse program is starting to show signs of becoming a threat to the powers-that-be on the ultra-competitive South Shore lacrosse scene.

The Red Raiders have started the 2010 spring season like a house on fire. The team, as of the April school vacation break, currently own a 6-1 overall record, just four wins shy of qualifying for the Division I post-season tournament. The last time that NQHS advanced into the playoffs was four years ago; the team since that lone appearance has come up just short. The last two seasons, North Quincy has finished 7-8 overall, missing out on advancing by a single victory.

NQ Shooting For Post-Season

This year's team has started their campaign with victories over Coyle-Cassidy HS (twice), Hull HS, Cambridge Ridge & Latin HS, Silver Lake HS, and Plymouth South HS. North's only loss came against perennial powerhouse Hingham HS on April 1.

"Most of these kids have been playing lacrosse for me at North Quincy since they were freshmen," said NQHS head coach Mark Nutley, "and this season we have gotten off to a nice start. We have a bunch of athletes who are having great seasons and it has been encouraging to see us jump out to such a fast start."

"At 6-1, we have put ourselves in the position in which we need just four more victories to qualify for the postseason. And looking at the schedule we are going to face after the vacation week, that is a good thing. We have some tough games coming up against some of the better teams in the area."

Lacrosse in Quincy does not get the same response from younger kids that it receives in hotbeds such as Duxbury and Hingham, and it seems that even if Quincy produces quality players, many leave for private schools once they hit high school age. This makes this year's NQHS team and the depth of talent on the roster even that impressive.

"This is really going to be the year we should be able to do some great things," said

Nutley, a teacher at Atlantic Middle School. "In Quincy, lacrosse is, for some reason, not that popular and it can be tough competing with these other towns that produce good players year after year."

"Looking at our youth program we have some talent in the middle school, but, really you never know. That is what makes this team so exciting. We are loaded with kids who can score goals and I have a number of great defensemen on the team."

Returning this spring for their fourth and final go-around are senior captains Owen Kilcullen (defense), Tim Gillis (defense), and Trevor Richardson (defense). These three bring both varsity experience and an understanding of how to play the game on the field.

"These three team captains have been playing for four years and understand how to play the game," added Nutley. "They have been solid all year and they have made our defense one of the strong points on this team."

On offense, the Red Raiders have senior attack man Tommy Petitti leading the charge. Petitti, a team captain, through seven games, has scored 23 goals and added seven assists while junior attack man Bobby Lawless has plotted 12 goals with 17 assists. Senior Dan Cedrone is also an offensive threat for NQHS.

"I have a number of players who can score and that starts with Tommy Petitti," said Nutley. "We have some good players like Dan Cedrone and Bobby Lawless who can also score. We may not be as deep and may not be able to run out multiple scoring lines, but what we have is very good."

Senior Matt McGue is the team's number one goaltender.

NQHS will kick off its second half schedule on April 26 with an away game against Whitman-Hanson HS followed by games against Malden HS (April 28), and Quincy HS (April 30).

The key to advancing to the postseason is going to come down to how well the team responds to tougher competition. And that means that practice and repetition will be key moving forward.

"It's the simple stuff like catching and throwing that we need to continue to work on," Nutley said. "We will take the vacation week and iron some things out and try to get ready for the rest of the season."

Notes: The rest of the 2010 NQHS roster (as supplied by the Athletic Office) is as follows:

MA Boating Course To Be Offered May 3, 10 & 17

The Massachusetts Environmental Police in conjunction with the Quincy Police Department's Marine Unit will present "Boat Massachusetts," a Massachusetts boating basics course on May 3, 10 & 17 (all Mondays) from 6-9:30 p.m. at the Houghs Neck Maritime Center, 137 Bayview Ave, Quincy.

This course is offered to the public at no charge, and the primary purpose of the course is to foster safe boat operation through increased awareness of required safety equipment, safe boating practices and legal responsibilities.

Participants must attend all three classes and students must be at least 12 years old to attend.

Youths, between the ages of 12-15, who successfully complete this course will be issued a Safety Certificate allowing them to operate a motorboat without adult supervision, as is required by state law. This course will also satisfy the state requirements for personal watercraft users who are 16 or 17 years of age. All graduates will be issued a course completion diploma and a Safety Certificate.

Taking this three-week course as a family is encouraged and had proven to be highly rewarding.

Preregistration is required with the MA Environmental Police. Call 508-759-0002 to register or for additional information.

The North Quincy High School Hockey Boosters recently held their annual banquet and awards ceremony at The Best-Western Adams Inn.

At the banquet, individual awards were handed out to both varsity and jayvee players. Also at the event, first-year head coach Matt Gibbons, recognized the accomplishments of the program's seven graduating seniors.

The following are Coach Gibbons' thoughts on each senior and what they brought to his program and what each will leave behind as a legacy to NQHS hockey:

On Sean Campbell: "No one worked harder than this individual this year. He was the ultimate team player and turned into a fifth captain for this team."

On James Barresi: "(James) was in every sense of the phrase, a team guy. He was selfless, hard working and most of all... hysterical. He did a great job keeping the room loose and making sure at the end of the day guys were having fun."

On Ryan Gorman: "A quiet player who came to the rink and just did his job and did it well. Reliable D-man and who took home the award for most improved player of the year."

On Trevor Richardson:

"Captain. His toughness, his emotion for the game, his hard work and his leadership made Brandon one of our best players and someone that I always looked to come through in a big situation for us."

On Jake Mullaney: "Captain. His loyalty is second to none, and he was one of the most feared players in the league because of his intimidation factor. (He) would never back down to anyone and was always there for his teammates."

On Matt Brundige: "Captain and team MVP. He was the backbone of this team. Matt was not only one of the best goalies in our league but he was one of the best in the state. He kept us in a lot of games and was the biggest difference maker on this team."

For Coach Gibbons and his Red Raiders, the 2009-2010 season was not based solely on wins and losses (the team missed the postseason tournament), but, instead, on the character of the student-athletes who put forth great effort in every game the team played.

"My first season behind the bench was a season I will never forget," said Gibbons, "not for the wins and losses but for the kids - the group of young men who night in and night out gave everything they had for the greater good of the team."

"It is a special group of young men and it is my first team as a varsity coach and I didn't and will never take them for granted. Can't wait for next season!"

The following are a list of the awards given out at the annual banquet:

Varsity

Team MVP Award: Matt Brundige; Player of the Year Award: Brandon Whitehouse; Most Improved Player Award: Ryan Gorman; Coaches Award: Mike Nelson; Team High GPA Award: Frank Mastorilli, and Booster Club Award: Trevor Richardson.

Jayvee

Team MVP Award: Pat Verhault; Most Improved Player Award: Josh Hayward; Coaches Award: Jimmy Scrib and Connor Flynn, and Team High GPA Award: Josh Hayward.

Lamie, Wilson, and Haydar Took On Boston

Local Runners Conquer 114th Boston Marathon

By JOE REARDON

Maureen Lamie took a quick glance at her watch in Kenmore Square and immediately picked up the pace with a mile to the finish of Monday's 114th running of the Boston Marathon.

Lamie was looking forward to savoring the finish of her 13th time taking on the fabled 26.2-mile Hopkinton-to-Boston classic. Easing her way to the finish became an after-thought when she got a look at her time. Lamie knew a strong finish would bring her close to bettering her personal best of 3 hours, 27 minutes and 52 seconds she recorded 14 years ago.

It was not a time to cruise. The race was on.

"I looked at my watch and thought, 'I can do this,'" said Lamie.

She switched gears down Commonwealth Ave., and sprinted hard over the long, Boylston Street straightaway to the finish. Lamie lopped off nearly a minute from her previous mark for a new personal best of 3:26:51.

Her time was good for an impressive 57th in the women's masters division and left Lamie enormously satisfied on a day tailor-made for running with its 50-degree temperatures and slight tailwind. She ran a remarkably even race, passing the halfway point in 1:41:40 and clocking 1:45:11 from Wellesley to the finish in Copley Square.

"I definitely picked it up," she said. "When I got to Boylston Street and saw the finish line, I was just out of my mind."

Lamie packed in the miles over the winter, but a tender hamstring heading into Patriot's Day made the seasoned marathoner apprehensive. "I had no idea what to expect because I had some hamstring issues," she said the following morning.

The weather conditions and her experience running the challenging Boston layout played in Lamie's favor and she took full advantage. She ran the hills strong, but cautiously, prepping for the last 10K to the finish line in front of the Boston City Library.

"I was cold at the start but I heated right up," said Lamie. "That's my running weather. It was dry and there was some sun. There was a tailwind and a crosswind. It was awesome!"

Lamie kept the breaks on from the start to avoid being sucked into running hard on the downhills. She was still fresh when she made the turn from Route 16 onto the start of the Newton Hills. Lamie shortened her stride and began to feel even better.

"I did a lot of hill training over the winter," she said. "I liked them because they were a good change of pace. They didn't bother me. I put it in low gear and I tried to maintain. They weren't bad."

There were those inevitable moments where Lamie felt down, mentally, but expected them and knew she could push through them. "It was the mental game but I knew it would pass," Lamie said.

The crowds along the race route were their usual boisterous selves. Lamie was able to concentrate and stay focused for most of the way but students from the two major colleges on the route made it impossible for her. "They were awesome but I was in a zone," she said. "You can't zone out the crowd at Wellesley College or Boston College."

Lamie was sore the following day but it was nothing she didn't expect. She plans to take a few days off and then gear up for the local races and a fall marathon, possibly the Bay State Marathon in Lowell. After that, it's back to her four-month marathon training schedule and her 15th Boston.

"I'm sore now but I'm absolutely running next year," said Lamie.

Tracy Wilson sustained a few blisters from her run, but otherwise felt fine on Tuesday morning. She planned on starting back running sometime before the end of the week.

Wilson completed her third Boston in as many years, crossing the finish line in a personal best of 4:44:04. Wilson began her training in December and worked her long runs up to 21 miles leading up to Patriot's Day.

"I feel good," she said. "I have some blisters but I feel good."

Once again, Wilson found Heartbreak Hill to be just as difficult as advertised. "Once I got to the top of Heartbreak Hill I wanted to get the race over with," she said. "If you train on that hill in short runs it's a piece of cake. But hit it at 20 miles and it's really hard."

The crowds lining the route from Boston College to the finish line were very supportive and Wilson said they gave the runners that added push to complete the grueling run. "The crowd gets you through it," she said. "It's really hard but you know you're going to make it. They're so energetic. They really get you going."

Hassan Haydar didn't have a big crowd to get him going early marathon morning. Along with 11 other runners from across the country, Haydar ran from the finish line to Hopkinton beginning at 5:02 a.m.

Nine of the 12 runners finished and after watching the elite women's start, he took his place in a corral and was off 20 minutes later. Hassan cruised past the mile mark, his 27th on the day, in 8 minutes and settled into a comfortable clip by the 10K mark in Framingham. He felt completely drained by 22 miles (his 48th) but hung on to finish with a solid time of 3:46:21. The time was well under the 4 hours he was hoping to run.

"When I turned the corner on Boylston Street I focused on that yellow finish sign," said Haydar. "Whatever I had left in me I gave all out."

"My body was just about ready to shutdown completely (at 22 miles)," he said. "I felt like my body was begging to stop."

As for a daily double next Patriot's Day, Haydar said time would tell.

"The first Boston Marathon winner in 1897 (John McDermott) told reporters he would never run another marathon again," Haydar said. "He came back to Boston 46 times."

Race Day June 26; To Be Held In Houghs Neck

Bill Dunn Jr. Memorial Road Race

The Bill Dunn Jr. Memorial Road Race will be held Saturday, June 26 in Houghs Neck. The event is a great time for friends and family of Bill Dunn Jr. to gather in honor of his life and share memories with each other. This is the 4th year the Road Race is being held and each year the support and participation is remarkable.
